University Receives $407,671 Grant For Economic Revitalization on Lower Shore

Governor William Donald Schaefer in July announced the award of a $950,000 grant to the Lower Shore Private Industry Council to provide reemployment and retraining services for over 580 workers who lost their jobs due to plant closings on the lower Shore.

"This grant from (the Maryland) Department of Economic and Employment Development is a fine example of how the state, private industry and a local University can work together to provide a full range of services for the lower Shore's dislocated workers," said Gov. Schaefer. "We will continue to work together to market the lower Shore for business and tourism."

"The effort to provide worker assistance became necessary after Campbell Soup closed its food processing plants in Crisfield and Pocomoke City and after the closing of the Carvel Hall Cutlery plant also in Crisfield," said J. Randall Evans, secretary of DEED.

The governor explained that $407,671 of the grant will be contracted to Salisbury State by the Lower Shore Private Industry Council. The University is participating in the project by providing staff training for the assistance centers. The governor noted that the funding came from the federal government and was distributed by DEED.

The program will emphasize services to individuals provided at accessible centers throughout the area. The primary goal of the Lower Shore Revitalization Program is reemployment of the dislocated workers.

The two worker assistance centers, located in Pocomoke City and Crisfield, are to be staffed by counselors and trainers, some of whom were dislocated as a result of the plant closings. Other staff members include professional educators. Counseling will provide job placement, employment and job development skills. Education services will include adult basic education, GED training and a variety of retraining opportunities.

"We are grateful to the state for helping us in our worker relocation efforts," said William Greenwood, president of the Lower Shore Private Industry Council. "Working in cooperation with Salisbury State University and DEED, we are able to continue to help our people."

Creighton New Henson School Dean

Dr. Phillip D. Creighton, an associate dean at Towson State University who has firsthand knowledge of the ecological problems of the Chesapeake Bay and of the challenges of educating undergraduate science students, has been named dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, announced this summer.

Hedeen Reflects On Salisbury Career

For Dr. Robert A. Hedeen, who retired in June after 19 years as professor of biology at the University, the future looks challenging.

"It's time for me to move on to other things," he said. "I have a lot I want to do."

Among them will be his writing. He is the author of two popular books, "Naturalist on the Nanticoke" and "The Oyster: the Life and Lure of the Celebrated Bivale," and now is planning a third. The subject hasn't quite jelled yet but, as with all his writing, it will be an effort to bring some aspect of the natural world into vivid focus for lay readers.

He also plans to step up his article writing for nature and regional magazines and will continue his weekly column for a local paper.

For the time being he will live here, he said, dividing his time between his home in Deer Harbour and his summer place in the village of Tyaskin by the Nanticoke River, the inspiration of much of his writing.

Busy though he expects to be, he will view the start of a new college year in September with mixed feelings. "It will be the first time in 21 years of teaching," he said, "that I won't be going to work. I'm waiting to see how I adjust."

In all those years of teaching, including 19 here and two previously at Chicago City College, literally thousands of students have passed through his biology classrooms. Many of them, including now successful research scientists, nurses, physicians and teachers, keep in touch with occasional letters or phone

Opening Week Reception for Campus

All faculty and students are invited to attend a University opening week reception on Thursday, September 6, from 1-4:30 p.m., at the University Center patio and lounge. Sponsored by the University Center and the SSU Council on Women's Issues, the reception will feature music by the Montebello Quartet.

The Montebello Strings is among Baltimore's well-known chamber music ensembles. Originally conceived as a quartet, the Montebello Strings now includes any number of ensembles, including trios, quintets and a salon orchestra. These ensembles play extensively in the Baltimore and Washington, D.C areas.

Members Mark Dulac, Thomas Ginsburg, Sherrie Norwitz and David Shumway pursue individual enterprises ranging from doctoral work, teaching, arranging compositions and jazz performance to playing with other professional groups such as the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, Baltimore Chamber Orchestra, Choral Arts Society, Wolf Trap Farm Park, Baltimore Opera Company and orchestras for the major metropolitan theatre companies.

The Quartet will play from 1-1:30 p.m. on the patio and 3-4:30 in the lounge. Refreshments will be served.

Sea Gull Club

Have you heard about the Sea Gull Club?

Perhaps you have but did not realize that you are eligible to join this growing organization. The Sea Gull Club with a membership of some 200 men and women is dedicated to having a good time with friends and neighbors of SSU.

Included in its membership are business leaders, teachers, public servants, educators, government employees, printers, University administrators and others. When you join the club you have the opportunity to socialize with these people and become friends.

Your membership will enable you and your spouse to enjoy six cocktail parties on an open bar basis with outstanding hors d'oeuvres, two superb dinners with open bars and a wine and cheese social. Some of these events are held in conjunction with SSU theatre productions, a U.S. Army Field Band Christmas Concert and other activities. The group also has season tickets to home football and basketball games.

Many "old-timers" in the club call this the "best deal in town" dollar-for-dollar. The total cost is $150 per couple. Singles may join at an annual cost of $90. Send your check payable to: Sea Gull Club, c/o Salisbury State University Foundation, P.O. Box 2655, Salisbury, MD 21801. If you have any questions, call Dee Hedrick (543-6027).

Loan Borrowers

Recent federal regulations require all first-time and incoming transfer Stafford Student and/or SLS 'loan borrowers to attend an entrance interview conducted by financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that participants attend an interview before loan funds can be released. Failure to do so will result in the immediate cancellation of the loan.

Below are dates and times the interviews will be conducted. (Participants must attend one interview. Interviews will last approximately 20 minutes):

September 4, at 10 a.m., noon or 3 p.m., Nanticoke Room A, University Center; or September 5, 5 p.m. in the Social Room, Holloway Hall.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

SSU in the USSR

Though it may be cold and snowy, the heart of Russia is warm and friendly. Come, find out for yourself when Salisbury State goes to the Soviet Union, January 14-26.

Following in the footsteps of those intrepid SSU students who have gone before, you'll have the chance to visit the capitals of the old and new Russia. Kiev is where it all began over 1,000 years ago. Today it is the third largest city in the Soviet Union and is the warm-hearted capital of the Ukraine.

Leningrad (St. Petersburg) became the capital under Tsar Peter the Great and remained so until after the revolution of 1917. Here in Russia's second city, you can see magnificient museums and palaces and enjoy the thoroughly Westernized atmosphere of this Venice of the north.

Moscow, the largest city, is the center of a rapidly changing country. Marvelous buildings, an electric atmosphere, here is where perestroika and glasnost are centered in this rapidly changing country.

Returning home, the group will spend a day in Helsinki, Finland's capital.

The study-tour is sponsored by the History Department. The instructor for the course and group leader is Dr. Robert Berry, who teaches Russian history and has led several groups to the Soviet Union in the past. The total cost for the tour is approximately $1900, a remarkably affordable rate with everything included. The study-tour is open to all students, faculty, staff and friends of SSU.

For more information attend an open meeting on Wednesday, September 12, in the Social Room of Holloway Hall at 7 p.m. or contact Berry at 543-6248.

Health Center Services

The Health Center is open from 8 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. and from 1:30 p.m. - 4 p.m., Monday - Friday. A nurse is on call for urgent consultations on the weekend and as needed during the week via a pager system.

Students are seen on a walk-in basis by the Health Center nurses. Those students who require a physician's evaluation are given an appointment. The Health Center physician is available for a part of each day Monday - Friday.

The Health Center offers a wide range of services to students including treatment for injuries, illnesses, gynecological problems and sexually transmitted diseases (STD's). Additionally the Health Center administers allergy injections, immunizations, offers mono and pregnancy testing, contraception and pregnancy counseling, and performs several laboratory procedures.

Referrals may be made for dental, medical, surgical and Planned Parenthood needs. Urgent problems may be referred to the Emergency Room at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center.

Off-campus health care providers, including physicians, dentists, hospitals, radiologists, medical laboratories and pharmacies, charge students for services and supplies, therefore students are urged to carry health insurance. Insurance information may be obtained from the Health Center or the Dean of Student's Office.

A $25 per semester Health Center fee is included in the fee structure which full-time students pay at registration. Part-time students, faculty and staff may utilize the facility for limited services only, such as blood pressure screening, weight checks, emergency first aid, immunizations and health education screenings. Part-time students may elect to pay the $25 Health Center fee to utilize the full range of services.

Student Code of Conduct, Judicial System Guide, Sexal Harrassment Policy

In order to better provide students with information on expectations for responsible citizenship and procedures for judicial proceedings, a written Student Code of Conduct is published along with a Judicial System Guide.

Topics included in the Code of Conduct include academic and computer dishonesty; theft; possession; storage, use of firearms; drug and alcohol use; misuse of University property; false information; assault and verbal harassment; violence and extremism; disruptive behavior; sexual harassment; and hazing.

The Judicial Guide explains disciplinary proceedings in residence halls and campuswide, the function of student advocates, procedural and due process, sanctions and appeals. Sexual Harrassment Policy describes informal and formal procedures for handling complaints.

Copies of all three brochures were mailed to every student the week of August 20. Students who did not receive copies (or misplaced them), please stop by the Dean of Students Office, room 212, University Center.

Faculty Forms From Personnel

A reminder to faculty and staff whose dependents are full-time college/university students. You must fill out a Student Status Verification Form each semester to ensure that medical payments will be made when you submit bills to your insurance company. Contact the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or visit Holloway Hall 222 to obtain forms.

Participants must sign up prior to attending any scheduled training. Signup sheets are located in room 127, Blackwell Library. Don't forget to bring a 5 1/4" diskette to participate in the training class.

Marino New WSCL General Manager

Fred Marino, a 12-year veteran of public broadcasting, nine in senior management positions, has been named new general manager of WSCL-FM radio and director of the Communications Center here, Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, announced this summer.

Marino comes to Salisbury from Black Hawk College in Moline, IL, where he supervised Educational Television Services for two campuses and served as general manager of WQPT-TV, a full-service public television station.

Moline, located on the Mississippi River in northwestern Illinois, is part of the famed "Quad Cities" region which includes Rock Island, IL, and Bettendorf and Davenport, IA. The cities are located some 160 miles from Chicago, or the distance from Salisbury to Philadelpia. One of five local stations in the area, WQPT serves a population of approximately 600,000. Under Marino the PBS affiliate and its staff of 15 (full and parttime) produced some 200 hours of local broadcasting yearly, "quite a bit for a small station," Marino noted.

WSCL's new manager has a keen interest in both public affairs and community programming, particularly news. As an undergraduate of Duquesne University in Pittsburgh he studied print journalism and volunteered at WDUQ, the university's radio station. There he did everything from editing and reading wire copy on the air to announcing music.

After graduating in 1961, his first real job was news director at WHHH, a commercial radio station in Warren, OH, located near Youngstown. In Marino's words, the position was a "reporter's dream. At that time Youngstown/Warren was run by the mob, and I covered the criminal trial of three members of the Warren City Council, accused of taking kickbacks; a gangland slaying; and the bombing of a judge's front porch."

From there he expanded into television as news director of WICU television and radio in Erie, PA, in 1963. A few years later he took his first and only job in print journalism as city editor of the Titusville Herald, a daily outside of Erie. With a growing family to support, Marino ventured briefly into public relations as public relations director of Gannon University, a private liberal arts institution in downtown Erie. Then in 1978 he returned to radio and television at WQLN, a public TV/FM station in the area.

His four years there were tumultuous. First hired as radio news director, his news and public affairs broadcasts became the highest rated regular featured programming for the station. When he was asked to do the same thing for television, he walked into the middle of a funding and management maelstrom. Shortly after his transfer some 30 people—nearly half the TV station's staff—including Marino—were given their pink slips. Within a matter of days, however, before he had a chance to clean out his desk, a series of whirlwind changes resulted not only in his rehiring, but promotion to general manager.

After a year as GM, much of which was spent in fund raising and morale boosting, he saw only one staffer leave, and that for personal reasons.

Marino next headed West, to head KAID-TV in Boise, the largest public television station in Idaho located on the campus of Boise State University. He also wore the hat of director of broadcast affairs for the Idaho Public Televison network.

The 51-year-old Marino sees his return to radio as coming full circle. "Radio is the first magic I ever encountered," he said. "I grew up in Pennsylvania listening to "The Green Hornet," "The Lone Ranger," "Inner Sanctum" . . . on the radio. Every junior high school had a shop class where you could make a crystal set and then listen to your heart's content.

"Over the years it's become evident to me that radio waves are in my veins. In televison the pictures get in the way. There is little left for the television viewer's imagination and it's imagination that gives radio its magic."

Marino is impressed with the three-year-old station he now manages. WSCL is ranked seventh out of some 30 stations on the lower peninsula. "At age three, that is remarkable in any market," he said. Coupled with the strong income support WSCL has gained from its listeners, "NPR (National Public Radio) has been impressed with the development of this station."

Marino relishes returning East. An avid cyclist, he looks forward to pedaling the Eastern Shore and meeting its people. "You can't respond to the people you're serving until you know what's on their minds," he said.

He will oversee a staff of 12 full and parttime at WSCL and six in the Communication Center including the University's instructional media, which is responsible for the campus's audio-visual equipment and facilities—among them a television studio.

Children's Art Classes

The Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury offers children's art classes on Saturdays beginning September 15.

Kathy Mumford teaches the elementary-secondary school classes. Section I for grades one, two and three are on Saturdays from 9:30-11 a.m. and Section II for grades four, five and six from 12:30-2: p.m. The theme for the classes centers around the fall season. The lessons provide students with opportunities to experience painting, drawing and stenciling. The third dimension is also introduced as the children create mobiles and collages.

Section II for grades seven and above the medium exploration provides the student with a deeper understanding of what is available to use in producing works of art. Charcoal, pen and ink, watercolors and clay are featured. Techniques such as shading, cross hatching, stippling washes, blending of colors and clay modeling along with the principles of design are stressed. The cost for five weeks is $35 for AIG members and $40 for non-members.

Preschoolers, ages 3-5, are taught on Tuesdays by Vicki Noonan. Music and stories are used to help children explore the basics of color, line, rhythm, texture and form. The hour-long classes are held for six weeks from 10-11 a.m. and 2-3 p.m. on Tuesdays, beginning September 11. The cost of the classes is $35 for AIG members and $40 for non-members.

On October 20 and 27, a two-day workshop, "Introduction to Cartooning," is offered by Mike Baglieri. There are three sessions differentiated according to age group. Adults are permitted to participate in the grade seven and above workshop. Baglieri is a teacher for Wicomico County and owner of Humor Us Studio in Berlin. He studied cartooning at the School of Visual Arts in New York City. The cost is $15 for AIG members and $20 for non-members.

For more information, contact AIG from noon-4 p.m. weekdays at 546-4748 or Nancy Nicoll, education chairman, at 548-1248.

Fall Theatre Auditions To Be Held

Auditions for Salisbury State University's fall theatre production of "The Three Musketeers" and "The Homecoming" will be held on September 6 and 7.

Both productions will be directed by guest artist, Kelly Morgan. Morgan taught acting at American University, has acted professionally and holds several degrees in acting and directing. Perhaps the most intriguing of those is his certificate in fencing from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Morgan's extensive background promises productions of professional caliber as well as an intense and exciting theatrical experience for those involved.

"The Three Musketeers" which opens the season in mid-October is an adaptation of Alexandre Dumas' novel of court intrigue, romance and adventure in 17th century France. For those who recall the film version with Michael York, Raquel Welch and Faye Dunaway, the script is exciting—with plenty of sword play. There are many parts and many actors will be double-cast playing several roles.

Harold Pinter's "The Homecoming" is a probing drama revolving around a family of men and the women who share their house. Bitterness, rivalry, greed and lust drive this play to its startling conclusion. The play calls for several older men or male actors who could pass for middle-aged and older.

Salisbury State Theatre welcomes anyone from campus or the Salisbury community to audition. All parts are open and no experience is necessary.

Auditions for "Three Musketeers" and "The Homecoming" on September 6 and 7 begin at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. A special welcoming reception will precede the auditions on Thursday, September 6, at 6:30 p.m. also in Holloway Hall. For more information call 543-6235.

Nature Photography At Pemberton Park

Noted nature photographer, Mary Gerlach, will discuss and demonstrate basic techniques of nature photography at Pemberton Historical Park on Saturday, September 8, at 10 a.m. Bring your camera equipment.

Registration fee is $2. It is limited to adults and children 10 or above.

For reservations or more information call 548-4900.

Monster Book Sale

Blackwell Library will be holding its annual Monster Book Sale on Thursday, September 13. The sale, running from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., is on the terrace in front of the Library. All sorts of used books will be available, from the ordinary to the unusual.

Bring your money, throw caution to the wind and fill up your bookshelves for the coming year. Books are priced at 50 cents each, unless otherwise marked.

Rain date is Friday, September 14.

Women's Council Completes Child Care Research

The Council on Women's Issues completed its child care research project which included a survey of all SSU employees and students and an evaluation of existing models for campus child care. Analysis of over 3,000 survey responses and 20 campus child care models revealed that:

Child care is an issue of critical concern to the majority of students and employees at the University; there is a continuing need for child care for over 200 childern per year and at least half of these children are under two years of age.

Those needing child care want it provided in centers with educational opportunities and can afford to pay for it. They do not want that care provided by licensed day care mothers.

Child care centers in the city of Salisbury can provide care for approximately half these children if they are over two years of age but not children under that age.

The expressed child care needs of students and employees at Salisbury State can be directly met by: having a private provider construct a child care center for the University; having the University itself construct a day care center; or by establishing agreements with a number of existing centers to assure a specific number of child care placements for University affiliates.

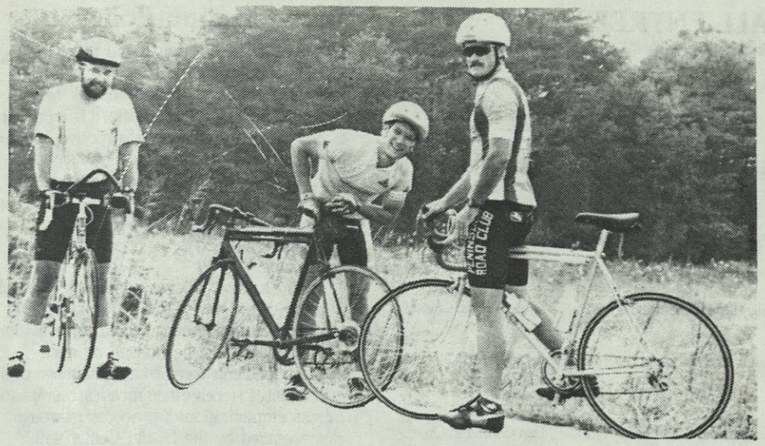
A report on this project was submitted to Dr. Bellavance on May 30, and he has asked the Council to explore the private provider option in greater detail.

Training in CPR

In two- or three-evening or weekend sessions, you can learn how to save a life in cases of heart attack, choking, drowning, electric shock, injury and other emergencies where the heart and breathing stop and death occurs quickly. Would you be ready if an emergency occured in your home, class or work area?

Short courses in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) are available every few weeks from August to January through the Continuing Education Office. All University personnel and spouses are, of course, welcome. Beginners' and review classes, in American Heart Association or Red Cross teaching format, are scheduled.

If interested, phone Dr. William Standaert at home (742-6635) or leave a message at the Continuing Education Office (543-6170).



Cyclists take a break beside one of the many Chesapeake Bay tributaries which meander along side the Sea Gull Century route on Maryland's historic Eastern Shore. The Sea Gull Century ride will be held on Saturday, October 13. To register or for more information write or call Joseph Gilbert at 543-6012.

Sea Gull Century Ride October 13

On Saturday, October 13, the Sea Gull Century, sponsored by the University Cycling Club, promises to be a sublime trek down country roads, past solemn beaches and over the Ocean City boardwalk.

As the headquarters for last summer's League of American Wheelmen's National Rally, Salisbury State received an abundance of plaudits for the quality of the rides and its overall hospitality. And in October, with most of the tourists gone, Ocean City traffic should be diminished affording riders a safe and scenic journey.

The Shore is a cyclist's paradise with its flat, rural roads, ideal for a century ride, especially one's first 100-miler. The Sea Gull Century follows a flat route over predominantly rural back-country roads that are lightly traveled. When approaching Assateague Island, there is a possibility that the famous Assateague ponies may be seen plus many species of migratory birds and other wildlife.

After leaving Assateague Island, the Century route takes you to Ocean City and a ride over the boardwalk from the Inlet to 17th Street with an opportunity to stop at several of the famous food stands.

After leaving OC, it's back to the country roads and a return trip to Maggs Physical Activities Center, the original starting point.

Throughout the route there are designated food and water stops, and a sag wagon is available to pick up riders with physical and mechanical problems. A number of rural stores, visitors' centers and public facilities near Assateague and Ocean City are open.

A map of the route with cue sheet and a t-shirt are in the registration packet. The Sea Gull Century is 102 miles; shorter rides are offered as an option. All routes include markings on the pavement.

Facilities for showers are available at Maggs following the ride for registered cyclists. An optional chicken barbeque, Eastern Shore style, is from 4-6 p.m. at the University Center. Advance registration and payment are required for the barbeque.

Ride-day registration begins at 7 a.m. at Maggs. The fee is $12 (plus an additional $8.75 for the barbeque). Rides depart at 8 a.m.; helmets are required. The ride is sanctioned by the League of American Wheelmen.

For more information or to preregister, write: SSU Cycling Club, P.O. Box 3046, Salisbury, MD 21801, or call Joseph Gilbert at 543-6012.

Wetlands Delineation Course Developed

The Henson School of Science and Technology and the Department of Natural Sciences at UMES are assisting the Maryland Department of Natural Resources in developing a Wetland Delineation Certification Program. The 1989 Nontidal Wetlands Protection Act mandated that the DNR establish a certification exam for individuals that delineate potential wetlands.

The Henson School's role in the plan is to assist in training courses for personnel to delineate wetlands and to prepare individuals for the certification exam.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

A busy fall season of sports competition is right around the corner as seven Sea Gull squads take to the fields and courts in just a few days. Most teams have been involved with preseason practice for at least one week and are eager to begin actual competition.

Some new coaches that have joined the athletic staff during the summer include Ed Hoeck, who will be one of the co-head coaches for the women's volleyball team; Bridget Bentshetler, the other co-head coach for volleyball as well as the head coach for women's basketball; and Christine Wagner, the new interim aquatics director and women's swim team coach. First-year football coach Joe Rotellini, who returned to SSU in March, also has a new full-time assistant in Aubrey Kelly, who will also serve as an assistant coach with the track team in the spring.

The volleyball squad will have the honor of inaugurating this fall's sports schedule when it takes to the court on Wednesday, September 5 in a tri-meet at home against UMES and Delaware Tech. The Gulls, who are the three-time defending Eastern States Athletic Conference champions, finished 33-10 last year. Those who wish to get a sneak peek at the soccer team can do so on Saturday, September 1, when Coach Gerry DiBartolo's team gets its final preseason tune-up against an alumni squad of former Sea Gull standouts. Game time at the varsity field is 2 p.m.

Upcoming home events in September include the football season opener against C.W. Post on September 8; the SSU Soccer Invitational Tournament on September 15-16; the Sunfest Field Hockey Tournament on September 22-23; and the Gull Classic Volleyball Tournament on September 28-29.

Four Programs from London On WSCL-FM 89.5

Saint Paul Sunday Morning will present a special month of programs from London this September, in celebration of its 10th anniversary season. Saint Paul Sunday Morning can be heard on WSCL-FM 89.5 at 10 a.m. Sundays. The program is the most widely-broadcast classical music performance program in the country, and the trip to London marks the first time the program has left the country to record musicians.

On September 9, Saint Paul Sunday Morning will present the Guildhall String Ensemble. Established in 1981, the 11-member ensemble has won international awards and has premiered works by many contemporary composers. Their program features works by English composers Peter Warlock, Gustax Holst, Frederick Delius, John Ireland and Benjamin Britten.

In October, Saint Paul Sunday Morning presents a unique musical/narrative collaboration. "Little Tricker the Squirrel Meets Big Double the Bear" is an Ozark fable, written by celebrated novelist Ken Kesey and set to music by Arthur Maddox.

In honor of the internationally-celebrated Mozart year, Saint Paul Sunday Morning will present four programs in March featuring the Amadeus Winds, the Guarneri String Quartet and pianist Andras Schiff, who all share an affinity for the great composer. The Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra, which appeared on Saint Paul Sunday Morning's original broadcast, will return to the program with guest Richard Goode to join in the Mozart celebration.

In addition to these season highlights, Saint Paul Sunday Morning will feature many other renowned musicians throughout the year and will offer a special Christmas program featuring Les Arts Florissants, the leading specialists in 17th and 18th century vocal music.

Outdoor Club News

The Outdoor Club holds its first meeting for the fall semester on Monday, September 10, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center. All students are welcome.

The first trip is on the weekend of September 14-16 to Harpers Ferry, WV. Trip participants can choose from a variety of activities including touring historic Harpers Ferry, hiking on the Appalachian Trail, tubing, whitewater rafting and whitewater canoeing on the Shenandoah River. Anyone interested in the trip must attend the meeting on Monday, September 10.

All Outdoor Club meetings are on Mondays in Nanticoke A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the fall semester include rock climbing, hiking, horseback riding and whitewater rafting.

Movie Tickets

Discounted movie tickets for Movies 6 Theatres are on sale at the University Center information desk Monday-Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. - 10 p.m. The price is $4 per ticket.

T'ai-Chi Course

The Office of Continuing Education is sponsoring two courses in T'ai-chi Ch'uan, a Chinese form of physical culture. Both courses will meet in the Dance Studio of the Maggs Center.

The beginning class will meet on Tuesdays, starting September 11, and an intermediate course will be offered on Wednesdays, beginning September 12. Each one hour class meets from 8-9 p.m. and runs for eight sessions.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Ben Fusaro, who has studied T'ai-chi both in the U.S. and in Taiwan. He has been teaching T'ai-chi Ch'uan in Wicomico County since 1976.

T'ai-chi Ch'uan is a non-aerobic exercise that requires no special physical or physiological equipment. Tuition and fees are $32. For more information call 543-6170.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Immunization Policy

Effective this fall semester all students (returning, incoming freshmen and transfers) will be required to provide verification that their immunization status is up to date. It is important to note students may have to receive boosters from their family doctor of local health department in order to meet the requirement.

Information regarding dates of immunization is usually available from one's health care provider: school or local, county health department.

Failure to meet policy requirements will result in a "hold" on preregistration for spring '91 semester. Current students whose immunizations are incomplete will be notified by mail.

Many students have taken advantage of the opportunity to receive their measles, mumps and rubella immunizations (at no cost) through clincis offered by the Health Center staff.

The Health Center is available to answer questions relating to immunizations or the policy at 543-6262.

Faculty Published

Two faculty members recently had articles published in the book "Handbook of Replication Research in the Behavioral & Social Sciences." The book was a special issue of the Journal of Social Behavior and Personality which included research in social science disciplines such as psychology and sociology and applied areas such as business and public policy.

Dr. Wayne H. Decker, associate professor of management in the Perdue School of Business, wrote an article titled "Managing Impressions of Individual and Group Achievement Through Self-Presentation." His research suggested that a manager desiring to make a good impression in a work environment should be very generous in sharing credit for good performance—even when the manager clearly has made the major contribution to the accomplishments.

Dr. George I. Whitehead, professor and chair of the Psychology Department in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, co-authored an article titled "The False Consensus Effect in Public and Private." The research suggested that people perceive others to be similar to themselves because they typically associate with others who are similar rather than dissimilar to themselves.

Elwell Presents Paper

Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell of the Social Work Department presented a paper at the annual meeting of the American Association on Mental Retardation (AAMR) in Atlanta in late May.

"Case Management for Elderly with Mental Retardation" analyzed a case situation of frail, aging parents with an elderly, dependent child. Elwell's co-presenter was Luanne Frebertshauser, director of the Maryland Trust for Retarded Citizens.

Ivory Coast Seminar

The first interest meeting of the semester for those planning to join the study seminar to the Ivory Coast, West Africa, will be held in Nanticoke B of the University Center on Friday, September 14, at 3:30 p.m.

Faculty Academic Regalia

Any faculty member needing academic regalia for the fall convocation should contact Nancy Watson at 548-5996, buyer for the Book Rack, immediately.

If a faculty member wishes to purchase their academic regalia, the turnaround time is approximately 8-10 weeks.

Book Rack Promotion, One of Nation's Best

The Book Rack at Salisbury State was one of five college bookstores to distinguish itself nationally in the Follett College Book Company's textbook buyback promotion, "Roadtrip USA." In addition to a Huffy Ultima 26" 10 speed bicycle to be used as a local prize during the 1990-91 school year, Follett awarded the Book Rack $1,000 for the SSU general scholarship fund.

Fred Weber, director of marketing at Follett, praised Stanley Shedaker, director of the Book Rack, for the creativity and energy he put into the contest. "The Book Rack was one of over 400 college stores that participated in Follett's textbook promotion—a promotion that provided thousands of additional low cost used books for students across the country," said Weber. "Even the entry materials demonstrated a level of creativity well beyond our initial expectations. The judges had a difficult time selecting our winners, but the energy that went into your (Shedaker's) promotion, and the results it produced, helped it stand out from the rest," he added.

Shedaker, who has been with SSU for one year, has a background in the management and operation of all aspects of college bookstores which dates back to 1978. "Being relatively new to Salisbury State University, I saw promoting buyback as a tremendous opportunity to create some excitement on campus, create some positive public relations and increase the store's bottom line," he said.

Shedaker not only increased the used book buyback by 41 percent due to his advertising and promotional efforts, but he also gave the students in his Introduction to Retailing course an opportunity to participate. "They selected buyback as a class project they would enjoy working on," he said.

"I divided the class into three teams. One team worked on site selection—it was decided that a second location closer to the classrooms and the normal student traffic pattern would help make more students aware of our buyback," said Shedaker. An outside location was chosen and students began making preparations for the week-long sale.

"The premium and event team contacted both national and local companies to see if they were interested in joining forces and helping one another promote our businesses," Shedaker continued. "They found more than a dozen companies interested and we gave away over 100 additional prizes besides the ones provided through Follett. La Roma, Jansport, Baskin Robins, Gear, Mid-Michigan Music, Rosko's Grill, Salisbury Schwinn, Nacho Pete's, Plump Parrot, Taco Bell, TCBY and Radio Shack were the major contributors of such items as gift certificates, clothing outfits, meals for two and a remote-control stereo rack system."

The promotion/advertising team designed and produced three publicity pieces, wrote two public service announcements and four newspaper advertisements, and developed posters to supplement the professional Follett posters.

"A lot of times students do case studies for their classes strictly by the book and nobody benefits from it," said Shedaker. "Here they got to do it all in one event which tied everything together for them."

Shedaker praises Follett for its innovative approach to sales by encouraging creativity and participation on the part of bookstore managers. "It is this type of cooperative effort that induces us to put forth that little extra effort to really make things happen and to take the time to share it with others," he said.

Shedaker is already planning next year's promotional strategy and prizes.

Minton Recognized

M. P. Minton, dean of the Office of Admissions and Financial Aid, recently received a certificate of recognition from the Maryland Association for Higher Education at its spring conference honoring outstanding educators in the state.

Minton, who has been on the administrative staff at SSU since 1970, was recognized for his work as an academic administrator. He has directed the Admissions and Financial Aid Office since 1977.

As dean of admissions and financial aid Minton is responsible for the overall enrollment management program of the University through the collection and analysis of enrollment figures from the Office of the Registrar and the Graduate Studies and Continuing Education Office.

He is responsible for directing the University's marketing strategy for recruiting students including the scheduling of visits to over 450 Mid-Atlantic high schools and developing and improving on publications and videos designed to support the recruitment effort. He coordinates a telemarketing program involving 20 students completing some 10,000 phone calls each fall to prospective freshmen.

During the past 10 years, the number of applications for admission to Salisbury State has jumped 250 percent. This year the Admissions Office received over 6,000 applications. The University anticpates a freshman class of 725. Along with that increase in applications has come a surge in the quality of the applicants. This fall's freshmen will have average combined Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores of 1015, up some 167 points over scores from 1980.

Minton earned his Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts from the University of Maryland College Park. He was a teacher and administrator in the Wicomico County School System for eight years prior to coming to SSU.

Minton resides in Salisbury with his wife, Janice.

Team Meeting

"You Are Our Team" is the theme of student-teacher orientation on Labor Day, September 3, 10 a.m. - noon in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Sponsored by the SSU cheerleaders, 48 student-teachers will be encouraged, oriented and introduced to their dean, chair, University supervisors and cooperating teachers.

Most will be ready for graduation after completion of the 14-week experience, which will begin on September 4 and end on December 20.

Student-teachers represent SSU, just as all of its teams do. "The School of Education is proud of our team," said Sharon Clark, director of field experiences.

Book Rack Book Rush Hours

Book Rack hours for the fall book rush period are: Monday, September 3, noon-5 p.m.; Tuesday, September 4-6, 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m.; and Friday, September 7, 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. The Book Rack continues the daily hours of 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. (8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. on Fridays) throughout the semester. Hours are posted on the board located at the front of the store.

Students should have their checks approved prior to getting in line at the registers.

Last day to return any book not needed for a course is Friday, September 14. You must have a valid cash register receipt in order to return any book. Shrink wrapped books are not returnable if the wrapping has been removed.

Orchestra Initiates New Patron Drive

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University has begun its fifth anniversary season patron drive.

A $50 donation is required to become a patron. All patrons receive two free tickets to each of the fall and spring performances of the SSO, a free subscription to the group's semiannual newsletter, advance notice on the annual "Savor the Symphony" fundraiser and a listing of their names in each SSO concert program. Patrons also enjoy the added convenience of having tickets mailed directly to their homes, provided they send donations at least three weeks before the performace date.

This season, as with last year's performances, both the fall and spring concerts will be extended to two nights, in response to audience demand. The "fall" concert will be held on Friday and Saturday, January 18 and 19, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The spring concert, the Fifth Anniversary Concert, will be held on Friday and Saturday, May 17 and 18, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall. Dr. Thomas Elliot, music director and conductor, will begin regular rehearsals in September in preparation for a full season of performances which will include run-out concerts to Talbot and Caroline counties. According to Elliot, the 1990-91 patron drive goal is to enlist 250 patrons.

Just as local support for the SSO has grown over the past four years, so has the quality of the musicians and their performances. About 85 percent of the SSO is made up of highly-skilled local musicians from throughout the Eastern Shore.

Season brochures including forms for becoming a patron have been mailed throughout the community. To be added to the mailing list or for more information call 543-6385.

Educational Rights and Privacy Act

Salisbury State University will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information without prior consent of the student.

Directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information.

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please promptly notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, room 212, University Center.

Gehnrich Appointed Faculty Representative to NCAA

Dr. Stephen Gehnrich, assistant professor of biology, has been appointed as faculty athletics representative to the NCAA.

His duties include being cognizant of NCAA policies and issues relevant to SSU and to represent the University as applicable in addressing issues and promulgating policies for all members of the NCAA Division III category.

Also, the faculty athletics representative keeps the President's Office informed on issues that may have a major impact on the University as a result of SSU's association with the NCAA. The main thrust of the position is as a communicator of issues which impact SSU.

French Golf Tourney Sept. 24

The fourth annual Wallace Q. French Memorial Golf Touranment will be held at the Prospect Bay Country Club in Grasonville on Monday, September 24, at 9:30 a.m. with a shotgun start.

The tournament is open to anyone who enjoys the game of golf. Prizes to be awarded include a 1991 Sonoma GMC truck, from Ramsey Pontiac-Oldsmobile-GMC of Chestertown, for a hole-in-one.

Persons interested in participating should contact Libby French at 742-5144 or John Wheeler at (301) 758-2281 by Friday, September 7. Fees are $45 per person. Registration covers green fees, cart rental, refreshments and luncheon. Participants also receive a free golfing hat, towel and tees.

Prizes will be awarded and luncheon served in the clubhouse following the tournament.

Each year the 18-hole tournament for men and women is held in a different county on the Shore, so golfers have an opportunity to play on a variety of courses.

Proceeds generated go toward a scholarship fund established at Salisbury State.

Sponsored by the Tidewater Environmental Health Association backers hope the scholarship will attract more students to careers in environmental health.

French was a long-time resident of Salisbury. He worked for the Wicomico County Health Department before becoming state regional director of the Water & Sewer Program for the Eastern Shore. After his retirement in 1985, he continued his work in the environmental health field as a part-time consultant to the Worcester County Health Department.

He died in 1986 of a heart attack. Since then family, friends and co-workers have sponsored the golf tournament to raise money for the scholarship fund established in his memory.

Snow Hill Dance

See the summer out in style with the season's finale of "Dancing Under the Stars" on Friday, September 7, from 8 p.m. - midnight at Sturgis Park in Snow Hill.

Music will be provided by Borderline, a local favorite featuring Top 40 sounds. Admission is $10 a couple/$5 a single and payable at the door. A cash bar with light snacks will be provided. In the event of rain the dance will be held at the Snow Hill Lions Club on East Market St. The dance is sponsored by the Snow Hill Volunteer Fire Department.

For further information call the Snow Hill Chamber of Commerce at 632-0809. No one under the age of 21 will be admitted.

Conners in ACE Program

Sixteen women and 15 men, including Dr. Keith Conners of SSU has been named to the 1990-91 class of the American Council on Education (ACE) Fellows Program. The program identifies future leaders in higher education and prepares them for top positions in college and university administration.

"I will be spending the year at Keene State College in New Hampshire working with President Judith A. Sturnick and her senior staff," said Conners, associate professor of leisure studies. "I expect to become involved in a variety of projects in academic affairs, student affairs, development and institutional planning.

"I am extremely grateful to SSU president, Dr. Thomas Bellavance, and vice president of academic affairs, Dr. K. Nelson Butler, for their support and encouragement in pursuing the ACE Fellowship," said Conners.

Outlet Bus Trip

Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, Salisbury State University, is sponsoring another bus trip to the Reading, PA outlets on Saturday, November 10. The bus leaves at 7 a.m. and returns at 9:30 p.m. from the University Center. The last bus trip was successful and all enjoyed it.

MCEA Chapter 72 members or spouses can go. The chapter pays $5 towards the ticket price of $8.75. Non-members price is $13.75 each. This is a first come first serve basis. As soon as the bus fills up, you will be put on a stand-by list. Get money in early.

First stop is the Vanity Fair outlet area and second stop is Mom's Outlets; lunch and dinner on your own.

Make checks payable to SSU, Chapter 72, and give or send them to Judy Lowe, Registrar's office (basement of Holloway Hall) or Barbara Keene, Alcohol & Drug Prevention Resource Center. Any questions, call Judy at 543-6153 or Barb 543-6309.

Student Insurance Plans

Student Insurance Plans Salisbury State University students, spouses and/or their dependents now have an opportunity to explore two flexible and convenient insurance plans, The Sentry Student Security Plan and the ABCO 100 Plan. Please stop by the Health Center for information and applications.

Berry To Be Published

Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department has recently submitted several articles for publication. He has written three biographical articles on Prince Adam Czartoryski, Wladyslaw Zamoyski and Ludwik Zwierkowski for "The Encyclopedia of 1848 Revolutions" to be published by Garland Press in the near future.

In addition, Berry's recent paper "Polish Diplomatic Activities in the Ottoman Empire, 1832-1848: the Influence of the Hotel Lambert on Ottoman Policy," is under consideration for publication as part of a volume titled "New Perspectives in East European History," selected from those presented from the IV World Congress for Soviet and East European Studies in Harrogate, England.

Berry is currently working on two articles for publication. One, "The Polish Influence on France's Balkan Policy in the 1840s," would appear in a volume titled "Nationalism and Nation-Building in Eastern Europe." The second article is a bio-bibliography of Prince Adam Czartoryski scheduled to be published in "Statesmen Who Changed the World" by Greenwood Press.

Intramurals Sign-Up

Participate in intramurals by signing up in the Campus Recreation Office (Maggs PAC) before the event deadline: coed volleyball, September 12; flag football, September 19; table tennis, September 27; and aerobics, Monday-Thursday, 7:15-8:30 p.m.

To pick up a schedule of the open Nautilus hours, open swim hours and the open tennis center hours or find out more information about sports clubs (outdoor, surfing, cycling, hockey, marital arts, soccer and others) contact the Campus Recreation Office.

"We are most fortunate to have attracted an individual as talented and experienced as Dr. Creighton," continued Butler. "Not only is he a renowned and respected scholar in his field, but he has great administrative experience that will serve him and SSU well as he assumes his significant new post as dean of the Henson School."

Creighton, who is 45, received three outstanding faculty awards for teaching and research during his 15 years as a biology professor at TSU. The walls of his office are decorated with the paintings and drawings of wildlife done for him by grateful Towson students. In his last two years there he served as associate dean of the College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences.

"It's hard to leave Towson after 17 years. The hardest part is leaving behind my friends," Creighton said. "But the reputation of Salisbury, and of Dr. Butler and Dr. Bellavance are so good within the state system that I am very excited about being here. The opportunities of being a dean in a school in an up and coming university like Salisbury are very rewarding."

At Towson Creighton founded the Institute of Animal Behavior which brought a multidisciplinary approach, including psychology, to the study of animals. The institute is one of the few in the United States where undergraduates may major in animal behavior. He served as its co-director for 11 years.

Other responsibilities included overseeing faculty development as well as a speaker series whose roster had such distinguished guests as science fiction writer and scholar Isaac Asimov and Leonard Fisk, chief administrator of NASA.

Creighton has published widely and is involved in national scientific organizations. Most of his research has been in ornithology and behaviorial ecology—the way animals adapt to their environment.

The son of Scottish emigrants, he developed his love of nature early on from his father. "As soon as I could walk my father had my brothers and me out looking at nature and birds," he said.

Raised in Pennsylvania then Colorado, Creighton graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Tarkio College in Missouri. Earning his Ph.D. at Colorado State University in 1974, he went straight from there to Towson.

If birds are his first love, the Chesapeake Bay is his second. He has received grants from the National Science Foundation to train high school teachers from metropolitan Baltimore to teach Bay ecology as part of their science curriculum. For the last eight years he and his wife, Leigh, have lived in St. Michaels on the Santa Domingo River. A surgical nurse, she works at Easton Memorial Hospital. The couple plans to relocate to Salisbury.

Creighton leaves a science faculty of 104 at Towson to come to one of 54 at SSU. TSU has a campus of 15,000 compared to 5,500 here. He doesn't view those figures with a feeling of loss, however. "There is a real sense of excitement and collegiality on the Salisbury campus that many schools no longer have," he noted.

Richard Pack, president of the Delaware Music School headquartered in Milford, DE, (left) presents Fred Marino, general manager of WSCL-FM public radio, with the school's President's Award for significant contribution to the arts in southern Delaware. This is the first time in the five-year history of the award that an institution has been so honored. According to Pack, WSCL has had "an incredible effect on the arts in southern Delaware. The station has improved arts communication and participation through its arts calendars and sweetened the lives of all every day with its musical programming." The three-year-old station has its antenna in Seaford, DE.

Reick Honored with Reid Award

Dr. David F. Rieck, assistant professor of chemistry and physics at the Henson School of Science and Technology, recently received the 1990 E. Emmet Reid Award for excellence in chemical education at a college or university in the Mid-Atlantic region of the American Chemical Society.

Rieck is the 17th recipient of the prestigious award that goes annually to a university professor who teaches in Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, central and eastern Pennsylvania, New York City or Washington D.C.

According to the selection committee, Rieck was chosen "for his numerous activities in the practice and advancement of science education. He has contributed substantially to improvements in the chemistry curriculum at Salisbury State and to advancing the secondary education program to encourage careers in teaching high school chemistry.

"He has outstanding ratings from his fellow faculty and his students," the committee assessment continued. "Even though direction of student research is generally not considered part of a teaching load, Dr. Rieck has developed an exceptional program for the use of research projects in the education of his students. His genuine enthusiasm and interest has served to motivate all of his students."

"During Dave's first semester here," said Dr. Frederick Kundell, chair of the Chemistry and Physics Department at SSU, "a student said he couldn't believe how good a teacher Dr. Reick was—and that in his first year of teaching. Other students have echoed those same sentiments about Dave's work in the classroom during his three years at Salisbury State."

Rieck received his B.S. in chemistry in 1981 from the University of Vermont and his Ph.D. in inorganic chemistry in 1986 from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He was a research chemist at the Materials Research Laboratory of General Electric in Cleveland, OH, from 1986-87. He joined the SSU faculty in 1987.

The E. Emmet Reid Award is named in honor of the late professor emeritus of Johns Hopkins University. Reid was known for his extensive experimental work in the field of organo-sulfur chemistry, but was most famous for his longevity as an active chemist. He died in 1973 at the age of 101.

Herff Jones Rep To Be on Campus

The representative from Herff Jones, the exclusive supplier of school rings for SSU, will be on campus several times in September.

The representative will be located in the atrium of the University Center on the following dates: Monday, September 17, 10 a.m.-7 p.m.; Wednesday, September 18, 10 a.m.-7 p.m.; Thursday, September 19, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

Stop by the Book Rack and look at the samples on display.

Mammogram Screening

Mammogram screening is scheduled for Tuesday, September 18, from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. Call Shirley King in the Personnel Office at 548-4755 to arrange an appointment and obtain further details. A prescreening educational seminar will be conducted in Nanticoke A, University Center, on Thursday, September 6, between 11 a.m. - 1 p.m.

Planned Parenthood Hours

Planned Parenthood announces hours for the fall semester: supply clinic, Tuesdays, 4-6 p.m.; appointments, Wednesdays 4-7 p.m., and usually second and fourth Tuesdays, 4:30-7 p.m.

The services provided include annual gynecological examinations (breast and pelvic exams, PAP smears), contraceptive education and supplies, sexually transmitted disease screening and treatment, pregnancy testing, counseling and referral.

Every Tuesday school is in session, supplies are provided from 4-6 p.m. No appointment is needed.

Individuals from the University and from the community may make appointments by calling Planned Parenthood at the Health Center, 543-6265.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed for the Planned Parenthood of Maryland Clinic in the Health Center. The hours are 4-8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Applications must be submitted by Wednesday, September 19, in the Health Center between 4-8 p.m. Training is the last week in September; hours are flexible.

Employee Development Division Offering Courses

The Employee Development Division of the Department of Personnel in Baltimore is offering courses for state employees.

A complete listing of the schedule is available in the Personnel Office, HH 222. An abbreviated list follows: Supervising Aggressive Employees, October 5, cost $60; Team Building and Group Dynamics, December 3-4, cost $90; Problem Solving and Decision Making, October 11-12, cost $90; Fundamentals of Management, November 19 and 26, December 3, 10 and 17, cost $225; Principles of Supervision October 24-26, cost $140; Listening Techniques and Skills, December 7, cost $60; Managing the Problem Employee, November 27 and 28, cost $90; Handling Conflict and Anger, October 23 and 24, cost $90; Employee Relations and the Supervisor: Progressive Discipline, November 1, cost $60; and Coaching and Counseling Employees to Improve Performance, October 18 and 19, cost $90.

In all cases an application must be completed and submitted to Baltimore three weeks prior to the course date. Applications are available in the Personnel Office.

Book Rack Employees Further Their Education

Nancy Watson, buyer for the Book Rack, recently completed the NACS (National Association of College Stores) Techniques of Decision-Making Seminar held in Oberlin, OH, July 7-12. She was a recepient of a $500 scholarship to attend the seminar.

Kaaren Kundell, textbook manager, recently attended a training session at Follett Book Company in Chicago. The training was designed to better acquaint her with the operations of the new computerized book ordering system now being used in the Book Rack.

Deborah Reithmuller, manager of the computer/electronics department, was awarded a $500 grant from Apple Computer to attend the NACS Compus Computer Resellers Conference held August 1-5 in Dallas.

Singleton at Conference

Dr. Donald Singleton, associate professor of communication arts, attended the International Communication Association Annual Conference in Dublin, Ireland, June 24-31.

He read a paper titled "The Mediated Presidency: Gauntlet or Grail" and participated in other association activities.

In addition to attending the ICA Conference, he visited major museums in France and in Germany.

Book Buy Back

The Book Rack is again holding a beginning buy back for anyone with books from previous semesters. The buy back begins Monday, September 10, 9 a.m.-7 p.m. and ends Wednesday, September 13, 9 a.m.- 7 p.m.

Proper identification is required in order to sell books. Anyone selling books back at this time has the opportunity to enter a drawing for a $250 gift certificate.

"When you add up the score at the end," he said, "you know you've made a contribution. You've helped people develop their talents."

His one regret at leaving the University now is that he will not be participating in what he predicts will be remarkable advances there in the next decade.

"It already is a first-class school, but by the year 2000 it will be one of the finest small universities in the country," he said. He attributes this to the stress on academic excellence encouraged by Dr. Bellavance.

The school is attracting top-flight faculty members, Hedeen said, adding "a college is no better than its faculty."

In his years at SSU, he taught courses in biology, evolution, invertebrate zoology and entomology. His specialty is medical entomology, the study of insects that cause diseases in humans.

But the course he most enjoyed teaching was Biology and Society, designed for students who were not majoring in science. The object was to give them an idea of what science is all about. It also pointed up the decisions the students would face as citizens in the coming age of genetic engineering, test-tube babies and other transformations that science will bring.

In addition, the course sought to dispel the "inner turmoil" that students with religious backgrounds sometimes experience when they are confronted with science.

"I tried to show them," Hedeen said, "that science does not deny the existence of a higher power and that, by explaining the workings of natural laws, it can actually reinforce one's religious beliefs."

As with most teachers, Hedeen is optimistic about young people and the future of the country. "We have talent," he said, "and if we make the effort to discover and nurture it, we don't need to worry about Japan or anyone else outdoing us."

At his retirement he was named a professor emeritus at the University with the privilege of using certain of its facilities. He won't be teaching but he says he will be available to help his faculty colleagues in any way he can.

Of his departure from SSU, Dr. Bellavance said, "Dr. Hedeen is an all-around, accomplished professional whether in the classroom or working in hip boots with watermen down on the river. He is everything a professor should be and we'll miss him at the University."

The river, of course, is the Nanticoke. Hedeen's summer home there is near the water, marshes and their inhabitants—plants, animals and people—that give him what he calls "a ringside seat at the on-going drama of natural history here on the Chesapeake Bay."

He will be "truly missed" in the classroom, said Dr. Thomas Jones, chair of SSU's Biology Department. "Dr. Hedeen's experience and broad knowledge of biology together with his innate ability to communicate with students make him a much sought after instructor at SSU. His vivid portrayal of biology brought his lectures to life for his students and motivated many to excel in science."

Born in Fort Worth, TX, and a graduate of the University of Texas, Hedeen likes to say he has had three careers. While still working on his doctorate he joined the Army during the Korean War. He spent 10 years in the military where he finished his degree studies and held a variety of assignments in this country and abroad.

Next he moved into government service as director of a mosquito abatement program in Cook County, IL. From there he went into teaching at Chicago City College. After two years in that position he joined the Salisbury faculty as a full professor.

Now he is entering what might be called his fourth career. In addition to his writing and field research, he will be helping Pemberton Historical Park near Salisbury to develop nature walks and other educational aides. He also hopes to be a more active member of the Wicomico County Environmental Trust.

Then there is recreation—golfing and fishing—and his family, including his wife, Margaret, and three grown sons, now scattered but still in close touch, and four grandchildren.

"I'll have to see how my time goes," he said. "I don't want to overdo it."

Music Offerings: Choir, Collegium, Voice Class

All students are invited to participate in the University vocal/choral program this fall. The Concert Choir (MUSA 100-101) rehearses on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30-5 p.m. in the Power Professional Building, music rehearsal room 190, with Dr. Duane Karna, conductor.

The Collegium (MUSA 103-151) rehearses on Mondays from 6-8 p.m. in the Musical Arts Building, room 102, with Dr. Nancy J. Cooper, conductor.

Class Voice I (MUSA 207-001) meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30-10:30 a.m. in the Power Professional Building, music rehearsal room 190, with Katherine Turner Barlow, instructor. This introduction to vocal techniques and development of skill in signing through proper voice placement, breathing, tone production and diction is recommended for the general student as well as students who are interested in musical theater and communciation arts. Class Voice I and II include an introduction to art song literature and musical theater repertoire. Voice I is a prerequiste to Voice II.

Private voice lessons (MUSA 390-005), one-half hour and one hour, are available. Contact Karna or Barlow for futher information (Department of Music, 543-6385 or 543-6386).

United Charity Campaign Goals

Governor William Donald Schaefer has kicked off the 1990 United Charity Campaign. This year the campaign is co-chaired by Gov. Schaefer and the comissioner of labor and industry, Henry Koellein.

The United Charity Campaign (UCC) of Maryland is a fund-raising campaign for all Maryland state employees. It is operated annually on behalf of the state by the United Way of Central Maryland. Employees from all counties of the state, as well as Baltimore City, are encouraged to designate their payroll deducation contribution or onetime gift to their choice of over 500 health and social service agencies.

Since 1984, the UCC has provided Marylanders with funding for disaster relief, meals for the sick and disabled, visiting nurses, agencies that work with children and more. The financial contributions of Maryland state employees make up the single largest volunteer effort in the state.

It is important for all state employees to realize that the UCC is not just another fund-raising effort. This campaign is a necessary and vital part of the community's present and future.

Imagine not having the programs and services of volunteer organizations such as: The American Red Cross, Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Central Maryland, First Call for Help, The American Cancer Society, House of Ruth, The League for the Handicapped and The Urban League. There are hundreds of United Charity Agencies like these that provide access to health and social service needs not supplied by governmental sources.

In the past, Maryland state employees have proven their dedication to the UCC by achieving the desired goal each year. The achievement of this year's goal of $2.6 million, a 12 percent increase from last year, will once again show the awareness and concern for others that Maryland state employees exemplify.

The University's United Charity Campaign coordinators are Debbie Merryweather from financial services and Gains Hawkins in public relations. Information on Salisbury State's campaign will appear in future newsletters.

Art Classes

Adult classes for the fall at the Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury begin the week of September 10. Classes will be held in stained glass, oils, costume and figure drawing, drawing and a watercolor workshop by Mary Talbot Rieckert. Also a life figure studio and an open studio will be offered.

For more information concerning the classes, contact AIG at 546-4748 from noon-4 p.m. weekdays or Nancy Nicoll, education chairman for AIG, 548-1248.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SEPTEMBER 6, 1990 VOL. XII NO. 2

SSU: Leading in Recycling

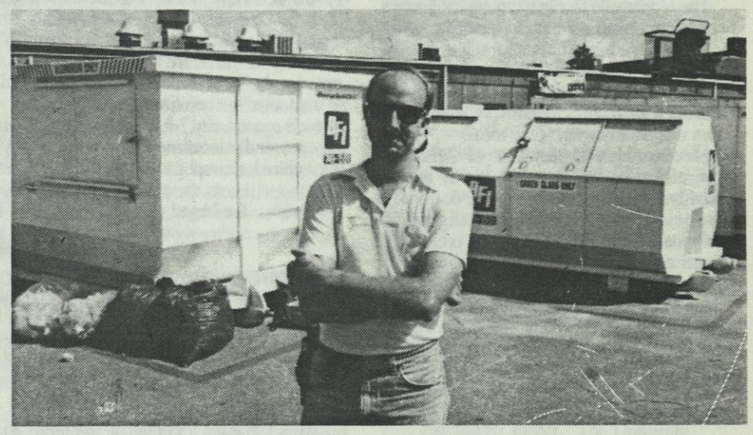
For more than one afternoon during the past year, while students were hitting the books Salisbury State University director of horticulture Les Lutz could be found going through their garbage dumpsters studying the contents.

The purpose: to design a recycling program for the University community—some 6,000 students, faculty and staff—the first official one at any college or university in the University of Maryland System. When it begins this month, it also becomes the first wide-scale recycling program in Wicomico County, the most populous subdivision on Maryland's lower Eastern Shore.

By state law, all Maryland campuses must begin recycling by July 1991. SSU is starting a year early. "As an educational institution, we have responsibilities beyond the academic classroom to build character and leadership," said Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration. "Students grow tremendously between the ages of 18 and 22. If 5,000 or 6,000 people make recycling a part of their lives, they will have carried away from their University experience an important lesson in social responsibility."

Several hundred recycling bins of various sizes and colors have been ordered for the 26-building campus. "We've started early and are exposing students intensely to what we're doing. And we plan to have recycling containers in student lounges, suites, dorm rooms...we're putting containers within 25 feet of every student," Lutz added.

Initially aluminum, glass, corrogated cardboard and white office paper are being reclaimed. Markets have already been found for these materials. "We're not being trendy. We would have started recycling some time ago," Gilbert continued, "but there was no local market." Gilbert and Lutz both hope to eventually add plastic and tin cans to the list.



Les Lutz

The University is working with the second largest waste removal company in the world, Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI, Inc.) which is headed by William Ruckelshaus, the first director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. With national headquarters in Houston, TX, BFI does everything from disposing of medical waste to operating its own recycling centers. According to Bob Stover, BFI's Eastern Shore manager, the company has helped initiate successful recycling programs on several college campuses including Rutgers and American Universities.

The program is saving SSU money in waste disposal costs. According to Lutz, these expenses will drop from $6,000 monthly to $4,500 monthly from such things as reduced landfill fees ($21 ton in Wicomico County) and profits gained on recycled materials. The University

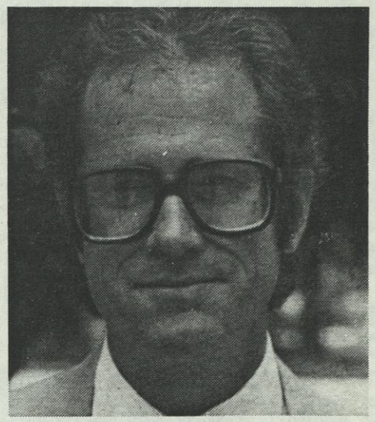
Thompson Addresses Fall Convocation Sept. 12

The statistics are startling. According to a recent National Endowment for the Humanities study, one in four American college seniors are unable to locate Columbus's voyage within a time framework. Approximately the same number can not differentiate the ideas of Winston Churchill from those of Joseph Stalin. Nor can these students distinguish the concepts of Karl Marx from the U.S. Constitution. More than half fail to link major texts by Plato, Dante, Shakespeare and Martin Luther King, Jr., with their authors.

On Wednesday, September 12, at 10 a.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium, Dr. G. Ray Thompson, chair of the History Department, will examine the failures and promises of the traditional liberal arts curriculum in an address to the Fall Convocation titled, "The Mosaic of Education."

The convocation officially inaugurates the academic year at the University. Attended by students and faculty in academic regalia, the convocation is open to the public.

"When I was a student in the 1960s," said the 46-year-old professor, "education provided a global approach to learning. I was encouraged to take as broad and eye-opening path of study as possible.



Dr. G. Ray Thompson

"My Ph.D. advisor at the University of Kansas was a genuine Renaissance man. An excellent teacher of history, he not only was an athlete but a world expert in opera who frequently flew to New York to provide commentary during Metropolitan Opera broadcasts. He was a role model.

"I'm concerned today that students, while still teenagers, want to immediately specialize in a profession or field without really knowing what their options are or who they are," said Thompson.

This is an on-going complaint of professors in the liberal arts who must compete with college professional programs promising students job security and immediate market entry. Thompson's concerns are more than pedagogical sour grapes, however.

"If a liberal education is a journey...then the curriculum is a map," he continued. "The so-called 'general education' or 'core curriculum' which makes up the first two years of student life at most institutions is critical to a student's learning about the world and herself or himself. Unfortunately, many see these courses as unpleasant hurdles to be leapt over before the meaty classes and seminars begin."

And students do leap over them. Some three-fourths of all college seniors nationally graduate without ever taking a course in the history of world civilizations. Three-fourths graduate without ever studying a foreign language. Nearly half, 45 percent, never take a course in American or English literature. Forty-one percent graduate without studying any mathematics; a third graduate without studying any science. (At SSU the 47-hour general ed requirements attempt to address the issues directly.)

College students often are able to choose from hundreds of courses ranging from the history of the labor movement to the analyses of soap operas. The result is "a meaningless mosaic of fragments," instead of the creation of an

All faculty and students are invited to attend a University opening week reception on Thursday, September 6, from 1-4:30 p.m., at the University Center patio and lounge. Sponsored by the University Center and the SSU Council on Women's Issues, the reception will feature music by the Montebello Quartet.

The Montebello Strings is among Baltimore's well-known chamber music ensembles. Originally conceived as a quartet, the Montebello Strings now includes any number of ensembles, including trios, quintets and a salon orchestra. These ensembles play extensively in the Baltimore and Washington, D.C areas.

Members Mark Dulac, Thomas Ginsburg, Sherrie Norwitz and David Shumway pursue individual enterprises ranging from doctoral work, teaching, arranging compositions and jazz performance to playing with other professional groups such as the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, Baltimore Chamber Orchestra, Choral Arts Society, Wolf Trap Farm Park, Baltimore Opera Company and orchestras for the major metropolitan theatre companies.

The Quartet will play from 1-1:30 p.m. on the patio and 3-4:30 in the lounge. Refreshments will be served.

Sea Gull Club

Have you heard about the Sea Gull Club?

Perhaps you have but did not realize that you are eligible to join this growing organization. The Sea Gull Club with a membership of some 200 men and women is dedicated to having a good time with friends and neighbors of SSU.

Included in its membership are business leaders, teachers, public servants, educators, government employees, printers, University administrators and others. When you join the club you have the opportunity to socialize with these people and become friends.

Your membership will enable you and your spouse to enjoy six cocktail parties on an open bar basis with outstanding hors d'oeuvres, two superb dinners with open bars and a wine and cheese social. Some of these events are held in conjunction with SSU theatre productions, a U.S. Army Field Band Christmas Concert and other activities. The group also has season tickets to home football and basketball games.

Many "old-timers" in the club call this the "best deal in town" dollar-for-dollar. The total cost is $150 per couple. Singles may join at an annual cost of $90. Send your check payable to: Sea Gull Club, c/o Salisbury State University Foundation, P.O. Box 2655, Salisbury, MD 21801. If you have any questions, call Dee Hedrick (543-6027).

Book Rack Book Rush Hours

Book Rack hours for the fall book rush period are: Monday, September 3, noon-5 p.m.; Tuesday, September 4-6, 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m.; and Friday, September 7, 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. The Book Rack continues the daily hours of 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. (8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. on Fridays) throughout the semester. Hours are posted on the board located at the front of the store.

Students should have their checks approved prior to getting in line at the registers.

Last day to return any book not needed for a course is Friday, September 14. You must have a valid cash register receipt in order to return any book. Shrink wrapped books are not returnable if the wrapping has been removed.

SSU in the USSR

Though it may be cold and snowy, the heart of Russia is warm and friendly. Come, find out for yourself when Salisbury State goes to the Soviet Union, January 14-26.

Following in the footsteps of those intrepid SSU students who have gone before, you'll have the chance to visit the capitals of the old and new Russia. Kiev is where it all began over 1,000 years ago. Today it is the third largest city in the Soviet Union and is the warm-hearted capital of the Ukraine.

Leningrad (St. Petersburg) became the capital under Tsar Peter the Great and remained so until after the revolution of 1917. Here in Russia's second city, you can see magnificient museums and palaces and enjoy the thoroughly Westernized atmosphere of this Venice of the north.

Moscow, the largest city, is the center of a rapidly changing country. Marvelous buildings, an electric atmosphere, here is where perestroika and glasnost are centered in this rapidly changing country.

Returning home, the group will spend a day in Helsinki, Finland's capital.

The study-tour is sponsored by the History Department. The instructor for the course and group leader is Dr. Robert Berry, who teaches Russian history and has led several groups to the Soviet Union in the past. The total cost for the tour is approximately $1900, a remarkably affordable rate with everything included. The study-tour is open to all students, faculty, staff and friends of SSU.

For more information attend an open meeting on Wednesday, September 12, in the Social Room of Holloway Hall at 7 p.m. or contact Berry at 543-6248.

Health Center Services

The Health Center is open from 8 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. and from 1:30 p.m. - 4 p.m., Monday - Friday. A nurse is on call for urgent consultations on the weekend and as needed during the week via a pager system.

Students are seen on a walk-in basis by the Health Center nurses. Those students who require a physician's evaluation are given an appointment. The Health Center physician is available for a part of each day Monday - Friday.

The Health Center offers a wide range of services to students including treatment for injuries, illnesses, gynecological problems and sexually transmitted diseases (STD's). Additionally the Health Center administers allergy injections, immunizations, offers mono and pregnancy testing, contraception and pregnancy counseling, and performs several laboratory procedures.

Referrals may be made for dental, medical, surgical and Planned Parenthood needs. Urgent problems may be referred to the Emergency Room at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center.

Off-campus health care providers, including physicians, dentists, hospitals, radiologists, medical laboratories and pharmacies, charge students for services and supplies, therefore students are urged to carry health insurance. Insurance information may be obtained from the Health Center or the Dean of Student's Office.

A $25 per semester Health Center fee is included in the fee structure which full-time students pay at registration. Part-time students, faculty and staff may utilize the facility for limited services only, such as blood pressure screening, weight checks, emergency first aid, immunizations and health education screenings. Part-time students may elect to pay the $25 Health Center fee to utilize the full range of services.

Student Code of Conduct, Judicial System Guide, Sexal Harrassment Policy

In order to better provide students with information on expectations for responsible citizenship and procedures for judicial proceedings, a written Student Code of Conduct is published along with a Judicial System Guide.

Topics included in the Code of Conduct include academic and computer dishonesty; theft; possession; storage, use of firearms; drug and alcohol use; misuse of University property; false information; assault and verbal harassment; violence and extremism; disruptive behavior; sexual harassment; and hazing.

The Judicial Guide explains disciplinary proceedings in residence halls and campuswide, the function of student advocates, procedural and due process, sanctions and appeals. Sexual Harrassment Policy describes informal and formal procedures for handling complaints.

Copies of all three brochures were mailed to every student the week of August 20. Students who did not receive copies (or misplaced them), please stop by the Dean of Students Office, room 212, University Center.

Faculty Forms From Personnel

A reminder to faculty and staff whose dependents are full-time college/university students. You must fill out a Student Status Verification Form each semester to ensure that medical payments will be made when you submit bills to your insurance company. Contact the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or visit Holloway Hall 222 to obtain forms.

VAX Training

Training classes for the VAX Editor (EDT) will be held in room 242 of Devilbiss Hall on: Monday, September 10, 7-8:30 p.m.; Tuesday, September 11, 2-3:30 p.m.; Wednesday, September 12, 2-3:30 p.m.; Thursday, September 13, 7-8:30 p.m.; Monday, September 17, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Tuesday, September 18, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Wednesday September 19, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Thursday, September 20, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Monday, September 24, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Tuesday, September 25, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Wednesday, September 26, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; and Thursday, September 27, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.

Participants must sign up prior to attending any scheduled training. Signup sheets are located in room 242, Devilbiss Hall. Don't forget to bring your VAX Class Account Card to participate in the training class.

Apple Training

Training classes for Apple Wordperfect 1.1 will be held in room 127 of Blackwell Library from 6-8 p.m. on: Monday, September 10; Tuesday, September 11; Thursday, September 13; Monday, September 17; Tuesday, September 18; Thursday, September 20; Monday, September 24; Tuesday, September 25;and Thursday, September 27.

Participants must sign up prior to attending any scheduled training. Signup sheets are located in room 127, Blackwell Library. Don't forget to bring a 5 1/4" diskette to participate in the training class.

University, Atrium Galleries Seasons Are Announced

"The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography from Hungary," an exhibition of 55 photographs by eight of Hungary's most innovative contemporary photographers, opens Saturday in the Salisbury State University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library.

The University's two art galleries have announced their fall exhibition schedules.

The principal gallery, known as the "University Gallery" and located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, has scheduled three exhibitions. These include "The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography From Hungary," September 8-October 18; "Contemporary Polish Prints," October 20-November 15; and the Art Department's Annual Faculty Show, on display November 17-December 13, except for the period November 21-25, when the University will be closed for Thanksgiving.

The University's second exhibition space, which is located next to the bookstore in the atrium of the University Center, is called the "Atrium Gallery." it will show Laura Hickman's large pastel drawings of landscapes, September 21-October 11; rare books by Henry David Thoreau and other Thoreau memorabilia from the collection of Jim Dawson, owner of the Unicorn Bookstore in Trappe, MD, October 16-18; photographs by artist-in-residence Salvatore Mancini and his students, October 24-November 13; and photo-silkscreens by students in a new, upper-level seminar taught by Dr. Kent Kimmel of the Art Department, November 16-December 3.

The Atrium Gallery will also sponsor three art sales: a Contemporary Poster Sale, scheduled for October 12 and 13; the Marson Galleries Exhibit and Sale, October 19 and 20; and the annual Art Department Scholarship Fund Sale, December 10-18.

Both galleries are free and open to the public. Exhibition schedules for both galleries with more detailed information can be obtained after September 11 by calling the University Gallery at 543-6271 or the University Center at 543-6006.

According to Ursula Ehrhardt, director of the University Gallery, and Donna Forgash, the University Center's coordinator for the Atrium Gallery, the two galleries have somewhat different missions but work closely together to provide the University community and the general public with a wide-ranging, balanced exhibition program.

The University Gallery exhibits contemporary art by both established and emerging artisits, works from different cultures and time periods, and annual shows of the work of the Art Department faculty and of the graduating senior art majors.

The University Gallery regularly sponsors exhibitions from the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibition Service and other national arts organizations, as well as exhibitions from various commerical, university and artists' cooperative galleries. The exhibition of contemporary Hungarian photographs, for example, was organized by the Allen Memorial Art Museum of Oberlin College and curated by John P. Jacob, whose 1987 exhibition for MIT's List Visual Arts Center, "Out of Eastern Europe: Private Photography," first introduced the "unofficial" photography of the Eastern Bloc countries to the United States.

"We are fortunate that we've been able to establish such good relations with other art institutions," Ehrhardt said. "As a result, we've been able to bring art of exceptional quality to the University, including works by any number of major artists, many with national and even international reputations."

Exhibitions are supplemented by weekly gallery talks given each Wednesday by Karen Mitchell, the University Gallery's education coordinator, tours for small groups, and other special events such as lectures, panel discussions, workshops and occasional programs for children.

The Atrium Gallery exhibits a wide range of work by area artists, craftspersons, and University faculty and students, as well as selections from specialized University and local collections, such as last spring's exhibition of historic maps from SSU's John Jacobs Cartographic Collection or the exhibition of Thoreau books and memorabilia planned for the fall. The Atrium Gallery also schedules video programs on various arts-related topics, plus occasional other programs related to its exhibitions.

A conveniently located, intimate space, the Atrium Gallery is readily accessible to students and is, Forgash says, ideally suited for one-person shows or group-shows featuring artists who work in similar media. At least one show each year features work done by Salisbury State art students under the direction of a particular faculty member or in a special course.

This fall, for example, the Atrium Gallery will work closely with the Art Department and its artist-in-residence, Salvatore Mancini, an internationally known photographer whose photographs of ancient American Indian paintings and engravings, found on cliffs and rock ledges in the southwestern United States, were exhibitied in the University Gallery last year. Mancini will teach a special, four-week course in photography for advanced students, plus lecture and conduct workshops on campus and in the community. The Atrium Gallery will exhibit a selection of Mancini's photographs and eventually the work of his students.

Both galleries try to expose students to many different types of art and to a broad range of ideas and subject matter. "The University Gallery works closely with faculty from various departments and tries to schedule one or two exhibitions each semester that are directly related to specific academic disciplines," Ehrhardt said.

For example, the University Gallery's two exhibitions this fall of contemporary art from Eastern Europe were scheduled to coincide with a new, interdisciplinary course offering in the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts, "The East European Revolutions," which will study the momentous changes which have taken place in Eastern Europe during the past year.

The Atrium Gallery's Thoreau exhibition will supplement a fall lecture series on Thoreau sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee and the University Center.

"The University Gallery and the Atrium Gallery are important educational and cultural resources for the campus and the surrounding communities of the lower Eastern Shore," Ehrhardt said. "We hope that people will pay us a visit," Forgash added.

The University Gallery opens September 8. Its hours are Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1-5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5-8 p.m. The Atrium Gallery opens September 21. Its hours are 11 a.m. -4 p.m. but may vary on occasion, especially for art sales. Both galleries are closed when the University is not in session.

New Women's Issues Officers Inducted

The Council on Women's Issues inducted its first slate of officers at an installation luncheon on May 9 at the Diamond Head restaurant in Salisbury. New officers of the Council are: chair, Lisa Seldomridge, School of Nursing and Health Sciences; assistant chair, Katrina Grogan, Personal and Professional Development Office; secretary, Priscilla Patton, Office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs; treasurer, Johanna Laird, School of Nursing and Health Sciences; research coordinator, Jennifer Berkman, Drug and Alcohol Prevention Office; and public relations coordinator, Betty Waring, Public Relations Office.

Natalie Hopson who has led the Council during 1989-90 as its Planning Committee chair reviewed Council accomplishments for the year and recalled presentations by Jean Laws and Debbie Mescon of Salisbury on women's legal rights, Joyce Peoples of the University of Maryland Eastern Shore on empowerment and Phyllis Palmer of Georgetown Univeristy on women and work in history.

Hopson called special attention to the Council's child care needs survey and said that over 3,000 responses to the survey are currently being computer analyzed for presentation in a report to be presented at the end of May. She challenged the group to go forward in its efforts to "increase opportunities for women to serve as leaders in every aspect of campus life, to build a campuswide consensus on issues of common concern and to work to resolve these issues in ways that unite the University community in implementing its mission."

Environmental Group Meeting

The Wicomico Environmental Trust will have its first meeting of the fall at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, September 9, in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. Everyone is invited to attend.

There will be two presentations. Joan Willey from Annapolis will speak on "The Sierra Club's Agenda in Maryland." She will be followed by Dr. Charles Cipolla, who will describe a potential environmental calamity on the banks of the Nanticoke River and will suggest actions that can be taken to avoid the situation.

For more information, call Ben Fusaro at 543-6470.

Fall Theatre Auditions To Be Held

Auditions for Salisbury State University's fall theatre production of "The Three Musketeers" and "The Homecoming" will be held on September 6 and 7.

Both productions will be directed by guest artist, Kelly Morgan. Morgan taught acting at American University, has acted professionally and holds several degrees in acting and directing, including a certificate in fencing from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Salisbury State Theatre welcomes anyone from campus or the Salisbury community to audition. All parts are open and no experience is necessary.

Auditions for "Three Musketeers" and "The Homecoming" on September 6 and 7 begin at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. A special welcoming reception will precede the auditions on Thursday, September 6, at 6:30 p.m. also in Holloway Hall. For more information call 543-6235.

Monster Book Sale

Blackwell Library will be holding its annual Monster Book Sale on Thursday, September 13. The sale, running from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., is on the terrace in front of the Library. All sorts of used books will be available, from the ordinary to the unusual.

Bring your money, throw caution to the wind and fill up your bookshelves for the coming year. Books are priced at 50 cents each, unless otherwise marked.

Rain date is Friday, September 14.

Intramurals Sign-Up

Participate in intramurals by signing up in the Campus Recreation Office (Maggs PAC) before the event deadline: coed volleyball, September 12; flag football, September 19; table tennis, September 27; and aerobics, Monday-Thursday, 7:15-8:30 p.m.

To pick up a schedule of the open Nautilus hours, open swim hours and the open tennis center hours or find out more information about sports clubs (outdoor, surfing, cycling, hockey, marital arts, soccer and others) contact the Campus Recreation Office.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Sea Gull Century Ride October 13

On Saturday, October 13, the Sea Gull Century, sponsored by the University Cycling Club, promises to be a sublime trek down country roads, past solemn beaches and over the Ocean City boardwalk.

Ride-day registration begins at 7 a.m. at Maggs. The fee is $12 (plus an additional $8.75 for the barbeque). Rides depart at 8 a.m.; helmets are required. The ride is sanctioned by the League of American Wheelmen.

For more information or to preregister, write: SSU Cycling Club, P.O. Box 3046, Salisbury, MD 21801, or call Joseph Gilbert at 543-6012.

Perkins Loan Recipients

A reminder to students.

Sign your promissory note for your Carl Perkins Loan in room 205 of Holloway Hall between September 4-10.

Outdoor Club News

The Outdoor Club holds its first meeting for the fall semester on Monday, September 10, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center. All students are welcome.

The first trip is on the weekend of September 14-16 to Harpers Ferry, WV. Trip participants can choose from a variety of activities including touring historic Harpers Ferry, hiking on the Appalachian Trail, tubing, whitewater rafting and whitewater canoeing on the Shenandoah River. Anyone interested in the trip must attend the meeting on Monday, September 10.

All Outdoor Club meetings are on Mondays in Nanticoke A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the fall semester include rock climbing, hiking, horseback riding and whitewater rafting.

Movie Tickets

Discounted movie tickets for Movies 6 Theatres are on sale at the University Center information desk Monday-Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. - 10 p.m. The price is $4 per ticket.

Immunization Policy

Effective this fall semester all students (returning, incoming freshmen and transfers) will be required to provide verification that their immunization status is up to date. It is important to note students may have to receive boosters from their family doctor of local health department in order to meet the requirement.

Information regarding dates of immunization is usually available from one's health care provider: school or local, county health department.

Failure to meet policy requirements will result in a "hold" on preregistration for spring '91 semester. Current students whose immunizations are incomplete will be notified by mail.

Many students have taken advantage of the opportunity to receive their measles, mumps and rubella immunizations (at no cost) through clincis offered by the Health Center staff.

The Health Center is available to answer questions relating to immunizations or the policy at 543-6262.

Ivory Coast Seminar

The first interest meeting of the semester for those planning to join the study seminar to the Ivory Coast, West Africa, will be held in Nanticoke B of the University Center on Friday, September 14, at 3:30 p.m.

Orchestra Initiates New Patron Drive

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University has begun its fifth anniversary season patron drive.

A $50 donation is required to become a patron.

Just as local support for the SSO has grown over the past four years, so has the quality of the musicians and their performances. About 85 percent of the SSO is made up of highly-skilled local musicians from throughout the Eastern Shore.

Season brochures including forms for becoming a patron have been mailed throughout the community. To be added to the mailing list or for more information call 543-6385.

Educational Rights And Privacy Act

Salisbury State University will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information without prior consent of the student.

Directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information.

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please promptly notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, room 212, University Center.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

French Golf Tourney September 24

The fourth annual Wallace Q. French Memorial Golf Touranment will be held at the Prospect Bay Country Club in Grasonville on Monday, September 24, at 9:30 a.m. with a shotgun start.

The tournament is open to anyone who enjoys the game of golf. Prizes to be awarded include a 1991 Sonoma GMC truck, from Ramsey Pontiac-Oldsmobile-GMC of Chestertown, for a hole-in-one.

Persons interested in participating should contact Libby French at 742-5144 or John Wheeler at (301) 758-2281 by Friday, September 7. Fees are $45 per person. Registration covers green fees, cart rental, refreshments and luncheon. Participants also receive a free golfing hat, towel and tees.

Craig Karges

'Magic Of The Mind' Show Sept. 8

Walking blindfolded through city traffic, predicting a newspaper headline days in advance or piloting a motorcycle while blindfolded is all in a day's work for Craig Karges. Now Karges will be appearing at SSU with his "Magic of the Mind" show on Saturday, September 8, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Karges' show is a fantastic display of illusion and psychic happenings using total audience participation, according to backers. The performance is presented over 150 times a year on college campuses for corporations and for major conventions from coast to coast.

Tables "walk" on stage and then levitate into the air; three finger rings are borrowed from members of the audience and linked together in a chain; blindfolded, Karges is able to call off the serial number on a dollar bill; minds are read and predictions are made and verified during a typical performance. In a special demonstration Karges risks his fee, the money being returned to the sponsor if he fails.

Even Karges' peers find his work fascinating. He's been named Entertainer of the Year by the International Psychic Entertainers Association and he has authored a book, available exclusively to other performers, which has been sold in 11 countries. The National Speakers Association awarded Karges thec Certified Speaking Professional (CSP) designation, which is awarded to 10% of their membership and the National Association for Campus Activities has nominated him, "Campus Entertainer of the Year" and "Novelty/Variety Entertainer of the Year".

His work has been the subject of newspaper, radio and television interviews carried in North America as well as Europe. "What I do," says Karges, "is combine the skills of a psychologist, a psychic and a magician. I claim no supernatural powers and I don't try to convince my audiences to believe in anything. If my show goes beyond entertainment, I hope that it may motivate people to explore their own minds. We only use 10 or 20 percent of our brain. When you look at the potential that's there within each of us I think it's just incredible!"

While Karges admits that part of what he does is illusion, he insists that he does not prearrange anything with his audiences. He has a $10,000 offer, payable to chariety, if anyone can prove he uses stooges or confederates to accomplish his demonstrations.

Is he tricking us? Most people seem to find him too fascinating to care. Don't miss Saturday's show. Admission is free but seats are limited so get there early!

A Thoreau Cornucopia Begins September 22

The life and work of Henry David Thoreau will be the subject of a semester series sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

According to Joseph Gilbert, SSU vice president of administration, "The Fall '90 Thoreau Series will be a premiere event with the leading Thoreauvian scholars here to present information and to lead discussions concerning Thoreau's life, his writings and his impact on society. We are most fortunate to be able to bring all of these scholars together," he added. "It is indeed a rare opportunity to present such a complete picture of an American author."

Dr. Michael Meyer, professor of English at the University of Connecticut, will initiate the series with his lecture, "Thoreau as a Popular Icon," on Thursday, September 20, at 7:30 p.m. Former president of the Thoreau Society who has written extensively on Thoreau, Meyer plans to discuss Thoreau's reputation in America beginning with his contemporaries in the 19th century and proceeding up to the present.

When David Barto, a high school English teacher and actor from Levittown, PA, assumes the Thoreau identity, he brings the 19th century essayist vividly to life. He will be portraying Thoreau lecturing on various aspects of his life on Wednesday, September 26, at 7:30 p.m.

Nature poet Dr. Allen Hoey will be reading a selection from his book, "A Fire in the Cold House of Being," along with newer poems from his unpublished manuscripts on Tuesday, October 9, at 8 p.m. Hoey won the 1985 Camden Poetry Award sponsored by the Walt Whitman Center in Camden, NJ, which was judged by the well-known poet, Galway Kinnell.

Jim Dawson, owner and proprietor of the Unicorn Bookshop in Trappe, will display his own collection of Thoreau's personal artifacts, first edition books, photographs, maps and illustrations in his Rare Book/Artifact Exhibit in the Atrium Gallery of the University Center at SSU from Tuesday, October 16, through Thursday, October 18. The Atrium Gallery will be open from 11 a.m.- 4 p.m. all three days.

"Five Ways of Looking at Walden" is the title of a lecture which will be given by Dr. Walter Harding, secretary of the Thoreau Society and a distinguished professor emeritus at State University College, NY, on Tuesday, October 30, at 7:30 p.m. On Wednesday, October 31, from 1-4 p.m. he will co-chair a Teaching/Reading Thoreau Workshop with Dr. John Wenke of the English faculty at SSU which will include discussion groups led by SSU faculty. Harding's participation will end with his lecture, "Thoreau: Civil Disobedience," which will be given on Thursday, November 1, at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Michael A. Weinstein, professor of political science at Purdue University, IN, and Thomas W. Blanding, president of the Thoreau Society and of the Thoreau Country Conservation Alliance, will present Thoreau's strategy for living as it applies (or does not apply) to today's society in a symposium entitled "Wilderness and the City." Sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee and the Department of Philosophy, the symposium will be held on Saturday, November 10, from 9 a.m.- 3 p.m.

Dr. J. Parker Huber, a private practice counselor and a member of the adjunct faculty at Southern Vermont College, will wrap up the series with his slides and lecture on "Thoreau as a Naturalist and Traveler" on Wednesday, December 5, at 7:30 p.m.

All events are free and open to the public and will be held in the Wicomico Room of the University Center unless otherwise indicated. Call Donna Forgash at 543-6100 for more information.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

By Paul Ohanian

The Joe Rotellini football era begins this Saturday when Salisbury State welcomes C.W. Post to Sea Gull Stadium for the season opener. Kickoff is at 1:30 p.m. Rotellini becomes the fifth head coach in SSU's 18-year gridiron history, although he is no stranger to the Sea Gull program. Before spending the past three years as the assistant head coach at Shippensburg University, Rotellini was a Gull assistant for two seasons under former mentor Mike McGlinchey. SSU advanced to the national playoffs in both of those seasons.

Saturday's game against C.W. Post marks the 7th straight year the Gulls and Pioneers have met to start the season. Each squad has won three of the previous meetings, including Post's 20-0 victory on Long Island last year.

Also making SSU coaching debuts this week are Ed Hoeck and Bridget Bentshetler, the new coaches of the volleyball squad. The Gulls finished 33-10 last season while capturing a third consecutive Eastern States Athletic Conference championship. The Gulls opened the '90 season with matches against UMES and Delaware Tech on Wednesday, and play in the Marietta (OH) Tournament on Friday and Saturday.

Among the returning coaches is soccer head man Gerry DiBartolo, who begins his ninth year with the Sea Gulls on Saturday when SSU meets Randolph-Macon in the opening round of the Mary Washington Invitational. SSU won its final five games last season to finish 9-6. The Gulls will be led offensively by co-captain Kevin Jackson, last year's third leading scorer with four goals and 12 points, and defensively by co-captain Eric Vandetta.

The men's and women's cross country squads, under the leadership of second-year head coach Jerry Thomas, also burst into action this weekend at the Essex Invitational. The SSU men captured first place in last year's Essex race, while the women placed second.

Fourth-year coach Dawn Chamberlin's field hockey team opens its season on Tuesday when it welcomes Catholic University to the Eastern Shore. The Gulls finished 15-4-1 last year en route to a sixth straight NCAA Tournament appearance. Both of last year's top scorers—national All-American Cheryl Ish and Vicki Conklin—return, as does regional All-American Vicki Miller.

Herff Jones Rep To Be on Campus

The representative from Herff Jones, the exclusive supplier of school rings for SSU, will be on campus several times in September.

The representative will be located in the atrium of the University Center on the following dates: Monday, September 17, 10 a.m.-7 p.m.; Wednesday, September 18, 10 a.m.-7 p.m.; Thursday, September 19, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

Stop by the Book Rack and look at the samples on display.

Mammogram Screening

Mammogram screening is scheduled for Tuesday, September 18, from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. Call Shirley King in the Personnel Office at 548-4755 to arrange an appointment and obtain further details. A prescreening educational seminar will be conducted in Nanticoke A, University Center, on Thursday, September 6, between 11 a.m. - 1 p.m.

Outlet Bus Trip

Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, Salisbury State University, is sponsoring another bus trip to the Reading, PA outlets on Saturday, November 10. The bus leaves at 7 a.m. and returns at 9:30 p.m. from the University Center. The last bus trip was successful and all enjoyed it.

MCEA Chapter 72 members or spouses can go. The chapter pays $5 towards the ticket price of $8.75. Non-members price is $13.75 each. This is a first come first serve basis. As soon as the bus fills up, you will be put on a stand-by list. Get money in early.

First stop is the Vanity Fair outlet area and second stop is Mom's Outlets; lunch and dinner on your own.

Make checks payable to SSU, Chapter 72, and give or send them to Judy Lowe, Registrar's office (basement of Holloway Hall) or Barbara Keene, Alcohol & Drug Prevention Resource Center. Any questions, call Judy at 543-6153 or Barb 543-6309.

Planned Parenthood Hours

Planned Parenthood announces hours for the fall semester: supply clinic, Tuesdays, 4-6 p.m.; appointments, Wednesdays 4-7 p.m., and usually second and fourth Tuesdays, 4:30-7 p.m.

The services provided include annual gynecological examinations (breast and pelvic exams, PAP smears), contraceptive education and supplies, sexually transmitted disease screening and treatment, pregnancy testing, counseling and referral.

Every Tuesday school is in session, supplies are provided from 4-6 p.m. No appointment is needed.

Individuals from the University and from the community may make appointments by calling Planned Parenthood at the Health Center, 543-6265.

Book Buy Back

The Book Rack is again holding a beginning buy back for anyone with books from previous semesters. The buy back begins Monday, September 10, 9 a.m.-7 p.m. and ends Wednesday, September 13, 9 a.m.- 7 p.m.

Proper identification is required in order to sell books. Anyone selling books back at this time has the opportunity to enter a drawing for a $250 gift certificate.

Four New Members Inducted to SSU Hall of Fame

Salisbury State's Athletic Hall of Fame welcomes four new members as Walter Potter, Mary Lou Manis, Jeff Polk and Gail Tatterson Gladding join the elite company of former athletes as the Hall's class of 1990. The four inductees will be officially honored on Friday, October 5, at the annual Hall of Fame induction ceremony.

The oldest of this year's inductees, Walter Potter, class of '50, sports credentials as an outstanding basketball and soccer player during the post-WWII era. Potter, who lettered three times in each sport, was recognized as the school's best male athlete in both 1948 and 1949.

Mary Lou Manis, class of '70, was among the first talented "tall players" in SSU's women's basketball history. Standing 5-10, she was a tough inside player who was named the team's Most Valuable Player in 1969. She finished her career with 521 points and a 13.7 scoring average. As a talented all-around athlete, she also excelled in field hockey and volleyball.

Jeff Polk, class of '76, is recognized as among the best all-time SSU track and field competitors. Polk still holds the individual school records in the 100 meters (10.3), the 200 meters (20.7) and the long jump (23' 0"). He is also a member of three record-holding relay teams. The Salisbury native earned "All-America" honors in four events during his career and remained undefeated in dual meet competition in both the 100 and 220 for four years.

The fourth member of this year's induction class is Gail Tatterson Gladding, another SSU basketball standout who also coached the Sea Gulls for three seasons. Gladding, from the class of '77, ranks sixth on the SSU women's all-time scoring list, with 1168 points, and is fourth on the all-time rebounds list, with 567. She also still holds several individual records.

The Salisbury State University Hall of Fame was initiated in 1985 to honor former outstanding participants in SSU athletics. These four new members now bring the Hall of Fame's membership count to 30. Tickets to this year's induction dinner and ceremony cost $15 and are available by calling the SSU Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Berry Attends Conferences

Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department has recently returned from attending two international conferences, the Irish Slavists' Conference in Dublin and the IV World Congress for Soviet and East European Studies in Harrogate, England.

The Irish conference was held at Trinity College, Dublin, July 19-20. Berry participated in such diverse panels as the Irish-Dracula connection (Bram Stoker, the author of "Dracula", was Irish); a roundtable on the Soviet Union after five years under the leadership of Mikhail Gorbachev; a lecture by the eminent American historian, Robert F. Byrnes, on the current status of Soviet historical studies after five years of perestroika and glasnost; and a discussion of current social problems in the Soviet Union.

The World Congress in Harrogate, July 21-26, is an event held once every five years. It brings together scholars from all over the world with an interest in Slavic Studies. For the first time in its history large numbers of Soviet and East European scholars were able to attend the Congress, largely due to internal changes in the eastern part of Europe.

Berry delivered a paper on "Polish Diplomatic Activities in the Ottoman Empire, 1832-1848," in a panel which he organized on Polish Exile Diplomacy in the 19th century. Reflecting the nature of the Congress, the panel was also international in scope, including American, Canadian, German and Polish scholars. While at Harrogate, Berry also attended numerous panels which dealt with the history of and the current situation in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

Electrician

Salisbury State University is seeking an electrician to be responsible for the resolution of electrical problems associated with the auxiliary services buildings (dining hall, residence halls, University Center). Applicants must have a seventh grade education, however a high school diploma or GED equivalent is highly desired. Applicants must have four years full time employment as an electrician. Effective oral and written communications skills are required and a solid working knowledge of building trade skills, i.e. carpentry, plumbing, etc. is highly desirable. This is a full time state position with a starting salary of $20,772 with a full benefit package. Working hours may vary depending on customer requirements. Interested applicants may apply by submitting a resume and completing an application in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801 no later than September 18, 1990.

Business Dean

Business Dean Applications and nominations are invited for the position of dean of The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business. The School of Business, which now has 1200 students, was established in 1986 with the creation of a multi-million dollar enhancement fund to ensure that the various academic programs offered by the Perdue School maintain a high level of excellence. Additonal funds are available to assist the school as it seeks AACSB accreditation. The Perdue School is organized into four academic departments: Accounting and Legal Studies, Management and Marketing, Finance and Economics, and Information and Decision Sciences. The Perdue School also includes a Regional Small Business Development Center, a Small Business Institute, a Professional Development Institute, a Regional Technology Council, and a Center for Economic Education.

The dean will be the chief administrative officer of the school, reporting to the academic vice president, and will provide administrative and academic leadership to the baccalaureate and M.B.A. programs. Position preferred to be filled no later than July 1.

Candidates for the position must have an earned doctorate with experience in administration of undergraduate and graduate programs, leadership with the business and academic community and experience with the AACSB accreditation process.

A letter of application, curriculum vitae, and three original letters of recommendation should be addressed to: Dr. Elliot H. Kline, Search Committee Chair, Visiting Dean, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Consideration of applicants will begin October 22, and will continue until the position is filled.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Speakers Bureau Activity

Two members of the faculty recently addressed the Salisbury Exchange Club. Dr. Polly Stewart, professor of English, spoke to the group on "Folklore" and Dr. Robert Berry, associate professor of history, discussed "The Islamic Religion" with the organization.

Both Stewart and Berry are members of the Salisbury State University Speakers Bureau. The Speakers Bureau offers area civic, service and educational organizations a number of speakers discussing a variety of topics. There is no charge for the service.

To arrange a speaker contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

A Swashbuckling Theatre Season

A Swashbuckling Theatre Season A swashbuckling stage adaptation of an Alexandre Dumas novel, a musical retelling of a favorite Bible story and the introduction of an experimental theatre series are just some of the reasons the 1990-91 University theatre season promises to be both exciting and innovative, according to its director T. Paul Pfieffer.

"Our season opener is an adaptation of Dumas' famous novel 'The Three Musketeers' (October 12-14 and 17-20). We are very fortunate to have as guest director for this production Kelly Morgan. With degrees in acting and directing from such esteemed institutions as Case Western Reserve University and the Athens Institute of Dramatic Arts, Greece, and a master certificate in fencing from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London, England, Morgan brings to our season a rich background of training and professional experience. He will also direct Harold Pinter's 'The Homecoming' which will run November 14-19."

March 8-10, 14-17 and 21-23 Pfeiffer will direct William Congreve's Restoration comedy "Love for Love," which has more to do with money than love. Guest costume designer will be Beverly Thomas who is resident designer at Florida Atlantic University. She has published several books on costume design as well as designed for the professional theatre.

April 24-29 the student production will be a very early collaboration of the now famous team of Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd-Webber - "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." Directed by graduate student, Martha Pfeiffer, "This musical retelling of the Bible story promises to be bursting with energy and a great deal of fun for the whole family," continued SSU's theatre director. As usual, the season will be punctuated with guest artists appearances, including storytellers for the children. A touring Children's Theatre also will perform on campus in addition to visiting area schools.

"This season," said Pfieffer, "we are proud to announce the opening of our Studio Series. This new program will present the work of local guest artists in small scale limited-run performances. We will begin this new venture with another theatrical first for SSU Theatre - opera. February 7-9 we will showcase the talents of soprano Janice Price Davis as guest director and performer in a special evening of comic opera. Davis studied opera performance under full scholarship at West Virginia University, then at SSU with Norma Heyde. She also has sung with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, the Choral Society and other musical organizations. She will both direct and perform in a pair of one-act comic operas concerned with the theme of courtship, 'The Maid as Mistress' and 'The Telephone.' "April 11-14 our new Studio Series will showcase the talents of Dr. Robert J. Wesley in a delightful one-man production of 'Mark Twain,'" Pfieffer continued. Wesley has been on faculty here since 1966 and founded SSU's Communication Arts Department. He has appeared in a wide range of roles on stage and audiences perhaps remember him best for his annual Readers Theatre presentations. Bringing the beloved American humorist to life on our stage is a task for which he is exceptionally prepared."

For more information on a season subscription, which can save up to 40 percent on ticket cost, contact Pfeiffer at the SSU Department of Communication Arts, 1101 Camden Ave., Salisbury, MD 21801, or telephone 543-6229.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

PLEASE NOTE, A NEW POLICY: Students and alumni must have a resume and/or personal information form on file with the Placement Office prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the office as soon as possible to complete this requirement.

DATE	EMPLOYER/POSITION(S) MAJORS
Thurs., Sept. 13	DEFENSE MAPPING AGENCY-Will be holding a group presentation from 1-2:30 p.m. in the Choptank Room of the University Center to discuss cartographer positions. No sign-ups are necessary. Everyone is welcome.

SENIOR RESUME BOOK: Employers often ask to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors and then contact selected seniors about job openings. Interested seniors should bring their resumes to the Placement Office.

Visiting Scholars Program

The Office of Minority Affairs will sponsor a series of programs for the fall semester which will add to the diversity of the campus and expose the local community to the works of a number of leading authors.

On Tuesday, October 23, poet laureate of Illinois and Pulitzer Prize winner Gwendolyn Brooks will be on campus for a book signing and discussion at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

On Saturday, October 13, in conjunction with the Multicultural Committee of the Student Program Board, a special human relations training will be held for leaders of campus organizations and selected students and faculty. The program, "A World of Difference," will be presented by the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai Brith. The program is designed to expand cultural awareness and to work with students, faculty and administrators to combat prejudice and discrimination.

On Tuesday, November 27, Juan Williams, a writer for the Washington Post Magazine and author of "Eyes on the Prize - American Civil Rights Years, 1954-1965" will visit classes in the afternoon and give a lecture at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

All programs are part of the Visiting Scholars Program. The Office of Minority Affairs has a wealth of information available to the campus including human relations training videocassettes, current books and magazines. Call that office at 548-4503 to receive a copy of its resource list.

Ference at Conference

Dr. Gregory Ference, assistant professor of history, attended a National Faculty Development Institute titled "Incorporating Japanese Studies into the Undergraduate Curriculum" recently.

The program, held at San Diego State University, was sponsored by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities and the Japan-U.S. Friendship Commission. Ference was one of 20 nationally selected undergraduate faculty from the humanities and social sciences out of over 300 applicants.

The program consisted of four weeks of intensive seminars, classroom instruction, readings and workshops on the major historical, political, economic, and cultural trends and achievements of Japan totaling over 150 hours of instruction. The Institute's lecturers were internationally recognized experts or the foremost authorities in their respective fields, coming from across the U.S. and abroad.

From San Diego, Ference went to the University of California, Berkeley where he completed research and wrote three entries for "The Spanish-Cuban/American War, the Philippine War, and the Small Wars," a component of The Garland Encyclopedia of American Wars. His contributions were articles on Generals Henry T. Allen, Tasker H. Bliss and Frank R. McCoy.

In late July, Ference was one of approximately 300 associates of the University of Illinois Summer Research Laboratory on Russia and East Europe. The program, held in Urbana-Champaign, was made possible by grants from the U.S. Department of State, the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Mellon Foundation. While a participant, he conducted on-going research concerning Slovaks in America and the Czechoslovak independence movement.

Finally, Ference has written a book review of Alan Sked's "The Decline and Fall of the Habsburg Empire 1815-1918" for the journal East Central Europe and has been appointed the indexer for the publication of the Czechoslovak History Conference.

PA Announcers/ Statisticians Needed

Do you like sports? Are you looking for a way to get involved with the Sea Gull teams? PA announcers for football and basketball season are now needed. Be the "Voice of the Gulls" at all home games. Statisticians are also needed to help in the press box during football and basketball games. Both jobs require thorough sports knowledge. Experience is preferred, but not critical. See Paul Ohanian in the Sports Information Office, HH 267 if interested. You could be working by this Saturday!

Changed Address? Notify Personnel

If you have changed your address you need to notify the Personnel Department. Many direct mailings, including Health Insurance information, are sent to the address on file with the Central Payroll Bureau. It is therefore important for University employees to check the address on their paycheck and notify the Personnel Office if it is no longer current.

Making Learning Easier: Wolinski Co-Authors Reading Series

For children, the excitement of going back to school also involves a certain amount of anxiety surrounding new subjects, and spelling is one of them. But a new approach to the program may help alleviate some of the frustrations.

During the last 20 years some educators have chosen to study spelling from the student's perspective. Dr. John Wolinski, associate professor of education, hopes to help in developing better spellers and writers. As co-author of a new spelling series, published by Macmillian/ McGraw-Hill, he has worked to integrate spelling with reading and writing in texts for grades first through eighth.

The innovative series attempts to help children see the connections of spelling and writing in the context of literature, thereby making it easier and more enjoyable for children to learn.

Chosen for the project by "being in the right place at the right time," Wolinski explained, "I got involved with McGraw-Hill book company as the project was coming to fruition. I sort of interviewed for the co-authorship of the series after it was well in the advanced stages. The company had make a commitment and it had published a new reading series, a new language art series, called an integrate approach.

"They were trying to make real connections; the movement was to try to integrate the language arts more than it has been, instead of having reading and language and writing and spelling and listening all in these discrete little pieces. So what they were doing was working on a spelling series that is really kind of unique. It's more than just spelling, it's an actual reading, writing, spelling piece.

"I was asked to go to Oklahoma City and meet with some folks about the project. It was sort of serendipitous. I was kind of in the right spot at the right time," he said.

After a number of years on the local workshop and conference circuit in Maryland and Delaware, Wolinski said he had gathered a following. "People would say 'Gosh, the guy's really practical—he always gives you neat ideas that you can take home, and he's kind of interesting, etc., etc.' So I got a call from a consultant who said, 'Look our district manager was in the audience' (it was the year I was the keynote speaker for the Diamond State reading conference)," and he really liked your delivery and your style and what you had to say. Would you be interested in the possibility of coming out and talking about this spelling thing?'" he continued.

"What they really wanted was an East Coast person who had a background in reading and language arts—they weren't so much concerned about the spelling."

Wolinski describes co-author Dr. Ruel Allred, a professor at Brigham Young University, as having a significant background in spelling and conducting intensive research in spelling, its content and methods. Allred's conclusions view writing as an "enabling art," spelling one of its "essential elements."

In the beginning stages of writing students, using either "inventive" or accurate spellings, spell words to convey ideas and feeling to others. Spelling continues to function as a means of communication during the revising and proofreading stages, therefore spelling's role in written expression continues as an essential element in all stages of the writing process.

With much of the work already in the advanced stages, Wolinski says he was brought in to help complete the team.

"I can't say that I sat down from beginning to end and wrote a spelling series. They (MacMillian/McGraw-Hill) had make a commitment, they had an editorial team, they were really under way and what they were looking for was somebody who could kind of join the team and go out on the road, not so much as a salesperson, but to conduct conferences and things like that, and talk about spelling and talk to teachers, and sort of make a reasonable presentation."

Wolinski gave a presentation last year to the State of Maryland Reading Association and is on the program this year as a featured speaker for the group's Delaware counterpart.

Wolinski says the difference in this spelling series is a genuine commitment to integrating spelling, reading and writing. Each unit opens with a reading activity, followed by directions, a personal narrative, strategy and practical application. Designed to encourage kids to develop their own word list and make use of it daily, removing spelling from the mechanically-taught grind of years past.

Already adapted in some school systems, the series supplies teachers with a kit containing a teacher's manual and supplementary materials such as transparency masters.

Thrilled with its reception, Wolinski said, "To my knowledge I'm the only person at SSU that's been involved in the publication of a national packaged series—it's distributed all over the country and wherever. Spelling has in some circles, fallen on hard times. There's a real movement to what is called 'whole language' and its very anti-anything that has to do with skills. So spelling has always been perceived as this sort of fussy little skill that you have to deal with, so in some circles spelling has really fallen out of favor.

"A really interesting thing is, there is significant evidence from recent studies that spelling may be more important than we think. Instead of treading on little people and correcting them, let them have free rein with their invented spellings so they'll feel free to commit thought to paper. Later, traditional spelling methods can be put into place," he said.

MacMillian/McGraw-Hill has donated a complete set of the text books to the curriculum center at Blackwell Library.

Quinn Coordinates Mid-East Nursing Seminar

Dr. Edna Quinn, professor of nursing and a visiting Fulbright Professor at Jordan University of Science and Technology (JUST) last year, coordinated a two-day conference on the image of nursing in the Middle East this past spring. Modeled after a conference she conducted at Salisbury State last year, the Middle-East Conference at JUST was truly international—10 countries were represented among the speakers and participants.

According to Quinn, the image of nursing is of particular interest in Jordan, which suffers from an acute nursing shortage caused by emigration of nurses to countries with higher salaries and by a negative perception of nursing as a menial, passive and low-prestige occupation.

Jordan's commitment to reversing the trend was underlined by Queen Noor's patronage of the conference, which she inaugurated with an address in Arabic and English. Her presence, Quinn said, "brought us not only excellent media coverage, but an impressive turnout." Some 1,000 people attended the opening ceremony, and 700 people registered for the conference.

In addition to 40 research papers presented in concurrent sessions, there were four major addresses by nursing leaders from Saudi Arabia, Egypt, the United States and England. The speakers despite coming from different cultures, made many similar points, thereby indicating that nursing problems are global, not regional. Low pay, poor working conditions and the negative image of nursing, problems that also exist in the United States, were cited by many speakers.

Quinn added, however, that there were some factors unique to the Arab world that accounted for the negative image of nurses. These include the assignment of students with low scores on college entrance exams to nursing, regardless of their preference for a major. As a result, "nursing is not the first choice of many of our students, so we have to work hard to socialize students into the profession and combat low morale and poor motivation." Other students are studying nursing because of the availability of jobs in nursing, a key factor where unemployment and underemployment are problems.

The other problem is rooted in Islamic religion and Arab culture, which have a humanistic orientation conducive to nursing, but rigid guidelines about contact between the sexes. According to Quinn, one researcher found that the second most popular characteristic of the "ideal nurse" is the observance of Islamic rules about clothing and "communication" with men. Another researcher reported that in Saudi Arabia, nursing care is sexually segregated: with few exceptions, men care for men and women care for women.

The cultural problem concerns a reluctance in Jordan to perform jobs that are considered menial and require "serving" another person. Despite high unemployment, Jordan has many foreign workers in the country performing these socially unacceptable jobs.

According to Quinn, the conference, which was the first international nursing conference to be held in Jordan, had two functions. "One was, of course, to enhance the image of nursing, but we were also trying to promote faculty development," said Quinn. JUST has a relatively young faculty who have doctorates, but little experience in preparing research papers and articles. JUST faculty presented 10 papers at the conference.

"For many of them," said Quinn, "it was their first research since their graduate work." (Quinn herself co-presented two papers at the conference. One, on nurse-midwifery in Jordan, has been accepted in an expanded version for presentation at the International Congress of Midwives in Tokyo in the fall.)

An additional positive outcome of the conference was the formal and informal sharing sessions participants enjoyed. There were receptions, trips to tourist sites and a performance by the Jordanian Armed Forces Marching Band.

Quinn acknowledged that planning the conference had been a lot of work, but added that her JUST co-coordinator Dr. Rowaida Ma'aitah and the conference planning committee "dedicated themselves to pulling it off." Inspired by the JUST experience, other nursing schools in the Middle East have announced that they, too, plan to hold international nursing conferences next year. "I would love to return to the Middle East to attend one of these conferences," said Quinn. "This was a wonderful opportunity to network with people interested in cross-cultural nursing and the image of nursing."

Health/Walk Run To Be Held

The Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center's fourth annual 5K Health/Walk Run and 3K Predicted Time Fun Walk/Run will be held on Saturday, September 22. This year's event will include a new 5K competitive wheelchair category as well as a children's obstacle course to enhance family participation.

Last year over 500 runners and walkers registered for the walk/run and more walkers and runners are anticipated this year. As last year, corporate teams are invited to challenge each other in the community event.

A corporate team may consist of three to five runners, with the first three finishers on each team determining the overall team score. A Health Walk/Run Plaque will be awarded to the first place corporate team.

Completed entry forms and entry fees must be received by Friday, September 15. Contact the Cardiac Rehabilitation Department at 543-7026 for registration forms or questions.

Mushroom Walk At Furnace Town

The Furnace Town Historic Site and the Nature Conservancy forest trails will be the site of a guided nature walk on Sunday, September 9. The walk will leave from The Company Store at Furnace Town at 2 p.m. and will proceed around the Furnace Town grounds, into the Pocomoke Forest and the Nassawango Cypress Swamp, arriving back at the historic site by 4 p.m. The purpose of the walk is to enjoy the forest in September and to become more familiar with the dozens of types of mushrooms at Furnace Town.

Admission for the walk is $1.50 per adult and 75 cents per child, Furnace Town's regular site admission. Furnace Town Historic Site is located 16 miles south of Salisbury and 5 miles north of Snow Hill off Maryland Route 12. From Ocean City, take 113 south to Snow Hill, then right at the light on MD 12. For details, call (301) 632-2032.

will incur some new expenses, however, as more students are hired to implement the program.

Ironically, in his research Lutz found much of the solid waste on campus is paper generated by faculty and administration, not students. "I just watch our own office and we generate a tremendous amount of paper," Lutz said. All offices will have collection bins and two students will canvass the buildings weekly, collecting the recyclables. According to Carol Bloodsworth, SSU publications director, the University will try to use recycled paper, when possible.

As part of the plan University Dining Services (UDS), which serves some 4,500 meals daily, is expected to save nearly 30 tons of garbage annually simply by replacing foams and plastics with reusable dinner plates and flatware.

Already the Horticulture Office recycles yard waste from SSU's 115 acre grounds by composting. According to national statistics, one-fifth of all landfill space is used up by yard waste.

The University anticipates reclaiming some 30 percent of its solid waste—the equivalent of 2,000 trees and 30,000 gallons of gas annually.

"This program," said Stover, "establishes the University as the leader in recycling on the Eastern Shore."

awareness in the student of responsibilities as a human being and a citizen, which Thompson thinks should be the primary focus of a core curriculum.

As a graduate student, the history professor who has been honored with the Outstanding Faculty Award for teaching at SSU, studied at classical archaeological sites in Italy and Greece. Studying ancient mosaics, he noted that although individual pieces of stone may be attractive, together they created a picture whose beauty and meaning transcend the single marble fragment.

Like stones in a mosaic, freshman and sophomore courses should be "interwoven," Thompson believes. For example, a music history course should reveal something about the politics of an era. Political science courses should explore the philosophy and values of a nation or people, as might be reflected in the art or popular culture.

As co-director of the Center for Delmarva History and Culture, Thompson helped organize two exhibits this past year, one in cartography and the other in fashion. "The way women dressed following World War I: hemlines went up—women had knees; hair was bobbed—women had ears—made an important statement politically, sociologically and sexually about the effect of the war on society," Thompson noted.

If courses in the general curriculum can be interwoven, "I think students will not only discover a mosaic of knowledge which will help them in creating a world view, but also discover a mosaic of themselves reflected in its composition.

"Many students feel very much alone when they first come to college and want to be part of a group. If we can come together as a community of scholars working to create an interdisciplinary approach to general education—as the School of Liberal Arts is doing for the first time this semester—I think students will find not only a map but role models for becoming members of a community. Paradoxically, in becoming part of a community, students not only find a pathway to autonomy and self-reliance, but the antidote to loneliness they so often seek."

The first American exhibition devoted exclusively to avant-garde Hungarian photography will be on display through October 18 in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library.

"The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography from Hungary" features 55 photographs by eight of Hungary's most innovative photographers, all of whom employ experimental styles and techniques to create images that challenge traditional notions of photographic "realism" and objective "truth." It was organized by the Allen Memorial Art Museum of Oberlin College and curated by John P. Jacob, whose 1987 exhibition for the List Visual Arts Center at MIT, "Out of Eastern Europe: Private Photography," first introduced the "unofficial" photography of the Eastern Bloc countries to the U.S.

Jacob, who worked closely with all eight photographers in curating the show, completed his selections and left Hungary in March 1989, only a few months before the fall of the Berlin Wall and the end of the Cold War. "The exhibition thus gives viewers some insight into the intellectual climate which made the recent Eastern European revolutions possible," according to the director of the University Gallery, Ursula Ehrhardt.

The University Gallery has invited Michael Simon, a Hungarian-born photography and professor of art history at Beloit College and an authority on the history of Hungarian photography, to give a slide-lecture on "Hungarian Photography in Historic Context" on Thursday, October 18, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium, followed by a reception in the

Thoreau Series Begins

Dr. Michael Meyer, professor of English at the University of Connecticut, will initiate the Fall '90 Henry David Thoreau Series with his lecture, "Thoreau as a Popular Icon," on Thursday, September 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The series, sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, is free and open to the public.

With several books, monographs, journal articles and reviews on Thoreau to his credit, Meyer is a former president of the Thoreau Society.

He plans to discuss Thoreau's reputation in America beginning with his contemporaries in the 19th century and proceeding up through the present. He will be considering both Thoreau's popular reputation as well as his ups and downs within the academy.

"Owing to the broad range of Thoreau's abiding interests in writing, nature, the environment, politics and reform, as well as in social and economic issues, he has attracted readers (and nonreaders) who have tended to respond to him with enthusiastic approval or impatient outrage," said Meyer.

"Like Thoreau himself, his audiences react strongly and deliberately to what they perceive in him as either virtues or faults," he added. "Naturally enough, these sorts of responses make for a good story in addition to offering an opportunity to talk about Thoreau's ideas as well as the evolving values of his audiences over the years."

Barto Brings Thoreau to Life

Superfluous wealth can buy superfluities only. Money is not required to buy one necessary of the soul...The fault-finder will find faults even in paradise...Love your life, poor as it is. You may perhaps have some pleasant, thrilling, glorious hours, even in a poor-house...Cultivate poverty. A man becomes rich by making his wants few."

The common sense words of the fervent 19th century essayist, naturalist, surveyor and frank proponent of self-reliance, Henry David Thoreau, will be ringing loud and clear in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Wednesday, September 26, at 7:30 p.m.

David Barto

When David Barto, a 40-year old high school English teacher from Levittown, PA, assumes the Thoreau identity, he actually seems to bring the ardent individualist back to life. Recreating the period styles of Thoreau, Barto dons a gold vest, open-necked chemise and corduroy pants. Speaking in Thoreauvian prose, he chats, lectures, plays tunes from his childhood on the flute and entertains with realistic bird calls (learned from Indians).

"My performance will be Henry David Thoreau lecturing on various aspects of his life, focusing particularly upon why he went to Walden Pond to live, some of what he found when he got there, and why he left," said Barto.

In the course of his portrayal, Barto will touch upon Thoreau's themes of love of nature, living a simple life in the face of a materialistic world, following one's conscience, the importance of each person's dreams for his life and the value of each person's uniqueness. There will also be a time for questions from the audience about any aspect of Thoreau's life.

"In 1974, I tried something very unusual in one of my English classes that opened a whole new direction for my life," said Barto. "In an effort to interest obviously bored students, I entered my classroom as Henry David Thoreau and claimed to be the famous writer. I spoke about my life as Thoreau, played the flute, as he had, and explained some of 'my' words in 'Walden.'

When one of his classes was literally moved to tears by his performance, Barto decided to share the experience with others. In 1984, he was discovered by Dr. Walter Harding, Thoreau scholar and co-founder and secretary of the 49-year old Thoreau Society.

"I performed as part of, and participated as a

University, Atrium Galleries Seasons Announced

The University's two art galleries have announced their fall exhibition schedules.

The principal gallery, known as the "University Gallery" and located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, has scheduled three exhibitions. These include "The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography From Hungary," September 8-October 18; "Contemporary Polish Prints," October 20-November 15; and the Art Department's Annual Faculty Show, on display November 17-December 13, except for the period November 21-25, when the University will be closed for Thanksgiving.

The University's second exhibition space, which is located next to the bookstore in the atrium of the University Center, is called the "Atrium Gallery." it will show Laura Hickman's large pastel drawings of landscapes, September 21-October 11; rare books by Henry David Thoreau and other Thoreau memorabilia from the collection of Jim Dawson, owner of the Unicorn Bookstore in Trappe, MD, October 16-18; photographs by artist-in-residence Salvatore Mancini and his students, October 24-November 13; and photo-silkscreens by students in a new, upper-level seminar taught by Dr. Kent Kimmel of the Art Department, November 16-December 3.

The Atrium Gallery will also sponsor three art sales: a Contemporary Poster Sale, scheduled for October 12 and 13; the Marson Galleries Exhibit and Sale, October 19 and 20; and the annual Art Department Scholarship Fund Sale, December 10-18.

Both galleries are free and open to the public. Exhibition schedules for both galleries with more detailed information can be obtained after September 11 by calling the University Gallery at 543-6271 or the University Center at 543-6006.

Intramurals Sign-Up

Participate in intramurals by signing up in the Campus Recreation Office (Maggs PAC) before the event deadline: coed volleyball, September 12; flag football, September 19; table tennis, September 27; and aerobics, Monday-Thursday, 7:15-8:30 p.m.

To pick up a schedule of the open Nautilus hours, open swim hours and the open tennis center hours or find out more information about sports clubs (outdoor, surfing, cycling, hockey, marital arts, soccer and others) contact the Campus Recreation Office.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Movie Tickets

Discounted movie tickets for Movies 6 Theatres are on sale at the University Center information desk Monday-Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. - 10 p.m. The price is $4 per ticket.

Ivory Coast Seminar

The first interest meeting of the semester for those planning to join the study seminar to the Ivory Coast, West Africa, will be held in Nanticoke B of the University Center on Friday, September 14, at 3:30 p.m.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Changed Address? Notify Personnel

If you have changed your address you need to notify the Personnel Department. Many direct mailings, including Health Insurance information, are sent to the address on file with the Central Payroll Bureau. It is therefore important for University employees to check the address on their paycheck and notify the Personnel Office if it is no longer current.

Red Mass September 16

Catholic Mass will be held every Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center.

On September 16 the traditional Red Mass for faculty, staff and students will be held with a reception following. There will a special liturgy prepared. All student, faculty and staff and their families are welcome to attend.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Visiting Scholars Program

The Office of Minority Affairs will sponsor a series of programs for the fall semester which will add to the diversity of the campus and expose the local community to the works of a number of leading authors.

On Tuesday, October 23, poet laureate of Illinois and Pulitzer Prize winner Gwendolyn Brooks will be on campus for a book signing and discussion at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

On Saturday, October 13, in conjunction with the Multicultural Committee of the Student Program Board, a special human relations training will be held for leaders of campus organizations and selected students and faculty. The program, "A World of Difference," will be presented by the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai Brith. The program is designed to expand cultural awareness and to work with students, faculty and administrators to combat prejudice and discrimination.

On Tuesday, November 27, Juan Williams, a writer for the Washington Post Magazine and author of "Eyes on the Prize - American Civil Rights Years, 1954-1965" will visit classes in the afternoon and give a lecture at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

All programs are part of the Visiting Scholars Program. The Office of Minority Affairs has a wealth of information available to the campus including human relations training videocassettes, current books and magazines. Call that office at 548-4503 to receive a copy of its resource list.

were awarded for overall marketing of the program—its presentation, planning and implementation.

University Dining chose to present its program to the judges through a largely visual media. Photos of product presentation, ambiance and customers were used in conjunction with marketing materials and a broad selection of customer comment cards.

The panel of judges consisted of other NACUFS members, food critics, a chef, a registered dietitian and private industry representatives. Judging took place at the University of Richmond in May and winners were announced at the NACUFS National Convention in Baltimore in early July.

The Gull's Nest Sunday Brunch is offered on a bi-weekly basis and began its fall session on September 9. Hours are from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. and reservations are requested for parties of five or more. Prices are $3.95 for children and $6.95 for adults, for the all-you-can-eat fare.

The menu includes carved steamship round, whole tom turkey, omelet bar, salad bar, Belgian waffle bar, broccoli spears with chef's cheese sauce, bacon, scrambled eggs, sausage links, biscuits and country gravy, hash browns, French toast, and assorted pastries, breads and muffins.

Service is available on the following Sundays: September 9 and 23, October 7 and 21, November 4 and 18, and December 2 and 16.

Call 543-6103 or 543-6105 for reservations.

Faculty Voice Recital

A faculty voice recital will be presented on Sunday, September 23, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Sponsored by the Department of Music and the Faculty Culture Events Committee, the recital will feature Katherine Turner Barlow and Duane Richard Karna, vocalists, accompanied by Nancy Cooper and Linda Cockey on the piano. The afternoon of German Lieder (songs) will present selected duets as well as two song cycles composed by Robert Schumann-Liederkreis Opus 24 and Frauenliebe und Leben Opus 42.

Wellness Program

Do you need a boost in your energy level? Do you want to end your day still smiling? Do you want to improve your overall health?

If so, join other University employees as they continue the Faculty/Staff Wellness Program. Services include fitness evaluations, health risk appraisals, personalized exercise prescriptions and more. Faculty and staff have exclusive use of the Nautilus room Monday-Friday, 5-6 p.m., beginning Wednesday, September 12. Check out the new lifecycles, stairmasters and rowing machine. Other exercise options are available as interest dictates.

For more information and the required health forms contact Dr. Bob Cross at 543-6340.

Whitford: Teaching Through Involvement

Teachers can teach, but students have to do the learning.

That's two quite different things and helping teachers to bridge the gap between them is the goal of professionals like Dr. Ellen V. Whitford, an assistant professor in the School of Education and Professional Studies.

In her classes are undergraduates training to be teachers, graduate students improving themselves professionally and, sometimes, veteran teachers returning for refresher courses.

In addition to a full teaching schedule, Whitford also gets her message across by writing articles for professional journals, presenting papers at educational conferences and joining in research projects with other faculty members.

If there is one theme that runs through her work, she says, it is her belief that teachers teach best not by talking to their students but by involving them in classroom discussions in ways that will let them discover for themselves the pleasures of learning.

"Experience is the best teacher," she said, "and if you can draw students into a classroom discussion of the subject under study, get them interacting with their fellows, they have started to learn through their own experience of it."

Describing "strategies and tactics" for doing this makes up an important part of her own teaching and writing. For example, she has just co-authored a chapter in an upcoming textbook titled "Teaching and Learning Through Discussion." The chapter, written in collaboration with Dr. Ronald T. Hyman of Rutgers University, explains how teachers can get students involved in "strategic discussions" of the subject being studied.

During her first year she also has written articles for journals published by the American Association of School Administrators, New Jersey's Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, and the American Association for Adult and Continuing Education.

Another extracurricular activity has involved her along with other SSU faculty members in a joint project aimed at helping schools in the three lower Eastern Shore counties (Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester) to identify and assist "at risk" students in the sixth and seventh grades. The purpose is to help these potential dropouts not only to stay in school but to graduate and, perhaps, go on to higher education.

Dr. Doran E. Christensen, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies, said of Whitford, "It's exciting that Salisbury State University is attracting bright, new professors, like Whitford, who are both excellent scholars and first-rate teachers."

A former high school teacher, Whitford taught for 14 years at Central Bucks East in Doylestown, PA. She began as an English teacher and, after getting a master's at Beaver (PA) College in the teaching of reading, she went on to set up a program at the high school for teenagers who still were unable to read.

She used unconventional approaches, such as allowing the students to pick reading material they needed to understand and having them learn to read it by writing it out on a word processor. The program proved quite successful, she said.

"It's a great profession," she said. "Teachers actually create situations that get people to think or that change their way of thinking.

"Our student teachers, at least here at SSU," she continued, "are energetic and highly motivated." She is confident that when their turn comes to take over a classroom, they will know how to lead their students to discover the pleasures of learning.

Models Needed

Models are needed for several art classes during the fall semester. The classes are Tuesdays and Thursdays, 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 12:30-2:30 p.m. Call the Art Department for details.

Electrician

Salisbury State University is seeking an electrician to be responsible for the resolution of electrical problems associated with the auxiliary services buildings (dining hall, residence halls, University Center). Applicants must have a seventh grade education, however a high school diploma or GED equivalent is highly desired. Applicants must have four years full time employment as an electrician. Effective oral and written communications skills are required and a solid working knowledge of building trade skills, i.e. carpentry, plumbing, etc. is highly desirable. This is a full time state position with a starting salary of $20,772 with a full benefit package. Working hours may vary depending on customer requirements. Interested applicants may apply by submitting a resume and completing an application in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801 no later than September 18, 1990.

Business Dean

Business Dean Applications and nominations are invited for the position of dean of The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business. The School of Business, which now has 1200 students, was established in 1986 with the creation of a multi-million dollar enhancement fund to ensure that the various academic programs offered by the Perdue School maintain a high level of excellence. Additonal funds are available to assist the school as it seeks AACSB accreditation. The Perdue School is organized into four academic departments: Accounting and Legal Studies, Management and Marketing, Finance and Economics, and Information and Decision Sciences. The Perdue School also includes a Regional Small Business Development Center, a Small Business Institute, a Professional Development Institute, a Regional Technology Council, and a Center for Economic Education.

The dean will be the chief administrative officer of the school, reporting to the academic vice president, and will provide administrative and academic leadership to the baccalaureate and M.B.A. programs. Position preferred to be filled no later than July 1.

Candidates for the position must have an earned doctorate with experience in administration of undergraduate and graduate programs, leadership with the business and academic community and experience with the AACSB accreditation process.

A letter of application, curriculum vitae, and three original letters of recommendation should be addressed to: Dr. Elliot H. Kline, Search Committee Chair, Visiting Dean, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Consideration of applicants will begin October 22, and will continue until the position is filled.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Outreach Workshops Offered

The Center for Personal and Professional Development offers not only personal and career counseling to students but also a variety of outreach programs. This fall, CPPD director, Dr. Bob McBrien, is offering a new workshop titled, "Positive Parenting for Young Children," which began on Tuesday, September 11, and runs through October 9.

Plans are also in the works for three other personal skill-building workshops: "Smoking Cessation," "Managing Exam Stress" and "Visualization for Peak Performance."

For more information about any of these workshops, contact the CPPD in person or by calling 543-6070.

Personal Counseling Available

Personal counseling is made available to SSU students through the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD). Located on the second floor of the University Center, the CPPD is open from 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m., Monday-Thursday, and 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on Friday.

Appointments may be made in person or by calling 543-6070. Walk-in hours, when students may come in without having an appointment, are 1-3 p.m., Monday-Thursday. All counseling is confidential and free of charge to University students.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

A full weekend of soccer activity is scheduled for this Saturday and Sunday as the Gulls host the annual SSU Invitational Tournament. Two games are scheduled for each day, with Washington College meeting Virginia Wesleyan at 2 p.m. and the Gulls hosting Lynchburg at 4 p.m. on Saturday. The second day sees Washington pitted against Lynchburg at 1 p.m. and SSU meeting Virginia Wesleyan at 3 p.m. The champion of the round-robin event will be determined on a point system which awards teams two points for a win, one point for a tie and zero points for a loss.

The soccer team dropped its opening two games of the year at the Mary Washington Tournament last weekend, losing by similar 2-1 scores to both Randolph-Macon and Mary Washington. Jim Wakefield and Matt Roberts recorded the Sea Gull goals.

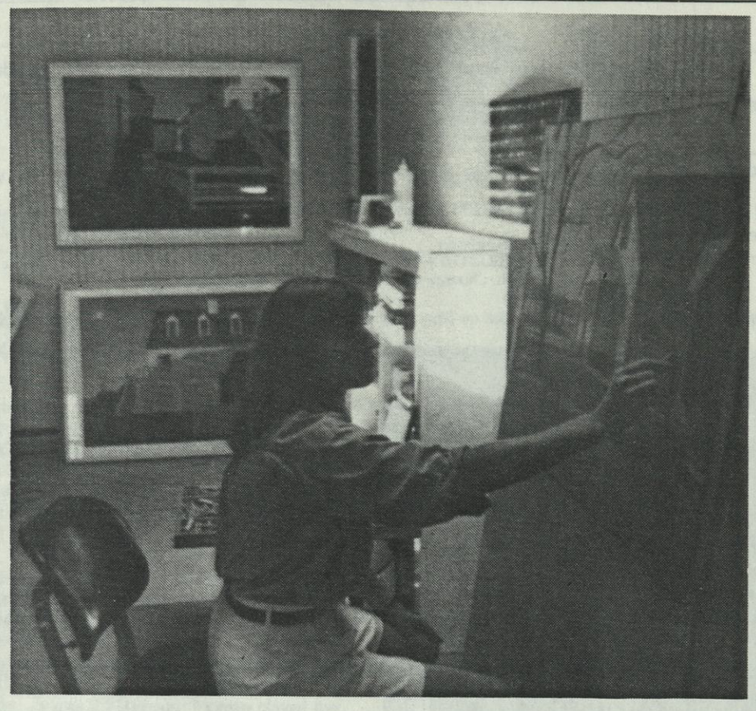
After losing 21-7 to C.W. Post in the season-opening football game last Saturday, the Gulls face the formidable task of playing powerful Ferrum (11-2 last season) this Saturday. Although Joe Rotellini was foiled in his collegiate coaching debut, there were positives to be found from last week's game, including a sound defensive effort and a good job by freshman QB Pat Poole in a relief role. Poole completed five of seven passes in the fourth quarter, including a three-yard touchdown pass to senior WR Bill Lewit.

The volleyball team competes in the Alleghany (PA) Tournament this weekend, with three matches scheduled Friday and two more on Saturday. The Gulls are 3-3 on the season after finishing sixth in the Marietta (OH) Tournament last weekend.

The women's tennis squad and the cross country team both begin their seasons on Saturday. Coach Jerry Thomas' runners had a final tuneup at the Essex Invitational Meet last weekend, and came away with two fifth place individual finishes. Sophomore Tim Smith registered a time of 28:29 over the 8K men's course while junior Erin Green finished with a time of 19:01 over the 5K women's course.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Friday, September 14	Volleyball at Alleghany Tournament	5 p.m.
Saturday, September 15	Volleyball at Alleghany Tournament	10 a.m.
	Cross Country at University of Delaware Meet	10 a.m.
	Women's Tennis vs. Virginia Wesleyan	11 a.m.
	Football at Ferrum	1:30 p.m.
	SSU Soccer Invitational	2 p.m. & 4 p.m.
Sunday, September 16	SSU Soccer Invitational	1 p.m. & 3 p.m.
Monday, September 17	Women's Tennis at Catholic	3 p.m.
	Field Hockey at Messiah	4:15 p.m.
Wednesday, September 19	Soccer vs. Johns Hopkins	4 p.m.
	Volleyball at Catholic	7 p.m.



Laura Hickman

Atrium Gallery Exhibit

The Atrium Gallery, located in the University Center next to the bookstore, begins the 1990 fall exhibit schedule with "The Effects of Light," pastels by Laura Hickman. The exhibit is on view from September 21-October 11, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. daily.

Hickman, a resident of Bethany Beach, DE, received her B.A. in studio arts in 1975 from Hood College and her Master of Fine Arts in printmaking from the University of Delaware in 1979. In the past she has worked at a variety of occupations including owner and operator of a women's clothing and hand-crafted gift store and a restaurant and gourmet food store. She has also served as a professor of art at both the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and Savannah (GA) College of Art and Design. At present she is devoting full time to her art.

Hickman has exhibited frequently throughout the Mid-Atlantic states and has won numerous awards for her art. The DuPont Company and the Wilmington Trust Company are only two among many companies and individuals who have added her work to their permanent collections. Presently she is represented by the Station Gallery in Greenville, DE, and the Gruss McLeaf Gallery in Philadelphia. When questioned about her exhibit in the Atrium Gallery, Hickman said, "Light is a vital part of the experience of the place. It can be mysterious, whimsical, lonely, ominous, peaceful or romantic in an almost theatrical sense. My part as an artist is to create images, tempered by my thoughts, feelings and field of experience for the viewer. My subjects are all places that do exist and under certain lighted conditions seem very magical. The absence of figures, cars, etc. is intentional...these places are meant to be inhibited by the viewer."

Hickman uses layers of soft pastel on Arches Cover Black paper. She feels the black paper helps reinforce the darker pastels and create the contrast necessary for the effects of light. She draws "light from darkness" and feels she can see "colors on the black paper that would look dull and lifeless on white."

An opening reception for "The Effects of Lights" at the Atrium Gallery is on Friday, September 21, from 5-7 p.m. The public is invited. For more information on this and other Atrium Gallery exhibits, call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Backpacking Trip Set

The next Outdoor Club meeting is on Monday, September 17, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center. All students are welcome.

The second trip of the semester is backpacking in Northern Virginia on the weekend of September 28-30. Non-experienced backpackers are welcome. Anyone interested in the trip must attend the meeting on September 17.

All Outdoor Club meetings are scheduled for Mondays in Nanticoke A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the fall semester include rock climbing at Great Falls, VA, on October 5-6, horsepacking in the Shenandoah National Park on October 12-14, rafting in Ohiopyle, PA, on October 26-28, attending an Outdoor Photographic Clinic at Assateague National Park on November 3 and backpacking on Hawk Mountain on November 16-18. (Dates are subject to change.)

CLEP Test

The CLEP test will be given on Wednesday, October 17. The deadline for registration is Monday, September 17. Applications are available in the Admissions Office, HH 155.

25+Union

The 25+ Student Union is sponsoring its first open house on Friday, September 21, from 4-6 p.m. in the University Center fireplace lounge.

Refreshments will be served; everyone is welcome.

Epilepsy Support Meeting

The next meeting of the Salisbury Epilepsy Support Group will be in the EAES Office conference room in the Power Professional Center on Wednesday, September 19, at 7 p.m.

For more information, call Edward Simonoff at 543-0665.

Yearbook Meeting

The Evergreen Yearbook's interest meeting is Monday, September 17, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke C of the University Center. Everyone is invited.

Off-campus Parking

Students and University employees should park only in designated campus parking lots. Cars that are parked at shopping centers, in the parking lot of a place of business or in front of residences in the vicinity of the campus are subject to being towed.

Outlets Bus Trip

Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, Salisbury State University, is sponsoring another bus trip to the Reading, PA, outlets on Saturday, November 10. The bus leaves from the University Center at 7 a.m. and returns at 9:30 p.m. The last bus trip was a good one and all saved money on their Christmas shopping.

The Chapter pays $5 toward the ticket of a member or spouse of a member, making the price $8.75. Non-members are welcome to go; the price is $13.75 per person. This is a first come, first served trip. As soon as the bus fills up, a stand-by list will be started.

First stop is the Vanity Fair outlet area and second stop is Mom's Outlets. Lunch and dinner are "on your own."

Make checks payable to MCEA Chapter 72, and give or send them to Judy Lowe, Registrar's Office (basement of Holloway Hall) or Barbara Keene, Alcohol & Drug Prevention Resource Center (behind Maggs Gym). Any questions, call Judy at 543-6153 or Barb at 543-6309.

selected fellow in, his National Endowment for the Humanities sponsored 'Concord Authors' seminar in Concord, MA," Barto continued. "My performance led to seven summer seasons at Thoreau's own Walden Pond and performances throughout the United States and England," he added.

Barto's enactment is free and the public is encouraged to attend. For more information call Donna Forgash at 543-6100.

Just Kidding Troupe To Perform

Just Kidding brings its unique brand of humor to SSU on Saturday, September 15, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The show is free to SSU students and staff.

Just Kidding is a group of young men and women whose goal is to rescue you from the trials and tribulations of life for a couple of hours—and make you laugh.

They do it with sketches: little vignettes poking fun at everything imaginable, like heavy metal music, college, love, Greek gods and the all-American family.

Just Kidding is more active and diverse than stand-up, more dependable and clever than improvisation.

Simon will discuss the historical background of the exhibition, from the late 19th century to the present, taking into account Hungary's position between Western and Eastern Europe, as well as its own cultural heritage.

According to Simon's essay in the exhibition catalogue, these contemporary photographers perceived that "the internal contradictions of Communism could no longer be subdued by repression." By making photographs which reflect their personal experiences and emphasize individual values, they express "the belief that constant questioning is the basis on which to build a more reasonable future."

Although Hungarian artists have generally had greater artistic freedom than their colleagues in other Eastern European countries, they were still subject to many forms of governmental regulation until recently. The works in the exhibition, all of which were made without the sanction of the state bureaucracy, thus comment only indirectly on political and social issues. A series of surrealistic photographs by Laszlo Hegedus and Laszlo Lugosi-Lugo, for example, shows buildings and monuments in the town of Fehervar partially submerged by painted-in flood waters. "The full meaning of these photographs is only revealed if the viewer knows that Fehervar is the home base for Soviet forces in Hungary," Ehrhardt said.

Similarly, Zsigmond Karolyi's untitled photographs of architecture covered by scaffolding are both evocative abstract patterns and a criticism of Hungary's poorly maintained buildings under socialism. By brushing developer solution directly onto the photographs, Karolyi suggests that Hungary's infrastructure as well as the society it symbolizes are in a state of advanced decay.

Likewise, Tibor Varnagy's 1988-89 series of abstract photographs, "Four Black Squares--for Malevich," holds deeper meaning if one knows that "Malevich, an early 20th century pioneer of Russian abstraction, was also a mystic who believed in absolute freedom of expression and in the power of the human spirit to triumph over material circumstances," Ehrhardt said.

Regularly scheduled gallery talks on the exhibition by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Wednesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Mitchell also conducts tours for small groups, which must be scheduled at least one week in advance of the desired tour date. For more information, call 543-6270.

Gallery hours are Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, 1-5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings, 5-8 p.m.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SEPTEMBER 20, 1990 VOL. XII NO. 4

Dumas' Swashbuckler Opens SSU Theatre Season

The battle cry, "All for one and one for all!" the sound of musketeer blades slicing the air, and beautiful women enmeshed in webs of deceit—all are part of Alexander Dumas' classic romantic novel, "The Three Musketeers," which comes to the stage as Salisbury State University Theatre's season opener, October 12-14 and 17-20 in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

This engaging swashbuckler, with all the high drama and low comedy traditionally associated with the genre, is directed by guest artist, Kelly C. Morgan, who has performed extensively in professional theatre across the country and most recently taught at American University and Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland. At the Cleveland Playhouse Morgan played the featured role of Jussac in their popular revival of the Dumas adventure.

Morgan received his master certificate in fencing from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London and will be staging more than a dozen scenes of stage combat throughout the play.

"With its action...wit, slapstick...coupled with serious dramatic elements bleeding in from the novel, I think the production can be exhilirating and fun for everyone (children and adults)," Morgan said.

Set in 17th century France, Dumas' story tells of a country youth, D'Artagnan, his journey to Paris and efforts to join the King's musketeers. D'Artagnan's protection of the Queen's honor; friendship with the "three inseparables," Athos, Porthos and Aramis; and willingness to face life-threatening challenges and temptations in the service of romantic love, all ultimately lead to his heart's desire.

"The Three Musketeers," published in 1844 a few months before Dumas'

Faculty Voice Recital

Katherine Turner Barlow and Duane Richard Karna

A faculty voice recital will be presented on Sunday, September 23, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Sponsored by the Department of Music and the Faculty Culture Events Committee, the recital will feature Katherine Turner Barlow and Duane Richard Karna, vocalists, accompanied by Nancy Cooper and Linda Cockey on the piano. The afternoon of German Lieder (songs) will present selected duets as well as two song cycles composed by Robert Schumann-Liederkreis Opus 24 and Frauenliebe und Leben Opus 42.

Barlow, adjunct instructor of voice, earned her Bachelor of Music and Master of Music from the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. This summer she completed her sixth season with the Commander Boardwalk Cabaret Dinner Theater in Ocean City. Currently she may be seen on stage at the Commander Dinner Theater in their full-length production of the musical comedy "Nunsense." She appears as Sister Mary Amnesia.

Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities, is an accomplished performer in his own right. He last performed in a faculty voice recital in October, 1989, singing vocal literature by Schubert, Brahms, Schumann, Faure, Britten and Barber. As a vocal/choral specialist, he has been a guest soloist and clinician for various choral organizations and has participated in many opera theater productions and opera workshops in Washington, Texas, Arizona and Maryland.

University Center Named for Guerrieris

The Salisbury State University Center has been named in honor of Alan and Patti Guerrieri of Ocean City, MD, who recently donated $1 million for student scholarships to SSU, President Bellavance has announced.

No date has been set for the dedication of the Guerrieri (pronounced Grr-rare-ree) University Center. A marker is currently being designed.

Mr. Guerrieri is president and CEO of Showell Farms, Inc., an agribusiness with international distribution. Mrs. Guerrieri is an alumna of SSU.

Electronic Classrooms Operational

The Mathematical Sciences Department made operational four electronic classrooms in the Power Professional Building for this fall semester. These classrooms have state-of-the-art computer networks designed to actively support the teaching of mathematics.

Each of the classrooms is equipped with a computer and a data projection system that is networked with computers in math faculty offices and with the University's VAX. Computers in the student computer lab in Power also tie into this network. Faculty may prepare their lectures and call up their demonstrations and exercises on the VAX. These demonstrations and exercises can be "called up" during the lecture, effectively illustrating the objective being taught. Students can replicate what they see in the classroom in the student lab and review the material as frequently as they wish.

Although using the microcomputer as a pedagogical tool is not new, tying a single computer to a projection screen enables the entire class to see the demonstration. The electronic classroom is a powerful tool that will help the Math Department fully integrate the computer into the curriculum.

Affirmative Action Plan

The University's recently revised affirmative action plan has been approved by Dr. Bellavance and placed on file in a number of locations on campus for access by all University employees.

The plan contains the University's equal employment opportunity policy, provides an analysis of the University's labor force and outlines responsibilities for those involved in the recruitment and selection of faculty, administrators and classified employees.

The plan may be used for reference purposes and is to be updated annually. Copies of the plan have been placed in the Personnel Office, Blackwell Library and the Affirmative Action Office (HH-134), where there are additional copies available for anyone who might like to have a copy.

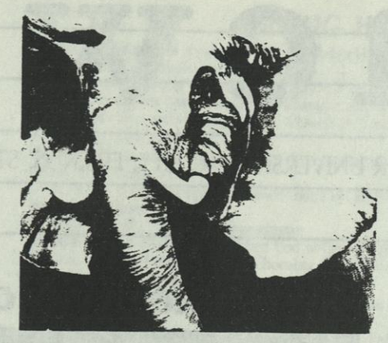
Please send comments, suggestions and/or corrections for future revisions to Robert Spery, Affirmative Action Officer, Holloway Hall 134, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Thoreau Series Begins

Dr. Michael Meyer, professor of English at the University of Connecticut, will initiate the Fall '90 Henry David Thoreau Series with his lecture, "Thoreau as a Popular Icon," on Thursday, September 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The series, sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, is free and open to the public.

For more information call Donna Forgash at 543-6100.



'86 Alumna Opens Gallery

Olga MacMillan, SSU alumna from the class of '86 recently opened a framing and art gallery in the new shopping area at Beaglin Park Drive. As part of her opening she is having an art show of "The Tribute to the Elephants Collection" by Betsey M. Burhans-Fowler. The elephants collection is inspired by the threatened extinction of the African elephant and is the artist's contribution to helping save this majestic species. Burhans-Fowler is the wife of Mutual of Omaha and Today Show conservationist, Jim Fowler.

Please support MacMillan's new business by stopping by the MacMillan Gallery at 810 Beaglin Park Drive, No. 3, in the next few weeks to enjoy this collection of unique limited edition prints and fine art posters of Burhans-Fowler's Tribute to the Elephants Collection.

Wellness Program

Do you need a boost in your energy level? Do you want to end your day still smiling? Do you want to improve your overall health?

If so, join other University employees as they continue the Faculty/Staff Wellness Program. Services include fitness evaluations, health risk appraisals, personalized exercise prescriptions and more. Faculty and staff have exclusive use of the Nautilus room Monday-Friday, 5-6 p.m., beginning Wednesday, September 12. Check out the new lifecycles, stairmasters and rowing machine. Other exercise options are available as interest dictates.

For more information and the required health forms contact Dr. Bob Cross at 543-6340.

VAX Training

Training classes for the VAX Editor (EDT) will be held in room 242 of Devilbiss Hall on: Thursday, September 20, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Monday, September 24, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Tuesday, September 25, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; Wednesday, September 26, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.; and Thursday, September 27, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.

Participants must sign up prior to attending any scheduled training. Signup sheets are located in room 242, Devilbiss Hall. Don't forget to bring your VAX Class Account Card to participate in the training class.

Movie Tickets

Discounted movie tickets for Movies 6 Theatres are on sale at the University Center information desk Monday-Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. - 10 p.m. The price is $4 per ticket.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Changed Address? Notify Personnel

If you have changed your address you need to notify the Personnel Department. Many direct mailings, including Health Insurance information, are sent to the address on file with the Central Payroll Bureau. It is therefore important for University employees to check the address on their paycheck and notify the Personnel Office if it is no longer current.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Apple Training

Training classes for Apple Wordperfect 1.1 will be held in room 127 of Blackwell Library from 6-8 p.m. on: Thursday, September 20; Monday, September 24; Tuesday, September 25;and Thursday, September 27.

Participants must sign up prior to attending any scheduled training. Signup sheets are located in room 127, Blackwell Library. Don't forget to bring a 5 1/4" diskette to participate in the training class.

Thoreau Reading Group

As an adjunct to the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center will sponsor a Thoreau reading group. During the semester, the group will meet on five Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss five different ideological views of Thoreau's writings. Discussion leaders will be: Phil Bosserman on the topic of simplicity (October 4), Joe Gilbert on the implications of Thoreau biography (October 18), Don Whaley on Thoreau and anarchism (November 8), Tony Whall on freedom and dignity in Thoreau (November 15), and Dave Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6). Readings will be assigned for each session.

Beginning on September 24, those participating in Phil Bosserman's session may pick up a xeroxed selection in the University Center office. Reading lists and selections for later sessions will also be available there at least a week before each session.

For further information, contact Bill Horne at 543-6445.

SSU in England

The English and the Nursing departments are offering travel courses during winter term that include a two-week study tour of England. Students will have London as a base, but there will also be optional one-day trips to Salisbury, Windsor, Bath and Canterbury.

Students may enroll in English 300, English 490 (which is also available for graduate credit) or Nursing 457: Cultural Considerations in Nursing. Instructors will be Dr. Thomas Erskine and James Welsh of the English Department and Dr. Edna Quinn of the Nursing Department. All have extensive experience in teaching these courses in England.

English students will attend pre-trip classes, keep a journal, write papers and attend six plays. Nursing students will also attend pre-trip classes, keep a journal and tour several hospitals, where they will hear lectures by British nursing educators.

Cost of the trip, which is open to students, faculty, staff and friends of the University, is approximately $900 and includes round-trip transportation from Salisbury to London, hotel and continental breakfast.

An interest meeting will be held Tuesday, September 25, from 4-5:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall 119 (Perdue Business School). Those unable to make the meeting should contact one of the following: Tom Erskine (543-3671 or 742-7963), Edna Quinn (543-6414 or 742-7963) or Jim Welsh (543-6446 or 749-4190).

DC Talk and Newsboys October 10

It's time for a little R & R; rap, rock, and roll. DC Talk and the Newsboys will be appearing in Maggs Gym Wednesday, October 10, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $8 for the public or $5 with a student ID. They are on sale in the University Center Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., from September 24 to October 10. The event is sponsored by Chi Alpha.

Retirement Seminars

Are you within five years of retirement age/eligibility? If so, you may wish to attend one of the pre-retirement seminars sponsored by the Maryland State Retirement Agency this fall and winter.

Contact the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall 222 (543-6035) for more information as to qualifications for attending and dates of seminars.

Med Tech Cancer Symposium October 12

The University's Medical Technology Department sponsors a symposium on "The Laboratory Diagnosis of Cancer" on Friday, October 12, from 1-4 p.m.

The education of SSU students in clinical laboratory science has increasingly involved diagnostic tests for cancer, and the disease has tremendous impact on virtually everyone. According to "Cancer Facts and Figures," published in 1989 by the American Cancer Society, about 30 percent of the current population, 76 million Americans, will develop cancer during their lifetimes, affecting three out of four families. In 1989 alone, over one million people were diagnosed as having cancer. The accurate and early diagnosis of cancer is, therefore, of prime concern to health professionals and the general public.

Recently, Human Papilloma Virus has been linked to cervical cancer, and laboratories have been increasingly involved in its detection. Dr. A. Bennett Jensen from Georgetown University will address this topic at the symposium.

In addition, because laboratories have also expanded the repertoire of other tests for diagnosing and tracking cancer, Dr. David Cowall, an oncologist and hematologist, has been invited to discuss the detection of the so-called "tumor markers" in blood. The symposium is designed to review many of the current tests available for cancer detection with respect to: indications for the test, sensitivity, specificity, technical difficulty and clinical utility. Case studies of representative patients will also be presented which illustrate many of the issues.

The targeted audience includes clinical laboratory practitioners, science educators, physicians, science students and anyone interested or involved in this area. In order to assure registration and to receive advanced mailings concerning the symposium, the registration fee of $10 which covers lectures and refreshments must be received by Friday, October 5. For more information and registration materials contact Diane Hayes at 548-4787 or 543-6365.

Political Satire With Capitol Steps

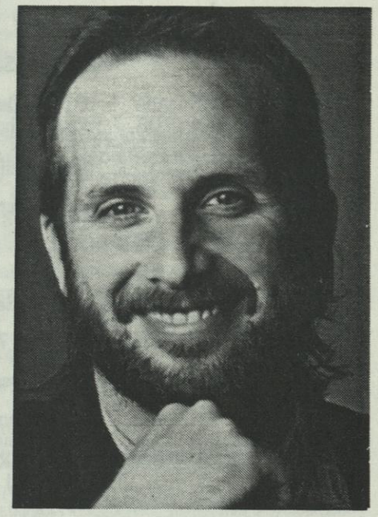
In the midst of the seriousness of election campaigns comes a moment of intentional hilarity when the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council presents the Capitol Steps in concert on Tuesday, October 2. The political satire of this comedic troupe is regularly featured on National Public Radio (over WSCL-FM in our listening area), and on WETA television.

The Capitol Steps concert is being presented by the Arts Council in co-sponsorship with The Daily Times and WMDT-TV Channel 47 and will be held at 8 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center.

Tickets are now on sale and may be purchased at the Arts Council office, any Peninsula Bank location during regular lobby hours, the two John Hanson Savings Banks in Salisbury or the office of the Daily Times. General Admission seats at the concert are $12.50 each. Reserved Front Dress Circle Seats are $30 and they include a post-concert wine and cheese reception with the Capitol Steps and with local politicians.

Models Needed

Models are needed for several art classes during the fall semester. The classes are Tuesdays and Thursdays, 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 12:30-2:30 p.m. Call the Art Department for details.



Kier To Appear September 26

Kier is a rock impressionist who does such acts as Billy Joel, Elton John, Bruce Springsteen, Sting, James Taylor, Phil Collins and more...plus he does his own original works. Kier will be performing in the Gull's Nest on Wednesday, September 26, starting at 8 p.m. The Gull's Nest will be open during the event for refreshments on a cash only basis.

Backpacking Trip Set

The next Outdoor Club meeting is on Monday, September 24, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center. All students are welcome.

The second trip of the semester is backpacking in Northern Virginia on the weekend of September 28-30. Non-experienced backpackers are welcome. Anyone interested in the trip must attend the meeting on September 24.

All Outdoor Club meetings are scheduled for Mondays in Nanticoke A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the fall semester include rock climbing at Great Falls, VA, on October 5-6, horsepacking in the Shenandoah National Park on October 12-14, rafting in Ohiopyle, PA, on October 26-28, attending an Outdoor Photographic Clinic at Assateague National Park on November 3 and backpacking on Hawk Mountain on November 16-18. (Dates are subject to change.)

Habitat Interest Meeting

What is Habitat for Humanity? Anyone interested in learning about Habitat, a nonprofit organization which works to provide decent, affordable homes for families, is invited to attend a meeting on Wednesday, September 26, at 7 p.m.

The meeting is being held in the University Center, next to the Gull's Nest, by the fireplace. John Johnson, the head of Habitat for Humanity in Salisbury, will be present to tell what Habitat is about, what we will be doing, and answer any questions about the program. Then, on Saturday, September 29, SSU volunteers will join Habitat to work on a home here in Salisbury.

Responsibilities include: coordinating the selection of films to be shown on campus; set up and showing of films in conjunction with the projectionist; keeping active participation with other SSPB members and maintaining ten (10) office hours per week.

Applications and complete job descriptions are available at the Student Activities Office, second floor of the University Center. The deadline for applications is Friday, September 21.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

Despite a number of successful achievements on the playing fields this past week, events were overshadowed by the death of football coach Joe Rotellini's father last Saturday morning. The SSU community extends its heartfelt condolences to Coach Rotellini and his family on the passing of his father.

This Saturday and Sunday, Salisbury State welcomes Wesley, Oneonta and Roanoke to the annual Sunfest Field Hockey Tournament, to be played at the Sea Gull sports complex. Each team will play three games in the round-robin format, with the tournament champion to be decided by win-loss record, head-to-head competition and goal differential. The Gulls won last year's six-team tournament with a perfect 3-0 tourney record.

The SSU soccer squad was runnerup in last weekend's home tournament. The Gulls defeated Lynchburg last Saturday 1-0 on a goal by Scott Talley, then tied Virginia Wesleyan 1-1 on Sunday. Wesleyan, which had downed Washington College 5-0 on Saturday, was awarded the championship based on a better goal differential. The Gulls are now 1-2-1 on the year.

The men's and women's cross country squads opened in impressive fashion last weekend, with the SSU women capturing first place and the men taking second in the Montgomery College Invitational. Three Gulls finished among the top five in the women's race, with Erin Green placing first overall in a time of 20:48. Cathy Emerson placed fourth and Amy Spishock finished fifth. Tim Smith led the Sea Gull men, winning the men's individual title. Dave Atlas placed third overall.

The football team, 0-2 on the young season after losing to powerful Ferrum 48-6, looks for its first win at Frostburg State this Saturday. The Gulls lead the all-time series between the two state rivals, 13 wins to four, and have won seven of the last eight meetings.

The women's tennis team opened its season successfully last weekend by edging Virginia Wesleyan, 5-4. Lisa Trelease and Katie Borden notched singles round victories, and Trelease teamed with Millie Baer to win the decisive number one doubles match. The Gulls host Cabrini on Sunday at 2 p.m.

Thompson Tops In Regiment

William (Dave) Thompson of Denton, MD, a junior at SSU, received high honors from his training at Army ROTC Advanced Camp at Fort Bragg, NC, this summer.

Thompson was the top cadet in his regiment of some 300 as he completed the training required for all ROTC cadets heading toward a second lieutenant commission. His achievements in scored events such as land navigation, rifle marksmanship, physical training and tactics, as well as excellence displayed while performing assigned leadership positions earned him the honor.

Thompson is currently completing his senior year of Army ROTC at Salisbury State in conjunction with his academic program in respiratory therapy. He hopes to enter the active army as a medical service officer upon graduation.

Stress Seminar

Stress got you down? Find out how you can nip it in the bud at the Stress Seminar being held on Tuesday, September 25, 2-3 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center.

Discover ways in which you can be in control and organize your activities. Learn methods of reducing stress and how to identify stressors.

Call Shirley King at 543-6035 to register.

CLEP Test

The CLEP test will be given on Wednesday, October 17. The deadline for registration is Monday, September 17. Applications are available in the Admissions Office, HH 155.

25+Union

The 25+ Student Union is sponsoring its first open house on Friday, September 21, from 4-6 p.m. in the University Center fireplace lounge.

Refreshments will be served; everyone is welcome.

Off-campus Parking

Students and University employees should park only in designated campus parking lots. Cars that are parked at shopping centers, in the parking lot of a place of business or in front of residences in the vicinity of the campus are subject to being towed.

Outlets Bus Trip

Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, Salisbury State University, is sponsoring another bus trip to the Reading, PA, outlets on Saturday, November 10. The bus leaves from the University Center at 7 a.m. and returns at 9:30 p.m. The last bus trip was a good one and all saved money on their Christmas shopping.

The Chapter pays $5 toward the ticket of a member or spouse of a member, making the price $8.75. Non-members are welcome to go; the price is $13.75 per person. This is a first come, first served trip. As soon as the bus fills up, a stand-by list will be started.

First stop is the Vanity Fair outlet area and second stop is Mom's Outlets. Lunch and dinner are "on your own."

Make checks payable to MCEA Chapter 72, and give or send them to Judy Lowe, Registrar's Office (basement of Holloway Hall) or Barbara Keene, Alcohol & Drug Prevention Resource Center (behind Maggs Gym). Any questions, call Judy at 543-6153 or Barb at 543-6309.

Attention Spring 1990 Ceramics Students

Your pieces should be picked up on or before October 1. Unclaimed pots will be sold for the scholarship fund. See the Art Department secretary to claim your pieces.

Faculty Bible Study

As the semester begins, the faculty Bible study class would like to invite you to join them. This semester the class will be studying principles of leadership from the Old Testament book of Nehemiah. Steve Young who works with Campus Crusade for Christ will be leading the discussion.

Bring a bag lunch and join the class any Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m. in Devilbiss 203.

Stress Seminar

Barto Brings Thoreau to Life

Superfluous wealth can buy superfluities only. Money is not required to buy one necessary of the soul...The fault-finder will find faults even in paradise...Love your life, poor as it is. You may perhaps have some pleasant, thrilling, glorious hours, even in a poor-house...Cultivate poverty. A man becomes rich by making his wants few."

The common sense words of the fervent 19th century essayist, naturalist, surveyor and frank proponent of self-reliance, Henry David Thoreau, will be ringing loud and clear in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Wednesday, September 26, at 7:30 p.m.

When David Barto, a 40-year old high school English teacher from Levittown, PA, assumes the Thoreau identity, he actually seems to bring the ardent individualist back to life. Recreating the period styles of Thoreau, Barto dons a gold vest, open-necked chemise and corduroy pants. Speaking in Thoreauvian prose, he chats, lectures, plays tunes from his childhood on the flute and entertains with realistic bird calls (learned from Indians).

Barto's enactment is free and the public is encouraged to attend. For more information call Donna Forgash at 543-6100.

Pi Gamma Mu Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in social science, will hold its fall initiation on Sunday, October 28, at 6 p.m.

Pi Gamma Mu requires the completion of at least 20 hours in five social science areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations) and in some other social science courses such as social psychology, criminal justice or geography, with an average of B (85 percent). In addition, eligible students should be in the top 35 percent of their class (senior, junior, etc.).

For information regarding specific qualifications for Pi Gamma Mu membership, students should contact the co-advisors, Dr. Greg Ference and Clara Small, or the History Department, by noon on Monday, October 15.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

SWAC Calendar Deadline October 1

The deadline for the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's next issue of CALENDAR for the months of November/December/January is Monday, October 1. Anyone wishing to have articles or listings published in the upcoming issue should send the information to the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council no later than October 1.

Information needed for the listings include: the name of the events, location, date, time, sponsors, contact name and daytime phone number. The information must be in writing and complete. Incomplete listings will not be included.

The southern Eastern Shore CALENDAR is funded by a grant from the State of Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development. The special sponsor of the November/December/January CALENDAR issue is Peninsula Bank.

CALENDAR is published four times a year and is distributed directly to 700 members and affiliates of SWAC. About 3,000 copies are also distributed to restaurants, hotels and business offices for area visitors and tourists.

For more information call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS or stop by their office in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center.

SAT/PSAT Prep Class

Beginning Tuesday, September 25, SSU will sponsor a four-week course to prepare students to take both the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and the PSAT which is administered to high school juniors.

The course will be taught from 7-9 p.m. on Tuesdays in room 107 of Caruthers Hall. The instructors will be Dr. Thomas L. Erskine of the English Department and Dr. Donald Cathcart of the Mathematical Sciences Department.

The cost of the course is $65, plus the textbook, which will be available for purchase at the first class meeting.

For information and registration call the Office of Continuing Education at 543-6170. Registration is also possible at the first meeting of the class, but enrollment is limited.

in the service of romantic love, all ultimately lead to his heart's desire.

"The Three Musketeers," published in 1844 a few months before Dumas' other great adventure epic, "The Count of Monte Cristo," was romanticism at its height: an exaltation of emotions and feeling, the importance of individual choice, and the use of the fantastic or improbable, all seasoned with action adventure.

The SSU director sees a mythic structure in its story which accounts for its perennial appeal: a young man enters the world and immediately is caught in a web of intrigue. He is sent on a journey which takes him out of his own country. He must constantly overcome obstacles set in his path by evil forces, the greatest being a murderous woman so treacherous that she becomes a personification of the evil dragon or beast in fable and Bible story. Guiding the hero, however, is a trinity of soldiers, united in one cause, service of the King.

Morgan has read four translations of the novel and seven play adaptations. "None could butcher the story," he said. It "really is an inspired piece."

"The Three Musketeers" has had several movie incarnations including one with Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and another starring Gene Kelly. The latest, in 1974 directed by Richard Lester, featured an all-star cast with Michael York as D'Artagnan.

Leading the SSU cast is David Hyland as D'Artagnan; Stephen Collins, Alex Ulrich and Todd Gillenardo as Athos, Porthos and Aramis respectively; Martha and Paul Pfeiffer as the evil Milady DeWinter and Cardinal Richelieu; and Odette Weigand and Donald Atkinson as the Queen and King of France.

Sets design and lighting are by Gerry Patt, costumes are by Paul Pfeiffer, and sound and music design are by Morgan.

The SSU production will utilize an adaptation by Peter Raby, which was initially performed at the Stratford, Canada, Theatre Festival and has been popular at North American regional theatres.

All performances are at 8 p.m, except Sunday, October 14, which is a 2 p.m. matinee.

Admission is free to SSU students, faculty and staff; family and group rates are available. The Theatre Box Office opens Monday, October 1. For telephone reservations call 543-6228.

Sea Gulls on the Air

SSU football coach Joe Rotellini will be the featured guest on WLVW AM-960 every Monday evening from 7-7:30 p.m. Fans may call in and ask the coach about last week's game or this week's upcoming opponent. That's Monday evenings, on WLVW.

Also, SSU's next two home football games, with Glassboro State on October 6 and Montclair State on October 20, will be telecast on a tape-delayed basis by Storer Cable in Salisbury and Delaware. The game will be aired at 8 p.m. on the local origination channel in Salisbury on each of the two Saturdays, and will be telecast in Kent and Sussex counties on Tuesdays at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m., respectively.

Chautauqua October 7!

University faculty members and students will soon have the opportunity to share their talents and special interests with friends and members of the surrounding communities. On Sunday, October 7, the University Cultural Events Committee will sponsor a Campus Showcase program based on the Chautauqua idea.

"I realize that many people are not aware of the Chautauqua concept. I had never heard of it myself until about a year ago," said William Palmer, organizer of the Campus Showcase and professor in the Modern Languages Department at the University.

According to Palmer, the Chautauqua theory was developed as a tool to combine educational and cultural components with entertainment. The Chautauqua concept originated as a formal training program for Methodist Sunday school teachers, at Lake Chatauqua, NY, but the educational course quickly expanded to include entertainment such as singing, dancing, poetry readings and impersonations.

The first performance will be held at 2 p.m, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center and will officially begin with inaugural remarks from President Thomas E. Bellavance.

University history professors, Drs. Jeanne and David Heidler, will follow with an oral reading from Mark Twain. The humorous piece will feature selections from the secret diaries of Adam and Eve.

My husband and I performed this specific piece for members of our poetry reading group and we thought it went over very well. I think this program is going to be very worthwhile because it is giving us the chance to entertain in a way that we aren't normally allowed to do," said Jeanne Heidler.

A second husband and wife team will share their talents in the musical segment of the program. Salisbury City Council President Robin Cockey and his wife, Linda, a music professor at Salisbury State, will perform Franz Shuberts Opus 137, No. 3, a sonata for violin and piano in G minor. University history professor, Dr. Norman Johnson, will follow with a rendition of oratory.

The program will conclude with a solo performance by Palmer. "A traditional part of the Chautauqua program includes the impersonation of a historical or literary figure. The name itself often implies that a historical figure will appear during the program," Palmer said.

The first performance of the Campus Showcase will follow this tradition with Palmer's portrayal of Christopher Columbus. Palmer indicated that he learned about the Chautauqua while studying Columbus in relation to the Quincentenary of the discovery of America.

"After that I became more and more interested in the idea and decided to pursue it on campus," he said. "This is a wonderful way to combine community and University involvement. This program will give faculty and students a way to showcase their talents for the community."

Campus Showcase programs will also be held at the same time and place on November 4, February 24 and April 7. Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

"I hope this program becomes an annual event and I encourage students, faculty and community members to participate," Palmer said. For additional information, call 543-6522.

Three Musketeers October 12

The battle cry, "All for one and one for all!" the sound of musketeer blades slicing the air, and beautiful women enmeshed in webs of deceit—all are part of Alexander Dumas' classic romantic novel, "The Three Musketeers," which comes to the stage as Salisbury State University Theatre's season opener, October 12-14 and 17-20 in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

This engaging swashbuckler, with all the high drama and low comedy traditionally associated with the genre, is directed by guest artist, Kelly C. Morgan, who has performed extensively in professional theatre across the country and most recently taught at American University and Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland. At the Cleveland Playhouse Morgan played the featured role of Jussac in their popular revival of the Dumas adventure.

All performances are at 8 p.m, except Sunday, October 14, which is a 2 p.m. matinee.

Admission is free to SSU students, faculty and staff; family and group rates are available. The Theatre Box Office opens Monday, October 1. For telephone reservations call 543-6228.

Affirmative Action Plan

The University's recently revised affirmative action plan has been approved by Dr. Bellavance and placed on file in a number of locations on campus for access by all University employees.

The plan contains the University's equal employment opportunity policy, provides an analysis of the University's labor force and outlines responsibilities for those involved in the recruitment and selection of faculty, administrators and classified employees.

The plan may be used for reference purposes and is to be updated annually. Copies of the plan have been placed in the Personnel Office, Blackwell Library and the Affirmative Action Office (HH-134), where there are additional copies available for anyone who might like to have a copy.

Please send comments, suggestions and/or corrections for future revisions to Robert Spery, Affirmative Action Officer, Holloway Hall 134, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD.

Med Tech Cancer Symposium October 12

The University's Medical Technology Department sponsors a symposium on "The Laboratory Diagnosis of Cancer" on Friday, October 12, from 1-4 p.m.

The targeted audience includes clinical laboratory practitioners, science educators, physicians, science students and anyone interested or involved in this area. In order to assure registration and to receive advanced mailings concerning the symposium, the registration fee of $10 which covers lectures and refreshments must be received by Friday, October 5. For more information and registration materials contact Diane Hayes at 548-4787 or 543-6365.

Social Work Club

The social work club holds its next meeting on Monday, October 1, at 8 p.m. in the University Center near the fireplace. The club will discuss community service projects and fundraisers. All majors are welcome!

Movie Tickets

Discounted movie tickets for Movies 6 Theatres are on sale at the University Center information desk Monday-Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. - 10 p.m. The price is $4 per ticket.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

Thoreau Reading Group

As an adjunct to the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center will sponsor a Thoreau reading group. During the semester, the group will meet on five Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss five different ideological views of Thoreau's writings. Discussion leaders will be: Phil Bosserman on the topic of simplicity (October 4), Joe Gilbert on the implications of Thoreau biography (October 18), Don Whaley on Thoreau and anarchism (November 8), Tony Whall on freedom and dignity in Thoreau (November 15), and Dave Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6). Readings will be assigned for each session.

Beginning on September 24, those participating in Phil Bosserman's session may pick up a xeroxed selection in the University Center office. Reading lists and selections for later sessions will also be available there at least a week before each session.

For further information, contact Bill Horne at 543-6445.

SSU in England

The English and the Nursing departments are offering travel courses during winter term that include a two-week study tour of England. Students will have London as a base, but there will also be optional one-day trips to Salisbury, Windsor, Bath and Canterbury.

Students may enroll in English 300, English 490 (which is also available for graduate credit) or Nursing 457: Cultural Considerations in Nursing. Instructors will be Dr. Thomas Erskine and James Welsh of the English Department and Dr. Edna Quinn of the Nursing Department. All have extensive experience in teaching these courses in England.

English students will attend pre-trip classes, keep a journal, write papers and attend six plays. Nursing students will also attend pre-trip classes, keep a journal and tour several hospitals, where they will hear lectures by British nursing educators.

Cost of the trip, which is open to students, faculty, staff and friends of the University, is approximately $900 and includes round-trip transportation from Salisbury to London, hotel and continental breakfast.

An interest meeting will be held Tuesday, September 25, from 4-5:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall 119 (Perdue Business School). Those unable to make the meeting should contact one of the following: Tom Erskine (543-3671 or 742-7963), Edna Quinn (543-6414 or 742-7963) or Jim Welsh (543-6446 or 749-4190).

DC Talk and Newsboys October 10

It's time for a little R & R; rap, rock, and roll. DC Talk and the Newsboys will be appearing in Maggs Gym Wednesday, October 10, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $8 for the public or $5 with a student ID. They are on sale in the University Center Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., from September 24 to October 10. The event is sponsored by Chi Alpha.

Retirement Seminars

Are you within five years of retirement age/eligibility? If so, you may wish to attend one of the pre-retirement seminars sponsored by the Maryland State Retirement Agency this fall and winter.

Contact the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall 222 (543-6035) for more information as to qualifications for attending and dates of seminars.

Annapolis Brass Quintet

ABQ Series October 3

The Department of Music has announced its season schedule for "A New Brass Series" featuring the Annapolis Brass Quintet. The ABQ, who are artists-in-residence at SSU for 1990-91, have been acclaimed as one of the world's finest chamber groups. The ABQ was founded in 1971 as America's first full-time performing brass ensemble. It celebrates its 19th performance season this year, its sixth in Salisbury.

The series begins on Wednesday, October 3, at 8 p.m. in the University Center's Wicomico Room, with a very special performance by Arthur Brooks. Brooks played French horn with the ABQ for six years before leaving to begin his solo career. He will be accompanied by Douglas Allanbrook, pianist and composer. Allanbrook performed with the ABQ in Salisbury at a concert last February.

Additional performances for the series include the Annapolis Brass Quintet. On Wednesday, October 10, the quintet will perform in Trinity United Methodist Church, Rt. 50 and N. Division St.; then "Byrd and Brass" on Friday, December 14, in Holloway Hall with the Charlie Byrd Trio performing a festive blend of sacred and secular music of the season; and on Monday, April 1, with the Morgan State University Choir in Holloway Hall. All performances are at 8 p.m.

Brooks, a native of Spokane, WA, has been playing the French horn since he was 9-years-old. He joined the quintet in 1983 and over the next six years performed with them in over 500 concerts both in the U.S. and abroad. In 1989 he left to pursue a solo career. He currently lives in Barcelona, Spain. This season he will appear here and in Europe in a broad spectrum of musical settings, from symphonic pops to percussion ensemble, to recitals with piano. The program on October 3 will include works by Beethoven, Manuel De Falla, Rafael Mendez, Dinicu/Heifetz, and two original works by Allanbrook.

Composer and pianist Allanbrook has written works in all categories: symphonies, operas, string quartets, piano and harpsichord, choral works both sacred and secular, and numerous pieces for varied chamber music combinations. His most recent is Five New American Preludes, dedicated to American jazz singer Peggy Lee. Allanbrook was a traveling fellow of Harvard and a Fulbright fellow in Italy.

For those who enjoy both the traditional and the less familiar territory of 20th century classical music, the recital on October 3 promises to deliver unique satisfaction. The evening will be an eagerly anticipated encore of previous concerts with these two fine musicians.

Series tickets are $36 for adults and $20 for students - a savings of $12 over individual ticket prices. Individual tickets are $12 for adults and $8 for students and may be purchased at the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center (543-ARTS); at Salisbury Music and Instrument Repair at 925 Eastern Shore Drive, Salisbury; or at the door the nights of performance. For information on purchasing season tickets or for further information, please call the Department of Music in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts at 543-6385.

Will the Soviet Union Survive 'Til 1991?

by Bob Berry

With the tremendous changes taking place in the Soviet Union nowadays, this is an important question. But, we are betting that it will survive long enough for SSU's winter term Study-Tour to make it there and back! You, too, have a chance to participate in a marvelous experience; it may be your last chance. Come, join us as we go to the Soviet Union January 14-26.

Following in the footsteps of those intrepid SSU students who have gone before, you'll have the opportunity to visit the capitals of old and new Russia. Kiev, where it all began over 1,000 years ago, is the Soviet Union's third largest city, the warm-hearted capital of the Ukraine.

Leningrad, the old imperial capital, is Russia's most European city. Second in size, it is also the place where the Bolshevik Revolution took place over 70 years ago. It is a city of great beauty and magnificent museums and palaces.

Moscow, Russia's largest city and capital, is the center of this rapidly changing country. Here you can see the changing of the guard, tour the Kremlin, walk through Red Square at midnight and see St. Basil's lit up, an unforgettable sight. You may even see the Soviet leadership as it speeds through the streets on the way to an important meeting.

The study-tour is sponsored by the History Department. The instructor for the course and tour leader is Dr. Robert Berry, who teaches Russian history and has led several groups from SSU to the Soviet Union. The cost for the tour will be approximately $1,900, which includes all the basics and lots of amenities, including a stopover in Helsinki, capital of Finland. The study-tour is open to all students, faculty, staff and friends of SSU. The local cummunity is invited to participate.

For more information, attend an open meeting scheduled on Tuesday, October 2, at 5 p.m. in Nanticoke Room C of the University Center. If you can't make it, contact Berry at 543-6248 or stop by his office, HH 370. Remember, though, time is short, you can't wait til the last minute.

'Homecoming' Play Auditions

Auditions for "The Homecoming" by Harold Pinter, to be presented by SSU Theatre, will be held on Saturday, September 29, at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

This early 1960s play by one of Britains's leading contemporary dramatists is directed by Kelly C. Morgan, artist-in-residence. Performances will be November 14-19. Auditions are open to both students and the local community.

"The Homecoming" has roles for five men and one woman, however Morgan is double casting the play and reversing the gender of the roles in the second cast, as was recently done in a London production. The original play was about five men holding dominance over one woman and in turn how she controlled them, Morgan said. By reversing the roles it will be "fun seeing how women play it in the '90s."

For more information and scripts contact the Communication Arts Department at 543-6229.

CLEP Test

The CLEP test will be given on Wednesday, October 17. The deadline for registration is Monday, September 17. Applications are available in the Admissions Office, HH 155.

Off-campus Parking

Students and University employees should park only in designated campus parking lots. Cars that are parked at shopping centers, in the parking lot of a place of business or in front of residences in the vicinity of the campus are subject to being towed.

Outlets Bus Trip

Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, Salisbury State University, is sponsoring another bus trip to the Reading, PA, outlets on Saturday, November 10. The bus leaves from the University Center at 7 a.m. and returns at 9:30 p.m. The last bus trip was a good one and all saved money on their Christmas shopping.

The Chapter pays $5 toward the ticket of a member or spouse of a member, making the price $8.75. Non-members are welcome to go; the price is $13.75 per person. This is a first come, first served trip. As soon as the bus fills up, a stand-by list will be started.

First stop is the Vanity Fair outlet area and second stop is Mom's Outlets. Lunch and dinner are "on your own."

Make checks payable to MCEA Chapter 72, and give or send them to Judy Lowe, Registrar's Office (basement of Holloway Hall) or Barbara Keene, Alcohol & Drug Prevention Resource Center (behind Maggs Gym). Any questions, call Judy at 543-6153 or Barb at 543-6309.

Attention Spring 1990 Ceramics Students

Your pieces should be picked up on or before October 1. Unclaimed pots will be sold for the scholarship fund. See the Art Department secretary to claim your pieces.

Faculty Bible Study

As the semester begins, the faculty Bible study class would like to invite you to join them. This semester the class will be studying principles of leadership from the Old Testament book of Nehemiah. Steve Young who works with Campus Crusade for Christ will be leading the discussion.

Bring a bag lunch and join the class any Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m. in Devilbiss 203.

Pi Gamma Mu Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in social science, will hold its fall initiation on Sunday, October 28, at 6 p.m.

Pi Gamma Mu requires the completion of at least 20 hours in five social science areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations) and in some other social science courses such as social psychology, criminal justice or geography, with an average of B (85 percent). In addition, eligible students should be in the top 35 percent of their class (senior, junior, etc.).

For information regarding specific qualifications for Pi Gamma Mu membership, students should contact the co-advisors, Dr. Greg Ference and Clara Small, or the History Department, by noon on Monday, October 15.

Pi Alpha Theta Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, will hold its fall initiation on Sunday, October 14, at 6 p.m.

Phi Alpha Theta requires the junior, senior or graduate student to have completed at least 12 semester hours in history courses and to have an overall average of B in at least two-thirds of the remainder of all work. In addition, students must rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

For information about Phi Alpha Theta contact co-advisors Dr. Greg Ference and Clara Small, or the History Department, by noon on Monday, October 8.

SWAC Calendar Deadline October 1

The deadline for the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's next issue of CALENDAR for the months of November/December/January is Monday, October 1. Anyone wishing to have articles or listings published in the upcoming issue should send the information to the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council no later than October 1.

CALENDAR is published four times a year and is distributed directly to 700 members and affiliates of SWAC. About 3,000 copies are also distributed to restaurants, hotels and business offices for area visitors and tourists.

For more information call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS or stop by their office in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center.

On-Campus AA (Alcoholics Anonymous) Meetings

Beginning Monday, October 1, and every Monday until the end of the semester, there will be a campus A.A. meeting from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center (trailer behind Maggs Gym).

An on-campus Alcoholics Anonymous group has been established in an effort to make A.A. meetings more accessible for students and the campus community, and to provide support to young adults, particularly college students, whose issues, concerns, and ways of relating to each other may differ from community groups.

The only prerequisite for attending the meeting is a desire to stop drinking or to maintain abstinence, or a sincere interest in finding out more about A.A. All meetings are confidential.

For more information, contact the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center at 543-6309.

History Group Forming

A history discussion/forum group is being formed to give faculty, staff and students a chance to investigate particular historical topics and also have an outlet for informal discussion.

"We're just now trying to get our feet on the ground," said Wayne Ackerson of the History Department. There will be an interest meeting on Tuesday, October 2, at 3:30 p.m., on the third floor of Holloway Hall near the History Department office. The group will meet every month or so for discussion and debate of a particular historical topic selected by the group.

For more information, contact Ackerson in the History Department at 543-6527.

Helmets Are Making Headlines

Bicycle riding is one of the country's most popular sports. But, like any sport, it carries some risks. A new study by the University of Washington School of Medicine points out the need for cyclists to wear helmets when they ride, to reduce the risk of head injury.

Head injuries are the leading cause of death from cycling accidents. Bicyclists wearing a helmet reduce the risk of head injuries by 85 percent and reduce the risk of brain damage by 88 percent. In other words, a cyclist riding without a helmet is seven times as likely to suffer head injuries and eight times as likely to suffer brain damage than a cyclist with a helmet.

Researchers noted that the problem is especially serious among children. In their study, almost three-quarters of all the severe brain injuries occurred in children under age 15. Only 4 percent of these children were wearing helmets. Helmet use increases in people over age 25.

Each year in the United States, 2 million bicycles are given to children as gifts. Only 5 percent of these are accompanied by helmets. On average, one child dies every day in the United States from bicycle-related head injuries and an additional 200 a day are treated in hospital emergency rooms.

Howard County recently became the first jurisdiction in the nation to require all bicyclists ages 15 and under who ride on county roads to wear helmets or risk a fine.

When buying a helmet, make sure it has a hard plastic shell and fits snugly. Any helmet you buy should be certified by either the Snell Institute or the American National Standards Institute (ANSI). This certification will appear as a sticker on the inside of the helmet and verifies that the helmet meets strength and safety standards. Helmets carrying this certification are readily available in most bike and sporting goods stores.

For information on specific bicycle helmets, see the May 1990 issue of Consumer Reports, available at libraries, and the May 1990 issue of Bicycling magazine. Both issues rate the most popular bicycle helmets on the market for weight, coolness, design, protectiveness, price and other factors.

Health Insurance

Open Enrollment for health insurance will soon be here. In mid-October you should receive a package at home containing forms and new rates for the various insurance plans. You will have one month in which to make any changes - October 15 through November 16. If you do nothing, you will continue to have the same insurance coverage you have now.

Open Enrollment will be the only opportunity to make changes for all of 1991, so please take a few minutes to review the package when it arrives.

The forms are different from last year, so be sure to contact Shirley King at 548-4755 in the Personnel Office (HH 222) if you have any questions.

On Wednesday, October 24, representatives from the various insurance companies will be on campus (Nanticoke Room, University Center) to answer your questions. More information will be published later.

Camden Award for Poetry Winner To Read Oct. 9

Allen Hoey

The Thoreau '90 series will continue with a poetry reading on Tuesday, October 9, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Poet Allen Hoey will be reading a selection from his book, "A Fire in the Cold House of Being," which was published in 1987, in addition to some of his newer poems from unpublished manuscripts.

Hoey was the 1985 winner of the Camden Poetry Award sponsored by the Walt Whitman Center in Camden, NJ, and judged by the well-known poet, Galway Kinnel. He has published several other books, including "Work the Tongue Could Understand," "New Year," "Transfigured Autumn," "Hymns to a Tree" and "Listening for Bear," and has had nearly 100 poems published in such magazines as the "Beloit Poetry Journal," "The Georgia Review," "The Hudson Review" "Poetry Northwest" and "Midwest Quarterly."

According to reviewer Robert McDowell in "The Hudson Review," "Allen Hoey's first full-length collection, published in 1987 and selected in 1985 by Galway Kinnell for the Camden Award, contains more compassion, diversity and skill than the fifth book or the 10th book by most older poets. Ranging from free verse to formal structures but never straying far from an anchoring tetrameter or pentameter line, Hoey's subtle lyricism sounds most like the speech of the straightforward, wry upstate New York and New England folks he prefers to write about."

Hoey, who resides in Ithaca, NY, earned his Doctor of Arts in English (creative writing) from Syracuse University in 1984.

The reading is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Donna Forgash at 543-6100.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

Sea Gull Sports Roundup For the fifth time in six years the field hockey team won its own Sunfest Invitational Tournament as it breezed to three straight wins to improve to 4-1 on the year. The Gulls routed Wesley 8-0 and Roanoke 6-1 on Saturday, then blanked Oneonta 4-0 for the championship on Sunday. Junior Cheryl Ish led the scoring barrage with seven goals in the three games. Sophomore Regina Zippel added four goals and two assists and frosh Edie Matthews netted three goals. Vicki Conklin helped key the defense while also adding one goal and one assist on the weekend.

For the second time in as many weeks, junior Erin Green ran away from the pack and captured first place to lead the SSU women's cross country squad. Green blistered the 3.1 mile course at last Saturday's Captain's Classic in Newport News, VA, with a time of 20:22, defeating her nearest pursuer by 15 seconds. Two other Gulls also placed in the top ten—Cathy Emerson, ninth, and Amy Spishock, 10th. Tim Smith led the men's squad with a personal best time of 27:13 over the longer men's course as he finished third overall.

Coming off a second place showing at last Saturday's Mary Washington Tournament, the volleyball team hosts its annual Gull Classic Tournament this Friday and Saturday in the Maggs Center. The six-team tournament kicks off at 3 p.m. on Friday afternoon, with round-robin action continuing through midday Saturday, when the top four teams advance into championship bracket play. SSU's Friday matches are scheduled at 3 p.m. vs Stockton State and 4:15 vs. UMES.

The women's tennis team improved its record to 2-1 last Sunday with a 5-4 victory over ESAC-foe Cabrini. Lisa Trelease, Christina DeSanto, Nikki Lee and Katie Borden all notched wins in the singles matches, while Trelease and Millie Baer teamed to win in doubles. The netters visit Christopher Newport on Saturday.

The gridiron Gulls hope to notch their first win of the year this Saturday when SSU visits Shepherd College in Shepherdstown, WV. The Gulls dropped a 34-7 decision to cross-state rival Frostburg State last Saturday. Bright spots offensively through the first three games include FB Dennis Van Reenan, averaging 4.8 yds/rush, and WR Bill Lewit, with eight catches for 73 yards (9.1 avg.) Defensively, linebackers Rich Bowen and Rick Helton lead the team in tackles, with 24 and 20, respectively. Each has also contributed a QB sack and a fumble recovery.

The soccer team, currently in the midst of a five-game road stretch, visits Catholic University on Saturday. The Gulls lost their ESAC opener to Shenandoah last Saturday, 3-0.

EN GARDE! The Salisbury State University Theatre Box Office open Monday, October 1, for reservations for Alexander Dumas' swashbuckling "The Three Musketeers," to be performed October 12-14 and 17-20 in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Pictured with musketeer blade in hand is Katherine Filson as the innocent Catherine and Stephen Collins as the dashing Athos. Family and group rates are available. For information call (301) 543-6228.

Bluegrass at Furnace Town

Bluegrass music performed in a 19th century country setting is a blend that is hard to resist. Add to that crafts demonstrations, an art exhibit, a quilting presentation, an auction and plenty of Eastern Shore food, and you have a full day of family fun. Furnace Town historic site will make this possible on Sunday, September 30, from noon - 5 p.m., thanks to grants from Pepsi of Salisbury and from the Maryland State Arts Council and the Worcester County Arts Council.

Two popular local bluegrass bands, The Country Grass and Rekindled, will provide toe-tapping music throughout the afternoon.

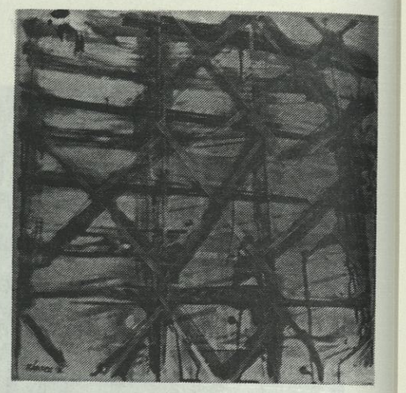
Admission to Furnace Town historic site is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. Bring a chair to sit in or blanket to spread on the hillside for more enjoyable listening. Furnace Town is located 25 miles from Ocean City via Rts. 113 and 12; and 16 miles south of Salisbury off Md. Rt. 12. For information, please call 632-2032.

Thoreau Memorabilia Exhibit

Jim Dawson, owner and proprietor of the Unicorn Bookshop in Trappe, will display his own collection of Henry David Thoreau's personal artifacts, first edition books, photographs, maps and illustrations in his Rare Book/Artifact Exhibit Tuesday, October 16, through Thursday, October 18 at the Atrium Gallery located in the Salisbury State University Center.

The articles will be on display as part of the fall '90 Thoreau Series, SSU's tribute to the 19th century naturalist, essayist, surveyor and plain-spoken proponent of self-reliance. The Thoreau Series is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee at the University.

The Atrium Gallery will be open from 11 a.m.- 4 p.m. all three days. The exhibit is free and open to the public. Call Donna Forgash at 543-6100 for more information.



This untitled work of a building covered with scaffolds, whose X-pattern is underscored by developer brushed onto the paper, is one of several large photographs by Zsigmond Karolyi in the University Gallery's current exhibition, "The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography from Hungary," featuring works by eight contemporary Hungarian photographers. The exhibition closes October 18.

Lecture on Famous Southern Artist

Virginia artist Anne Campbell will give a free presentation about her great aunt, renown Alabama artist Anne Goldthwaite, on Friday, September 28, at 7 p.m. at the Art Institute and Gallery in Salisbury.

Anne Goldthwaite was an impressionist artist who lived from 1866 to 1944 and was an active exhibitor throughout the '20's, '30's and '40's. She was well-known for her sensitive portrayal of life in the deep south as well as for the impact he had on improving the status and recognition of women in the fine arts, a male-dominated field during her time.

The Art Institute and Gallery is located at Route 50 west and Lemmon Hill Lane, one block west of North Division Street. For more information call 546-4747 Monday - Saturday, noon - 4 p.m.

Luft Published

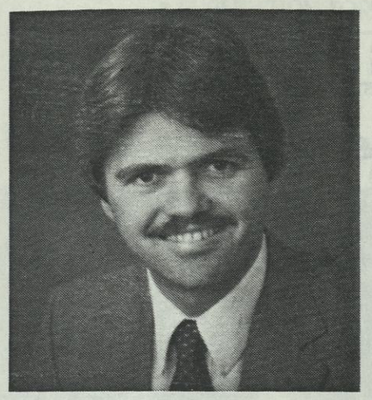
Dr. Philip E. Luft of the Department of Mathematical Sciences has published a paper entitled "Teaching About Combinations Without Permutations" in the recent issue of the International Journal of Mathematical Education and Science Technology. Luft's paper explains how combinations can be taught in elementary math courses without discussing permutations.

Ralston at Conference

Dr. Scott Ralston, assistant professor of economics in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, coauthored a paper to be presented at the U.S. Association for Small Business and Entrepreneurship annual conference, October 8-10, in Orlando, FL.

The paper, "An Extension of the Grant/Thornton Index, or Ask Not What a State Can Do for Your Small Business...," discusses the problems associated with the Grant/Thorton Index, a measure of how attractive a state is for the location of a business. Additionally, the study extends the index by determining how attractive a particular business is to a state.

Golf Classic October 26



Donnie Williams

Some 144 golf enthusiasts are expected to tee off at the seventh annual University Foundation Fall Golf Classic on Friday, October 26, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club.

Roy Beauchamp, of Ahtes Hanna McLaughlin and co-chair of this year's tournament, anticipates the field to fill quickly.

"I am very pleased with the community support given the tourney last year and expect it to be even better this time, both through participation and sponsorship," said Beauchamp. Dick Young, president of Salisbury Brick Co., is the other co-chair.

This year's prime sponsor is Alarmguard, a well-known home and office security systems business.

Donnie Williams, president of Alarmguard, said, "We are pleased to be the prime sponsor of this important event for the University. Salisbury State has been very important to the community for such a long time, and it's time we all realized SSU's tremendous impact."

The purpose of the event is to raise support for special programs. Some programs that benefit from the event are faculty research and development, cultural enrichment, the Salisbury State University Honors House and campus beautification.

A general sponsorship is $200. The entry fee is $50 per player, entitling the participant to greens fees, golf cart, refreshments throughout the day, two bar tickets for after-the-round use, a roast beef and chicken buffet that evening and complimentary gifts.

And as a special feature, the first golfer to sink a hole-in-one on the number 11 hole will win $500 in cash.

The golfers with the low net team score will have their names placed on the President's Cup which is on permanent display in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Trophies will be given to low net (men, women and mixed teams). Cash and merchandise prizes will be awarded for other low net teams; cash and merchandise awards for long drive on various holes and closest ball to the hole on other par-3 holes will also be awarded.

Robert M. Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation which sponsors the tournament, views the success of the tournament as a great benefit to the Foundation.

Gearhart said, "not only does the tournament help to continue our close ties with the community, but it provides needed funds for worthwhile University purposes."

SSU College Republicans Win State Award

The SSU College Republicans recently ran their most intensive membership drive ever. In an enthusiastic push to increase membership, they actively recruited students during the summer and the first two weeks of the fall semester. As a result, they have increased their membership from five hardcore members to 150—a 3,000 percent increase! This makes the SSU College Republicans the largest club on campus, acording to Mike Arlinsky, chairman of the membership committee and vice president of the club.

"We were motivated, organized, and quite optimistic that our efforts would be successful. My committee did an awesome job, but two of my officers, Rick Miller and Matt Kasner, stood out among the rest in the drive," Arlinsky said.

Due to their past activity, the SSU College Republicans won the "Most Active Club of the Year Award 1989-90" for the state of Maryland. They have sponsored forums, environmental speakers, and have participated in SSU's Wellness Day. Presently, they are involved in the 1st District Congressional race.

Rock Climbing And Horsepacking

The next Outdoor Club meeting is scheduled for Monday, October 1, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. All students are welcome.

On October 7 the Outdoor Club will rock climb in Great Falls, VA. Non-experienced climbers are welcome. Anyone interested in this day trip must attend the October 1 meeting. Sign-ups for the horsepacking trip in the Shenandoah National Park on October 12-14 will begin Monday evening also.

All Outdoor Club meetings are scheduled for Mondays in Nanticoke Room A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the fall include rafting in Ohiopyle, PA, October 26-28, attending an Outdoor Photographic Clinic at Assateague National Park on November 3, a presentation on mountaineering by Lou Whitaker on November 5, a slide presentation on the desert southwest and a backpacking clinic by Cindy Ross, writer for Backpacker Magazine, on November 12, and backpacking on Hawk Mountain November 16-18. (Dates are subject to change.)

Kramer Lectures on Europe's Future Oct. 10

Steven Kramer, visiting professor with the Government Department at Georgetown University and professorial lecturer at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, lectures on "The Future of Europe: an Update", on Wednesday, October 10, at 7:30 p.m. in room Nanticoke A of the University Center.

Kramer's lecture, which focuses on Franco-German relations in the new Europe, is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

A reception in the University Gallery, where the exhibition, "The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography from Hungary," is currently on display, follows the lecture. Both events are free and open to the public.

Kramer is now teaching comparative Western European politics at Georgetown, including a colloquium on recent developments in Europe. He spent the summer of 1989 as a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson Center for International Scholars writing on the future of Europe in a post cold-war era.

He holds degrees from Brandeis and Princeton Universities. Before going to Georgetown he was associate professor of history at the University of New Mexico. He has served in the Latin American Policy Planning Office of the State Department. The State Department has sent him both to Europe and to several Central American countries.

In 1987 he was elected to the Council on Foreign Relations. He also ran for congress from New Mexico.

This year he has been to Europe and written op-ed pieces for the Los Angeles Times and the Chicago Tribune. His most recent book is titled "Socialism in Western Europe" (Westview Press, 1984).

Besides having been a State Department Fellow in Policy Planning, he spent a year at the Department of State in the Bureau of Intelligence and Research.

For more information on Kramer's lecture call 543-6100.

1991 One-person Shows To be Scheduled at the AIG

Professional artists of the Eastern Shore are invited to apply to the Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury for a one-person show on AIG's 1991 calendar.

Oils, watercolors, acrylics, mixed media, drawings, sculpture, photography, prints, abstracts, pottery and fiber art are all eligible. Artists must submit 5-10 color slides of their work, along with their completed applications, no later than October 22, at 4 p.m.

To receive an application call the AIG at 546-4748 or drop by the gallery from noon - 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday. The AIG is located on Route 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane in Salisbury.

Joyce Zeigler: One-person Show

The oil paintings of Joyce Zeigler, a Ridgely, MD, artist, will be on display in the Madeline Yost Gallery at the Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury October 1-26, and will be celebrated in a free opening reception on Thursday, October 4, from 5-7 p.m.

Completed on location, these paintings explore the Eastern Shore world of "Flora and Fauna."

The AIG is located at Route 50 west and Lemmon Hill Lane in Salisbury and is open and free to the public from noon - 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Visitors are encouraged to phone ahead (546-4748) to ensure that the gallery will be open.

Board of Regents To Hear Needs of Adult/Part-time Students

The University of Maryland System Board of Regents at its next meeting will hear and discuss a report on ways in which the University System can enhance its responsiveness to adult and part-time students. The meeting is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m., Thursday, September 27, in the Moot Court Room of the Law Center at the University of Baltimore. The Law Center is at the corner of Mt. Royal and Maryland avenues.

H. Mebane Turner, president of the University of Baltimore and chairman of the Task Force to Enhance Responsiveness to the Needs of Adult/Part-Time Students, will deliver the report. Strengthening programs and services for this special population is one of the goals identified in the systemwide plan developed by the Board of Regents.

The Board of Regents also will consider policies on facilities master plans and the employment of graduate assistants.

Background materials will be available at the meeting.

Auto and Boat Loan Special

The State Employees Credit Union (SECU) is hosting a "Fabulous Fall Financing Special" for new and used auto and boat loans from October 1 to November 17. The special offer features lower down payments for new and used autos and lower down payments plus lower rates for new and used boats.

Further details on the special as well as loan applications are available to SECU members at any branch or by calling 296-SECU (Baltimore) or 1-800-492-1700 (toll-free). After October 8, the new toll-free number will be 1-800-TRY-SECU.

Campus Changes

The Holloway Hall front lawn, which recently turned brown, should soon be green again. The lawn was treated with herbicide, and then reseeded. The grass is expected to be back to its usual color within a few weeks.

Changes at the entrance of Holloway Hall on Camden Ave. and the corner of Rt. 13 and College Ave. are part of plans funded through the 1989-90 fiscal budget. A new entrance is being constructed on the Camden side and at the Rt. 13 intersection a new campus sign is going up.

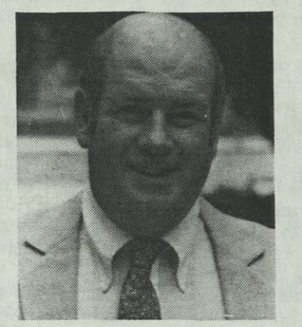
A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

OCTOBER 4, 1990 VOL. XII NO. 6

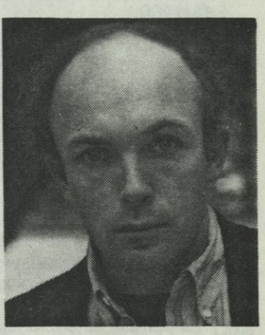
Distinguished Faculty Awards Announced

Sylvia Bradley



Dr. Thomas Erskine

Dr. Edna Quinn



Dr. John Wenke

Several Salisbury State University faculty members were recently recognized and honored for their exceptional teaching abilities, their extensive involvement with the University and community and their exceptional performance in their disciplines.

This year's recipients of the SSU Distinguished Faculty Awards are Sylvia Bradley, assistant professor of history, Dr. Thomas Erskine, professor of English, Dr. Edna Quinn, professor of nursing, and Dr. John Wenke, professor of English.

"I think the Distinguished Faculty Awards are special because they give faculty members the chance to recognize each other. It is an award to faculty from faculty," said Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, a member of the Faculty Welfare Selection Committee and associate professor of biology.

Bradley considers it a great honor to be one of this year's recipients. "It is very gratifying to be recognized by your peers," she said. "I am very dedicated to the University and my students, and I appreciate the fact that I have been acknowledged for my efforts."

While Bradley has been involved in many aspects of the University's growth during her 23 years here, she may be best known for her involvement in the development of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture. Eight years ago, Bradley joined Dr. Ray Thompson in creating a centralized educational facility for students and members of the community.

"We felt that the development of this center would provide an alternative to the usual teaching career that many students followed. We have provided them with another career option plus helped to enhance the University's status in the community. I am pleased to have been a part of the growth process at Salisbury State University."

Her community involvement includes membership in the Westside Historical Society and a seat on the Pemberton Historical Park board of directors; she is a founding member of Double Mills, Inc.

Erskine said that if he ever had the chance to win this award it would be this year, although he, too, has accumulated a long list of accomplishments during his 19 years at Salisbury State. It was only recently that he and his wife, Edna Quinn, were given the rare opportunity to visit Jordan as Fulbright Scholars.

Erskine, who began his career at the University as an academic dean and later was dean of the School of Liberal Arts, went to Jordan to teach at Yarmouk University.

"During my stay, I found that the students in Jordan were different than ones in the United States. It was very hard to have discussions with them because they didn't want to share their opinions with me. They wanted lectures rather than discussions," he said.

Although Erskine's focus was on teaching, he also had the opportunity

Career Day Promises Sound Advice for Students

Forty successful Salisbury State alumni will return to their Alma Mater Thursday, October 11, for the third annual Career Day, sponsored by the Alumni Association, which will be held in the University Center.

Jerome Sterling, a '76 SSU graduate, is looking forward to going back to the campus as a participant in the event. Now president of M.C. Horsey, a financial publishing house with clients in 30 countries, Sterling said, "I'm grateful to SSU for giving me such a sound education. This is one way I can repay the University for what it has done for me."

Homecoming Activities Feature Fame, Fun and Football

Alumni returning to Salisbury State University for its annual Homecoming (October 5-7) will be greeted this year with a campus undergoing remarkable changes including construction on its first new classroom building in more than a decade, the $16 million Fulton Hall, a new student mall and new campus sign and entrance on Camden Ave.

Unchanging however, is what Homecoming means to the 65-year-old institution: renewed friendships, fun, ceremony and sport—all bathed in a nostalgia complimenting the landscape's changing colors.

This year's celebrations present a cavalcade of events for alumni and students alike. After a week of student activities such as the election of a new king and queen, the traditional bonfire, assorted contest including a spicy chicken wing eating competition, movies and music, the alumni festivities kick off on Friday, October 5, with the Athletic Hall of Fame Dinner and Induction ceremonies in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

"I'm very proud to be selected for the Hall," said Gail Tatterson Gladding ('77), one of four former SSU athletic greats who will be honored. "Certainly teammates help acquire goals like this, and I'm very grateful to them for all their help." Gladding, the first SSU women's basketball player to score over 1,000 points, will be inducted with Walter Potter ('50)—a three-year letterman in basketball and soccer; Mary-Lou Manis ('70)—an outstanding athlete in hockey, volleyball and basketball; and Jeff Polk ('76)—whose six track records remain unbroken.

The Keith Marks Quartet, sponsored by the Black Alumni Chapter, will provide the after-dinner music at the Gull's Nest in the University Center immediately following the ceremonies. Lead by the noted flutist, Keith Marks, the group has won critical acclaim for performances at the Newport Jazz Festival and other prestigious musical events.

Saturday, October 6, will see SSU battle Glassboro State University in football at 1:30 p.m. at Sea Gull Stadium off Bateman Street, east of Route 13. Salisbury State's men's and women's tennis teams will be participating in the annual Hecht Company Tournament, played on the SSU tennis courts.

The annual, all-you-can-eat Gull Buster Bull Roast—guaranteed to satisfy the most ravenous appetites—will take place at the Sheraton Inn right after the game and will be the setting for reunions for the classes of '55, '60, '65, '70,

Fall Bird Walk At Pemberton Park

Salisbury State biologist Ellen Lawler will lead a bird walk along Pemberton Park's nature trails on Saturday, October 6, starting at 8 a.m. Numerous fall migrants as well as year round residents of the park should be seen. Bring binoculars. Registration fee is $2. The walk is limited to adults and children age 10 or above. For more information or reservations call 548-4900.

Affirmative Action Plan

The University's recently revised affirmative action plan has been approved by Dr. Bellavance and placed on file in a number of locations on campus for access by all University employees.

The plan contains the University's equal employment opportunity policy, provides an analysis of the University's labor force and outlines responsibilities for those involved in the recruitment and selection of faculty, administrators and classified employees.

The plan may be used for reference purposes and is to be updated annually. Copies of the plan have been placed in the Personnel Office, Blackwell Library and the Affirmative Action Office (HH-134), where there are additional copies available for anyone who might like to have a copy.

Please send comments, suggestions and/or corrections for future revisions to Robert Spery, Affirmative Action Officer, Holloway Hall 134, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD.

Health Insurance

Open Enrollment for health insurance will soon be here. In mid-October you should receive a package at home containing forms and new rates for the various insurance plans. You will have one month in which to make any changes - October 15 through November 16. If you do nothing, you will continue to have the same insurance coverage you have now.

Open Enrollment will be the only opportunity to make changes for all of 1991, so please take a few minutes to review the package when it arrives.

The forms are different from last year, so be sure to contact Shirley King at 548-4755 in the Personnel Office (HH 222) if you have any questions.

On Wednesday, October 24, representatives from the various insurance companies will be on campus (Nanticoke Room, University Center) to answer your questions. More information will be published later.

Thoreau Memorabilia Exhibit

Jim Dawson, owner and proprietor of the Unicorn Bookshop in Trappe, will display his own collection of Henry David Thoreau's personal artifacts, first edition books, photographs, maps and illustrations in his Rare Book/Artifact Exhibit Tuesday, October 16, through Thursday, October 18 at the Atrium Gallery located in the Salisbury State University Center.

The articles will be on display as part of the fall '90 Thoreau Series, SSU's tribute to the 19th century naturalist, essayist, surveyor and plain-spoken proponent of self-reliance. The Thoreau Series is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee at the University.

The Atrium Gallery will be open from 11 a.m.- 4 p.m. all three days. The exhibit is free and open to the public. Call Donna Forgash at 543-6100 for more information.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Pi Alpha Theta Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, will hold its fall initiation on Sunday, October 14, at 6 p.m.

Phi Alpha Theta requires the junior, senior or graduate student to have completed at least 12 semester hours in history courses and to have an overall average of B in at least two-thirds of the remainder of all work. In addition, students must rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

For information about Phi Alpha Theta contact co-advisors Dr. Greg Ference and Clara Small, or the History Department, by noon on Monday, October 8.

Animals of the Night at Pemberton Park

On Saturday, October 13, at 7:30 p.m. join naturalist and Wicomico County Park Planner Bob Kreiter on an exploration of Pemberton Park after dark. Many animals are most active at night and should be seen or heard on the walk. Registration fee is $2. It's limited to adults and children 10 years or above.

Call 548-4900 for reservations or more information.

Craft Bazaar

Bethesda United Methodist Women will have their annual Homespun Crafts and Creations Bazaar on Saturday, October 20, from 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. It will be held in the Memorial Room of the church located on North Division and W. William Streets in Salisbury.

Handcrafted items made by local artisans and craftspeople will be available as well as home-baked goods and homemade ice cream. There will also be a make-'n-take table for cornhusk dolls available for children while moms are browsing. Oyster sandwiches, chicken salad and sweet potato biscuits and vegetable soup will be featured during the lunch hours of 11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

Thoreau Reading Group

As an adjunct to the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center will sponsor a Thoreau reading group. During the semester, the group will meet on five Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss five different ideological views of Thoreau's writings. Discussion leaders will be: Phil Bosserman on the topic of simplicity (October 4), Joe Gilbert on the implications of Thoreau biography (October 18), Don Whaley on Thoreau and anarchism (November 8), Tony Whall on freedom and dignity in Thoreau (November 15), and Dave Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6). Readings will be assigned for each session.

Beginning on September 24, those participating in Phil Bosserman's session may pick up a xeroxed selection in the University Center office. Reading lists and selections for later sessions will also be available there at least a week before each session.

For further information, contact Bill Horne at 543-6445.

DC Talk and Newsboys October 10

It's time for a little R & R; rap, rock, and roll. DC Talk and the Newsboys will be appearing in Maggs Gym Wednesday, October 10, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $8 for the public or $5 with a student ID. They are on sale in the University Center Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., from September 24 to October 10. The event is sponsored by Chi Alpha.

Retirement Seminars

Are you within five years of retirement age/eligibility? If so, you may wish to attend one of the pre-retirement seminars sponsored by the Maryland State Retirement Agency this fall and winter.

Contact the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall 222 (543-6035) for more information as to qualifications for attending and dates of seminars.

Bach's Lunch Series

"Bach's Lunch," a free noon-time recital series sponsored by St. Peter's Episcopal Church in downtown Salisbury, has begun its fourth year. The half-hour concerts start each Tuesday in October at 12:15 p.m. and run until 12:45 p.m., allowing listeners to attend during their lunch hour. Brown baggers are encouraged, and sodas and brownies are sold in the church parish house. The performers for the series follows:

October 2, Joe Raffaelle and Ross Campbell, classical guitar. Raffaelle is the guitar instructor at SSU, and Campbell is one of his students.

October 9, Dr. Doug Smith, flute. Smith is professor of flute at UMES.

October 16, the Salisbury State University Brass Ensemble, under the direction of Richard Johnson.

October 23, the SSU Saxophone Quartet, under the direction of Johnson. Both of these ensembles are part of the wind program at SSU.

October 30, final concert of the series, a Halloween extravaganza featuring members of the SSU music faculty performing suitably strange and wonderful music. There will be audience participation.

For further information, please contact Nancy Cooper at the Music Department at 543-6385.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Horsepacking Trip

The next Outdoor Club meeting is scheduled for Monday, October 8, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. All students are welcome.

The rock climbing trip to Great Falls, VA, on October 7 is rescheduled for November 11. If interested in signing up for the horsepacking trip in the Shenandoah National Park on October 12-14, attend the meeting on Monday, October 8.

All Outdoor Club meetings are scheduled for Mondays in Nanticoke Room A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the fall semester include rafting in Ohiopyle, PA, on October 26-28, attending an Outdoor Photographic Clinic at Assateague National Park on November 3, a presentation on mountaineering by Lou Whitaker on November 5, a slide presentation on the desert Southwest and backpacking clinic by Cindy Ross, writer for Backpacker Magazine, on November 12 and backpacking on Hawk Mountain on November 16-18. (Dates are subject to change.)

Sea Gull Century Bike Ride

The Sea Gull Century, a 100-mile bike ride starting in Salisbury and winding its way to Assateague Island, Ocean City and back to Salisbury on Saturday, October 13, is attracting enormous interest with some 500 riders expected representing eight states and the District of Columbia.

While most riders have signed up for the century ride, others have elected to complete 33- and 54-mile courses.

The Sea Gull Century is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Bicycling Club with proceeds from the ride supporting cycling club activities and education.

Registration forms are still being accepted. Call 543-6012 for application materials or pick them up at the Salisbury State University Center information desk.

Starting at 1:45 p.m., two 45-minute panel sessions will be held during which five to seven professionals from the five career areas of business, education, liberal arts, natural sciences and social sciences will give overviews of their fields, followed by question and answer sessions with the attending students. In this way undergraduates will have the chance to have an in-depth look at two career directions.

Representatives from professions as diverse as entomology to corporate law will give them the inside scoop on how they got where they are; what are the necessary qualifications; and how students should present themselves. Students can also expect tips on setting up internships, four of which resulted directly from last year's program.

Mary Wolf, an '80 graduate who majored in chemistry, now a product engineer with the E.I. Du Pont Company in Seaford, feels "people" skills should be emphasized. "If you can't communicate you can be the best in the world but unable to sell your ideas." Wolf originally thought entering a scientific career would minimize her needs to interact with others but she is delighted to find that the problem-solving techniques developed at work apply equally in her busy private life as a wife and the mother of two small children.

Women in the professions will be the focus when Mitzi Perdue, media personality, will join Dr. Evelyn Holman, superintendent of schools for Wicomico County, and Addie Eckert, former candidate for Delaware House of Representatives and family counselor, in a panel titled, "Gearing Up for Leadership," sponsored by the SSU Committee for Women's Issues and running from 3:30-5 p.m., marking the end of the day's activities.

Paul Rendine, senior vice president and branch manager of W.H. Newbold's Son and Company, Inc., and himself an SSU graduate, is chair of the Career Day Committee. "Salisbury State University graduates enter the career market with an education that is second-to-none, nationwide," said Rendine. "Career Day will give them the opportunity to meet some of our very successful alumni who can counsel them on how to make the best use of what they have learned."

"Several hundred students came to last year's event, and we're expecting even more this time," said Judy Pielemeier, executive director of alumni affairs. "We are most grateful to all the panelists for their enthusiastic support. On-the-job experience is the most valuable resource a graduate can share with us."

Memories from the late '60s and early '70s, when the SSU Epicureans were working their way through college with renditions of numbers like "Light my Fire," "To Sir With Love" and other favorites, will be brought back at the Grand Dance, also at the Sheraton Inn, Saturday night.

While the nostalgic strains of the Epicureans' music waft over dancers at the Sheraton, current students have chosen the Top 40 beat of "The Boiz" for their on-campus celebration.

An Annual Tea that would make Ruth Powell (SSU's first social director) proud will be held on Sunday afternoon in the Social Room of Holloway Hall, a fitting close to the celebrations.

For further information contact Judy Pielemeier, executive director of Alumni Relations, at 543-6042.

English and Nursing Departments Visit England

The English and the Nursing Departments are offering travel courses during winter term that include a two-week study tour of England. Students will have London as a base, but there will also be optional one-day trips to Salisbury, Windsor, Bath and Canterbury.

Students may enroll in English 300, English 490 (which is also available for graduate credit) or Nursing 457: Cultural Considerations in Nursing. Instructors will be Dr. Thomas Erskine and James Welsh of the English Department and Dr. Edna Quinn of the Nursing Department. All have extensive experience in teaching these courses in England.

English students will attend pre-trip classes, keep a journal, write papers and attend six plays. Nursing students will also attend pre-trip classes, keep a journal and tour several hospitals, where they will hear lectures by British nursing educators.

Cost of the trip, which is open to students, faculty, staff and friends of the University, is approximately $900 and includes roundtrip transportation from Salisbury to London, hotel and continental breakfast.

An interest meeting will be held Wednesday, October 10, from 5-6 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 102. Those unable to make the meeting should contact one of the following: Tom Erskine (543-3671 or 742-7963), Edna Quinn (543-6414 or 742-7963) or Jim Welsh (543-6446 or 749-4190).

'Do the Right Thing' To Play at SSU

The Salisbury State Program Board presents Spike Lee's "Do the Right Thing."

The film combines humor, drama and music in a technique used in Lee's previous films to again expose the absurdity of racism. During the hottest day of the year, Lee's cast of characters move through a minefield of sensations over the course of a single day on one block in the Brooklyn neighborhood of Bedford-Stuyvestant—a blood-boiling 24-hour period that will change the lives of its residents forever.

The film is being shown on Thursday, October 4, at 10 p.m. in Devilbiss 149 and on Sunday, October 7, at 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Conference on Needs Of Disabled Scheduled

National leaders in education and career development of disabled students will gather at the University on Monday, October 15, for a mini-conference which is already attracting local interest, according to one University official.

"The conference is intended to address the various needs of both learning disabled and physically disabled students," said John Fields, Associate Dean of Students and a conference organizer. "People are hungry for information and we've already had a strong response from parents of learning disabled students in the area asking about the meetings." Sponsored by the Dean of Students Office and the Center for Personal and Professional Development, the conference is free and open to the public. Those wishing to attend are asked to register with the dean's office, however, at 543-6080.

The conference begins at 10 a.m. and runs throughout the day in the Nanticoke rooms of the University Center. "This is the first time SSU has had a conference for both groups of disabled students and I think the caliber of participants we have visiting is really remarkable," Fields added.

At 10 a.m. Lois Meyer, director of the Career and College Program at the Lab School in Washington, D.C., a private school for the learning disabled with grades K-12, will discuss academic issues. With her will be Jane Thompson, an administrator of Landmark College, in Putney, VT, a private school that is designed solely for learning disabled college students. Both will explain opportunities for post-secondary education as well as career options.

At 2 p.m. Jane Jarrow, the executive director of the Association of Handicapped Student Service Programs in Post-Secondary Education, will conduct sensitivity training sessions for University faculty and staff, as well as parents and community members. Jarrow's association, with national headquarters in Columbus, OH, is the largest organization of its kind representing such programs in the country.

She will discuss methods that teachers and faculty can use in the classroom to enhance self-esteem in disabled students, as well as other positive ways to communicate and teach.

At 6 p.m. a panel of experts will discuss career development and employments issues of the disabled. Emphasis will be placed on federal American Disabilities Act (ADA) legislation and its enforcement. Information about occupations in which the disabled are employed, lists of corporations and agencies which actively recruit the disabled, as well as self-marketing tips also will be provided.

Career releated literature and a video on employment and the handicapped will be aired.

For more information contact Fields in the Dean of Students Office or call Terry Clay, career development specialist at the University, at 543-6070.

Surfside 10K

Moore, Warfield and Glick Realtors, and the Seagull Road Runners Club are hosting the first annual Surfside 10K running race. The 6.2 mile race is on Sunday, October 7, at 8:30 a.m. at the M, W and G building on 120th Street in Ocean City. Entry fee is $10 with advance, or race day registration. Post race awards, T-shirts, food and computerized results for all participants are provided.

For more information call 524-1200 (day), or 742-5244 (evening).

The International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) will meet on Thursday, October 4, at 3:30 in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center.

Members and interested students are welcome to attend and assist in planning programs, speakers, trips and other activities for the semester. Seize the opportunity to express your ideas and take advantage of what IABC has to offer.

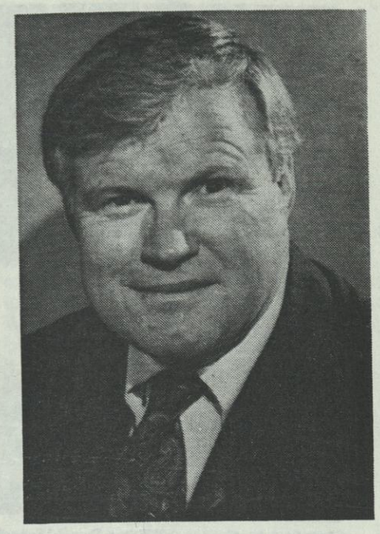
IABC is a nationally recognized and award-winning organization that welcomes students interested in aspects of organizational communication, public relations, public affairs, marketing, advertising, employee relations and communication consulting.

'Car Talk' Back on WSCL-FM

WSCL-FM broadcast "Car Talk" for almost a year, until last July when the station had to drop the popular program because of a 500 percent rate increase. The station didn't realize what a popular program "Car Talk" was. Within a couple of weeks after the program's termination, letters and petitions started arriving at WSCL protesting the cancellation of "Car Talk." Some members didn't renew their memberships and letters to the editor were written to the local papers concerning cancellation of the popular program.

"Because of the strong listener response and because of continued underwriting support from the business community, we have decided to bring the program back," said Fred Marino, WSCL-FM station manager. "Underwriting support does not fully pay for the program, and we are counting on our loyal listeners to provide for the remainder," explained Marino.

"Car Talk" will be broadcast on Saturday mornings starting October 6 from 10-11 a.m. on 89.5.



Donald T. Marshall

Marshall is Next Great Leader Lecturer

Donald T. Marshall, chair and chief executive officer of Sun Distributors L.P., will address an audience of students, faculty and members of the area business community on Tuesday, October 9, at 11 a.m. Sponsored by the Perdue School of Business, the presentation will be held in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Marshall began his career in industry at Union Carbide Co. in 1958 after graduating with B.S. degrees from St. Lawrence University and Columbia University, where he also earned an M.S. He progressed from executive vice president of the industrial gas division at Union Carbide to president of the engineering division at Air Reduction Corp.

He was president of General Energy Resources before joining Sun Distributors as vice president of operations in 1977. He became president in 1981, and when the company's management group bought the firm from Sun Company in 1986, he was named chair and chief executive officer.

Under Marshall, Sun Distributors L.P. grew to a national firm employing several thousand persons in 17 subsidiaries throughout the country with major positions in the fluid power, maintenance, electrical and glass sectors of the industrial distribution field. Known for his leadership in consolidation of the industrial distribution industry, the Schenectady, NY, native oversees his $600 million (annual sales) Sun Distributors operations with just 13 people, including secretaries, from the company's headquarters in Philadelphia.

When asked how he does it, Marshall replied, "I believe in rewarding ability. I find top people to run my companies and give them every opportunity and incentive to succeed. That's how individuals and companies grow," he concluded.

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information on the Great Leader Lecture Series, call the Perdue School at 543-6316.

Homecoming Bonfire

The Student Senate is sponsoring a Homecoming bonfire, to be held on Friday, October 5, at 8 p.m. on the new intramural field across from Sea Gull Stadium. WSUR will provide music; the Student Senate will provide the hot chocolate. Just bring your friends and a bag of marshmallows, and have a great time. Sticks for marshmallows will not be provided.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The Gulls will try to knock Glassboro State (4-0) from the ranks of the undefeated while also picking up their first win this Saturday in a Homecoming Day bash at Sea Gull Stadium. SSU's fourth-quarter rally fell short last weekend at Shepherd as the Rams held on to win 23-13. Freshman QB Pat Poole completed eight of 21 passes for 173 yards in last week's game. He also accounted for both Sea Gull scores, completing a 30-yard TD toss to Charlie Whalen and also adding a 58-yard TD run minutes later. Other highlights included a 53-yard kickoff return by Pierre Copes, and interceptions by Francis Bundukamara and Rick Helton.

The women's tennis squad continues to roll as it won its fourth match in five outings last Saturday at Christopher Newport, 8-1. Lisa Trelease, Millie Baer, Kathy Marshall and Christina DeSanto all notched singles victories. The women compete as individuals in this weekend's Hecht Co. Tournament at SSU, then resume their conference schedule next week with matches at Wesley and Frostburg State.

Hosting its annual Gull Classic Tournament last weekend, the volleyball team finished second among six teams. The Gulls lost to Delaware Tech 10-15, 15-13, 8-15 in the championship match. Sea Gull co-captain Michelle Hammond was nevertheless honored as the tourney's MVP. Teammate Shelly Covington also earned all-tournament team honors. The team plays in the Juniata Tournament this weekend.

The field hockey team plays five of its next six games on the road, beginning with games against Frostburg State on Friday and Ithaca on Saturday. Both contests will be played at Frostburg. The Gulls battled Lock Haven to a 0-0 tie last Saturday, then downed Cortland State 2-0 on Sunday to improve to 6-1-1. Regina Zippel and Vicki Conklin netted goals against Cortland.

The soccer team visits conference rivals Wesley and Allentown this week. The Gulls are currently 0-1 in the conference, and can ill-afford another loss if they hope to win the ESAC title. The cross country squads run in the Frostburg State Invitational this Saturday. Tim Smith and Erin Green were the top Salisbury finishers at last weekend's Retriever Classic in Baltimore.

University Receives Maintenance Excellence Award

The University has received the State of Maryland Governor's Maintenance Excellence Award for the second year in a row, earning the highest overall rating both years. Accepting the award from Governor Schaefer on behalf of the University at a recent ceremony in Annapolis was Melvin Smullen, assistant director of the Physical Plant.

The SSU Physical Plant received evaluations in management, campus appearance and performance from the Department of General Services Plant Management inspectors who conduct the evaluation annually. At the recent facilities audit, examiners checked the campus structures (inside and out), the grounds, and also scrutinized the performance of the housekeeping staff.

"The award was the result of an excellent team effort by the grounds, housekeeping, trades and maintenance personnel of the Physical Plant as well as the support staff of Administrative Services," noted Jim Brown, director of the Physical Plant. "This is a good example of what can be accomplished when our employees make a commitment to perform their work in a truly professional way," he added.

Gerontological Discussion

The Department of Nursing will hold a round table discussion focusing on faculty development in gerontological nursing on Friday, October 19.

The discussion is part of continuing activities related to the Integrated RN-BSN Geriatric Training Program at SSU. Included in this exchange of ideas will be a representative group of students and community nurses who are interested in nursing education, staff development and in-service education. The group will have an opportunity to share concepts about teaching gerontological nursing.

Nationally recognized experts in gerontological nursing, Drs. Virginia Stone and Helen Yura, who are consultants for the program, will lead the discussion.

The program is being funded by the Division of Nursing, of Health and Human Services, Public Health Service. For more information, contact Dr. Edna Stilwell, director, Integrated RN-BSN Geriatric Training Program, Salisbury State University, Department of Nursing. Pre-registration is required.

'Three Musketeers' Director Brings Varied Background to Program

For Kelly Morgan, artist-in-residence at Salisbury State University Theatre, who is directing "The Three Musketeers" and "The Homecoming" this semester, his cardinal rule for working with actors seems almost antithetical to an art form based on illusion and make-believe.

"I always tell actors the truth," said the 33-year-old director. An actor himself, Morgan has performed in over 75 radio and television commercials, four motion pictures, a half dozen television productions ranging from "As the World Turns" for CBS to "Romeo and Juliet" for BBC, and 42 stage productions, from Off Broadway to the famed Cleveland Playhouse.

"My first professional directing break was at the Cleveland Playhouse in a two-character play about an old age home. One actress was old enough to be my mother, the other my grandmother. They'd had years of experience and were highly respected. I wondered about giving direction to such grand dames. After a rehearsal one of the actresses came to me with tears in her eyes. I asked what was wrong and she said, 'You always tell us the truth and truth is beautiful.' It was one of the highest compliments I'd ever had in the theatre.

"When I'm working with actors, I never lie. I never humiliate them or scream at them because they're so vulnerable. They're sharing their body, emotions, psychology..." Such honesty can be dangerous, but also rewarding. Afterward the artistic director of the Cleveland Playhouse told Morgan's cast that the play was the best work he'd ever seen them do...

As a young actor Morgan studied fencing at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London and classical acting and directing at the Athens (Greece) Institute of Dramatic Arts. He earned his Master of Fine Arts in acting at Case Western Reserve University, where he later returned to teach. For a time he assumed all chair and artistic responsibilities for the department there.

His classical education and training allow him to talk eloquently about the mythic structure and metaphysical journey of the hero in "The Three Musketeers," which opens October 12, yet he can sound like a Freudian therapist in discussing character motivation, stating flatly that the source of all emotion is fear: "We're all very, very angry because we're always feeling afraid," he said.

A passionate defender of freedom of expression, "Art makes its own rules; is governed by none"; he'll also passionately defend the need for actors to be disciplined: "It allows for freedom. Without well-defined boundaries, without discipline, there's just chaos." And in a play like "The Three Musketeers" where fists and fencing foils are often flying, a lack of control could be dangerous.

As a student Morgan pursued triple majors in physical education, philosophy and theatre. "Body, mind and spirit," he calls them.) He had few doubts about which he would pursue, however. While an undergraduate at Viterbo College in Lacrosse, WI, he performed in "Godspel." Afterward a young mentally disabled man (part of a group) limped up to the bottom of the stage crying. Talking to Morgan later he told the actor, "It's so sad that people (the characters in the play) can be so mean."

Morgan was moved. "This mentally disabled person was so small that at first I thought he was a child. And our society cast away people like him, yet here he was seeing something that regardless of religious affiliation, was very profound—that he could feel.

"I reflected back on something my father had told me: 'Whatever you do, move people. If you can move people that's your calling....'

Now represented by the Gage Group in New York and Los Angeles, which also is agent for Academy Award-winning F. Murray Abraham and represented the late Geraldine Page, Morgan has managed a career spanning both academe and the professional stage, winning awards in each, including the prestigious Irene Ryan Acting Award and the national Classical Festival Award.

He minimizes the significance of such accolades, but not the commitment which helped make them possible. Even more than acting technique, this may be the greatest gift he is giving his students this semester.

"A director is not a dictator. He has to get his actors to explore options. Lee Strasburg (famed co-founder of the Actors Studio and the American 'method' approach to acting) taught me the importance of taking risks and moment-to-moment truth." It's not easy today for students to explore their options, both on stage and in their lives, he believes.

But "I try to make it secure for them during rehearsal, so they'll risk exploring and see that their characters—and they themselves—have options."

Reservations for "The Three Musketeers" may be made by calling 543-6228.

Gala of Hope To Be Held at Civic Center

Safe, decent shelter, education and nurturing will soon be a reality for Salisbury's 2,400 homeless; this actuality will be in the form of a home named "The Village." The facility will be constructed in five phases on a 5.1 acre plot located on Johnson's Pond. The site was purchased by Caritas, Inc., a nonprofit, non-denominational corporation.

The primary purpose of The Village is to enable the homeless to re-enter society. Through the creation of self-esteem, the homeless will become dignified, self-sufficient Salisbury citizens. The accomplishment of this will require the efforts of many people.

How can others help? By attending the Gala of Hope, sponsored by Governor Schaefer on Friday, October 19, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, all can help to retire the $33,000 debt to Maryland National Bank.

The evening's events will include dancing to On the Edge; a silent auction featuring wonderful trips, jewelry, paintings by local artists, etc.; and a raffle with $3,000 as the top prize and food donated by local restaurants. The $25 tickets can be purchased at all locations of both The Athlete and Vernon Powell and at all Salisbury real estate offices.

RFD—Radio Free Delmarva Marks First Anniversary

Saturday night, October 13, marks the one-year anniversary of "RFD—Radio Free Delmarva," the monthly variety show that is broadcast live on public radio station WSCL, 89.5 FM, at Salisbury State.

The two-hour show has featured music, comedy, film reviews, readings and a continuing drama in the finest radio tradition. The program is produced by WSCL news director, Van Williamson, who believes it to be the only show of its type for at least 50 miles in any direction. "Maybe 60," said Williamson.

Funded by the Maryland State Arts Council and the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, past programs have included classical music, jazz, folk, bagpipe music, accordian duets, solo tuba, barbershop quartet, a 12-voice a cappella choir, and fake tap dancing...rap music for the sick and tired...tips from the Kulinary Korner...animal stories from beyond the news...and much, much more. The show recently placed first (in the "Other" category) in the Salisbury Daily Times' "Best of the Southern Shore" contest.

"It was a toss-up between us and the Salisbury Zoo," said Williamson. "Fortunately, cooler heads prevailed, and we triumphed. Otherwise, how could I have explained it to my mother."

October's super-wonderful extravaganza anniversary happy birthday show will feature jazz from the House Band...singer Katherine Turner-Barlow...the spine-tingling return of the Bellows Babes accordian duet...the Flamingo Brothers, Phil and Ramone...writer Jack Purdy...the 12-member a cappella group, Golden Blues, from the University of Delaware...Chapter Four in the continuing semi-drama "Shore Thing"...and an expensive but professionally-executed 10-minute intermission. The free show is performed before a live audience in Caruthers Auditorium. The public is invited, and refreshments are available. Show time is 8 p.m.; the show is broadcast live on WSCL.

to interview professionals in the film and television industry. He is hoping to publish his work in the state of this industry in Jordan.

His published works include nine biographical essay in "Great Lives for History," a film review of "Five Easy Pieces" and co-author of "Casebook on The Yellow Wallpaper" for freshman English students.

According to Erskine, students are not the only ones trying to learn. "I don't think you can be a good teacher unless you are learning. When you stop learning you must stop teaching. Not everyone gets recognized for their teaching abilities and I am delighted to have received this type of award."

Quinn, who has been a University faculty member for 14 years, shared her husband's enthusiasm when discussing her recent trip to Jordan. Quinn traveled to Jordan on a Fulbright Scholarship as well and during her nine-month stay taught nursing at the Jordan University of Science and Technology (JUST).

She also coordinated the first Middle East Nursing Conference. "That was a very big project for me, and next month I will be going to Japan to present a paper on the educational and midwifery practices I learned about in Jordan."

Quinn, who is a member of the American College of Nurse-Midwives, was also elected president of the Maryland Nurses Association of District 4 and in 1989 was voted Nurse of the Year for the same district.

Her experience as a nurse and midwife have allowed her to share her knowledge and develop modernized skills for students at Salisbury State and the Jordan University of Science and Technology.

Students of Wenke named him one of SSU's best English professors because of his ability to combine exceptional writing with successful teaching.

During his six years at Salisbury State, Wenke has become one of the most published authors in the English Department. Recently, he completed "J.D. Salinger: A Study of the Short Fiction" and expects it to be out in 1991. He also had an article "Melville and His Narrators" published in "Texas Studies in Literature and Language."

As a result of his interest in Melville, he was also elected treasurer of the Melville Society.

Wenke was also given the opportunity to serve as a visiting professor at Trinity College in Hartford, CT, during the 1989 spring semester. While there he taught not only basic freshman classes, but also upper level and graduate course.

"Even though I have had the chance to teach a wide range of students, I have found that Salisbury State students measure up favorably with others. The student body is improving and I think these students can go anywhere," Wenke said. "I am happy to be part of the Salisbury family and I consider it an honor to receive the Distinguished Faculty Award."

Rubin Published in Liberal Education Journal

Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, was recently published in Liberal Education, a leading educational journal published by the Association of American Colleges (AAC).

Rubin's article, "Service Learning: Education for Democracy," explores a growing movement in education, community service, and its effects on the lives of students and the university community.

Community service and the philosophy of service from which it is derived is needed "to help students effectively develop communal democratic values," Rubin and other educators believe. But such "education for democracy" raises questions not only about how students sees themselves participating in society, but also in the classroom.

"Can we (professors and administrators) teach democratic values, for instance, without making certain that what we model is consistent with those values? Can we fix our students without examining what needs fixing in ourselves?" Rubin asks.

The SSU dean taught an honors course, "Habits of the Heart: An Investigation Into the Nature of Community Service," which requires a minimum 15 hours of community service as part of the curriculum.

She is president of the National Society for Internships and Experiential Education, a national organization that advocates community service and other forms of learning by doing.

Her article, "Transforming the University Through Service Learning" was also published in an anthology of essays, "Community Service as Values Education" in the "New Directions for Student Services Series" by Jossey-Bass Inc., Publishers.

Kramer Lectures on Europe's Future Oct. 10

Steven Kramer, visiting professor with the Government Department at Georgetown University and professorial lecturer at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, lectures on "The Future of Europe: an Update", on Wednesday, October 10, at 8 p.m. in room Nanticoke A of the University Center.

Kramer's lecture, which focuses on Franco-German relations in the new Europe, is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

A reception in the University Gallery, where the exhibition, "The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography from Hungary," is currently on display, follows the lecture. Both events are free and open to the public.

Sea Gulls on the Airwaves

In case you can't be part of the Homecoming Day football excitement at Sea Gull Stadium this Saturday, you can still catch all the action on the radio and on TV. WLVW Radio, 960 on the AM dial, will broadcast the game starting at 1:30 p.m. For those who want to see the action, Storer Cable of Salisbury will be cablecasting the game on a tape-delay basis, starting at 6 p.m. on the local origination channel. Fans in Sussex and Kent counties in Delaware will be able to watch the game on Tuesday evening, starting at 6:30 and 7:30, respectively.

Talbot Cited

Dr. A.K. Talbot, who has been a member of the sociology faculty for almost 20 years, has been included in the Hilltop Press "Register of Prominent Black Americans - Virginia 1990," a listing of the 100 most eminent black Americans and their accomplishments in the state of Virginia.

According to Robert E. Smithson, publisher/editor of the "Register," Talbot is being recognized for his outstanding contributions in the field of education and also for his time and commitment to helping improve the quality of life for humankind.

Talbot earned his B.S. and M.A. degrees at Hampton Institute, VA, and his Ed.D. from the College of William and Mary in 1981. He also did postgraduate work at George Peabody College, Nashville, TN; New York University, Graduate School, Division of Administration and Supervision; and the University of Kansas. He came to SSU in 1971 after having served as principal, supervisor of elementary schools and director of curriculum in the Virginia public school system.

"Dr. Talbot has had a long-standing research interest in the development of black education in the United States," said Dr. K. Peter Lade, chair of the Department of Anthropology at SSU. "He has had an active involvement in the shaping of policy of black education in the United States through participation in regional and national committees and task forces," he continued. "I'm delighted that A.K. Talbot will be honored by Hilltop Press as one of the "Prominent Black Americans of Virginia, 1990," added Dr. C. Phillip Bosserman, chair of the Department of Sociology at SSU. "A.K. was for many years a member of the Virginia Black Teachers Association, indeed one of its founders and officers. He has continued to work diligently for the improvement of black educational opportunities and needs. He is a national leader in this field and Salisbury State University is fortunate and priveleged to have him as one of its distinguished faculty members," he said.

White Elected

Dr. Arlene White, assistant professor of French, was recently elected to the Board of Directors of the Maryland Foreign Language Association (MFLA).

The election took place during the seventh joint conference of the MFLA and the Greater Washington Association of Teachers of Foreign Languages (GWATFL) held at Eleanor Roosevelt High School in Greenbelt, MD. White attended the conference which had as its theme, "Falling Walls and Rising Challenges: Foreign Languages for the 21st Century."

Riall Lecture Series

"The emergence and acceptance of a third phase of schooling, a middle school, has been one of the most significant changes in American education in the 20th century," according to Dr. Paul S. George, professor of education, University of Florida.

George, an internationally-known leader in the field of the middle school concept, will inaugurate the fall E. Pauline Riall series at the University with a lecture bearing the intriguing title "The Middle School Movement: Magic and Mystery in Education." It will take place Wednesday, October 24, at 8:00 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

For approximately 25 years, George has been a teacher, trainer and professor in public schools, universities and corporations. He has acted as a consultant to educational groups of all kinds in over 40 states and in nine foreign countries, and addressed a total audience now numbering over 60,000 people at conferences, workshops and meetings at many universities in America and abroad. George has published four

Four Named to Foundation Board

Charles R. Fulton, one of the leaders in Eastern Shore agribusiness, Edward H. Nabb, owner of the law firm of Harrington, Harrington & Nabb in Cambridge, Herbert B. Parks, president and chief executive officer of Byron Investments of Greensboro, NC, and Karen G. Harrison, formerly director of sales and marketing for the Harrison Group in Ocean City, were recently named to the board of directors of the Salisbury State University Foundation, Inc.

Their appointments were announced by Henry Hanna, chair of the Foundation, and Robert Gearhart, executive director of the Foundation.

"The prominence and stature of our new directors marks a continuance of our emphasis to recruit the best possible individuals to serve as directors of the Foundation," said Gearhart. "The geographic diversity of the Foundation membership continues to be a strength as we move more agressively forward to assist and enhance the future of the University." There are now 35 members on the board of directors.

Fulton grew up on a farm in Kenton, OH, and started working in the poultry industry during the 1930s for $12 a week. He first met his future wife, Martha Nock, at the 1939 World Poultry Congress in Cleveland. A veteran of World War II, he moved to Snow Hill in 1946 and for the past 44 years has been actively involved in the lives of Eastern Shore farmers, buying grain and selling both chickens and feed to many of Delmarva's growers.

In 1965 he merged the companies of Fulton Grain Corporation, Fulton Broiler Service and Nock's Snow Hill Hatcheries with Holly Farms Poultry Industries, Inc., of Wilkesboro, NC. In 1968 Holly Farms merged with The Federal Company of Memphis, TN. At one time the largest poultry supplier in the nation, Holly Farms Foods, Inc., was processing seven million chickens weekly at the time of its sale to Tyson Foods last year.

Fulton served on the separate boards of both The Federal Company and Holly Farm Foods, Inc. He also serves on the board of directors of First Maryland Bancorp in Baltimore, the second largest bank in Maryland and 86th nationwide.

In September 1989 the Fultons endowed the SSU School of Liberal Arts with a gift of $2.5 million.

Nabb, who entered Harrington, Harrington & Nabb in 1956, is now the senior partner of one of the oldest firms in Maryland. In addition to his duties with the law firm, Nabb is chair of the advisory board of Signet Bank, a position he has held since 1972.

His public service in Dorchester County and the state has been extensive. He was Dorchester County attorney for eight years, attorney to the county Zoning and Zoning Appeals since 1963, attorney for the county Sanitary District for four years, East New Market town attorney for eight years, member of the Maryland Public Defenders Commission since its inception and past president of the Dorchester Bar Association.

Renowned Photographer Is Artist-In-Resident for Art Department

Salvatore Mancini, an internationally renowned photographer whose photographs of American Indian rock art were shown at Salisbury State's University Gallery last year, will be artist-in-residence in the Art Department for four weeks this fall, from October 22 - November 16.

His residency has been made possible, in part, by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council and by funds from the endowment of the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

He will teach an intensive course for upper-level photography students, plus lecture or conduct workshops in various classes in the Art Department. He will also be available to speak on the various topics he has photographed to students in other departments at Salisbury State, to students in the public schools, and to various community organizations in Salisbury and Wicomico County.

In addition, the Atrium Gallery, located next to the bookstore in the University Center, will exhibit a selection of his photographs, and eventually those of his students, from October 24-November 13.

Mancini's work encompasses a wide range of subjects and photographic styles. He has photographed paintings and engravings made by American Indians on rocky cliffs and ledges in the Southwest; the archeological excavation of the Roman city of Caesarea in Israel; various Third World cultures, including Peru, Egypt, India and Nepal; the Italian-American community of Rhode Island; and conditions in Rhode Island State Mental Hospitals.

He has also taken more subjective photographs which express his vision as an artist, exploring such issues as the quest for individual identity, sexuality and personal relationships.

Jim Burgess, chair of the Art Department, said, "We are fortunate to have Salvatore here. The quality and range of his work, his personal example as an artist and his ability to discuss his work with people of all ages and backgrounds make him an ideal emissary for the arts, both on campus and to the general public."

Classes or other organizations who would like to schedule Mancini to speak to their group should make arrangements by calling Gloria Kernaghan, the Art Department secretary, at 543-6270.

Mancini was born in Italy in 1947 and came to the United States as a child. He attended high school in Rhode Island and studied photography at the Rochester Institute of Technology in New York. He has exhibited his work extensively in the northeastern U.S. and in Italy, and has received numerous grants and awards, including the prestigious Bolaffi Prize, Italy's highest national prize for photography.

He is best known for his photographs of Indian rock art. In 1987 he received a grant from the Rhode Island Committee for the Humanities to fund, in part, a photographic archive of Indian rock art for Brown University's Haffenreffer Museum of Anthropology. A number of these photographs were subsequently shown at the Haffenreffer Museum, at the Brooklyn Museum, at the Salisbury State University Gallery and at several sites in Italy.

Thoreau Series Continues

Dr. Walter Harding, distinguished professor emiritus at State University College at Geneseo, NY, and secretary of the Thoreau Society, will continue the Thoreau '90 Series at Salisbury State University during the week of October 29.

He will deliver a lecture entitled "Five Ways of Looking at 'Walden'" on Tuesday, October 30, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at 7:30 p.m. His presentation will be an analysis of the book from five different viewpoints demonstrating its widespread appeal to varying groups of people.

On Wednesday, October 31, from 1-4 p.m. he will co-chair a Teaching/Reading Thoreau Workshop with Dr. John Wenke of the English faculty at SSU which will include discussion groups led by SSU faculty.

Harding's participation will end with his lecture, "Thoreau: Civil Disobedience," a discussion on the background of Thoreau's essay, a brief analysis of the essay itself and its influence over the years. This lecture also will be held in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at 7:30 p.m.

Harding earned his Ph.D. from Rutgers University and his Doctorate in Literature from State University of New York. A former principal from Northfield, MA, he has taught English for the past 43 years and has an extensive list of publications on Thoreau to his credit.

All events are free and open to the public. Call Donna Forgash at 543-6100 for more information.

New Poetry Book By Waters Published

A new volume of poems by Michael Waters, his fifth, "Bountiful," has been accepted for publication by Carnegie-Mellon University Press. Waters is associate professor of English at the University where he teaches creative writing.

"Bountiful" is scheduled to appear in early 1992. Poems in the collection previously have been published in literary journals such as "Poetry," "The American Poetry Review," "The Georgia Review," "The Missouri Review," "The Ohio Review," and "America." One poem will be reprinted in "Pushcart Prize XV: Best of the Small Presses," and another was the winner of the 1989 Irene Leache Memorial Literary Contest.

Waters spent June as a resident fellow at the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts and in August he co-directed the annual Catskill Writers' Workshop at Hartwick College in Oneonta, NY.

Poster Sale

Posters and prints will be among the many items available at an art sale on Friday, October 12, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. and Saturday, October 13, from 11 a.m.-6 p.m. in the University Center's Atrium Gallery.

Many posters are on sale for $6 or less and many fine gallery posters are available for under $20. Mats and frames are also on sale.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Health Insurance

Open Enrollment for health insurance will soon be here. In mid-October you should receive a package at home containing forms and new rates for the various insurance plans. You will have one month in which to make any changes - October 15 through November 16. If you do nothing, you will continue to have the same insurance coverage you have now.

Open Enrollment will be the only opportunity to make changes for all of 1991, so please take a few minutes to review the package when it arrives.

The forms are different from last year, so be sure to contact Shirley King at 548-4755 in the Personnel Office (HH 222) if you have any questions.

On Wednesday, October 24, representatives from the various insurance companies will be on campus (Nanticoke Room, University Center) to answer your questions. More information will be published later.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Sea Gull Century Bike Ride

The Sea Gull Century, a 100-mile bike ride starting in Salisbury and winding its way to Assateague Island, Ocean City and back to Salisbury on Saturday, October 13, is attracting enormous interest with some 500 riders expected representing eight states and the District of Columbia.

While most riders have signed up for the century ride, others have elected to complete 33- and 54-mile courses.

The Sea Gull Century is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Bicycling Club with proceeds from the ride supporting cycling club activities and education.

Registration forms are still being accepted. Call 543-6012 for application materials or pick them up at the Salisbury State University Center information desk.

Gerontological Discussion

The Department of Nursing will hold a round table discussion focusing on faculty development in gerontological nursing on Friday, October 19.

The discussion is part of continuing activities related to the Integrated RN-BSN Geriatric Training Program at SSU. Included in this exchange of ideas will be a representative group of students and community nurses who are interested in nursing education, staff development and in-service education. The group will have an opportunity to share concepts about teaching gerontological nursing.

Nationally recognized experts in gerontological nursing, Drs. Virginia Stone and Helen Yura, who are consultants for the program, will lead the discussion.

The program is being funded by the Division of Nursing, of Health and Human Services, Public Health Service. For more information, contact Dr. Edna Stilwell, director, Integrated RN-BSN Geriatric Training Program, Salisbury State University, Department of Nursing. Pre-registration is required.

Commuters' Club Trip

The Commuters' Club is sponsoring a trip to Baltimore on Sunday, October 21. A van will leave the University Center parking lot (Dogwood entrance) at 9 a.m.

All interested students should contact Agata at 543-6313, or Linda at 543-6125 to leave name and social security number. Students will be responsible for their own meals.

Habitat for Humanity

On Saturday, September 29, some 21 students from SSU volunteered their time and effort to Habitat for Humanity.

Habitat for Humanity on the Lower Eastern Shore is an organization that helps low income families build decent, affordable housing. The work team that went on Saturday did various jobs such as painting, putting in ceilings and floors, and installing insulation. Everyone who went had fun.

The work team from SSU will be working again on November 3 and December 8. Everyone is welcome to join. For more information, please contact Krissy Monks, 548-4198, or Greta Trumpower, 546-4168.

Oktoberfest

The German Club is hosting its annual Oktoberfest on Wednesday, October 31, from 11 a.m. -2 p.m. on the new University Center walkway and in front of the Center. Events include performances by the SSU Dance Company hourly, various games and food. All are welcome and appreciated.

Conference Topic Is Caregiving at Home

MAC, Inc., the Area Agency on Aging, will hold a one-day conference on caregiving at home for the aged and chronically ill. The conference will be held on Wednesday, October 24, from 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. at Boscov's auditorium in The Centre at Salisbury.

Topics of discussion will include hypertension, stress, medicines and legal concerns. All those who are involved in caregiving for aged or chronically ill persons are encouraged to attend. The fees for the conference are $3 for caregivers, $5 for professionals. Registration is available at the door. For registration forms or additional information, call Kathy Walker at MAC, Inc. at 742-0505.

Book Rack Open October 27

The Book Rack will be open for the University's Open House on Saturday, October 27, from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. The Book Rack carries a large variety of items ranging from school supplies to gift ideas to Halloween items.

Book Rack Open Parents Weekend

The Book Rack will be open from 8:30 a.m. -6 p.m. on Parents/Spouse Day, Saturday, October 20, so that students can bring their parents/spouses into the store. A large selection of Halloween items are on display as well as the new fall line of imprinted SSU clothing.

Slide-Lecture by Michael Simon To Be Given October 18

Michael Simon, a Hungarian-born photographer and art historian at Beloit College, WI, will present a slide-lecture on "Hungarian Photography in Historic Context" at 7 p.m. on Thursday, October 18, in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The lecture, which will be addressed to both the campus community and the general public, is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Gallery in conjunction with the exhibition, "The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography from Hungary," the first U.S. exhibition devoted exclusively to avant-garde Hungarian photography.

Simon's lecture was made possible with funds from the Maryland Humanities Council, Inc., through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The exhibition, which features photographs by some of Hungary's most innovative photographers, all of whom employ experimental styles and techniques to create images that challenge traditional notions of photographic objectivity and readiness, was organized by the Allen Memorial Art Museum of Oberlin College. It will be on display in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, through October 18.

Simon's lecture will establish the historical and cultural background of the exhibition, from the 19th century to the present, taking into account Hungary's cultural heritage and its pivotal position between Western and Eastern Europe. He will discuss the periodic influence of Western photography on Hungarian photography; the documentary social, photography of the 1930s and early 1940s, which was practiced in both Western and Eastern Bloc countries; and the strong influence of the Soviet Union on Hungarian art and photography during much of the 1950s and 1960s. According to Simon, photography was actually under greater ideological constraints than other visual arts during the height of the Cold War because of its seeming "truthfulness."

Simon, who was a student at the time of the Hungarian Revolution of 1956, came to the United States as a refuge in early 1957. Since 1968, he has been at Beloit College, where he is professor of art and chairman of the Department of Art and Art History, as well as curator of photography at Beloit's Wright Museum of Art.

He is professionally active both as a photographer and as a curator and historian of photography. His photographs are in numerous public collections, including those of the Museum of Modern Art, the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House, Rochester, NY, and the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. He has published numerous articles on various aspects of photography and is currently writing a book on the history of Hungarian photography. His essay, "On the Past of Hungarian Photography," is included in the exhibition's catalogue, which is for sale in the SSU bookstore.

A reception in the University Gallery will follow Simon's lecture. Both the lecture and the

CPPD Counselors Receive Certification

During the 1989-90 academic year, the three personal counselors in the Center for Personal and Professional Development were approved as certified professional counselors by the Maryland State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. To receive the state certification, Dr. Robert McBrien, Joseph Andrade and Kathryn Reading were required to provide proof of appropriate education and supervised professional experience, professional references and evidence of knowledge in a variety of topics in the counseling field. Their applications were reviewed and approved by the Maryland Board of Examiners of Professional Counselors. As certified professional counselors, the counselors are required to abide by a list of professional and ethical regulations legislated by the state.

CPPD counselors provide personal counseling services to current University students as well as outreach programs on a variety of topics for both campus and community groups. Appointments with any of the counselors may be made by calling the CPPD at 543-6070.

Geography Opening

Salisbury State University is seeking an assistant professor/instructor in physical geography with a strong background in biogeography and environmental planning/resource management.

Applicants must be committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching, including introductory courses, and to involving undergraduates in research. This is a tenure-track position available for fall 1991. Ph.D. is preferred; A.B.D. with dissertation in final stages will be considered. The ability to communicate effectively in English, both orally and in writing, is essential.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. The search will remain open until the position is filled. Review of applications will begin January 2, 1991.

Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, transcripts and three letters of recommendation to Calvin Thomas, Chair, Department of Geography and Regional Planning (phone 301-543-6459).

Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Authorization to accept U.S. employment.

Office Secretary

Applications are being accepted for a full-time, 12-month contractual secretarial position for the Office of Minority Affairs. There are no state benefits involved.

Excellent typing skills, good telephone manners and clerical skills are essential. A knowledge of WordPerfect is preferred. The salary is $7-8 per hour.

Interested applicants should send a resume, along with names and addresses of three references to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, Maryland 21801. Application deadline is October 17.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Poland, Hungary Trips Are Available

Two academic programs in Poland and Hungary follow. The programs are sponsored by a consortium of U.S. colleges and universities and administered by the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE).

The Central School of Planning and Statistics, Warsaw, Poland: courses in Polish language, political science, culture, economics, literature, history and film; field trips and excursions in Warsaw and other Polish cities; university residence housing; up to 16 credits per semester.

The Budapest University of Economics, Budapest, Hungary: courses in Hungarian language, economics, literature and the arts, political science, history and sociology; sixteen-week program, including two overnight field trips to other cities in Hungary; assistance in finding housing; up to 16 credits per semester.

Prerequisites for both programs are an overall 2.75 GPA and six semester hours of social science courses.

Application deadline for the 1991 spring semester programs is November 1. Sponsoring schools may have earlier internal deadlines.

Contact Dr. Robert Berry in the History Department at 543-6248 for details.

Math Tutoring Services

The Department of Mathematical Sciences is offering the following services to all SSU students in math courses on all levels.

Tutoring services are available from 1-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m., Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m.-noon on Friday and 6-9 p.m. on Sunday. The tutors are students who have been hand picked by the director of the program because of their exceptional abilities in mathematics and excellent tutoring experiences. Students are served on a first come, first served basis.

A backup system of instructors has been created to aid those students whose questions cannot be fully answered by tutors. These instructors are willing to help with all questions.

The math lab located in the Power Building is equipped with some software for all math courses and several tutoring packages for some individual math courses as well. Students will be directed by trained tutors in the lab or by instructors.

Blood Bank of the Eastern Shore

October is the anniversary month for the Blood Bank of the Eastern Shore. Anyone interested in joining should contact Debbie Merryweather in the Business and Finance Office at 543-6050.

Humor Comes To the Book Rack

Feeling all tied up lately? The semester getting you down already? Well, people say that humor is the best medicine, so why not stop by the Book Rack and visit its Humor Shop. Super humor books to lift your mood...T-shirts to get your co-workers laughing...great "gag" gifts for that person who is "down in the dumps." The Book Rack has it all and you don't even have to fight the crowds at the new Centre at Salisbury.

Remember, faculty and staff get an additional 10 percent off purchases when showing their ID.

Thoreau Reading Group

As an adjunct to the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center will sponsor a Thoreau reading group. During the semester, the group will meet on five Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss five different ideological views of Thoreau's writings. Discussion leaders will be: Joe Gilbert on the implications of Thoreau biography (October 18), Don Whaley on Thoreau and anarchism (November 8), Dr. Tony Whall on freedom and dignity in Thoreau (November 15), and Dr. Dave Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6). Readings will be assigned for each session.

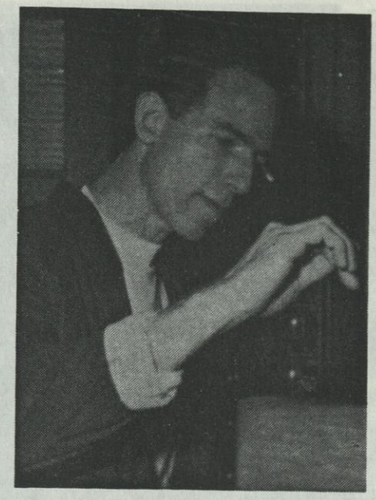
Beginning on October 11, those participating in Gilbert's session may pick up a reading list in the University Center Office. Reading lists and selections for later sessions will also be available there at least a week before each session.

For further information contact Dr. Bill Horne at 543-6445.

Epilepsy Support Meeting

The next Salisbury Epilepsy Support Group meeting is at the EAES office conference room in the Power Professional Center on Wednesday, October 17, at 7 p.m.

For more information, call Edward Simonoff at 543-0665.



Dr. Lee Mitchell

Mitchell Piano Recital

Dr. Lee Mitchell, accomplished pianist and professor of music in the School of Continuing Studies, Division of Arts and Sciences at The Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, will be performing works by Johannes Brahms, Franz Liszt and Frederic Chopin at his piano recital in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Thursday, October 18, at 8 p.m.

Born in Wilmington, Mitchell began his first piano studies as a scholarship student at the Wilmington Music School. At a very early age, he appeared as both interpreter and composer on many recitals and concerts in the Wilmington, Philadelphia and Baltimore areas.

After graduating from the Peabody Institute of The Johns Hopkins University, he attended master classes in piano with Dame Guiomar Novaes and Rudolf Serkin and composition with Aaron Copland. Mitchell then left the United States for Switzerland, where he earned his Ph.D. in musicology at the University of Berne, studying composition with Sandor Veress and piano with Ilse von Alpenheim.

He is the recipient of numerous prizes and awards both in piano and composition, including the Ada Arens Morawetz Award, the Rockefeller Award, the University of Delaware Piano Award and the Conservatory Award at the Peabody Institute. Recently he won the Dame Myra Hess Piano Competition in Chicago and is the recipient of the Artist Fellowship of the Delaware State Arts Council for 1991.

Mitchell is the composer of many works for various media and has written an entire Christmas story entitled "The Holy Child is Born" (A Christmas Oratorio) for soloists, choirs, organ and chamber orchestra. Commissioned by and premiered at St. David's Church in Baltimore in 1987, it was performed there for the second time last December and will be presented at Christ Church Cathedral in St. Louis this December.

The University's guest soloist has appeared on television and radio and has given concerts in the United States, Greece, Holland, Germany, Hungary and Switzerland.

The recital is free and the public is encouraged to attend. For further information, call the University Center office at 543-6100.

Dance Company Meetings

"The Crisis in the Persian Gulf" will be the topic of a University-wide colloquium sponsored by the Political Science Department on Thursday, October 18, from 3:30-5 p.m. in room 122 of Caruthers Hall.

Faculty from several departments will give short presentations on Middle Eastern, international, political and economic affairs. The tentative list of participants and topics are as follows: Dr. Robert Berry, history, "Historical Background to the Iraq-Kuwait Dispute"; Dr. Michael O'Loughlin, political science, "The Role of Arab Nationalism in the Crisis"; Dr. Phil Bosserman, sociology, "The American Response"; Dr. Benjamin Harrison, information and decision sciences, "The Global Economic Impact of the Crisis"; and Dr. Cyril Daddieh, political science, "Some Global Lessons from the Crisis."

There will be question and answer period following the presentations. The colloquium is open to the entire campus community.

Open Enrollment Update

Open enrollment packets for state employees should be arriving in a day or two by mail or UPS. Here are some do's and don't's:

Do open the packet and review the contents.

Do call the Personnel Office (548-4755) if you want to make changes but have doubts or questions about the form (Personnel does not have extras).

Do complete the form if you're making changes or putting money in a spending account.

Do use a No. 2 pencil when completing the form.

Do call Personnel if your packet hasn't arrived by October 25.

Don't fold or staple the form; keep it flat.

Don't complete the form if you have doubts; call Personnel first.

Don't use markers, red ink pens, etc. when completing the form. No. 2 pencils only.

Surf Club Speaker

Ray Rickett, director of the Eastern Surfing Association, Maryland district, will be giving a presentation to the Salisbury State Surf Club on Wednesday, October 17, at 9 p.m. in Caruthers 122.

Rickett, an active participant in local surfing competitions, was Ocean City's "Ironman" in 1988. He has placed first in the master's division and has been in the top three in the senior's division. Earlier this year, he competed in the East Coast Surfing Championship semi-finals.

Some of the topics he will be discussing include the different activities of the ESA, Sundancer's active role in the local surfing scene and amateur competitive surfing.

For more information about this and other Surf Club activities, contact Chuck Valentini at 548-5849.

Education Professors Present Papers

Five professors from the School of Education and Professional Studies recently presented papers at the 1990 International Convention on Cooperative Learning in Baltimore.

The convention, sponsored by the International Association for the Study of Cooperation in Education (IASCE), included representatives from over 40 countries including most European countries, several from the Soviet Bloc, China, Japan, Zaire, South Africa, Brazil and many others.

IASCE is a nonprofit educational organization, dedicated to the study and practice of cooperation in education. The field includes the increasingly popular cooperative classroom methods where students work together in learning teams to master academic content and social skills. It also includes teachers working together to support and coach each other, to develop and share curriculum materials and to join with students, parents, businesses and community leaders to improve the physical, social and intellectual quality of their schools.

SSU education faculty presenters and the titles of their papers were: Dr. Charles Long, "Cooperative Learning at the Graduate Level: Practicing What We Preach"; Dr. Geraldine Rossi, "The Scientist—Practitioner Investigating Learning in the Elementary School Mathematics Classroom"; Dr. Ann Taylor, "Integrating Creative and Critical Thinking into the Cooperative Learning Model"; and Dr. Ellen Whitford, "The Effects of Cooperative Learning in a Staff Development Program for School Administrators." Also presenting a paper was Dr. Doran E. Christensen, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies. His paper topic was "Enhancing Learning by Neutralizing Competition."

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Coming off a pair of shutout wins on the road last weekend, including a 2-0 win over third-ranked Ithaca, the field hockey squad entertains fourth-ranked Trenton State in a 3:30 p.m. showdown on Thursday. The Gulls, 9-1-1 and ranked seventh in the nation, are also the top ranked team in the South Region. SSU's stingy defense has recorded shutouts in six of the last seven contests while the Gulls have amassed a 35-4 edge in goals scored on the season. Netminder Liz Leo has benefited from the defense in front of her to average just 0.3 goals allowed per game while notching 4.7 saves/contest. Junior Cheryl Ish leads the offense with 11 goals and four assists, while freshman Edie Matthews has seven goals and Regina Zippel has six.

The soccer team is making its push toward the top of the ESAC standings as the Gulls had won two straight and three of their last four heading into Wednesday's game with Lincoln. Co-captain Kevin Jackson is the leading goal scorer for the season with four, while David Kidd and Matt Roberts have added two scores apiece. The Gulls visit Glassboro State for a 7 p.m. game on Saturday night, then close out the season with four home games.

The volleyball team won two of five matches at last weekend's Juniata Tournament and plays in the Gallaudet Tournament this weekend. The Sea Gulls are now 19-13 on the season.

The football team looks to regroup once again following last Saturday's 31-13 Homecoming loss to undefeated Glassboro State. Salisbury visits 1987 NCAA Champion Wagner on Saturday in a 2 p.m. game in Staten Island, NY. Senior LB MIke Voorhees and junior RB Pierre Copes accounted for SSU's two touchdowns in last week's game.

books which have been adopted for use in dozens of universities and school districts.

Despite his lofty academic reputation, George, who taught in public schools for a decade, insists on taking time each year to return to the classroom to test how his principles stand up to everyday practice.

George sees the middle school concept as building an essential bridge between elementary and high school during the crucial adolescent years. Until recently junior high schools prepared students for the academic demands of the high schools but paid little attention to the psychosocial needs of the student.

Middle schools function on a cohesion of teachers, administration, parents and students which produce the matrix for a well-adjusted society. An emphasis is placed on teams rather than tracks. George feels that tracking leads to polarization of both students and teachers. In middle schools clusters of teachers and students produce a warm, supportive, consistent and firm-but-flexible structure for the students whose lives are often turbulent in other ways.

"I look forward to attending Dr. George's lecture," said William Evans, principal of Wicomico Middle School in Salisbury. "His ideas were invaluable three years ago when we were making the transition from a junior high school, and we have found that the middle school concept really works for youngsters in the seventh and eighth grades."

As a Riall lecturer, George will be taking part in a series endowed by a bequest by E. Pauline Riall, for 40 years a teacher, then principal of the Campus Demonstration School at Salisbury State. Riall, raised on a farm in Tyaskin, made educating children her life and on her death in 1986 willed more than $300,000—the bulk of her estate—for scholarships and educational programs at Salisbury State.

"She really lived for SSU," said Maurice Bozman, Pauline Riall Professor of Education. "Her first love was the campus school and University. Though she had no children of her own she, in a sense, became a partner with parents in raising children. I'm sure she would consider Dr. George's lecture an ideal subject for the series which bears her name."

The public is invited to attend the lecture which is free. Groups of 10 or more or urged to contact the Education Department Office at 543-6281 starting October 12. For more information contact Public Relations at 543-6030.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

OCTOBER 18, 1990 VOL. XII NO. 8

One of Nation's Leading Poets at SSU Oct. 23

Gwendolyn Brooks, a Pulitzer Prize-winning poet and poet laureate of Illinois, visits the Eastern Shore and reads from her works on Tuesday, October 23, in appearances jointly sponsored by area universities.

Brooks will spend the morning at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore in Princess Anne where she takes part in a reception, poetry reading and commentary, a book signing and luncheon in her honor. In the afternoon she will visit Salisbury State University where activities include, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m., a reception and book signing in the main lounge of the University Center. The public is cordially invited to meet and talk with Brooks personally.

The community is also invited to two poetry readings, at 11:30 a.m. at the UMES Ella Fitzgerald Center and 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the SSU University Center. Admission is free to both.

In 1950 Brooks won the Pulitzer Prize in literature for her book of poems, "Annie Allen." She succeeded Carl Sandburg as poet laureate of Illinois in 1968. In 1985 she was named a consultant in poetry to the Library of Congress.

The author of 15 books of poetry and recipient of over 50 honorary degrees, Brooks is a favorite on the lecture circuit. For the past 21 years she has used lecture fees and proceeds from book sales to sponsor and judge poetry competitions amoung 10 elementary schools and 10 high schools in Illinois.

Critics have praised Brooks for being among the first American poets to use "black speech" artfully. Of late she has voiced her appreciation for rap music — which she has called poetry of the streets — but takes an exception to the rap music that includes Satanism and cruelty to women.

In Harvey, IL, just south of Chicago, where Brooks lives, there is a Gwendolyn Brooks Jr. High School. And a Gwendolyn Brooks Cultural Center is at Western Illinois University in Macomb.

Her works include an autobiography, "Report from Part One" (1972); "The World of Gwendolyn," an anthology reprinted in 1987 under the title "Blacks"; and "The Near-Johannesburg Boy and Other Poems," published in 1987.

For more information about Brooks' itinerary contact Frank White at UMES at 651-2200 or Vaughn White at SSU at 548-4503.

Perdue School Dedication

HOT WINGS. The home of the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business in the north and east wings of Holloway Hall was officially dedicated at a gala ceremony which included (from botton left) Louis Goldstein, comptroller of Maryland; Perdue; (second row) J. Randall Evans, secretary of the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development; Ilona Hogan, treasurer of the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland System (UMS); President Thomas E. Bellavance; and Dr. Donald N. Langenberg, chancellor of UMS.

The University dedicated the permanent home of The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business in the recently renovated north and east wings of Holloway Hall on Tuesday, October 9.

The $2.2 million project, completed last spring, was funded through state appropriations.

"Frank Perdue's $2.5 million endowment of the School of Business in 1986," said Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, president of Salisbury State University, "enabled us to begin fulfilling the enormous potential this school has to offer the region and the state. Now we have a new facility and community resource which reflect the caliber of programs offered at the Perdue School."

Governor William Donald Schaefer said, "Frank Perdue's generous gift moves Salisbury State closer to filling its unique role in Maryland's higher education system. His support is an outstanding example of the private sector's cooperation with state government toward educating and training our future workforce."

Featured in the facilty are three large general purpose classrooms and several case rooms which are central to the school's instructional program. The case rooms are designed in tiers, like small auditoriums, to give opportunities to large groups of students for close association and discussion with professors and visiting lecturers.

The school also has administrative offices for the dean of the school and staff, faculty offices, a student lounge and offices for area service organizations such as the Small Business Institute.

The Perdue School is also home to a regional Small Business Development Center, established from grants totaling $178,503 by the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development and the Small Business Administration. With 12 satellite offices, it will service the needs of small and emerging businesses for eight Maryland Eastern Shore counties.

"I am pleased to have the opportunity to see this wonderful new facility completed," said Perdue, chairman of Perdue Farms, Inc. "I believe it will enhance the opportunity for our business leaders of tomorrow to learn and be trained in optimal conditions."

Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, expanded on the significance the multimillion dollar renovation project will have on SSU and the entire Eastern Shore. "Our new facility," said Butler, "offers research, continuing education and communication links between the University and the area's business and industry. It gives talented young people, throughout Maryland and surrounding states, the opportunity to get a top level business education at a public university.

"For local businesses," he continued, "it means that well-trained management personnel no longer have to be recruited from out of the area. The Perdue School of Business enriches

Riall Lecture Series

"The emergence and acceptance of a third phase of schooling, a middle school, has been one of the most significant changes in American education in the 20th century," according to Dr. Paul S. George, professor of education, University of Florida.

George, an internationally-known leader in the field of the middle school concept, will inaugurate the fall E. Pauline Riall series at the University with a lecture bearing the intriguing title "The Middle School Movement: Magic and Mystery in Education." It will take place Wednesday, October 24, at 8:00 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

For approximately 25 years, George has been a teacher, trainer and professor in public schools, universities and corporations. He has acted as a consultant to educational groups of all kinds in over 40 states and in nine foreign countries, and addressed a total audience now numbering over 60,000 people at conferences, workshops and meetings at many universities in America and abroad. George has published four books which have been adopted for use in dozens of universities and school districts.

Despite his lofty academic reputation, George, who taught in public schools for a decade, insists on taking time each year to return to the classroom to test how his principles stand up to everyday practice.

The public is invited to attend the lecture which is free. For more information contact Public Relations at 543-6030.

Renowned Photographer Is Artist-In-Residence For Art Department

Salvatore Mancini, an internationally renowned photographer whose photographs of American Indian rock art were shown at Salisbury State's University Gallery last year, will be artist-in-residence in the Art Department for four weeks this fall, from October 22 - November 16.

His residency has been made possible, in part, by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council and by funds from the endowment of the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

He will teach an intensive course for upper-level photography students, plus lecture or conduct workshops in various classes in the Art Department. He will also be available to speak on the various topics he has photographed to students in other departments at Salisbury State, to students in the public schools, and to various community organizations in Salisbury and Wicomico County.

In addition, the Atrium Gallery, located next to the bookstore in the University Center, will exhibit a selection of his photographs, and eventually those of his students, from October 24-November 13.

Gerontological Discussion

The Department of Nursing will hold a round table discussion focusing on faculty development in gerontological nursing on Friday, October 19.

The program is being funded by the Division of Nursing, of Health and Human Services, Public Health Service. For more information, contact Dr. Edna Stilwell, director, Integrated RN-BSN Geriatric Training Program, Salisbury State University, Department of Nursing. Pre-registration is required.

Parents/Spouse Day

Salisbury State celebrates its annual Parents/Spouse Day on Saturday, October 20, with a full slate of activities.

Registration will be held from 9-10 a.m. at the University Center Dogwood Drive entrance and late registration will be at the University Center information desk.

Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, president of SSU, and Mr. and Mrs. Reid Henderson, chairparents of the Parents Association, will welcome the visitors at 10 a.m. From noon-1:30 p.m. parents and spouses will have the opportunity to meet many of the academic leaders of the University.

An annual feature of Parents/Spouse Day at SSU is the "Back to School" segments, with professors from numerous disciplines presenting classes on a variety of topics.

From 11-11:45 a.m. the following classes will be held: business, "U.S./European Challenges: Issues and Dilemmas," Dr. Memo Diriker; education, "Determining the 'Readability Level' of What You Read and What You Write," Dr. John Wolinski; English, "The Poet and the Poem," Dr. John Wenke; nursing, "Depression Among High School and College Students," Mary Kane.

Other featured events on Saturday include a slide show of Freshmen Orientation in the Wilderness from 11 a.m.-noon in Caruthers Hall Auditorium; open house in the University Center Offices from noon-1 p.m.; an exhibit of Contemporary Polish Prints in the University Gallery, second floor Blackwell Library, from 11 a.m.-5 p.m.; SSU vs. Montclair football game from 1:30-4:30 p.m. in Sea Gull Stadium; and "Simon Says" adult game with Bobby Gold on the steps of the Dining Hall at 2 p.m.

Other activities and athletic events include a blood pressure screening, Marson Galleries exhibit and sale, men's and women's cross country Tidewater Invitational, SSU vs. Frostburg soccer game, ROTC awards ceremony, tours of the radio stations WSUR and WSCL, and open houses in many of the student services related departments on campus.

Parents/spouses can close the day with the Sea Gull Sports Bar-B-Que on University Hill from 3-7 p.m. and then attend the closing night performance of SSU Theatre's production of "The Three Musketeers" at 8 p.m.

For more information contact the University Center at 543-6100.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Thoreau Series Continues

Dr. Walter Harding, distinguished professor emiritus at State University College at Geneseo, NY, and secretary of the Thoreau Society, will continue the Thoreau '90 Series at Salisbury State University during the week of October 29.

He will deliver a lecture entitled "Five Ways of Looking at 'Walden'" on Tuesday, October 30, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at 7:30 p.m. His presentation will be an analysis of the book from five different viewpoints demonstrating its widespread appeal to varying groups of people.

On Wednesday, October 31, from 1-4 p.m. he will co-chair a Teaching/Reading Thoreau Workshop with Dr. John Wenke of the English faculty at SSU which will include discussion groups led by SSU faculty.

Harding's participation will end with his lecture, "Thoreau: Civil Disobedience," a discussion on the background of Thoreau's essay, a brief analysis of the essay itself and its influence over the years. This lecture also will be held in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at 7:30 p.m.

Harding earned his Ph.D. from Rutgers University and his Doctorate in Literature from State University of New York. A former principal from Northfield, MA, he has taught English for the past 43 years and has an extensive list of publications on Thoreau to his credit.

All events are free and open to the public. Call Donna Forgash at 543-6100 for more information.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Golf Classic Oct. 26

Preparations for the seventh annual Salisbury State University Foundation Golf Classic, which will be held on Friday, October 26, at the Green Hill Yacht and Country Club, have been progressing nicely, according to the Foundation's executive director, Robert M. Gearhart.

"The field will be limited to 144 golfers, divided into 36 foursomes, which is probably the maximum number of golfers that could be accomodated on the course in the one-day event," said Gearhart.

Interest in the event continues to be high and the field has been filling rapidly. Only sponsors may enter a team at a cost of $200 per sponsorship and $50 per golfer. A shotgun start will be in effect on the day of the tournament.

As a special feature prizes for a variety of contests on the par-3 holes will range from merchandise prizes to $200 for each category.

"This is really a fun day for non-golfers as they will have an opportunity to get out on the course and have a good time, regardless of their scores," said Gearhart. "Of course, there will be a number of competitive players out there, but that should not lessen the fun part of the day."

Dick Young and Roy Beauchamp are co-chairman of the Classic and Donnie Williams, president of ALARMGUARD of Delmarva, is the prime sponsor of the event.

The sole purpose of the Foundation is to provide funding for SSU programs that are not covered by public funds.

The Classic is one of the most successful fund-raising projects at the University, going from $2,500 raised the first year, to $20,000 the past two years. The '90 Classic is expected to bring in more than that amount.

The Foundation sponsors a variety of scholarships valued at more than $100,000 a year, along with faculty grants amounting to $15,000 annually. The work of the Foundation is visible in the community as well: One example is the sponsorship of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU.

Henry Hanna is in his first year as chairman of the Foundation, after having served on the board of directors since 1988 and is proud of the accomplishments of the organization.

"The board basically does the leg work in finding various ways to aid the University and the community in distributing the monies raised by the Foundation fund," said Hanna.

Funds are also set aside for the Alumni Association and community affairs and student help in research and field trips. It provides two trips a year on the Chesapeake Bay for biology and science projects. The bay trip costs are mainly for the rental of the University of Maryland College Park ship, Aquarius, which is based at Horn Point.

"The success of the annual Golf Classic has been very gratifying," said Hanna, adding, "projects such as this usually fade after a few years but this one increases in popularity and revenue each year."

Hanna also said special projects such as the Golf Classic and annual Gala are nice ways to allow segments of the community and the University to know each other better.

WSCL Fall Fund Drive

Fred Marino, general manager of WSCL-FM 89.5, Delmarva Public Radio, recently announced that WSCL will be starting its annual Fall Fund Drive on Monday, October 15. "This fall we're hoping to raise $36,000," continued Marino. This on-air fund drive will start on October 15 and continue until the regional classical music station reaches its goal.

"We hope to make our goal within a few days," Marino said. "None of us wants to interrupt WSCL's programming. But we have found that this is an important way to generate needed operational funds and at the same time involve our community in the station."

Marino emphasized the importance of community support of public broadcasting, not only from the standpoint of financial support from local businesses but also the importance of individual support which will be so vital during this fund drive.

WSCL needs to raise these funds because it depends heavily upon listener support. Continued classical music programming and in-depth news reporting rely increasingly on income from listeners.

The station's broadcast fund raising announcements will explain WSCL's five-tier membership system, ranging from $35 to $500, and will describe the benefits available. In addition to some of the finest music and public affairs programming on Delmarva, membership benefits include a subscription to WSCL's Program Guide, participation in special events, opportunities to attend receptions and tours of the station.

Back in the '60s Oct. 20

Do you want to take your parents somewhere Saturday night, but you don't think that a keg party would be proper? Take them to see Barry Drake at Caruthers Hall on October 20, at 8 p.m.

The decade of the 60's was one of the most interesting periods in American history. Through all of the good and bad times, it was the music that brought people together and sometimes tore them apart. The political turmoil, the social upheaval, the Hippie Movement, the Vietnam War and the Generation Gap were all reflected in the popular music of the day.

The Beatles, Bob Dylan, Jimi Hendrix, The Supremes, the Beach Boys, Simon and Garfunkel, the Rolling Stones, Otis Redding and even the Monkees, were the sounds filling the airwaves throughout those turbulent years.

"60's Rock - When the Music Mattered," a multi-media presentation by Barry Drake, will celebrate, examine, clarify and put into perspective one of the most exciting 10 years of our music history.

Drake has often been called a walking encyclopedia of music. A graduate of Manhattan College, he has been involved in the world of music since buying his first Rock'n'Roll record in 1954. Growing up in the New York City area, he went everywhere there was music to be heard. He saw everyone from Buddy Holly and Chuck Berry at the Brooklyn Paramount in 1957, to Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin at the Fillmore in 1967. When San Francisco exploded with the "Summer of Love" in 1967, Drake was there hanging out on the streets with the Grateful Dead and Jefferson Airplane.

In the mid-60's Drake became a performer and songwriter, and in 1970 was signed to Capitol Records. Since then, he has recorded three albums and has toured the U.S. and Europe.

Not content to be only a performer, he has successfully started his own record company, booking agency and management firm. He is also a respected collector and dealer of rare records. Most recently, Drake was nominated for the National Association of Campus Activities Lecturer of the Year!

Combining his extensive knowledge of music and his abilities as a dynamic stage performer, he has succeeded in making his abilities as a dynamic best and most inspiring in the business.

SSU Open House Oct. 27

The University invites all prospective students and their families to an Open House on Saturday, October 27, from 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Originating in Holloway Hall, the Open Houses includes an informal coffee hour featuring presentations by faculty members and administrators about various aspects of the University and a walking tour of the campus and its facilities hosted by an SSU student.

The University urges all students to visit Salisbury State as part of the college selection process.

At Salisbury State 5,734 students in 30 undergraduate and six graduate programs pursue liberal arts and professional degrees.

For more information on the Open House, call the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

Commuters' Club Trip

The Commuters' Club is sponsoring a trip to Baltimore on Sunday, October 21. A van will leave the University Center parking lot (Dogwood entrance) at 9 a.m.

All interested students should contact Agata at 543-6313, or Linda at 543-6125 to leave name and social security number. Students will be responsible for their own meals.

Habitat for Humanity

Habitat for Humanity on the Lower Eastern Shore is an organization that helps low income families build decent, affordable housing.

A work team from SSU will be working again on November 3 and December 8. Everyone is welcome to join. For more information, please contact Krissy Monks, 548-4198, or Greta Trumpower, 546-4168.

Oktoberfest

The German Club is hosting its annual Oktoberfest on Wednesday, October 31, from 11 a.m. -2 p.m. on the new University Center walkway and in front of the Center. Events include performances by the SSU Dance Company hourly, various games and food. All are welcome and appreciated.

Book Rack Open Parents And Open House Weekends

The Book Rack will be open from 8:30 a.m. -6 p.m. on Parents/Spouse Day, Saturday, October 20, so that students can bring their parents/spouses into the store. A large selection of Halloween items are on display as well as the new fall line of imprinted SSU clothing.

The Book Rack will be open for the University's Open House on Saturday, October 27, from 11 a.m.-2 p.m.

Slide-Lecture By Michael Simon

Michael Simon, a Hungarian-born photographer and art historian at Beloit College, WI, will present a slide-lecture on "Hungarian Photography in Historic Context" at 7 p.m. on Thursday, October 18, in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The lecture, which will be addressed to both the campus community and the general public, is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Gallery in conjunction with the exhibition, "The Metamorphic Medium: New Photography from Hungary," the first U.S. exhibition devoted exclusively to avant-garde Hungarian photography.

The exhibition features photographs by some of Hungary's most innovative photographers, all of whom employ experimental styles and techniques to create images that challenge traditional notions of photographic objectivity and readiness. It will be on display in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, through October 18.

Outlets Bus Trip

Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, Salisbury State University, is sponsoring another bus trip to the Reading, PA, outlets on Saturday, November 10. The bus leaves from the University Center at 7 a.m. and returns at 9:30 p.m. The last bus trip was a good one and all saved money on their Christmas shopping.

Any questions, call Judy at 543-6153 or Barb at 543-6309.

Thoreau Reading Group

As an adjunct to the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center will sponsor a Thoreau reading group. During the semester, the group will meet on five Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss five different ideological views of Thoreau's writings. Discussion leaders will be: Joe Gilbert on the implications of Thoreau biography (October 18), Don Whaley on Thoreau and anarchism (November 8), Dr. Tony Whall on freedom and dignity in Thoreau (November 15), and Dr. Dave Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6). Readings will be assigned for each session.

Beginning on October 11, those participating in Gilbert's session may pick up a reading list in the University Center Office. Reading lists and selections for later sessions will also be available there at least a week before each session.

For further information contact Dr. Bill Horne at 543-6445.

Mitchell Piano Recital

Dr. Lee Mitchell, accomplished pianist and professor of music in the School of Continuing Studies, Division of Arts and Sciences at The Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, will be performing works by Johannes Brahms, Franz Liszt and Frederic Chopin at his piano recital in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Thursday, October 18, at 8 p.m.

He is the recipient of numerous prizes and awards both in piano and composition, including the Ada Arens Morawetz Award, the Rockefeller Award, the University of Delaware Piano Award and the Conservatory Award at the Peabody Institute. Recently he won the Dame Myra Hess Piano Competition in Chicago and is the recipient of the Artist Fellowship of the Delaware State Arts Council for 1991.

The University's guest soloist has appeared on television and radio and has given concerts in the United States, Greece, Holland, Germany, Hungary and Switzerland.

The recital is free and the public is encouraged to attend. For further information, call the University Center office at 543-6100.

Dance Company Meetings

SSU Dance Company Executive Council meetings are on Tuesdays, 4:30-5:30 p.m., in the Dance Studio. SSU Dance Company meeting/rehearsals are on Wednesdays, 6-7:50 p.m., in the Dance Studio.

Poland, Hungary Trips Are Available

Two academic programs in Poland and Hungary follow. The programs are sponsored by a consortium of U.S. colleges and universities and administered by the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE).

The Central School of Planning and Statistics, Warsaw, Poland: courses in Polish language, political science, culture, economics, literature, history and film; field trips and excursions in Warsaw and other Polish cities; university residence housing; up to 16 credits per semester.

The Budapest University of Economics, Budapest, Hungary: courses in Hungarian language, economics, literature and the arts, political science, history and sociology; sixteen-week program, including two overnight field trips to other cities in Hungary; assistance in finding housing; up to 16 credits per semester.

Prerequisites for both programs are an overall 2.75 GPA and six semester hours of social science courses.

Application deadline for the 1991 spring semester programs is November 1. Sponsoring schools may have earlier internal deadlines.

Contact Dr. Robert Berry in the History Department at 543-6248 for details.

Persian Gulf Colloquium

"The Crisis in the Persian Gulf" will be the topic of a University-wide colloquium sponsored by the Political Science Department on Thursday, October 18, from 3:30-5 p.m. in room 122 of Caruthers Hall.

Faculty from several departments will give short presentations on Middle Eastern, international, political and economic affairs. The tentative list of participants and topics are as follows: Dr. Robert Berry, history, "Historical Background to the Iraq-Kuwait Dispute"; Dr. Michael O'Loughlin, political science, "The Role of Arab Nationalism in the Crisis"; Dr. Phil Bosserman, sociology, "The American Response"; Dr. Benjamin Harrison, information and decision sciences, "The Global Economic Impact of the Crisis"; and Dr. Cyril Daddieh, political science, "Some Global Lessons from the Crisis."

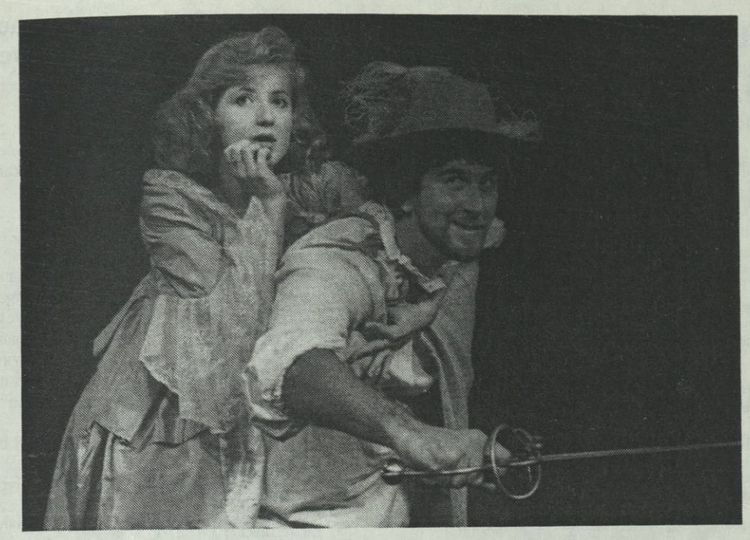
There will be question and answer period following the presentations. The colloquium is open to the entire campus community.

Pumpkin-Grams

The Social Work Club will be selling pumpkin grams from October 24-30. Pumpkins, with candy and message, will be delivered on October 30 and 31. Tables will be set up in Caruthers Hall and the University Center.

Colorectal Cancer Screening Kits

If you missed the Colorectal Cancer Screening Seminar, you can still obtain a free Colorectal Cancer Screening Kit. Colorectal cancer will develop in 145,000 people this year. If the cancer is detected in its early stages, 85% of the people may be treated successfully. If found in the advanced stages, less than 40% may be treated successfully. The colorectal screening kit is one test for the detection of cancer. It is an easy test performed in the privacy of one's home. Club Maryland is promoting the kits to help employees discover more about their personal health. To obtain your free Colorectal Home Test Kit, call the Office of Employee Health Promotion at (301) 225-4900, or Marcom 7-225-4900.



DANGEROUS DUO. Salisbury State University Theatre's season opener, "The Three Musketeers," adapted from the novel by Alexander Dumas, continues October 17-20 in Holloway Hall Auditorium. All showtimes are at 8 p.m. Pictured are Odette Weigand as the innocent Constance and Steve Collins as the king's musketeer Athos. Admission is free to SSU students, faculty and staff. For reservations contact the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228.

NYC Museum Trip Nov. 2

The University Center is sponsoring a museum bus trip to New York City on Friday, November 2. The bus will leave the Dogwood parking lot on the south side of the University Center at 6:30 a.m. and make stops at both the Museum of Modern Art at 53rd Street and 6th Avenue and the Metropolitan Museum at 83rd Street and 5th Avenue. There will be only one pick-up at the Metropolitan Museum at 5 p.m. The bus will return to the University Center at approximately midnight. Brief stops will be made for breakfast and dinner. No food or beverages will be allowed on the bus.

Sign-ups for full-time students will be at the University Center Information Desk beginning on Wednesday, October 24. The Information Desk hours are Monday-Saturday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday, noon-9 p.m. The cost will be $12. This charge will not include admission to the museums. Students with identification will be admitted at a reduced rate. Sign-ups for part-time students, faculty, staff and guests will begin on Friday, October 26, and the cost will be $15. You must be present to reserve a seat on the bus.

The Museum of Modern Art's featured exhibit will be "High and Low." This exhibition addresses the relationship between modern art and popular commercial culture. Concentrating on painting and sculpture, the exhibition is divided into four basic themes: graffiti, caricature, comics and advertising. Over 250 works by 50 artists show the transformation through which "high" art has borrowed from "low" and vice-versa throughout the 20th century. "High and Low" begins with the Cubists who first incorporated into art the elements of advertising, the popular press and everyday objects. The exhibit continues through the past decade.

The Metropolitan Museum will be featuring drawings by John Singleton Copley, 18th Century Italian drawings, American quilts and coverlets, art from central Africa, paintings by the 18th century painter, Joseph Wright of Derby, and the Shelby White and Levin Levy Collection which includes sculpture from the major cultures of the ancient Mediterranean world.

Questions concerning this upcoming trip may be answered by calling the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Folger Theatre Trip Nov. 7

On Wednesday, November 7, the University Center will sponsor a bus trip to the Shakespeare Theatre at the Folger Museum and Library in Washington, D.C., to see "Richard III" starring Stacy Keach. Sign-up for full-time students will begin at 8 a.m. on Tuesday, October 30, at the University Center Information Desk. The cost for bus and theatre ticket for full-time students is $15. Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may begin sign-up on Friday, November 2. Their cost is $20.

The bus will depart from the Dogwood parking lot, outside the University Center, at 2:30 p.m. There will be time to have dinner near the theatre before the 8 p.m. curtain. The bus will return to the University Center at approximately 1 a.m. All interested persons must sign up only for themselves. No food or beverages will be allowed on the bus.

In "Richard III" the stakes are high. Richard was the English king challenged and defeated by a distant cousin, Henry Tudor. The play centers on the rise and fall of the key figure for justifying the legitimacy of Henry's granddaughter, Elizabeth I. In this production director Michael Kahn stresses the point that although everyone in this play is obsessed with getting power, once achieved there is no possibility of using or enjoying it. The struggle to maintain becomes all-encompassing.

Stacy Keach, well-known for his CBS television series, "Mike Hammer," explains his role as Richard III. "The extent of his relish at the beginning is a barometer for the extent of his suffering at the end. The more he enjoys killing and seducing, the more desperate will be his fear of losing, the more humiliating his loneliness and death."

For further information concerning the bus trip, call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Student Halloween Dance Oct. 29

University students and campus organizations are collaborating with local businesses to sponsor a Halloween Costume Dance to benefit Joseph House Village.

The dance is Monday, October 29, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Admission is $1 in advance, $2 at the door. Off-campus students are welcome.

"We wanted to do something to help the homeless in Salisbury and the village project, which needs money, is very worthwhile. In a rural area like this people don't always see the homeless, but they are here.

"And students can do things to reach out to more of the community to give back some of what they've given us," said Ian Mooers, an SSU student and coordinator of the event.

Area businesses working with the University include Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Salisbury, which is providing refreshments, and Boscov's Department Store which is donating a portable stereo with CD player as a door prize.

Last year nearly 500 students attended the inauguaral Holloween Dance which raised some $600 for the New Born/Pediatrics Fund at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center. Mooers is hoping this year's dance will surpass $1,000.

Some 30 area businesses are expected to donate gifts; prizes will be awarded to those in costume. Sponsors of the evening include the Salisbury State Program Board, University Dining Services and the Office of Residence Life.

Music will be provided by WSUR, the student-run campus radio station.

Binder Concert Oct. 19

On Friday, October 19, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium, James Taylor is coming to town (or you might think he is) but it's Dave Binder, as close as you can get to the real thing without actually being there. Binder will be presenting "Fire and Rain - an Evening of James Taylor." If you close your eyes, you will swear you are at a James Taylor concert. Binder will be featuring "Fire and Rain," "Up on the Roof," "You've Got a Friend" and more.

Binder is more than an entertainer, he is also an environmentalist. He delivers a message that states, "It's up to the individual to protect and save the waters and beaches of our country." An active member of the Rain Forest Alliance Project and Long Term Research Institute, he reminds us that "The world around us is filled with caring people and they can make the difference."

Admission is free. For more information contact Glen Beers of the Salisbury State Program Board at 543-6197.

Pottery Sale

The Art Department is cleaning house! There will be a pottery sale and Raku firing on Wednesday, October 31, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. outside of Potomac Hall. All pottery is handmade and is priced from 50 cents to $10.

In case of rain, the sale will be in the Potomac Hall lobby.

Other Brunch dates are November 4 and 18 and December 2 and 16. Prices are $6.95 adults, $3.95 children for all you can eat.

National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week Observed

October 15-20 is National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week at SSU. Since it is also National Career Week, many activities throughout these five days are focusing on issues related to the workplace and how substance abuse can affect the workforce.

On Thursday, October 18, at 2 p.m., in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center, a panel entitled "Careers in Substance Abuse" will be highlighted. Members include Joanne Ogden of New Beginnings; Anne Riddleberger, Employee Assistance Program representative for Delmarva Power; and Cindy Shifler, Wicomico County Alcohol and Drug Prevention coordinator. They will discuss opportunities in drug treatment and prevention and human and community resources available.

Throughout the week information will be available in the University Center at information stations on job stress and substance abuse, recent laws and regulations affecting the workplace and other topics. Please plan to sponsor an activity in your classroom or to become involved in an activity or program in order to raise awareness on campus.

White Elected to Western Literature Association Executive Council

Dr. Connie White, chair of the Department of English, recently returned from the 25th Western Literature Association Conference in Denton, TX, where she was one of four WLA members elected to a three-year term on the executive council of the organization. Other members elected were Steve Tatum, University of Utah; Jan Roush, Utah State University; and Robert Thacker, St. Lawrence University. In addition to its other duties, the executive council determines the annual recipients of the Distinguished Writer and Distinguished Scholar awards.

White chaired a session on women's studies at the conference and compiled the Western Literature Syllabus Collection, a 230 page booklet of course designs on topics such as native American literature, Western film, Southwestern literature, Canadian literature, women in the West, and wilderness literature. Fifty professors from across the nation are represented in this collection, including Professors Polly Stewart, Jim Welsh, William Horne and White, all of the English Department.

The Vital Connection

Every day the media bombard us with stories about starving people in Ethiopia and other countries. Rarely do we confront the reality of the hungry in our own community. Who are the hungry? Take a moment to look around you and you will find hungry children, parents, shut-ins, laborers, and even students. While these people carry on day to day, malnourished, an abundance of good, untouched food is unnecessarily thrown into the landfills.

The problem is that there is a lack of information and organization. The Vital Connection is a group of determined students who will make the connection between the food and the people.

Join the Vital Connection on Monday, October 22, at 7 p.m. in the University Center by the fireplace, next to the Gull's Nest. For more information contact Pete Jacques (548-2817) or Krissy Monks (548-4198).

Lifschitz Lecture Oct. 22

Mask of the Chokwe peoples of Zaire and Angola

Dr. Edward Lifschitz, curator of education at the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Art, will lecture on "Kingly Things: Aristocratic Traditions in African Art" on Monday, October 22, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center.

Lifschitz, who has held his current position since 1982, is responsible for the development, planning and supervision of the museum's symposia, workshops, institutes, lectures, film series and other programs.

From 1977-82 he was academic studies coordinator of the Smithsonian's National Museum of African Art. There he conducted classes at local universities and adult education centers, museum seminars and symposia, and summer institutes for university professors.

Lifschitz was archivist for the Smithsonian's Eliot Elisofon Archives from 1977-85, a post he held while also directing the Museum of African Art's education programs. As archivist he supervised a National Endowment for the Humanities-funded project to make the photographic collection more accessible to the public and to scholars; developed loan slide programs for teachers; initiated development of a teaching slide collection; and oversaw the steady growth of the photographic and film collections.

He has taught the undergraduate course, "Art of Black America," as an adjunct faculty member for Georgetown University's Department of Fine Arts since 1978. He has also taught courses on African art in Georgetown's Liberal Studies Degree Program and its School for Summer and Continuing Education.

Lifschitz has conceived, developed and curated several exhibitions, the most recent of which was "Patterns of Life: West African Strip Weaving Traditions." That 1987 exhibit at the National Museum of African Art features a 12-minute audio-visual presentation.

He has numerous publications to his credit and has done extensive field research in Africa, Europe and Latin America.

Lifschitz earned his B.A. in art history from Brooklyn College and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Columbia University, both also in art history.

Lifschitz's presentation, sponsored by the University Center and the University Forum's Cultural Events Committee, is free and open to the public.

For more information, call the University Center at 543-6100.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

With an 8-1 win over Frostburg State last Saturday, the women's tennis squad completed the regular season with a 6-1 record and a five-match winning streak. The Gulls head into this Saturday's ESAC Tournament as the top seed based on their 3-0 conference record. Lisa Trelease has played consistently outstanding tennis as the number one singles player and has also teamed with Millie Baer for most of SSU's number one doubles matches. Baer has played well at the number two singles spot most of the season, with Kathy Marshall, Nikki Lee and Katie Borden also playing solid tennis throughout much of the fall season.

The soccer team continues to pursue the ESAC title with an important home game against Frostburg State on Saturday at 11 a.m. Both teams are tied for second in the conference standings with 3-1 records, trailing unbeaten Shenandoah. A second loss by either team will likely eliminate it from the championship chase. Salisbury's last conference game, last Wednesday, saw the Gulls blast Lincoln, 7-2, as Kevin Jackson registered three goals and David Kidd added two.

"You have a friend in Pennsylvania" is the field hockey squad's motto for the week as the Sea Gulls play three games north of the Mason-Dixon line. Following Tuesday's game at Gettysburg, SSU visits Shippensburg on Thursday and Kutztown on Saturday. Salisbury closes the regular season at home on Wednesday, October 24, against Mary Washington.

The volleyball team improved its record to 24-14 by winning five of six matches and claiming second place at last weekend's Gallaudet Tournament in Washington, D.C. SSU plays its final regular season competition in this Saturday's Cabrini Tournament. The Gulls will then seek their fourth consecutive ESAC championship when they host the conference tournament on October 27.

The cross country teams run in their only home meet of the season on Saturday as they host the SSU Tidewater Invitational. The race begins at 11 a.m. at the City Park in Salisbury.

The football team hosts Montclair State in Saturday's Parents Day game, set for 1:30 p.m. at Sea Gull Stadium. The Gulls scared national power Wagner last weekend, trailing just 9-6 in the fourth quarter before losing 23-6. QB Len Annetta passed for 150 yards and TE Scott Cook caught five passes for 52 yards to lead the Sea Gull offense. The defense forced five Wagner turnovers and also blocked one field goal.

Finally, can winter be far behind? The men's and women's basketball teams started practice on Monday. Coach Ward Lambert begins his 21st year with the Gulls, while Bridget Bentshetler starts her first year as coach of the women's team.

Dance Director Copyrights Historic Dance Reconstruction

Dance Director Copyrights Historic Dance Reconstruction New physical education faculty member and dance program director Victoria Hutchinson was awarded a U.S. Library of Congress copyright registration for her reconstructive version of Hexentanz (Witch Dance), created in 1926 by German choreographer Mary Wigman. The work will be performed in May at SSU.

Hutchinson attended the National Association Schools of Dance 10th Annual Meeting September 20-23 in Richmond, VA. Over 100 dance executives in higher education participated. Topics included dance in general education and a management seminar.

Whall Consults For Del. Humanities

Dr. R. A. Whall, Honors director and professor of English, has been invited to serve as a consultant to the Delaware Humanities Council. At a meeting in Newark last week Whall and faculty from several area schools developed a grant proposal for a reading program in Shore libraries which brings scholars and members of Shore communities together to discuss and debate enduring works of literature, philosophy and other cultural texts.

Whall was asked initially to lead discussions on John Barth. Since then he has led sessions on Barth, T. S. Eliot, D. H. Lawrence and John Fowles. The program is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

"The purpose of the meeting this week was to select new programs and begin the process of describing them so that the endowment will fund them," Whall said. He has been asked to select and defend a series on international fiction which evolved from his proposal for a series on African culture.

Whaley Guest Lectures

Donald Whaley, instructor in the Department of History, has been invited to speak at Tennessee Technological University on October 18. Whaley's presentation, "Free Love and the Culture of Personality in America," is part of the guest lecture series sponsored by Tennessee Tech's College of Arts and Sciences.

The presentation will examine the "culture of personality" that dominates American life in the 20th century. Characteristic of this culture is the idea that success and happiness are to be gained by projecting an attractive image and by cultivating a unique personal style that will please others and will help one gain notice in the crowd. The presentation will trace the origins of this culture of personality to certain 19th-century radical movements, especially the free love movement.

Whaley is also lecturing this month in Bethany Beach, DE, in the "What America Reads" series sponsored by the Delaware Library Association.

This summer Whaley was one of 10 scholars chosen by the Delaware Humanities Council to be a member of the Delaware Humanities Forum Speakers Bureau for 1990-1992.

White Water Rafting

The next Outdoor Club meeting is scheduled for Monday, October 22, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. All students are welcome.

Sign-ups for rafting in Ohiopyle, PA, on October 26-28 will be taken Monday evening. If anyone is interested in this trip, please attend the meeting on Monday, October 22, at 9 p.m. for more information. Information about the Outdoor Photographic Clinic at Assateague National Park on November 3 will also be presented during the meeting.

All Outdoor Club meetings are scheduled for Mondays in Nanticoke Room A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the fall semester include a presentation on mountaineering by Lou Whitaker on November 5, rock climbing in Great Falls, VA, on November 11, a slide presentation on the desert southwest and backpacking clinic by Cindy Ross, writer for Backpacker Magazine, on November 12, and backpacking on Hawk Mountain November 16-18. (Dates are subject to change.)

Geography Opening

Salisbury State University is seeking an assistant professor/instructor in physical geography with a strong background in biogeography and environmental planning/resource management.

Applicants must be committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching, including introductory courses, and to involving undergraduates in research. This is a tenure-track position available for fall 1991. Ph.D. is preferred; A.B.D. with dissertation in final stages will be considered. The ability to communicate effectively in English, both orally and in writing, is essential.

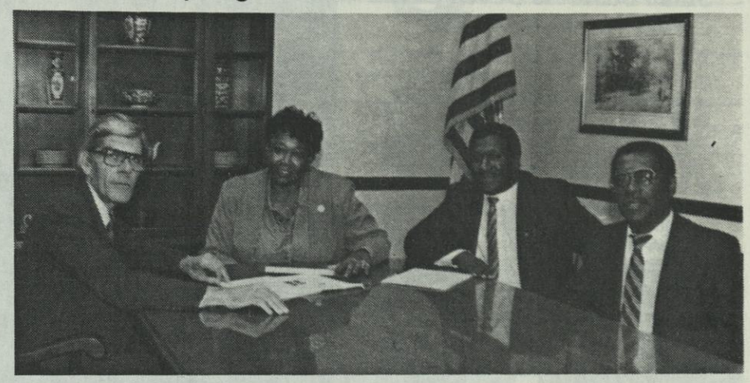
Salisbury High School Association Gift to SSU



FUNDS GIVEN. SSU President, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, accepts funds for a $500 scholarship from members of the Salisbury High School Association. Shown from left are: Bellavance; Phyllis Hardy, SHSA recording secretary; Leon Burks, SSU associate dean of admissions and financial aid and a life member of the SHSA; and Louis Givens, life member. The scholarship will be used to defray the cost of books for black students at SSU.

The Salisbury High School Association, whose membership was affiliated with the former all black high school before its closing in 1966, recently presented a scholarship gift of $500 to the University.

The fourth contribution of its kind made by the association to SSU, the funds are used to help defray the cost of books for black students attending the University. Receiving the gift on behalf of Salisbury State was Dr. Bellavance and Leon Burks, associate dean of admissions and financial aid at the University.

"It is a way of showing the association's commitment to education," said Burks, a life member of the association.

In addition to enhancing the education of black students at Salisbury State, the association has also made contributions to the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, Wor-Wic Tech Community College, Howard University and Bowie State University, and to the NAACP Jubilee Day and the Wicomico County branch of the NAACP.

A sponsor and supporter of many youth activities, the association's major involvement is with the Martin Luther King, Jr. Youth Program. Others include Halloween parties and treats, Christmas drives and back to school activities in conjunction with other area organizations such as VFW Post 10159, Queen City Lodge, Friends Unlimited and the Salisbury Advisory Youth Council.

Donations are also made to many area organizations including the Chipman Foundation, the Tri-County Alumni, SHORE UP!, the Foster Grandparent Program, the Maryland State Teachers Association, Friends Unlimited, the Wesley Temple Hunger Program, the Afro-American Society of Delaware, the Christian Shelter and many local churches.

The association, in existence since 1983, has about 400 members including former students, staff and faculty. Open meetings are held quarterly and the group holds an annual convention each June.

For more information on the Salisbury High School Association, write to Elizabeth Sykes, P.O. Box 4181, Salisbury, MD, 21801.

Office Secretary

Applications are being accepted for a full-time, 12-month contractual secretarial position for the Office of Minority Affairs. There are no state benefits involved.

Excellent typing skills, good telephone manners and clerical skills are essential. A knowledge of WordPerfect is preferred. The salary is $7-8 per hour.

Interested applicants should send a resume, along with names and addresses of three references to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, Maryland 21801. Application deadline is October 17.

Math Faculty Published

Dr. Kathleen Shannon and Dr. Homer Austin, both of the Department of Mathematical Sciences, have had papers accepted for publication in Primus, a refereed mathematics journal of national distribution. Shannon's paper is titled "Argument for Increasing the Scope of the Mathematics Curriculum." Austin's paper is titled "Chain Rule for Derivatives Revisited."

Pre-professional Graduate Health Career Students

The Graduate Health Advisory Committee announces the fall 1990 interview schedule for students wishing to support their application for admission to graduate health professional programs with a composite faculty recommendation letter. Most professional programs now require such a recommendation.

Interviews will be conducted on Mondays at 5 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 103. Please schedule an appointment with Dawn Johnson in the Biological Sciences Departmental Office (Devilbiss Hall, room 236) at least one week in advance.

Student Teacher Applications

Student teaching applications for students who are not enrolled in methods classes must be completed and turned in to Sharon Clark, director of Field Experiences, by Friday, October 26. Applications are available in the Education Office, Caruthers Hall.

Small Business Development Center Network at SSU

SSU J. Randall Evans, secretary of economic and employment development (DEED), announced the expansion of the Maryland Small Business Development Center (SBDC) Network to the Eastern Shore, during opening ceremonies for The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business. The Perdue School will serve as headquarters for the new center.

"Entrepreneurs and small business owners on the Eastern Shore now will have access to the kinds of assistance they need for start-up and expansion," said Evans, noting that the SBDC Network currently has regional offices serving southern, western and central Maryland. The Eastern Shore sub-center will have 12 satellite offices in Caroline, Dorchester, Kent, Queen Anne's, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico and Worcestor counties.

Evans noted that the Eastern Shore SBDC is financed by $178,500 in grants from DEED and the U.S. Small Business Administration. "This is a partnership effort between state, federal and local governments, together with the private sector," said Evans.

Additional support will be provided by Salisbury State University, Second National Federal Savings Bank, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, Washington College, the Talbot County Chamber of Commerce, the Queen Anne's County office of the Department of Economic and Employment Development, county libraries in Denton and Federalsburg, the Dorchester County Commissioners, and the Pocomoke City government.

According to A. Elliott Rittenhouse, director of the Maryland SBDC Network, the Eastern Shore sub-center has received strong support from the private sector and the academic community. "We expect great things from this new operation on the Eastern Shore," he said. "It will provide small businesses with the kind of focused help they need."

Dr. Richard Palmer, interim director of the Eastern Shore SBDC Network sub-center, said the goal is to establish "an active, vibrant network of small business owners on the shore and to provide a wealth of support and resources." Palmer said small business roundtables in each county will facilitate interaction between business owners. He said a small business owner can call any of the SBDC network offices and receive free counseling, as well as attend a wide variety of seminars on starting a small business.

"We will tap the considerable resources of the area, including the local chapters of the Service Corps for Retired Executives (SCORE), local chambers of commerce, and special programs at our educational institutions," said Palmer.

In addition to the Perdue School of Business where senior business students will research technical problems unique to small businesses, seminars relating to the special needs of small businesses will be coordinated by the new sub-center at Wor-Wic Tech Community College, Chesapeake College, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, and Washington College.

The Eastern Shore SBDC Network sub-center and its 12 satellite offices are expected to be fully operational by October. The toll-free number is 1-800-999-SBDC.

this community with high quality graduates trained with state-of-the-art equipment by experts in their field of business."

Many of the rooms and offices in the Perdue School bear the names of businesses and individuals who have made a financial investment in the school.

"A major gift to the Perdue School is a solid and lasting investment in this region's future," said Robert Gearhart, director of Institutional Advancement at the University. "A named room secures that investment. It is a visible assurance that the donor is a permanent shareholder in this historic venture."

To date, individuals who have made room-naming donations to the Perdue School include: H. Furlong Baldwin, Mercantile Bankshares Corp., Baltimore; Mike Bigan, Ogletown Mountain, PA; Walter Brittingham, Buyers' Marketing Service, Inc., Salisbury; Vivian Bull, Pocomoke City; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Conaway, Seaford, DE; Anthony Gilkerson and Donna Crockett-Gilkerson, Gillis/Gilkerson Builders, Salisbury; O. Palmer Gillis, III, Gillis/Gilkerson Builders, Salisbury; Richard Hazel, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., Salisbury; Irving and Tommy Kidwell, College Park Contracting, Inc., College Park; Klein Leister, Pocomoke City; Ken Maurer, Campbell Soup Co., Salisbury; Mercantile/Peninsula Bank, Salisbury; Dr. and Mrs. Steve Peters, Bryn Mawr, PA; Gary Piepenbring, Phoenix, MD; John and Patricia Purcell, Giuffrida Associates, Inc., Rockville; Paul Rendine, W.H. Newbold's Son & Company, Inc. Salisbury; Lee and Fran Ruwitch, Miami, FL; Salisbury Moose Lodge; John Dale and Ann Showell, Ocean City; Arthur Webster, Salisbury; and Bill Wyatt, Wyatt Wholesale, Inc., Salisbury.

Other donors to the Perdue School are C.W. Amos Company, Richard Bernstein, Choptank Electric Corporation, Delmarva Power, Grumman Corporation, Hebron Savings Bank, Tracy Holland Memorial Scholarship, Loyola Bank, Thomas Mullan, Herb Parks, Purchasing Management Association, Rotary Scholarships, Second National Bank and Dr. Robert Settle.

The Perdue School has 1,100 undergraduate and graduate students. Undergraduates pursue degree programs in accounting, business administration and economics as well as concentrations in finance, marketing, management and information systems management. The business administration major is the most popular on campus, attracting over 20 percent of the undergraduate students.

A variety of options are available to the M.B.A. student, including the recently initiated and highly popular Executive M.B.A., an intensive 20-month program for individuals who currently hold management positions.

Architects for the project were Colimore/Clarke Associates of Annapolis and Baltimore. The general contractor was Gillis/Gilkerson Builders of Salisbury.

"Salisbury State University continues to be very successful in its quest for excellence among new administrators hired at the institution," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs.

Butler is understandably happy with the selections that the screening and search committees have made for the nine new administrative positions at SSU this academic year. "In almost every case, they represent first choice selections," he added.

Dr. Phillip David Creighton, former associate dean of the College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences at Towson State University, has been named dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology. He comes to SSU with three outstanding faculty awards for teaching and research during his 15 years as a biology professor at TSU. Creighton founded and co-directed the Towson Institute of Animal Behavior which brought a multi-disciplinary approach, including psychology, to the study of animals. He received his Ph.D. from Colorado State University.

The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business is proud to have Dr. Elliot Howard Kline as its visiting dean. Kline, who earned his Ph.D. from the University of Colorado, was visiting dean at the University of Baltimore, dean of the College of Business Administration at the University of Denver and first dean of the School of Business and Public Administration at the University of the Pacific, CA. His teaching experience spans over 22 years.

White, Erskine To Edit Textbook Series

Two English professors at the University have signed a contract with Rutgers University Press to edit and oversee publication of a series of textbooks to be offered to colleges and universities throughout the country.

Called the "American Women Writers Casebook Series," the project is the brainchild of Drs. Connie L. White and Thomas L. Erskine, both of SSU's English Department.

Rutgers Press has appointed them editors of the series, which will deal exclusively with celebrated and lesser known American women writers of the 19th and 20th centuries. The first three hardcover volumes are due for publication in fall 1991.

Working with the two SSU editors on the project will be an advisory board of three nationally known scholars: Dr. Barbara Christian, professor of English, University of California, Berkeley; Dr. Paul Lauter, professor of English, Trinity College, Hartford, CT; and Dr. Martha Banta, professor of English, UCLA.

Few textbooks on women writers now exist, said White, who is chair of the English Department. She said, "The series should encourage appropriate recognition of them in and beyond the university setting."

The idea for the series grew out of two casebooks, "The White Heron," and "The Yellow Wallpaper," developed by Drs. White and Erskine for freshmen English classes here. The books were used with such success that White proposed to Rutgers Press that it publish a volume with a similar format for wider distribution.

"The Yellow Wallpaper" will be among the first three titles to be published next fall, White said. It features a short story by a 19th century writer, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, along with biographical material about the author and a number of commentaries on her work by well-known critics.

The other volumes in the series will follow a similar format. Each will contain a well-crafted short story and include biographical matter and commentary. Editors for each book are being selected.

The casebooks are expected to have a wide appeal among colleges and universities where freshman English classes require students to write a beginners research paper.

Each volume will provide the mass of material needed for such a paper. The student will be required to read the text, select and organize material around a theme and write the paper.

Outward Bound Program Fosters Self-Confidence

University Center Director Dave Ganoe wants to help new students learn more about themselves and also provide them with different alternatives for facing life's challenges regardless of the limitations or crutches real or imaginary that they carry around with them. He hopes active involvement in a wilderness experience, based on the Outward Bound program, will force disabled and ablebodied University students to accept challenges they never expected to face.

"One of the goals of the University's faculty and staff is to help students change and grow

Renowned Photographer Is Artist-In-Residence For Art Department

Salvatore Mancini, an internationally renowned photographer whose photographs of American Indian rock art were shown at Salisbury State's University Gallery last year, will be artist-in-residence in the Art Department for four weeks this fall, from October 22 - November 16.

His residency has been made possible, in part, by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council and by funds from the endowment of the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

He will teach an intensive course for upper-level photography students, plus lecture or conduct workshops in various classes in the Art Department. He will also be available to speak on the various topics he has photographed to students in other departments at Salisbury State, to students in the public schools, and to various community organizations in Salisbury and Wicomico County.

In addition, the Atrium Gallery, located next to the bookstore in the University Center, will exhibit a selection of his photographs, and eventually those of his students, from October 24-November 13.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention December Grads

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Student Halloween Dance Oct. 29

University students and campus organizations are collaborating with local businesses to sponsor a Halloween Costume Dance to benefit Joseph House Village.

The dance is Monday, October 29, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Admission is $1 in advance, $2 at the door. Off-campus students are welcome.

"We wanted to do something to help the homeless in Salisbury and the village project, which needs money, is very worthwhile. In a rural area like this people don't always see the homeless, but they are here.

"And students can do things to reach out to more of the community to give back some of what they've given us," said Ian Mooers, an SSU student and coordinator of the event.

Area businesses working with the University include Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Salisbury, which is providing refreshments, and Boscov's Department Store which is donating a portable stereo with CD player as a door prize.

Last year nearly 500 students attended the inauguaral Holloween Dance which raised some $600 for the New Born/Pediatrics Fund at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center. Mooers is hoping this year's dance will surpass $1,000.

Some 30 area businesses are expected to donate gifts; prizes will be awarded to those in costume. Sponsors of the evening include the Salisbury State Program Board, University Dining Services and the Office of Residence Life.

Music will be provided by WSUR, the student-run campus radio station.

For more information contact Mooers at 546-3790 or Michael Bellina at 548-4001.

Pottery Sale

The Art Department is cleaning house! There will be a pottery sale and Raku firing on Wednesday, October 31, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. outside of Potomac Hall. All pottery is handmade and is priced from 50 cents to $10.

In case of rain, the sale will be in the Potomac Hall lobby.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

NYC Museum Trip Nov. 2

The University Center is sponsoring a museum bus trip to New York City on Friday, November 2. The bus will leave the Dogwood parking lot on the south side of the University Center at 6:30 a.m. and make stops at both the Museum of Modern Art at 53rd Street and 6th Avenue and the Metropolitan Museum at 83rd Street and 5th Avenue. There will be only one pick-up at the Metropolitan Museum at 5 p.m. The bus will return to the University Center at approximately midnight. Brief stops will be made for breakfast and dinner. No food or beverages will be allowed on the bus.

Sign-ups for full-time students will be at the University Center Information Desk beginning on Wednesday, October 24. The Information Desk hours are Monday-Saturday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday, noon-9 p.m. The cost will be $12. This charge will not include admission to the museums. Students with identification will be admitted at a reduced rate. Sign-ups for part-time students, faculty, staff and guests will begin on Friday, October 26, and the cost will be $15. You must be present to reserve a seat on the bus.

The Museum of Modern Art's featured exhibit will be "High and Low." This exhibition addresses the relationship between modern art and popular commercial culture. Concentrating on painting and sculpture, the exhibition is divided into four basic themes: graffiti, caricature, comics and advertising. Over 250 works by 50 artists show the transformation through which "high" art has borrowed from "low" and vice-versa throughout the 20th century. "High and Low" begins with the Cubists who first incorporated into art the elements of advertising, the popular press and everyday objects. The exhibit continues through the past decade.

The Metropolitan Museum will be featuring drawings by John Singleton Copley, 18th Century Italian drawings, American quilts and coverlets, art from central Africa, paintings by the 18th century painter, Joseph Wright of Derby, and the Shelby White and Levin Levy Collection which includes sculpture from the major cultures of the ancient Mediterranean world.

Questions concerning this upcoming trip may be answered by calling the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Pre-professional Graduate Health Career Students

The Graduate Health Advisory Committee announces the fall 1990 interview schedule for students wishing to support their application for admission to graduate health professional programs with a composite faculty recommendation letter. Most professional programs now require such a recommendation.

Interviews will be conducted on Mondays at 5 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 103. Please schedule an appointment with Dawn Johnson in the Biological Sciences Departmental Office (Devilbiss Hall, room 236) at least one week in advance.

Student Teacher Applications

Student teaching applications for students who are not enrolled in methods classes must be completed and turned in to Sharon Clark, director of Field Experiences, by Friday, October 26. Applications are available in the Education Office, Caruthers Hall.

A selection of photographs by internationally renowned photographer, Salvatore Mancini, will be exhibited in the Atrium Gallery at Salisbury State University from October 24 - November 13. The Atrium Gallery, which is located next to the bookstore in the University Center, is open daily from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

Oktoberfest Oct. 31

A Berlin Wall and new Mercedes-Benz along with sausage, sauerkraut and strudel are part of this year's student Oktoberfest at Salisbury State University from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Wednesday, October 31.

Sponsored by the German Club in cooperation with the Modern Languages Department, this year's party commemorating German reunification will be held in the new colonnaded mall beside Devilbiss Science Hall.

Oktoberfest began in Munich Germany, according to club advisor Klaudia Thompson, and celebrates the end of harvest. Traditionally the 10-day festival is also noteworthy for its consumption of beer. At the SSU celebration there will be a "near beer" house for non-alcoholic beer and Pepsi, a German buffet including bratwurst, sauerkraut, red cabbage, potato salad and soft pretzels, along with fresh tortes, strudel and other pastries.

The SSU Dance Company in traditional German costumes will perform at 11 a.m., noon and 1 p.m. in the main pavillion of the mall. Nearby will be a seven-foot high mockup of the Berlin Wall.

A variety of town and gown organizations have joined in the fun this year. According to student organizer David Hooper, Towne Motors of Salisbury will have some $200,000 worth of Mercedes Benz on display, VIA Travel will have informaiton about tours of Germany, and the SSU Choir which traveled in Germany earlier this year, and the French and Spanish Clubs also will have tables.

Hooper said many area businesses have donated free coupons and gifts. WSUR, the student radio station, will also broadcast.

While umpah music is playing, students again get a chance to take out mid-term frustrations in what has become a popular campus tradition, the sponge throw. A faculty member volunteers to stick his or her head through a wooden cutout of an Alpine figure, and students throw wet sponges at the professor. SSU has been celebrating Oktoberfest for over a decade.

"A surprisingly large" segment of the local Shore population has German roots, Thompson added, and the public is invited to celebrate Oktoberfest with the students.

Thoreau Society Secretary Gives Lecture, Workshop

Dr. Walter Harding, distinguished professor emiritus at State University College at Geneseo, NY, and secretary of the Thoreau Society, will continue the Thoreau '90 Series during the week of October 29. All events will be held in the Wicomico Room of the University Center across from the bookstore.

He will deliver a lecture entitled "Five Ways of Looking at 'Walden'" on Tuesday, October 30, at 7:30 p.m. His presentation will be an analysis of the book from five different viewpoints demonstrating its widespread appeal to varying groups of people.

On Wednesday, October 31, from 1-4 p.m. Harding will co-chair a Teaching/Reading Thoreau Workshop with Dr. John Wenke of the English faculty at SSU which will include discussion groups led by SSU faculty.

Participating in the workshop will be Dr. Robert Durwood Madison, associate professor of English at the United States Naval Academy.

Last year Madison directed a Thoreau excursion in which 38 participants retraced the Thoreau brothers' homeward journey on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers. To pre-register for the workshop, please call 543-6100.

Harding's participation will end with his lecture, "Thoreau: Civil Disobedience," a discussion on the background of Thoreau's essay, a brief analysis of the essay itself and its influence over the years. This lecture also will be held in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, November 1.

Harding earned his Ph.D. from Rutgers University and his Doctorate in Literature from State University of New York. A former principal from Northfield, MA, he has taught English for the past 43 years and has an extensive list of publications on Thoreau to his credit.

All events are free and open to the public. Call Donna Forgash at 543-6100 for more information.

Humanities Council Grant

The Maryland Humanities Council has just announced a grant of more than $7,000 to the University for a project entitled "Columbus - His World and Ours." It is believed to be the largest grant ever awarded by the Maryland Humanities Council to the University.

The grant provides for a one-day workshop for teachers to be held on January 25. The workshop encompasses many significant aspects of Columbus, his life and his place in history as well as his continuing legacy and his influence on the shape of the world today. The purpose of the workshop is to help teachers develop a sense of participation in the Quincentenary of the discovery of America. Teachers will also take back to their schools the results of the most recent scholarship on Columbus, as well as materials for converting that scholarship into units of study and for organizing activities to celebrate the Quincentenary in their schools.

Scholars representing several areas of study—geography, history, science and languages—will lead the workshop. Teachers from all counties on the Eastern Shore of Maryland are expected to attend.

"Columbus - His World and Ours" is directed by William Palmer and Nayland Page, both professors at Salisbury State. For more information call 543-6522.

SWAC Grants

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council is accepting grant applications from qualifying arts organizations through Friday, November 9. Applications for events taking place between January 1 and June 30 are eligible.

To be eligible, organizations must be incorporated, not-for-profit agencies. Organizations must show that the activity is in the field of the arts, is of community benefit, is fiscally sound and has the potential for self-support in the future. For more information and new applications and guidelines contact the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

Also available are Director's Grants. These mini-grants are for funds of $100 or less and can be submitted at any time; there are no deadlines. For an easy one-page grant application contact the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, a not-for-profit organization that supports the arts in Salisbury and Wicomico County, awards these cash grants in partnership with the Maryland State Arts Council, in support of performances, exhibits and other arts related activities sponsored by local organizations.

Alzheimer's Orientation Classes

The Baltimore/Central Maryland chapter of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association will sponsor a series of Alzheimer's orientation classes for the fall/winter months.

These two-hour programs are geared especially for family members of persons newly diagnosed with Dementia but may also be of help to professional caregivers.

Dr. Edna M. Stilwell, professor in the Department of Nursing, will direct the Eastern Shore meeting which will be on Saturday, November 3, 1-3 p.m. at the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, Power Professional Building, room 219. There is no registration fee but pre-registration is required.

For more information, please call the Alzheimer's Association at 435-4933.

Folger Theatre Trip Nov. 7

On Wednesday, November 7, the University Center will sponsor a bus trip to the Shakespeare Theatre at the Folger Museum and Library in Washington, D.C., to see "Richard III" starring Stacy Keach. Sign-up for full-time students will begin at 8 a.m. on Tuesday, October 30, at the University Center Information Desk. The cost for bus and theatre ticket for full-time students is $15. Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may begin sign-up on Friday, November 2. Their cost is $20.

The bus will depart from the Dogwood parking lot, outside the University Center, at 2:30 p.m. There will be time to have dinner near the theatre before the 8 p.m. curtain. The bus will return to the University Center at approximately 1 a.m. All interested persons must sign up only for themselves. No food or beverages will be allowed on the bus.

In "Richard III" the stakes are high. Richard was the English king challenged and defeated by a distant cousin, Henry Tudor. The play centers on the rise and fall of the key figure for justifying the legitimacy of Henry's granddaughter, Elizabeth I. In this production director Michael Kahn stresses the point that although everyone in this play is obsessed with getting power, once achieved there is no possibility of using or enjoying it. The struggle to maintain becomes all-encompassing.

Stacy Keach, well-known for his CBS television series, "Mike Hammer," explains his role as Richard III. "The extent of his relish at the beginning is a barometer for the extent of his suffering at the end. The more he enjoys killing and seducing, the more desperate will be his fear of losing, the more humiliating his loneliness and death."

For further information concerning the bus trip, call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Needed: Student Tutors

A "Volunteer Tutoring Corps" is being formed and participants are needed. If interested, help to plan the program!. An organization meeting will be held Tuesday, October 30 at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 132.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Saturday, October 27	ESAC Volleyball Tournament at SSU	8:30 a.m.
	Cross Country at Mason/Dixon Meet	11 a.m.
	Football at Hampden-Sydney 1:30 p.m.
	Soccer vs. Cabrini	2 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

The Gulls are still in the hunt! That was the good news from last Saturday's 1-0 soccer win over Frostburg State as SSU improved to 4-1 in the conference and kept a share of the ESAC lead. Kevin Jackson's goal with just 4:37 remaining proved to be the game winner, and Greg Maney made 14 saves to record the shutout. Salisbury hosts Cabrini at 2 p.m. on Saturday in what could be the deciding game in the conference title chase.

Also on Saturday, the volleyball team will try to make it four straight ESAC Championships as it hosts the 1990 conference tournament. The Gulls are 30-14 on the season following their championship in last weekend's Cabrini Tournament. Heidi Smid, Angela Waters and Shelly Covington each registered eight kills as SSU downed Delaware Tech in the finals. Saturday's ESAC Tournament in Maggs will begin at 8:30 a.m. and continue in round-robin style through 7 p.m. SSU, this year's top-seed among the six conference squads, has won the championship each of last three seasons.

The field hockey team, ranked fourth in the nation, closed out its regular-season on Wednesday against Mary Washington and now awaits its bid to the NCAA Tournament. Bids to the 16-team field will be announced on Monday, October 29, with first-round action beginning Friday, November 2, on campus sites. The Gulls have qualified for the NCAA Tournament in each of the past six seasons, winning the championship in 1986 and advancing to the Final Four two other times.

Following its most successful regular season in several years, the women's tennis team placed third at last weekend's ESAC Championships with 30 total points, narrowly finishing behind champion Marywood (32.5) and second-place Frostburg (32). SSU's Lisa Trelease was named the tournament's MVP however as she captured the conference championship in the number one singles bracket and also teamed with Millie Baer to win the number one doubles title. Nikki Lee also placed second in the number five singles draw and Katie Borden claimed second in the number six singles draw.

Junior Erin Green was SSU's top woman finisher in last weekend's Tidewater Cross Country Meet in Salisbury, placing fourth in a time of 19:16 over the 5K course.. The Gulls placed second as a team behind American University. Tim Smith was Salisbury's top male runner, finishing with a time of 26:49 over the men's 8K course to claim fifth place. Rob Freshwater was SSU's next highest finisher, in 20th place with a time of 28:58. Both men's and women's teams compete in the Mason/Dixon Championship Meet in Frostburg this Saturday.

The Gull football team makes its final road trip of the season on Saturday, visiting the Tigers of Hampden-Sydney (VA). SSU fell to Montclair State last week, 30-15, and hopes to avenge last year's 31-27 loss to H-S. Salisbury will close out the 1990 season at home against Newport News Apprentice on November 3.

Cashier

The Salisbury State University Book Rack has an immediate opening for a full-time cashier. This position requires a high school diploma or equivalent. It is a contractual position with no paid benefits, paying $5.50 an hour.

Interested applicants may apply by submitting a resume and completing an application in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University no later than November 1.

Locksmith

Salisbury State University has an opening for a journeyman level locksmith. Requirements include eighth grade education and four years experience in locksmith work. High school diploma or equivalent is highly desirable.

This is a full-time state position with a starting salary of $19,297 and a full benefit package. Normal working hours are from 3-11:30 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Interested applicants may apply by submitting a resume and completing an application in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University no later than November 1.

Weight Lifting Club

A new club has formed on campus. The club, organized to allow students, faculty and staff who use the free weight room in Maggs a voice in the weight room's use and development, meets Tuesday, October 23, at 7 p.m. in Maggs 204.

The club has initiated two programs to increase the use of the free weight room. The first program, a partner board, allows lifters seeking a training partner to sign the board, thereby creating an exchange forum. The second program seeks to unlock some of the mystery surrounding the use of free weights. Experienced members will conduct mini-seminars on the proper use of the equipment in the free weight room. The program will be done on a trial basis, its success depending on the number of respondents.

These seminars are limited to five people per session and are free of charge. No experience is necessary; both women and men are invited. Those interested can sign up in the Campus Recreation Office or call 543-6350 for more information.

If you are an experienced lifter or someone looking to start lifting free weights on a regular basis, check into the SSU Weight Lifting Club.

Colorectal Cancer Screening Kits

Those who missed the "Colorectal Cancer Screening Seminar" can still obtain a free colorectal cancer screening kit. Contact the Personnel Office at 543-6035.

Since this type of cancer is occurring almost as frequently in women as men, everyone who feels they may be at risk is encouraged to pick up a kit. The relatively easy test can then be performed in the privacy of one's home.

AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge

AT&T and Wall Street are back at Salisbury State University this fall with stock market lessons that are true to life.

Starting November 1, over 15,000 college students representing over 500 colleges and universities including Salisbury begin competition in the third annual AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge.

For the next four months each of the students will be set up with a fictional $500,000 brokerage account, complete with a toll-free AT&T 800 service line to make trades with. They will buy real stocks at real-time prices.

The Challenge was designed as a fun and exciting way of providing students with a realistic, "hands-on" experience in the financial markets which are at the center of all business activity today. Students participating in the Challenge will learn about the different industries in corporate America, what companies are in the news and on the rise, and of the ever changing business and economic trends.

Each month students will receive portfolio statements and a newsletter with exclusive stories and rankings of the top students, colleges, states and professors. Students won't get a letter grade, just a profit and loss statement that brings home the lessons they've learned.

USA Today, a co-sponsor, provides weekly coverage and features the top student performers, colleges, high school and educators every Monday throughout the event, in the Money section.

Over $200,000 in total prizes will be awarded. The 10 students with the highest portfolio values on February 28 will win Bahamas vacations compliments of the Bahamas Ministry of Tourism and the Holiday Inn Lucaya, where winners will enjoy a week of fun in the sun. Ten cash scholarships will be awarded with $25,000 going to the top collegiate performer. In addition, there are hundreds of monthly prizes from Champion USA.

"I strongly believe that every student is a winner regardless of whether they end up bankrupt or in the Bahamas," said Dr. K. Khazeh, assistant professor of finance in the Perdue School of Business and SSU Challenge coordinator. "The Challenge is an excellent supplement and opportunity for our students to apply some of the business principles learned in the classroom, what no textbook can teach.

"In addition this year we have some of our professors participating in the Challenge against other professors in the Educator's division," Khazeh added.

Speaker Nominations

The 1990 Honors Convocation will have as its speaker a graduate of Salisbury State University.

The committee is seeking nominations of prospective alumni speakers who could serve as appropriate role models and who will be selected based upon the following criteria: must have graduated at least five or more years ago from Salisbury State University in an approved program of study; must currently be successfully employed in a career or business which reflects the standards and goals of Salisbury State; should be active in community activities; should have been active in campus events as a student at Salisbury State; should possess skills in public speaking; and should be an advocate and supporter of academic excellence and student involvement.

If you know of such an individual, please complete a nomination form. A form may be obtained in the Dean of Students Office, University Center, room 212. Deadline for nominations is November 16.

Award Nominations

The Honors Convocation Committee is requesting nominations for the three awards listed below.

Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his or her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a recommendation in his/her behalf (the form to be used is in the application packet to be sent to qualified nominees).

Names of students being nominated are due in the Dean of Students Office no later than Friday, November 9. Please be sure to nominate early so that there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of Wednesday, November 28.

The Achievement Key is awarded by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty to full-time juniors and seniors on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.6 academic average for the two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive the award a total of two times. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards; however, a recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life award.

The Campus Life award is granted to full-time undergraduates by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.6 cumulative average. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards; however, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life award. Students are eligible to receive the award more than once. Sophomores, juniors and seniors are encouraged to apply.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, service to the University and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

Business 'Start Up' Is on November 1

A free seminar designed to guide an individual in analyzing the prospects of turning an idea into a business reality will be held on Thursday, November 1, from 4-7 p.m. at the conference room in the Easton (MD) Airport Terminal Building at 1 Airport Circle.

Entitled "Analysis and Start Up," the seminar will provide the basic understanding of what is needed for a new business to function effectively. It will be conducted by the Eastern Shore Regional Small Business Development Center which is housed in the Perdue School of Business in conjunction with C.W. Amos and Company in Salisbury.

Mountain Climbing Subject of Lecture

International mountaineer Lou Whittaker will give a slide/lecture presentation on Monday, November 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room of the University Center. The event is being sponsored by the University Center, the SSU Outdoor Club and the Book Rack.

A man whose infectious zest for life as evidenced by his boundless energy, enthusiasm and his sheer love of the outdoors, Whittaker has the enviable ability of melding vocation and avocation into one—mountain climbing.

In the spring of 1989 he led the first American team to climb Mt. Kangchenjunga, a 28,168 foot mountain in Nepal and the third highest peak in the world. Six team members made the summit via the treacherous North Face, only once before climbed by an American in 1988. This is an amazing feat in itself, but it is made even more incredible due to border wars between India and Nepal, delays in food shipments and debilitating illness.

Whittaker was the leader of the successful 1984 China/Everest Expedition, after the tragic death of a team member ended the 1982 effort. He climbed Mt. McKinley in the '60s as well as all of the glacier peaks in the Northwest. In 1985, his climbing expertise was used to reach 20 intact burial sites on a 1,000 foot cliff on the Rio Abesio Project in the Peruvian Andes.

When he is not leading the "big" expeditions, Whittaker is at home in Ashford, WA, acting as chief guide and co-owner of the prestigious

Lou Wittaker

Ranier Mountaineering Guide Service, the country's oldest and largest international guide service.

Whittaker and his twin brother, Jim, started climbing as teenagers to combat their asthma. It was this that convinced him to be chair of "The Climb," an annual fundraising event which benefits children with asthma by taking corporate executives to the top of Mt. Ranier.

"The best training for climbing is climbing," said the ageless Whittaker, who at 61 says he will continue to climb as long as he is still having fun. Life on the mountain keeps his 6'5" figure an impressive 205 lbs of solid muscle. When not climbing, his spare time is spent working on his passive solar underground home in Ashford.

Since 1972, Whittaker has been a spokesperson and design consultant for JanSport, Inc. This provides an avenue for him to visit specialty stores and universities across the nation giving product clinics and slide shows detailing his adventures in the mountains.

Whittaker is co-founder of "Summits," an international mountaineering group consisting of renowned mountaineers from around the world who gather to discuss the growing sport of mountaineering and the problems and concerns that this growth brings. He is a charter member of the Mountain Rescue Council, a member of the National Ski Patrol, an honorary member of the Armed Forces 10th Mountain Division and is on the Board of the Walkway Centers in Washington, DC, and ORCA (Outdoor Recreation Coalition of America).

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information, call 543-6100.

Pension Seminar

"Pension Investments: Are You at Risk?" is the topic of a Continuing Professional Education (CPE) approved seminar which will be held in the Nanticoke A room of the University Center on Friday, November 9, from 1-5 p.m.

Designed for owners and officers of companies with established pension plans, this seminar discusses the legal frame- work of pensions under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) of 1974 and its significance to trustees and plan sponsors. Particular attention is paid to the areas of defining fiduciary responsibility and areas of potential liability.

Participants also discuss the investment standards of ERISA and techniques for reducing or minimizing the potential liability of fiduciaries. Included in the seminar is a discussion of Employee Stock Ownership Plans (ESOPs) as an estate planning device for owners of private companies.

Specific topics include: an overview of ERISA; fiduciary responsibility and investments; analysis of investment performance; portfolio theory and management; upcoming changes in pension regulations; and tax free sales of private companies using leveraged ESOPs.

The course is approved for four hours CPE credit by the Maryland and Delaware Board of Public Accountancy and is being co-sponsored by the Perdue School of Business and Eager Street Asset Management of Baltimore.

There is a fee of $50 per person. Cancellations made at least three working days prior to the program's start date are subject to a 15 percent cancellation fee. For additional information, contact the Center for Professional Development in the Perdue School of Business at 543-6394.

during the educational process. The University offers students academic courses to prepare them for the world, but we also want them to learn self-confidence and independence," Ganoe said. "We want our students to be well-rounded individuals."

Participation in the Outward Bound experience has shown Ganoe that the wilderness is a great teacher. He hopes to challenge University students by showing them that more is learned through active participation than through submissive agreement.

"People limit themselves. Outward Bound forces you to go beyond your abilities and limitations and apply your knowledge and skills to your personal life," Ganoe said.

Since his participation in a canoeing expedition for the disabled and ablebodied, Ganoe said he has learned what words like determination, persistance and perseverance really mean. "I want to involve ablebodied and disabled Salisbury State University students in a group wilderness experience based on the Outward Bound program and help them get involved and redefine their own limitations and abilities."

Ganoe is in the process of planning a canoe trip for a small group of University students to give them a chance to experience the wilderness. "We all have strengths and weaknesses. Both the disabled and ablebodied will be able to contribute valuable skills to a team."

Although he realizes that everyone will be challenged, Ganoe says he is confident that the student participants will focus on their abilities rather than their disabilities.

"Through my personal experiences with disabled persons I have found that they try harder and longer, and they get the job done. They don't let things stand in their way. We will all learn to work together as well as independently to solve problems and situations that arise."

One of the goals of the program will be to give students the opportunity to make their own decisions. Ganoe wants the group to know that being different is not wrong. "I want students to be confident enough to walk to the tune of a different drummer," he said.

One of the great things about Salisbury State University, according to Ganoe, is that we are encouraged to try innovative teaching techniques. "A lot of schools would rather stay safe and cozy, but here we realize that taking risks can help us change and grow," Ganoe said. "If we are successful at helping our students change and grow then we have done our job, but if not we have really blown it."

"It will not only help students develop the ability to organize material and present it in written form," Erskine said, "it also should sharpen their ability to think critically." "In the process," he added, "it may give them a new perspective on relations between men and women and so could affect their lives in a direct way."

The books are designed for use also in American literature or short story courses that require a written paper and for courses in the fast-growing area of women's studies. White said.

Up to 10,000 copies of each book may be printed originally, and the number will increase if the demand requires, Erskine said. The series itself may include up to 20 separate titles.

White, who earned her Ph.D. at Kansas State University, joined the faculty here in 1972. Since then she has introduced courses on native American writers and western U.S. writers. A member of the Western American literature Association, she now is compiling an anthology of short stories by 19th and 20th century writers located west of the Mississippi River.

Erskine, who took his doctorate at Emory University, has been on the English faculty here since 1971. He has co-edited a series of books on literature and movie films for the Dickenson Publishing Company and has taught courses on women in film.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

NOVEMBER 1, 1990 VOL. XII NO. 10

Philosophical Dialogue: The Wilderness Versus the City

The Thoreau '90 Series, the University's tribute to the 19th century essayist, naturalist, surveyor and frank proponent of self-reliance, Henry David Thoreau, will continue with a symposium titled "The Wilderness Versus the City: A Philosophical Dialogue."

Sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee, the Department of Philosophy and the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts, the symposium will be held on Saturday, November 10, from 9 a.m.- 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Dr. Michael A. Weinstein, professor of political science at Purdue (IN) University, and Thomas W. Blanding, president of the Thoreau Country Conservation Alliance, will begin the symposium by presenting their views of Thoreau's strategy for living as it applies (or does not apply) to today's society. There will be brief question and answer periods following their presentations.

After a noon break for lunch which will be provided by the University, the symposium will continue at 1 p.m. with an intellectual free-for-all. Three faculty panelists will respond to the morning presentations and then the floor will be opened up to the audience. SSU panel members will include Dr. Michael O'Loughlin, political science; Dr. Francis Kane, philosophy; and Dr. Bernard A. Fusaro, mathematics. Dr. Jerome A. Miller, professor of philsophy, will moderate.

Thomas Blanding is an independent scholar who has lived in Concord for the past 12 years

Visiting Chefs Week Begins Monday

Mushroom pate with blueberry sauce, clams casino, Chinese beef and broccoli, angel hair with pesto sauce—these are just some of the dishes that SSU Dining Hall students and guests will be sampling, all prepared by chefs from some of Salisbury's most popular restaurants.

The event is the University's first Visiting Chefs Week November 5-8, to be held in the Salisbury Room of the Powell Dining Hall.

"The goal of the program is to educate our students to what is available in the community at local restaurants and eateries," said Carmen DiSylvestro, associate director of University Dining Services. "Many are not from this area and don't know what kind of foods our local restaurants serve."

The first four represented at what is hoped will become a semester event are Basil, Dockside Murphy's, Imperial Gallery and La Roma. And restaurants interested in future chefs weeks are invited to contact DiSylvestro.

The week begins on Monday, November 5, when Russ Horne, co-owner of Dockside Murphy's will be preparing clams casino and grilled fresh tuna with pesto sauce.

On Tuesday, November 6, Cheng Sun, owner of Imperial Gallery, and his son, Lewis, will make beef with broccoli, moo goo gai pan (chicken) and vegetable fried rice.

On Wednesday, November 7, Vinny Bellia, owner of La Roma, will prepare chicken Italiano, angel hair with pesto sauce and garlic bread.

On Thursday, November 8, Richard Phillips, owner of Basil, will make mushroom pate with blueberry sauce, sprouted wheat breads and either a vegetarian cassoulet or seafood parchment.

The dining hall staff, under the direction of executive chef Jon DeSormeau, will be completing the buffet with dishes complementing the visiting chefs' menues. All the special courses also will be prepared by the dining hall under the guidance of the guest chefs.

Each semester the dining hall tries to prepare what DiSylvestro calls "monotony breakers" which include such popular events as "Lobster Night" and "Everybody's Birthday" with an 80-foot ice cream sundae.

SSU is one of only two campuses in the University of Maryland System that doesn't contract out its food services. Some 2,000 students eat there daily, more than a quarter of whom live off campus, said Monte Bradley, Dining Services director.

Members of the faculty and staff wishing to attend Visiting Chefs Week may do so. Cost is $6.50 a dinner. Local restauranteurs may reach DiSylvestro at 543-6107.

Students, faculty and guests are invited to meet Salvatore Mancini, artist-in-residence in the Art Department, at a reception in the Atrium Gallery, University Center, Thursday, November 1, 3:30 to 5 p.m.

In addition to his work in the Atrium Gallery, Mancini's photographs of American Indian Rock Art are on display in the SSU Gallery, 2nd floor, Blackwell Library.

SWAC Grants

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council is accepting grant applications from qualifying arts organizations through Friday, November 9. Applications for events taking place between January 1 and June 30 are eligible.

To be eligible, organizations must be incorporated, not-for-profit agencies. Organizations must show that the activity is in the field of the arts, is of community benefit, is fiscally sound and has the potential for self-support in the future. For more information and new applications and guidelines contact the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

Also available are Director's Grants. These mini-grants are for funds of $100 or less and can be submitted at any time; there are no deadlines. For an easy one-page grant application contact the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, a not-for-profit organization that supports the arts in Salisbury and Wicomico County, awards these cash grants in partnership with the Maryland State Arts Council, in support of performances, exhibits and other arts related activities sponsored by local organizations.

Alzheimer's Orientation Classes

The Baltimore/Central Maryland chapter of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association will sponsor a series of Alzheimer's orientation classes for the fall/winter months.

These two-hour programs are geared especially for family members of persons newly diagnosed with Dementia but may also be of help to professional caregivers.

Dr. Edna M. Stilwell, professor in the Department of Nursing, will direct the Eastern Shore meeting which will be on Saturday, November 3, 1-3 p.m. at the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, Power Professional Building, room 219. There is no registration fee but pre-registration is required.

For more information, please call the Alzheimer's Association at 435-4933.

Business 'Start Up' Is on November 1

A free seminar designed to guide an individual in analyzing the prospects of turning an idea into a business reality will be held on Thursday, November 1, from 4-7 p.m. at the conference room in the Easton (MD) Airport Terminal Building at 1 Airport Circle.

Entitled "Analysis and Start Up," the seminar will provide the basic understanding of what is needed for a new business to function effectively. It will be conducted by the Eastern Shore Regional Small Business Development Center which is housed in the Perdue School of Business in conjunction with C.W. Amos and Company in Salisbury.

If planning to attend, please call 546-4325.

Canned Food Drive

The Student Nurses Association will conduct a canned food drive to benefit the Joseph House (a local charity) over the holidays. The drive begins November 1 and ends November 19. Any club, sorority, fraternity or organization interested in joining is encouraged to do so.

For more information contact any SNA member or leave a message in SNA's mailbox in the Power Building.

Folger Theatre Trip Nov. 7

On Wednesday, November 7, the University Center will sponsor a bus trip to the Shakespeare Theatre at the Folger Museum and Library in Washington, D.C., to see "Richard III" starring Stacy Keach. Sign-up for full-time students will begin at 8 a.m. on Tuesday, October 30, at the University Center Information Desk. The cost for bus and theatre ticket for full-time students is $15. Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may begin sign-up on Friday, November 2. Their cost is $20.

The bus will depart from the Dogwood parking lot, outside the University Center, at 2:30 p.m. There will be time to have dinner near the theatre before the 8 p.m. curtain. The bus will return to the University Center at approximately 1 a.m. All interested persons must sign up only for themselves. No food or beverages will be allowed on the bus.

In "Richard III" the stakes are high. Richard was the English king challenged and defeated by a distant cousin, Henry Tudor. The play centers on the rise and fall of the key figure for justifying the legitimacy of Henry's granddaughter, Elizabeth I. In this production director Michael Kahn stresses the point that although everyone in this play is obsessed with getting power, once achieved there is no possibility of using or enjoying it. The struggle to maintain becomes all-encompassing.

Stacy Keach, well-known for his CBS television series, "Mike Hammer," explains his role as Richard III. "The extent of his relish at the beginning is a barometer for the extent of his suffering at the end. The more he enjoys killing and seducing, the more desperate will be his fear of losing, the more humiliating his loneliness and death."

For further information concerning the bus trip, call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Pension Seminar

"Pension Investments: Are You at Risk?" is the topic of a Continuing Professional Education (CPE) approved seminar which will be held in the Nanticoke A room of the University Center on Friday, November 9, from 1-5 p.m.

Award Nominations

The Honors Convocation Committee is requesting nominations for the three awards listed below.

Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his or her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a recommendation in his/her behalf (the form to be used is in the application packet to be sent to qualified nominees).

Names of students being nominated are due in the Dean of Students Office no later than Friday, November 9. Please be sure to nominate early so that there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of Wednesday, November 28.

The Achievement Key is awarded by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty to full-time juniors and seniors on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.6 academic average for the two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive the award a total of two times. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards; however, a recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life award.

The Campus Life award is granted to full-time undergraduates by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.6 cumulative average. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards; however, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life award. Students are eligible to receive the award more than once. Sophomores, juniors and seniors are encouraged to apply.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, service to the University and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

Speaker Nominations

The 1990 Honors Convocation will have as its speaker a graduate of Salisbury State University.

The committee is seeking nominations of prospective alumni speakers who could serve as appropriate role models and who will be selected based upon the following criteria: must have graduated at least five or more years ago from Salisbury State University in an approved program of study; must currently be successfully employed in a career or business which reflects the standards and goals of Salisbury State; should be active in community activities; should have been active in campus events as a student at Salisbury State; should possess skills in public speaking; and should be an advocate and supporter of academic excellence and student involvement.

If you know of such an individual, please complete a nomination form. A form may be obtained in the Dean of Students Office, University Center, room 212. Deadline for nominations is November 16.

LaBastille on the Grebes of Guatemala

Dr. Anne LaBastille

Dr. Anne LaBastille, renowned ecologist and author, will present a lecture/slide show about her 24 years of research on the now extinct giant grebe in Guatemala on Wenesday, November 14, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Her presentation is based on her book, "Mama Poc: an Ecologist's Account of the Extinction of a Species." The account is an obituary for the giant grebe, a species of Guatemalan diving birds that LaBastille became acquainted with in the 1960s. She studied the birds until the species disappeared and was declared extinct in 1987.

Guatemalan Indians called the bird "poc" and they called LaBastille "mama poc" in honor of her interest in the bird.

LaBastille has effectively used many forms of communication to increase public awareness that the wild and beautiful are constantly threatened and deserve protection. She is an internationally recognized advocate of wildlife and wildland conservation. Her scientific knowledge about nature, her concern for endangered species and her simple lifestyle at the edge of the wilderness have enabled her to educate and enthrall an ever-growing audience.

In addition to her Ph.D. in wildlife ecology from Cornell University and her M.S. in wildlife management from Colorado State University, she holds an honorary Doctor of Letters degree from Union College, NY, and two honorary Alumna Awards. A registered Adirondack guide and certified scuba diver, LaBastille received the 1989 Chevron Conservation Award, a Citation of Merit from the Explorers Club in 1982 and the Conservationist of the Year Gold Medal from the World Wildlife Fund in 1974.

LaBastille has been a commissioner of New York State's Adirondack Park Agency for over 12 years, working to protect this extraordinary six-million-acre park, and is currently chair of its Operations Committee.

She has written five trade books including "Woodswoman," "Women and Wilderness," "Assignment: Wildlife, Beyond Black Bear Lake," and "Mama Poc" which she will use as the basis of her discussion. She also has written over 130 popular articles and scientific papers. Her particular interests focus on acid rain, tropical deforestation and women in wilderness professions.

LaBastille's professional assignments have taken her to distant lands, including the Amazon basin, Alaska's coastal islands, India and Central America. She also serves as scientific advisor to many conservation organizations and lectures widely to university students and adult groups interested in natural history.

When not traveling, this "environmental crusader" lives with two German shepherds in a little log cabin, which she built herself, in the Adirondack Mountains.

The lecture/slide presentation is being sponsored by the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology. The program is free and the public is encouraged to attend.

Mancini Works Displayed in University Gallery

"Terra Incognita: Photographs of American Indian Rock Art" by Salvatore Mancini, artist-in-residence in the Art Department for four weeks this fall, will be on display in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, October 27-November 15. The exhibit documents paintings and engravings made by American Indians over a period of 3000-4000 years on cliffs and ledges at various sites in the southwestern United States.

The Atrium Gallery, located next to the bookstore in the University Center, will exhibit other photographs by Mancini and eventually works by his students from October 24 - November 13.

Mancini is available to give slide-lectures on the various subjects he has photographed, plus Gallery talks on the works displayed in the SSU and Atrium galleries. These programs are made possible by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council. For more information, call Gloria Kernaghan, Art Department secretary, at 543-6270.

The University Gallery is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1-5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5-8 p.m. It is closed Fridays and when the University is not in session.

The exhibition schedule and related programs are planned by Ursula Ehrhardt, Gallery director. For more information, call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Thoreau Reading Group Meets

As an adjunct to the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center will sponsor a Thoreau reading group. During the semester, the group will meet on different Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss different ideological views of Thoreau's writings. Discussion leaders will be: Don Whaley on Thoreau and anarchism (November 8), Dr. Tony Whall on freedom and dignity in Thoreau (November 15), and Dr. Dave Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6). Readings will be assigned for each session.

Those participating in Whaley's session should read Civil Disobedience. Reading lists and selections for later sessions will be available in the University Center Office at least a week before each session.

For further information contact Dr. Bill Horne at 543-6445.

United Charities Campaign Pledge Cards

Pledge cards will be included with full-time faculty/staff payroll checks for a voluntary contribution to the 1990 United Charities Campaign on Wednesday, November 7. A brochure, which lists all participating agencies, will be mailed to all faculty/staff.

This agency listing is helpful if you wish to designate a specific agency to receive your contribution or if you require the services of one of the agencies. This year as an incentive for employees to support the important campaign, the SSU Foundation has donated a CD player which employees will be eligible to win if they give at least $1.50 per pay period. Also, Dining Services has donated free passes to a Sunday Brunch on the Hill and the annual Christmas dinner (December 12) and Mitzi Perdue has donated two of her cookbooks. The campaign ends Friday, November 30. The drawing for the CD and the other prizes takes place on Monday, December 3. The winners will be contacted immediately.

While considering whether to contribute, please consider that the agencies which receive funds from United Charities depend on generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered.

"Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you," said campaign co-coordinator Gains Hawkins, director of Public Relations. "Be as generous as you can be."

Campaign coordinators at the University this year are Debbie Merryweather (543-6050) and Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them if you have any questions.

Outdoor Club Meeting

On Monday, November 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A, Jansport, the University Center, the Book Rack and the Outdoor Club are sponsoring a presentation by Lou Whittaker. Whittaker, an international mountaineer, will present a slide/lecture presentation on "The Climb on Mountain Kangchenjunga," a 28,168 foot mountain.

The Outdoor Club will hold a short meeting following the mountaineering presentation. Sign-ups for the rock climbing trip on November 11 and the back packing trip to Old Rag Mountain on November 16-18 will be taken at this time.

On Monday, November 12, at 8 p.m. the Outdoor Club is sponsoring a slide presentation on the desert Southwest and back packing clinic by Cindy Ross, writer for Back Packer magazine.

Education Tuition Assistance Program

Applications for the undergraduate Christa McAuliffe Scholarships are available in the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, room 243. The deadline is January 2. Applicants must be Maryland residents, have a cumulative collegiate Grade Point Average of 3.0, have completed 60 credit hours by the beginning of the fall 1991 semester, and be pursuing a career in teacher education certification. The areas of critical shortage are: mathematics, chemistry, earth science, physical science, physics, special education, and trades and industry. Applicants may be full-time or part-time students. They must agree to teach full time in a Maryland public school as part of the scholarship agreement.

Hamlisch Concert

The Tidewater Performing Arts Society presents its Concert Gala 1990 featuring Marvin Hamlisch on Saturday, December 1, at 8 p.m. in Talbot County Auditorium. Tickets are $20-$100.

Hamlisch has written 30 motion picture scores including "The Sting" and "The Way We Were" and created music for two major Broadway hits: "A Chorus Line" and "They're Playing Our Song."

He is the recipient of a long line of prestigious awards including the Pulitzer Prize, the Tony Award, three Oscars, four Grammys and two Golden Globes.

For tickets call (301) 476-5085.

Mountain Climbing Subject of Lecture

International mountaineer Lou Whittaker will give a slide/lecture presentation on Monday, November 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room of the University Center. The event is being sponsored by the University Center, the SSU Outdoor Club and the Book Rack.

In the spring of 1989 he led the first American team to climb Mt. Kangchenjunga, a 28,168 foot mountain in Nepal and the third highest peak in the world. Six team members made the summit via the treacherous North Face, only once before climbed by an American in 1988. This is an amazing feat in itself, but it is made even more incredible due to border wars between India and Nepal, delays in food shipments and debilitating illness.

Whittaker was the leader of the successful 1984 China/Everest Expedition, after the tragic death of a team member ended the 1982 effort. He climbed Mt. McKinley in the '60s as well as all of the glacier peaks in the Northwest. In 1985, his climbing expertise was used to reach 20 intact burial sites on a 1,000 foot cliff on the Rio Abesio Project in the Peruvian Andes.

When he is not leading the "big" expeditions, Whittaker is at home in Ashford, WA, acting as chief guide and co-owner of the prestigious Ranier Mountaineering Guide Service, the country's oldest and largest international guide service.

Whittaker and his twin brother, Jim, started climbing as teenagers to combat their asthma. It was this that convinced him to be chair of "The Climb," an annual fundraising event which benefits children with asthma by taking corporate executives to the top of Mt. Ranier.

"The best training for climbing is climbing," said the ageless Whittaker, who at 61 says he will continue to climb as long as he is still having fun. Life on the mountain keeps his 6'5" figure an impressive 205 lbs of solid muscle. When not climbing, his spare time is spent working on his passive solar underground home in Ashford.

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information, call 543-6100.

Pre-professional Graduate Health Career Students

The Graduate Health Advisory Committee announces the fall 1990 interview schedule for students wishing to support their application for admission to graduate health professional programs with a composite faculty recommendation letter. Most professional programs now require such a recommendation.

Interviews will be conducted on Mondays at 5 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 103. Please schedule an appointment with Dawn Johnson in the Biological Sciences Departmental Office (Devilbiss Hall, room 236) at least one week in advance.

Writers-on-the-Shore Series Begins

The Department of English is pleased to announce the first reading in the Writers-on-the-Shore series during the 1990-91 season. On Thursday, November 8, novelist Richard McCann will read from his work at 8 p.m. in the Social Room in Holloway Hall.

McCann's novel, "The House of Beauty and Shame," is forth-coming from Viking. An excerpt from the novel, "My Mother's Clothes: The School of Beauty and Shame," appeared in the April, 1986 issue of The Atlantic Monthly, and was subsequently reprinted in "Editor's Choice: The Best New Short Fiction for 1987" (Bantam, 1987) and "Men on Men 2: Best New Gay Fiction" (New American Library, 1988).

McCann has also published a volume of poems, "Dream of the Traveler" (Ithaca House, 1976), and has co-edited "Landscape and Distance: Contemporary Poets from Virginia" (University Press of Virginia, 1975). He has contributed poems and critical essays to several books, including "Poets for Life: 76 Poets Respond to AIDS" (Crown Books, Random House, 1989) and "The Short Stories of Ernest Hemingway: New Critical Essays" (Duke University Press, forthcoming). His work appears in numerous publications, including Esquire, The Virginia Quarterly Review, USA Today, The Washington Post and The Iowa Review.

Co-director of the MFA Program in Creative Writing at The American University, McCann has also taught at The George Washington University, Mary Washington College, the University of Maryland and Virginia Commonwealth University. During 1982-83 he was the Fulbright Senior Lecturer in American Studies at Goteborgs Universitet in Sweden, and during 1978-81 was a lecturer at the University of Maryland European Division in Heidelberg, West Germany.

"'The House of Beauty and Shame' is the most famous as-yet-unpublished novel in literary circles," said Dr. Michael Waters, SSU English professor who teaches creative writing. "Its publication by Viking next year is eagerly anticipated and will bring Richard McCann much critical attention." Please join us for a preview of this important novel on Thursday, November 8, at 8 p.m. in the Social Room.

A reception immediately following the reading will provide the opportunity for informal discussion with McCann. And please encourage your students to attend."

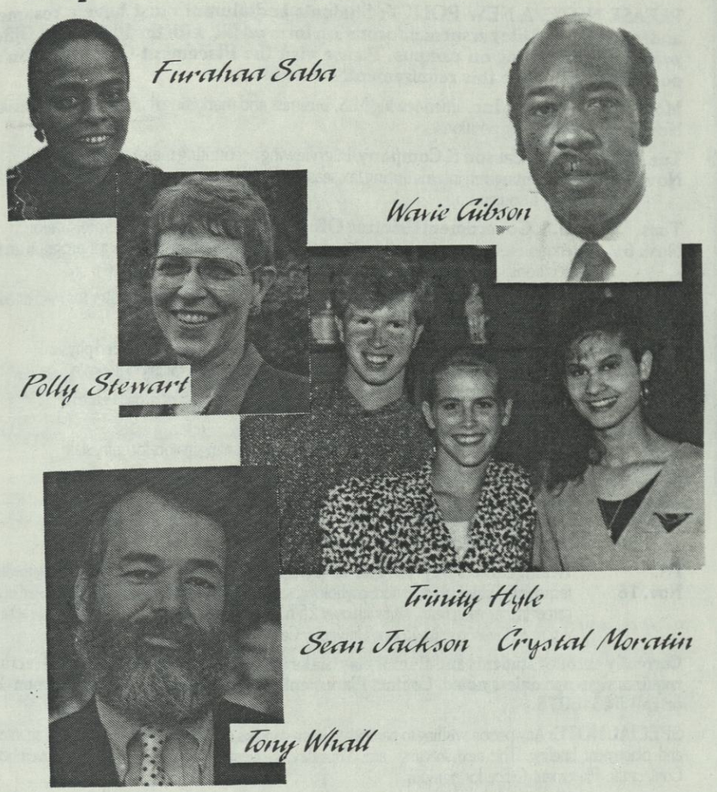
Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Campus Showcase Program To Be Held November 4



The second Campus Showcase program will be held Sunday, November 4, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Campus Showcase, a program based on the Chautauqua format, offers cultural and educational entertainment free to all. On the November 4 program, Dr. Polly Stewart and Dr. Tony (Raymond) Whall, of the SSU English Department, will present a dramatic rendition of Robert Frost's poem "In the Home Stretch." Dr. Wavie Gibson, Jr., also of the English Department, will deliver an oratorical address. Selections from "Les Miserables" will be sung by Trinity Hyle, a senior at Wicomico High School. She will be joined by two other young singers, Crystal "Lei Lani" Moratin and Sean Jackson. The final segment of the program will be presented by Furahaa Saba, of the Communication Arts Department. She will do "Interpretations of Sojourner Truth." Sojourner Truth was the slave woman who undertook a mightly struggle for personal dignity and freedom.

The Campus Showcase programs are sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee and are organized by William Palmer, associate professor of Spanish.

Coastal Hospice Spirituality Conference

Ten years ago a small group of local citizens and health care professionals, armed with little resources other than their vision and commitment to care for and comfort the dying, initiated the first home-based hospice care on the Eastern Shore. That organization, now called Coastal Hospice, last year cared for over 200 patients and their families, and is recognized throughout the region for its compassionate and professional delivery of health care to the terminally ill.

"I think it is particularly fitting that we mark our 10th anniversary with a conference on spirituality," noted Marion Keenan, Coastal Hospice's director, "because the spiritual dimension of patient care has been a central concern of the Hospice movement from its very inception. Certainly, we address the physical and medical needs of our patients, but often it is the spiritual dimension (in whatever form that may take) that serves as the linchpin of our care."

On Friday, November 2, that day-long conference, titled "Hospice and Spirituality," will take place in the University Center at Salisbury State. Jointly sponsored by Coastal Hospice and the SSU Philosophy Department, and funded in part by a generous grant from the Maryland Humanities Council, this program is devoted to a reflection on the meaning of spirituality as it relates to the terminally ill. Keynote speakers are Dr. Jerome Miller of SSU's Philosophy Department and author of The Way of Suffering: A Geography of Crisis and Sharon Burns, chaplain of the Stella Maris hospice in Towson, MD. An afternoon panel will focus on the specific issues that spirituality raises for patients and families of the terminally ill. Panelists are Dr. James Martin, a local oncologist and associate medical director of Coastal Hospice; Barbara Wall, lecturer in philosophy at Villanova University and co-founder of the Lenawee County Hospice in Michigan; Deborah Hartman, hospice volunteer in Cumberland, MD, and philosophy teacher at Frostburg State University; and Rabbi Sandra Berliner of the Jewish Chaplaincy Service in Philadelphia.

Further information about the conference, which is open to the public, can be obtained by calling Coastal Hospice (742-8732) or the Philosophy Department (543-6038). A registration fee of $35 includes lunch and a reception at the close of the day.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

By Paul Ohanian

Four in a row! That's what the women's volleyball team accomplished with its ESAC Championship last Saturday. The Gulls posted a perfect 5-0 record to sweep the one-day conference tournament and win the title for the fourth straight year. Michelle Hammond, Angela Waters and Heidi Smid were named to the all-tournament team. The Gulls, now 35-14 on the year, will await word on whether or not they are chosen for the 24-team NCAA Tournament field. Bids to the Division III national tournament will be announced on Monday, November 5.

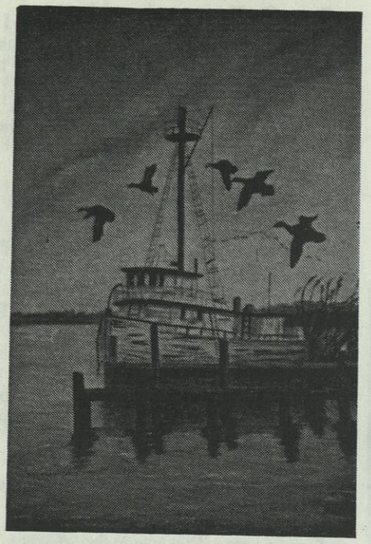
The field hockey team, 12-3-1, makes its seventh straight NCAA Tournament appearance beginning on Friday. The Gulls were awaiting information on their seeding and opponent at press time. SSU won the national championship in 1986 and advanced to the Final Four two other times in the '80s.

The soccer team closed out its season last Saturday with a narrow 3-2 loss to conference champion Cabrini College. The Gulls finished 7-8-1 overall and 4-2 in ESAC games. The team was led most of the season by junior forward Kevin Jackson, whose 10 goals were the most in one season since Harry Winters netted 12 in 1974. Jackson is now 12th on the all-time SSU scoring list with 17 career goals, and a strong senior campaign could move him into second all-time (30 goals, Andy Hall, '66-69.) Winters is the all-time leader with 57.

Despite its eighth loss of the season, the Sea Gull football team had a record-setting afternoon at Hampden-Sydney is last week's 38-33 loss. Freshman QB Len Annetta passed for 317 yards, the highest single-game total in SSU's 19-year gridiron history. The Gulls, led by FB Jason Barton's 109 yards, added 285 yards rushing as a team and finished with 602 yards of total offense. SSU closes the season on Saturday against Newport News Apprentice. Game time at Sea Gull Stadium is 1:30 p.m.

Tim Smith and Erin Green of the cross country squads earned all-conference honors at the Mason/Dixon Conference Championship last Saturday. Smith finished 14th in the men's competition with a time of 27:49 over the 8K course. Green placed fifth with a time of 20:15 over the 3.1 mile women's course. The Gulls race in the ESAC Championship in Frostburg this Saturday.

The women's swim begins its 1990 season on Saturday as it visits Loyola College in Baltimore. The Gulls, 3-4 last season, are under the direction of first-year Head Coach Christine Wagner.



Watercolor "Final Rest" by Dolores Powell

Dolores Powell's Watercolors at Library

The Wicomico County Free Library sponsors the seventh annual watercolor exhibit by Dolores Powell during the month of November.

Originally from Pennsylvania, Powell considers herself an Eastern Shore artist. "I love the charm of the Eastern Shore," said Powell, who often visits and paints such areas as Jenkins Creek, Deal Island, Nanticoke, Smith Island, Hoopers Island and the beach. For 10 years, she has been capturing the life of the Chesapeake Bay with paintings of landscapes, waterfowl and the beautiful and vanishing sailing vessels known as skipjacks, whose crews are often made up of third generation watermen. She also recently captured scenes from the outer banks of North Carolina, as well as barns of Pennsylvania, lighthouses of the northeast, and white sands of Pensacola, FL.

Powell was commissioned by the president of the Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia Elks Association to paint a map of that area as their yearly project. The prints of this painting have been successfully shown to and purchased by the lodges and Elk members throughout the mid-Atlantic region.

While attending Salisbury State University and studying art, Powell discovered a hidden talent for capturing a place and mood in the medium of watercolor. By its very nature, watercolor demands a quick response to the scene, capturing the mood, and the play of light and shadows. Her paintings are fresh and uniquely light-filled.

Some of her most rewarding experiences have been the wonderful expressions on the faces of viewers when they see a painting that reminds them of their childhood or a happy event. Children have expressed such things as "These look real!" or "You have painted all of these!"

On Saturday, November 10, the Library will feature a "Meet the Artist" afternoon from 1-4 p.m. Powell will be in the lobby and will demonstrate her painting as an educational exhibit.

This exhibit of landscapes and waterfowl paintings will be on display at the Wicomico County Free Library in Salisbury November 1-30. Hours are Monday-Thursday from 10 a.m.-9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; and Sunday 1-5 p.m. Works in the exhibit are for sale just in time for Christmas. For further information call 546-2836 or 543-6425.

Furnace Town Walks Scheduled for November

The Furnace Town Historic Site and the Nature Conservancy forest trails will be the site of two guided nature walks in November. On Friday, November 2 the walk will be from 9-11 p.m. On Sunday, November 11 the walk will be from 2-4 p.m. Both walks will leave from The Company Store at Furnace Town and will proceed around the Furnace Town grounds, into the Pocomoke Forest and the Nassawango Cypress Swamp. These walks will conclude the 1990 Nature Walk Series of ten guided nature walks on the Furnace and Nature Conservancy tracts.

The Full Moon Nature Walk will be led by seasoned walker and guide Bob Filmer. In addition to listening for the night sounds of the wind and of animals, Filmer will work with calling in area owls.

On November 11, the walk will focus on signs of winter. There will be time for quiet observation as well as for a brisk walk on the trail and, perhaps, on an adjacent trail as well.

Walkers are encouraged to wear long pants and sleeves. Admission for the walks is $1.50 per adult and $.75 per child, Furnace Town's regular site admission. Furnace Town Historic Site is located 16 miles south of Salisbury and 5 miles north of Snow Hill off Maryland Route 12. For details call 632-2032.

Holiday Sale at Art Institute and Gallery

During No'vember the Salisbury Art Institute and Gallery is exhibiting a special selection of hand-decorated wreaths. Jackie Cassidy of Flowers Unlimited donated 40 straw wreaths to the AIG, which were then distributed to area artists for decoration. The artists donated their time and talent to create one-of-a-kind holiday decorations.

The artists competed for cash prizes and ribbons in several categories, including "Innovative Use of Media," "Best Representation of the Holiday Spirit," "Zaniest" and "Most Contemporary."

All wreaths are offered to the public for sale, with proceeds going to help finance the addition of a handicapped access ramp to the AIG's facility on Route 50 at Lemmon Hill Lane. They will be on display in the large gallery from October 29 through November 30, with purchases available for pick-up after November 19, in time for holiday decorating.

Also on display in the large gallery during November is the annual Members' Holiday Sale. This is a special exhibit and sale which offer original artwork for holiday giving, with works starting as low as $10, and all priced under $250. Some are matted, others are framed and ready for hanging. All purchases may be removed at the time of purchase.

In the small gallery during November, an exhibit titled "Working Hands" is on display. This exhibit includes pottery, sculpture and fiber art submitted by area artists.

The Art Institute and Gallery is open Monday through Saturday from noon to 4 p.m. For more information call the AIG at 546-4748.

Peck Is Next Great Leader Lecturer

The Great Leader Lecture Series sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business will continue with a presentation by Charles E. Peck, chair, president and chief executive officer of The Ryland Group.

He will address an audience of students, faculty and members of the area business community on Thursday, November 8, at 12:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

As chair and chief executive officer of The Ryland Group, Charles "Ted" Peck oversees the company's delivery of first-quality new homes and mortgage financing to its customers. The Ryland Group is one of the nation's largest homebuilders, conducting business in 17 states across the country.

Peck joined Ryland in 1977 as a member of the board of directors, and in 1981 he became co-chair of the company. In 1982 he assumed his current position as Ryland's chair and chief executive officer.

Before joining The Ryland Group, Peck served as executive vice president and director of the Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation in Toledo, OH. From 1949-1981 he held various sales, marketing and management positions for the company.

A graduate of the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, he earned his bachelor's in economics in 1949.

In addition to his commitment to Ryland, Peck also participates in numerous organizations ranging in interest from the arts to care for the needy. He is currently on the board of directors of Howard County General Hospital, the Columbia Festival of the Arts, the National Urban Wildlife Institute, the United Way of Central Maryland and the National Association of Home Builders' Research Foundation, Inc.

Peck is president of the Depression and Related Affective Disorders Association; chair of the Chancellor's Advisory Committee, University of Maryland System; and a member of Johns Hopkins University's School of Continuing Studies Advisory Council.

Peck resides in Laurel, MD, with his wife, Delphine. They have four children.

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information on the Great Leader Lecture Series, call the Perdue School at 543-6316.

SSU Well Represented At State Conference

Salisbury State University was well represented at this year's 18th annual Convention of the Diamond State Reading Association held in Dewey Beach, DE, on October 12 and 13. Three faculty members from the Department of Education made presentations during the two-day conference.

Dr. Barbara Schultz, associate professor and children's literature specialist, presented a one-hour session on "Choosing and Using Multicultural Children's Literature." Dr. John T. Wolinski, associate professor and co-author of the 1990 McGraw-Hill spelling series, conducted a one-hour session titled, "Spelling: Something Old, Something New; Something Borrowed, Something Blue."

On Saturday morning, Dr. Amy Meekins, elementary education and art specialist, and Wolinski conducted a two-hour workshop titled, "Under the Boardwalk - Down by the Sea: A Theme-based Integrated Reading/Language Arts Model."

All three presentations were well attended; feedback from participants was positive, especially concerning the timely and practical nature of the material presented.

Rodgers Published

Shielda Rodgers, assistant professor of nursing, has had a paper published in the September issue of Nurse Educator, a refereed nursing education journal. The paper titled "Retention of Minority Nursing Students on Predominantly White Campuses" identifies psychosocial and academic factors which affect the student's ability to be successful, and suggests strategies to enhance success.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

researching and writing about Thoreau, transcendentalism and Concord history. He has published some 60 articles on these subjects and is co-author of "A Thoreau Iconography." For eight years he was an editor for "The Writings of Henry D. Thoreau," a multi-volume edition sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities and published by Princeton University Press.

He is the editor of the "Concord Saunterer," the journal of the Thoreau Society, and is guest Thoreau curator at the Concord Museum. Blanding is on the boards of the Thoreau Society and the Walden Woods Project. He is a leader in the current fight to save Walden from developers. A member of the Concord Historical Commission and the Massachusetts Walden Pond Advisory Committee, Blanding is the president of the Thoreau Country Conservation Alliance and past president of the international Thoreau Society.

Like Thoreau, he lives the simple life in a small cottage in Concord with his two cats, Lidian and Sophia, named for Emerson's wife and Thoreau's sister.

Weinstein earned his Ph.D. from Western Reserve University where he held two teaching fellowships. He also held a teaching fellowship at New York State Regent's College. He has taught political science at Purdue since 1968 and has numerous publications to his credit.

"Thoreau's strategy of withdrawing from the environment of industrial civilization in order to take its measure and his own against nature can no longer be credibly pursued," contends Weinstein. "When Thoreau wrote he was a salutary critic of a regnant progressivism.

"Today we live in the aftermath of progressivism's ironical triumph," he continued. "We have grafted onto primary nature a second nature—technological culture—which is now the effective total environment for all of us. We need to treat culture as an environment, not as something that belongs to us, and that we oppose to nature. Culture is as free of and alien to us as nature ever was (and continues to be). We need to learn survival skills in the cultural jungle, to be civil savages in a post-civilized modern world," he added.

The symposium is free and open to the public. No advance registration is necessary. For more information, contact Miller at 543-6038.

Enigmatic Drama 'The Homecoming' Features Dual Casts

Harold Pinter's play, "The Homecoming," a tantalizing British drama which explores the relationship between men and women, will be presented by two casts, one predominantly male, the other female, in two alternating productions November 14-19 in Holloway Hall Auditorium on stage.

Performed by the Salisbury State University Players, "The Homecoming" is "innately primitive, Oedipal, conjugal...(and) quivers with the enigmatic knowledge that while no one wins the war between the sexes, everyone is wounded," Time magazine wrote in 1967 when it appeared on Broadway.

According to New York Times theatre critic Walter Kerr, Pinter is one of the most naturally gifted playwrights to have come out of England since World War II.

His dialogue has become famous for what is known as the "Pinter pause" and "A good half of (the)...suspense invariably comes from the question...'What are these people not mentioning?'" Kerr wrote.

SSU Communication Arts Department chair, Dr. Andrew Hepburn, calls "The Homecoming" "One of the finest plays in modern realistic drama." Hepburn is directing the cast of five men and one woman, as the play was originally written.

SSU Communication Arts Department professor Robert Smith is directing the production of five women and one man—as was done in the London revival in 1989. This new twist on an already difficult play has presented challenges for the director and actors. At the same time it is allowing them to further explore ideas of gender, relationships between men and women, and the stereotypes of sexuality, Smith noted.

Dual casting also has created more roles for women actors.

The plot to "The Homecoming" is as spare

Chamber Recital Features SSU Ensembles

Members of the University chamber music ensembles will present the first annual Chamber Recital in Caruthers Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, November 13. The performance is free and open to the public.

Thirteen students comprise three chamber ensembles which include the SSU Brass Quintet, Brass Quartet and Saxophone Quartet.

A course for wind-chamber music ensembles was developed and implemented in fall 1989 by Richard L. Johnson, director of wind activities at the University. Starting the program with only five brass students, the chamber music program is now flourishing.

Johnson said, "Part of our responsibility with the SSU Wind Activities Division is to provide student peformers with as many opportunities

United Charities Campaign Pledge Cards

Pledge cards were included with full-time faculty/staff payroll checks for a voluntary contribution to the 1990 United Charities Campaign on Wednesday, November 7. A brochure, which lists all participating agencies, was mailed to all faculty/staff.

This agency listing is helpful if you wish to designate a specific agency to receive your contribution or if you require the services of one of the agencies. This year as an incentive for employees to support the important campaign, the SSU Foundation has donated a CD player which employees will be eligible to win if they give at least $1.50 per pay period. For more information contact any SNA member or leave a message in SNA's mailbox in the Power Building.

LaBastille on the Grebes of Guatemala

Dr. Anne LaBastille

Dr. Anne LaBastille, renowned ecologist and author, will present a lecture/slide show about her 24 years of research on the now extinct giant grebe in Guatemala on Wenesday, November 14, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Her presentation is based on her book, "Mama Poc: an Ecologist's Account of the Extinction of a Species." The account is an obituary for the giant grebe, a species of Guatemalan diving birds that LaBastille became acquainted with in the 1960s. She studied the birds until the species disappeared and was declared extinct in 1987.

The lecture/slide presentation is being sponsored by the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology. The program is free and the public is encouraged to attend.

Whall Attends Honors Conference

Dr. R. A. Whall, director of the University's honors program, recently attended the 25th annual National Collegiate Honors Council Conference held in Baltimore.

One thousand honors faculty, students and administrators met in workshops, colloquia and other presentations to examine and discuss the form and content of honors education. Whall gave an interdisciplinary presentation on "The Protean Self in Modern Art and Poetry."

"My interest in the subject grew out of an honors course I teach on the nature of dignity," said Whall. "At this conference which had as its theme the celebration of changing boundaries, I examined paintings from our time (Francis Bacon, Picasso, Georges Braque) and poetry (Roethke, Plath, Thomas Merton, Wendell Berry) which can help us understand the modern crisis of personal identity."

Whall is a past president of the Honors Council's northeast region, and serves on NCHC's Publications Board and Conference Planning Committee.

Back-Packing Presentation

On Monday, November 12, at 8 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center, the Outdoor Club is sponsoring a presentation by Cindy Ross. Ross, a writer for Back Packer Magazine, will present a slide presentation on the "Desert Southwest" and a back-packing clinic.

The Outdoor Club will hold a short meeting following the slide presentation. Final sign-up for the back-packing trip to Old Rag Mountain on November 16-18 will be taken then.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Saturday, November 10

Cross Country at NCAA Mideast Regionals	11 a.m.
Swimming vs. Goucher	2 p.m.
Wednesday, November 14
Swimming vs. Washington	5 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

It took nine games, but the Sea Gull football team gave Joe Rotellini the first win of his collegiate head coaching career with last Saturday's 31-13 victory over Newport News Apprentice. The Gulls led from start to finish as they closed out the '90 season on a high-note. Fullback Jason Barton helped lead the offense with 81 yards rushing and three touchdowns. Junior John Cooksey added 67 yards rushing. QB Len Annetta connected on 13 of 25 passes for 199 yards, including a four-yard scoring toss to TE Scott Cook. Bill Lewit led the receivers with four catches for 98 yards. The Gull defense forced four Newport turnovers and recorded five sacks on the afternoon.

The news wasn't quite as bright for the field hockey team however, as the Gulls dropped a 4-0 decision to second-ranked Messiah College in the quarterfinal round of the NCAA Tournament. Salisbury had defeated Millersville 1-0 in Friday's opening round game before playing Messiah on Saturday. Despite the loss, the Gulls enjoyed another successful season, capped by their seventh straight trip to the NCAA Tournament. SSU ended the season 13-4-1.

The cross country squads close out their season this weekend in the NCAA Mideast Regional in Allentown, PA. Erin Green was the team's top performer at last weekend's Eastern States Athletic Conference championship meet in Frostburg as she earned all-conference honors with a fifth place finish. Green clocked a time of 20:39 over the 5K course. The SSU women placed second as a team.

The swim team opens its home schedule this Saturday at 2 p.m. as the Gulls host Goucher College at the Maggs Center. SSU also hosts Washington College in a 5 p.m. meet on Wednesday. Salisbury State is under the guidance of first-year coach Chris Wagner.

Concert Choir Performs at Asbury

The University Concert Choir presents its annual holiday concert on Saturday, December 1, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church.

Sponsored by the Department of Music and the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, the performance features guest soloists Katherine Turner Barlow, soprano; Dr. Larry Vote, baritone; Shu ju li Hom, harp; and Helen Quinby, cello. The holiday concert includes choral compositions by three British composers, Gerald Finzi's "In Terra Pax," Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols" and Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on Christmas Carols."

The choral ensemble is conducted by Dr. Duane Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities at SSU. Barlow is an adjunct instructor of voice at Salisbury State and Vote is an associate professor of music at St. Mary's (MD) College. Shu ju li Hom, guest harpist, is from Towson, MD and has her artist's diploma in harp performance from the Peabody Conservatory of Music. She will accompany Britten's "Ceremony of Carols" on harp. Guest cellist, Quinby, currently performs with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Piano Concert

Piano students in the Music Department will perform Friday, November 30, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The concert will be performed on two Steinway pianos and will include works by J.S. Bach, Haydn, Beethoven, Kabalevsky, Ravel and Milhaud.

The "Bach Concerto in F Minor" will feature soloist Charles Grogan from Salisbury; the "Haydn Concerto in D Major" will be performed by Karen Orr from Bel Air, MD; the first movement of "Concerto #2 in B-flat Major" by Beethoven will be played by Wynel Cooper of Salisbury; and the first movement of "Concerto #3 in D Major" (Opus 50) by Kabalevsky will feature Scot Hawkins as soloist. Other works will include "The Mother Goose Suite" for two pianos by Ravel and "Scaramouche" by Milhaud.

This is the second piano concerto and duo recital done at SSU. Last November, works by Mozart, Shostakovich, Poulenc and Khatchaturian were performed. The concert is free and the public is invited to attend.

On Sunday, December 2, at 1 p.m., local pianists—Patricia Wroten, Joanne Peters, Harriet Robinson and Theresa Rose—will perform music for two pianos-eight hands. Music of Chopin, Handel, Agay, Steve Reich and Ravel will be played. Included in the workshop will be student performers from the concerto recital who will discuss their works in conjunction with local pianists who will also demonstrate and discuss pedagogical techniques for teaching the duet/duo literature.

The event is also in the Wicomico Room of the University Center and is free and open to the public.

Spring Music Courses

Spring semster course offerings from the Division of Wind Activities include MUSA-101-001, Wind Sinfonia, Monday and Wednesday, 3:25-5 p.m. (alternate Monday evening rehearsals required), in 190 Power Professional Building. This is a select ensemble for calibre wind and percussion instrumentalists. Performance features both "chamber" and "large" ensemble repertoire spanning all musical epochs. Emphasis is placed on the highest performance standards and commitment for excellence.

The course is required of all instrumental music majors. However, it is open to all non-majors. Seating auditions are required. Attendance to all rehearsals and performances are mandatory. It may be repeated for General Education group I-B credit (three hours per week).

MUSA-102-151, Jazz Ensemble, is on Wednesdays, 7-9 p.m., in 190 Power Professional Building. This is a select group of approximately 20 University and community personnel. Emphasis is on the study and performance of various jazz styles ranging from the "Big Band" sound to contemporary and "fusion" forms. It includes development of jazz improvisation skills.

Auditions for membership are required. Prerequisite is a strong high school performance background, sight-reading skills and comprehensive musicianship. It may be repeated for General Education group I-B credit (two hours per week required).

For further information regarding performance ensembles in the Department of Music, call 543-6385.

Bosserman Receives National Counseling Award

Carol Bosserman of SSU is one of only 43 academic counselors nationwide recognized for excellence by the National Academic Advising Association (NACADA) and American College Testing (ACT).

Bosserman, who counsels over 1200 students yearly, received the certificate of merit for outstanding achievement in the 1990 National Recognition Program. NACADA's membership includes over 2500 professionals, faculty and students from throughout the U.S.

The academic affairs counselor was nominated by Dr. Florence F. Pritchard, associate vice president of academic affairs, for the national award. Bosserman is "...at the heart of the advising system as a manager and disseminator of information, and as a model of concern for, and loving assistance to, students," Pritchard said.

Bosserman's direct involvement with advising includes: conducting advising training workshops for new faculty, directing the efforts of departmental advising coordinators, making student-faculty advising assignments, publishing the advising handbook and serving on the University's admissions/readmissions committee. In addition, she is active in orientation, registration, readmission and a host of ad hoc duties as a staff member of the Academic Affairs Office.

Tax Tips

Paying too much in income taxes? By planning now and acting before the end of the year, you may be able to reduce your tax bill next April.

Dr. Robert F. Dombrowski, associate professor of accounting in the Perdue School of Business, will give a 30-minute presentation on "Year-End Tax Planning Tips" on Tuesday, November 13, at 7:30 p.m. The presentation will take place in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

Dombrowski is a member of the SSU Speakers Bureau which features some 50 faculty and staff members who share their expertise on a broad array of topics with organizations throughout the Eastern Shore. He received advanced business degrees from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania and from Louisiana Tech University.

The presentation is free and open to the public.

Mancini Photographs Are in Both Galleries

Photographs by Salvatore Mancini, artist-in-residence in the Art Department of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, are currently being exhibited in both the University's art galleries.

His photographs on Indian rock art, for which he is best known, will be on display in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, through November 15. These photographs document paintings and engravings, called "petroglyphs," made by American Indians on rock ledges and cliffs in southwestern United States.

Mancini traveled over 15,000 miles through Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado to photograph the rock art of each of the four major prehistoric Indian groups in the southwest—the Anasazi, Fremont, Hohokam and Mogollon—as well as that of more recent Pueblo, Navajo and Hopi Indians. The petroglyphs span some 4,000 years, though most of the images represented in the exhibition were made 500 to 1,500 years ago.

In addition to the petroglyphs, Mancini has photographed the archeological excavation of the Roman city of Caesaria, various Third World cultures, the Italian-American community in Rhode Island, and conditions in Rhode Island state mental hospitals.

A selction of his travel photographs, including his 1983 series of "Neapolitan Street Shrines", from Naples, Italy, as well as some of his more personal photographs, will be on display through November 13 in the Atrium Gallery, located in the University Center next to the bookstore.

Mancini will be artist-in-residence through November 16. His residency, plus educational outreach programs linked to his residency, have been made possible, in part, by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council. According to James Burgess, the chair of the Art Department, Mancini is available to speak in area schools and to community groups on the various subject he has photographed. For more information, call the Art Department at 543-6270.

The photographs of Indian rock art have been extensively exhibited in the northeastern United States and in Italy. They show human figures, supernatural beings, masks, animals, hand prints, geometric designs and other abstract symbols, all rendered in a simple, almost schematic style. According to Ursuala Ehrhardt, the director of the University Gallery, the art generally served religious, communal and ritual purposes.

"Mancini's photographs not only capture the mysterious power of this art but also convey a sense of its relationship to the landscape, and of its function as a means of communication with nature and higher spiritual forces," Ehrhardt said. Mancini, in fact, calls his photographs "tracings" depicting the history and cosmologies of the ancients.

Mancini was born in Itri, Italy in 1947 and came to the United States as a child. After attending high school in Rhode Island, he studied photography at the Rochester Institute of Technology in New York. He has exhibited his work extensively in the United States and Italy. His photographs are presented in the photographic collections of major American museums, and he has received numerous grants and awards.

Flu Vaccine

A limited supply of flu vaccine is available for faculty, staff and students. The shot is free to full-time students; there is a charge of $5 for faculty, staff and part-time students.

As a routine, vaccine should not be given to persons who have an allergic response to eggs. Persons who are currently ill with fever should not be vaccinated until symptoms are improved.

Please call the Health Center at 543-6262 to arrange for your vaccination.

Education Tuition Assistance Program

Applications for the undergraduate Christa McAuliffe Scholarships are available in the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, room 243. The deadline is January 2.

Applicants must be Maryland residents, have a cumulative collegiate Grade Point Average of 3.0, have completed 60 credit hours by the beginning of the fall 1991 semester, and be pursuing a career in teacher education certification. The areas of critical shortage are: mathematics, chemistry, earth science, physical science, physics, special education, and trades and industry.

Applicants may be full-time or part-time students. They must agree to teach full time in a Maryland public school as part of the scholarship agreement.

Pre-professional Graduate Health Career Students

The Graduate Health Advisory Committee announces the fall 1990 interview schedule for students wishing to support their application for admission to graduate health professional programs with a composite faculty recommendation letter. Most professional programs now require such a recommendation.

Interviews will be conducted on Mondays at 5 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 103. Please schedule an appointment with Dawn Johnson in the Biological Sciences Departmental Office (Devilbiss Hall, room 236) at least one week in advance.

IABC Plans

The International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) has several events planned for the month of November.

Peg Brinkley, communications representative from Delmarva Power, will be speaking to IABC members on Thursday, November 8, 3:30 p.m. in Nanticoke B of the University Center. Brinkley will discuss public relations at Delmarva Power. All members and interested students are welcome to attend.

IABC will have a 1990 yearbook picture taken on Monday, November 12, at 6 p.m. in Nanticoke C of the University Center. All members are encouraged to have their picture taken with the organization. IABC is the first organization scheduled that evening; please arrive promptly. The sessions are in 10-minute increments, so it should not take long.

The community events committee has volunteered to help the American Heart Association assemble luminaries (bags with candles and sand in them) for the Winter Wonderland Walk, a fund-raising event sponsored by AHA, in December. IABC members will be assembling them on Saturday, November 17. Assembly is very simple and should only take a few hours. The place and time will be announced. Any IABC members or students interested in helping please contact Kristi Swift at 546-4205. The more people to help the better.

Epilepsy Annual Meeting Scheduled

The annual membership meeting of the Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore (EAES) will be held on Wednesday evening, November 14, at the Bonfire Restaurant in Ocean City.

John Yarbrough, reporter for The Daily Times, will be the guest speaker. Yarbrough is the recipient of the Epilepsy Foundation of America's outstanding achievement award for print journalism for his article "One Man's Struggle with Epilepsy."

The meeting is open to the public. To reserve your $20 ticket, call 543-0665.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Business Start Up Seminar Is Scheduled

A free seminar designed to guide an individual in analyzing the prospects of turning an idea into a business reality will be held on Thursday, November 15, from 9 a.m.-noon at the Salisbury Chamber of Commerce Building, 300 East Main Street.

Titled "Analysis and Start Up," the seminar will provide the basic understanding of what is needed for a new business to function effectively. It will be conducted by the Eastern Shore Regional Small Business Development Center which is housed in the Perdue School of Business in conjunction with C.W. Amos and Company in Salisbury.

If planning to attend, please call 546-4325 or 1-800-999- SBDC.

Siney Receives Scholarship

John A. Siney, a senior management major in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, recently received the Ashley Phillips Memorial Scholarship, sponsored by Loyola Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The $1,000 award for the 1990 fall semester is based on the student's volunteer work, community service, grade point average and financial need.

Siney, 21, a 1987 graduate of Bel Air High School, is the son of Joan Siney of Bel Air.

In addition to the Loyola scholarship his other awards while at SSU include membership in Delta Mu Delta, the honorary business fraternity, and the University Honors Program.

His extracurricular activities are extensive. He is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, the American Marketing Association, the Financial Management Association and the Phi Beta Lambda business club. He was a Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program participant, a freshman Orientation instructor, an Outward Bound participant and a resident assistant for Pocomoke Hall. Also, last spring he earned his real estate license.

The scholarship is named in honor of Ashley Phillips, a student at Clemson University and long-time resident of Salisbury who died in a traffic accident last summer. She was the daughter of Lynda and Robert Freeman. Mr. Freeman is an employee of Loyola Federal, which as a token of sympathy to the Freeman family dedicated the scholarship in Ashley Phillips' memory.

Small Successfully Defends Dissertation

Clara L. Small, instructor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts for the past 12 years, has successfully defended her dissertation at the University of Delaware.

Her dissertation topic was a genealogical and demographic study of the lower Eastern Shore of colonial Virginia and Maryland. Her specialization is American colonial history, with minors in black American history, Tudor and Stuart England, the Reconstruction Period following the Civil War and 20th century America.

Small is the facilitator in an eight-week reading and discussion program for older adults called "Silver Editions." The topic of the eight-week program is "The Remembered Past: 1914-1945." It seeks to stimulate recollections and personal reflection, as well as to provide insights or new perspectives for the participants of times through which they lived.

Small's function is to stimulate discussion for the readings and to encourage personal reflections on the past. The sessions are held every other Thursday night at the William Hill Manor Home on Dutchman Lane in Easton. The programs are free to all participants.

"Silver Editions" is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities. The program is coordinated by the Eastern Shore Regional Library and is sponsored by the National Council on Aging.

International Students Fundraiser

Some international students at SSU need help getting to know the United States. The students are planning and organizing many fundraisers for a spring trip to Florida. The upcoming one will introduce "The Farmer's Cookbook," written by Mitzi Perdue.

Perdue, a graduate of Harvard University and George Washington University, is an author of many publications on a variety of subjects. "The Farmer's Cookbook" is a collection of recipes for cooking nutritious, wholesome meals. It includes tips on buying, handling, storing and preparing a medley of fresh foods readily available at nearby markets. The recipes are unique in their shortness and simplicity, yet provide for a tasty Eastern Shore cuisine.

The books are available for $19.95 with autograph, and $14.95 without autograph. To order, please call Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313.

Easter Seal Event

The second annual Easter Seal Aerobathon will be held on Sunday, December 9, from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. at Ursuline Academy. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. The school is located just off the Delaware Avenue north exit of Interstate 95 in Wilmington. For more information call the Easter Seal Society of Del-Mar at (302) 998-2811.

Welsh Is Contributor To Films in Review

"Some people play golf for relaxation," said Jim Welsh, associate professor of English at SSU and editor of Literature/Film Quarterly. "I review movies."

The October issue of Films in Review, a magazine published by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures in New York City, substantiates his claim and includes his reviews of four summer movies: "Days of Thunder" ("the Tom Cruise Thunder blunder"), "Total Recall" ("Despite evidence to the contrary, the notion seems to persist that Austrian muscleman Arnold Schwarzenegger can act"), "Betsy's Wedding" ("inspired by "Father of the Bride," though Alan Alda is no Spencer Tracy, nor is he a Vincente Minnelli") and "Cadillac Man" (a slight comedy made amusing by "the comic inventiveness of Robin Williams").

So far this year 11 Welsh reviews have appeared in Films in Review, including "Driving Miss Daisy," "Steel Magnolias," "Loose Cannons," "Internal Affairs," "Bird on a Wire," "Crazy People" and "I Love You to Death." Of these Welsh is particularly pleased to have had his review of "Driving Miss Daisy" printed in the April issue since the National Board of Review selected "Driving Miss Daisy" as the Best Film of 1989. Consequently Welsh believes that Jessica Tandy and her husband Hume Cronyn as well as Morgan Freeman, who won the Best Actor award, probably read his review of that film.

Welsh placed his first review with Films in Review in 1977, on "Fellini's Casanova," and has for the past decade been listed as a regular contributor on the magazine's masthead. He began reviewing films locally for The Salisbury Advertiser in 1978 and continued weekly writing for that paper until 1982. From 1980 to 1987 he reviewed weekly for WBOC-TV in Salisbury and has also reviewed weekly for The Beachcomber in Ocean City and Rehoboth Beach.

Welsh estimates that he has published well over 700 newspaper reviews in addition to freelance work for the Sunday Times of Salisbury. For two years (1987-89) he also did radio reviews for WSCL-FM on "Delmarva Artscape," a weekly talk show he developed and co-hosted with Davina Grace Hill of the Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council. Welsh believes he has proved himself many times over as a local reviewer. "But it's much more difficult to get published in a magazine produced in New York City," he noted, "where everyone wants to be a movie 'critic.' I've always had a good shot at reviewing trash movies, but it's encouraging when an editorial board chooses to print your review of a really important movie like "Driving Miss Daisy."

Welsh continues to review mainly for the practice. He teaches film studies and writing at Salisbury State, and when he assigns papers, he is not asking his students to do anything that he has not done himself. So far this year he has had 27 essays, notes and reviews published, averaging more than two pieces in print each month over and above the weekly journalistic reviews.

Math Paper Published

A joint paper by Dr. Robert M. Tardiff and Dr. Homer W. Austin of the Department of Mathematical Sciences in the Henson School of Science and Technology was recently published in the Houston Journal of Mathematics, a refereed journal of national distribution.

The paper was titled "Convexity and a Generalized Minkowski Inequality." A partial solution was given to a long-standing unsolved problem in mathematics.

Administrative Assistant

Salisbury State University seeks an outgoing, reliable person to serve as the administrative assistant to the director of the Lower Shore Regional Technology Council. Duties include supporting the director, organizing County Technology Roundtables, computing records and dealing directly with economic development officers on the lower Shore and throughout Maryland. This is a full-time, contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $20,800 per year. Minimum qualifications include a bachelor's degree in business or related area, working knowledge of WordPerfect, Lotus 1-2-3, and DBase III, and experience in public relations. Qualified individuals may apply by submitting a resume and completing an application in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University not later than Monday, November 5.

Assistant Director Of Horticulture

SSU is seeking applications for the assistant director of Horticulture. Applicants should be familiar with the operations of a small grounds organization with emphasis on interior plant management, turf management, equipment operation, personnel scheduling, and general horticultural maintenance. The successful candidate must be an excellent communicator, possess a degree in horticulture or the equivalent, and have at least three years practical experience in the field of horticulture. This is a full time state position with all benefits and a starting salary commensurate with experience. Interested applicants should submit a resume to the Personnel Office by November 12.

Cash Cart Operator

University Dining Services has an immediate opening for a part-time cash cart operator. Hours are 10 a.m.-2:30 p.m., Monday - Friday. The position requires the ability to work independently. Starting salary is $5 per hour. This is a contractual position (no paid benefits).

Make application not later than November 13 to Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University.

Management Information Systems

A search is currently underway to fill one tenure-track position to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in MIS and related areas. The position requires a commitment to high quality teaching and demonstrated research potential.

Ph.D./D.B.A. is required, A.B.D. near completion will be considered. Rank and salary will be commensurate with education and experience.

Send vita and letter of application to Dr. James D. Brodzinski, Department of Information and Decision Sciences, the Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Consideration of applicants will begin December 15 and continue until the position is filled.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Building Manager

The University Center has an opening for a part-time building manager. Duties include on-site supervision of the facility and its staff during evening hours and weekends, averaging 20-25 hours per week on a rotating basis. High school education is required; supervisory experience is preferred. This is a contractual position (no paid benefits), paying $6-$7 an hour, depending on experience. Ideal for college student or retiree. Apply at the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University not later than November 12.

Counselor

Applications are being accepted for a temporary, contractual (no state benefits) position as a counselor in the University's Counseling Center.

Responsibilities include providing individual and group counseling for students regarding personal, social, relationship and academic concerns. Qualifications include a master's degree in counseling or field related to student development. Experience counseling university students, particularly women, minorities, handicapped and returning students, is desirable.

The position is for 30 hours per week from February 4 - March 31, and 15 hours per week from April 1 - May 24. Salary is commensurate with experience.

Send resume to Kathryn Reading, Counselor, Center for Personal and Professional Development, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Deadline for resumes is November 22.

Ference at Conference

Dr. Greg Ference, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, attended the 22nd annual convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies (AAASS) held in Washington, D.C.

It is the largest organization for the scholarly study of Russia/Soviet Union and Eastern Europe and is international in membership. The focus of this year's panel discussions involved the immense changes in Eastern Europe since last year.

While at the conference Ference also attended the general meetings of two subgroups of the AAASS: the Czechoslovak History Conference (CHS) and the Slovak Studies Association (SSA). He presented reports at both.

As a member of the nominating committee of the SSA, Ference discussed the current status of nominations for the officers of the SSA for the upcoming elections in January 1991. During the past several months numerous inquiries have been made to various academicians throughout the U.S. and abroad to determine those who would be willing to run for the offices of president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary.

At the CHC, Ference related the progress on the indexing of the society's journal. Due to his experience in library science he was asked and accepted the responsibility of indexing the CHC journal from its inception in 1972. About one-quarter of this project is finished, and it is expected to be completed by March 1991.

Ference also attended the 24th annual History Forum at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh. The theme of the forum was "Gender in History," with many interesting panels revolving around the topic.

The plenary addresses by chief scholars in the field of gender studies underlined the importance of the discipline to the liberal arts. While in attendance at the forum Ference was a commentator on a panel, "The Immigrant Experience."

Athletic Training Interns

The University is seeking two graduate interns in athletic training. Desirable applicants should possess or be eligible for NATA certification. In addition, CPR instructor and first aid instructor certification is preferred. This is a two-year appointment. Salary/stipend will be $6,000-$6,500 for the year.

The athletic training program is an internship program with a concentration in athletic training within the physical education curriculum. It furnishes services to 19 varsity sports, 32 intramural activities and eight club teams. SSU is a member of the NCAA Division III.

To apply send a letter of application, resume and three letters of recommendation to Athletic Trainer Search, Salisbury State University, Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Screening will begin on February 1 and applications will be accepted until the positions are filled. The anticipated starting date is August 5.

Breast Self Exam Increases Survival Rate

One in 10 women will develop breast cancer in their lifetime. Early detection and treatment can mean a 90-100 percent survival rate.

One method for early detection of breast changes is self examination. Every woman, regardless of age, should practice BSE on a monthly basis. The best time to examine your breast is a few days after your period. Signs and symptoms to look for in BSE are: lump or thickening in the breast (may be painless); swelling of the breast; puckering or dimpling; redness or skin irritation that persists; or changes in the nipple and/or areolae (whitish discoloration, distorted shape, inverted nipple or discharge).

If any changes are noticed, contact your health care provider as soon as possible.

The cause of breast cancer is unknown, however, certain risk factors have been identified, such as: age (risk increases with age); family history of cancer; menses (onset before age 12, menopause after age 55); older than 30 at birth of first child; never giving birth; and obesity.

Although 95 percent of breast lumps are found by women themselves, approximately 25 percent actually practice BSE on a regular basis. Most breast masses are benign (non-cancerous), but why take a chance? BSE can be a life-saving habit.

Brochures illustrating the proper technique for BSE are available in the Health Center. A breast model for teaching BSE is also available.

The American Cancer Society urges women to do monthly BSE and have annual clinical breast exams by a trained health care provider and a mammogram, a low dose x-ray that can detect a lump that is too small to be found through physical exam.

Participate in decreasing the mortality rate of breast cancer by practicing methods of early detection. Don't forget to do your monthly BSE.

Folkoff at Symposium

Dr. M.E. Folkoff of the Department of Geography chaired a paper session and presented a paper, "The Influence of Weathering and pH on the Clay Content of U.S. Soils," at a regional meeting of the Association of American Geographers held in Norwich, CT, October 12-14.

On October 28-30, Dr. Folkoff will be attending the "1990: Cartography and Design Symposium" in Langley, VA. He is one of the 20 faculty selected nationally who were invited to participate in this conference sponsored by the CIA.

HOSPICE AND SPIRITUALITY. A day-long conference on spirituality and its meaning for the terminally ill and their families was the subject of a day-long conference on Friday, November 2, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Conference participants included (left to right) Dr. James Martin, Salisbury physician and associate medical director of Coastal Hospice; Dr. Jerome Miller, SSU professor of philosphy; Marion Keenan, president of Coastal Hospice; and Dr. Francis Kane, chair of the SSU Philosophy Department. The program was funded, in part, by a grant from the Maryland Humanities Council.

Research on Alcohol By Ulm, Hopson

Dr. Ronald Ulm and Dr. Natalie Hopson, both of the Psychology Department in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, and Dr. Joseph Volpicelli of the University of Pennsylvania have cooperated on a publication which has recently been accepted in the journal Alcoholism: Clinical and Experimental Research. The title of the article is "The Bidirectional Effects of Shock on Alcohol Preference in Rats."

The research challenges the traditional view that organisms drink alcohol in order to reduce tension or anxiety. The authors found the relationship between alcohol drinking and stress to be much more involved.

For example, rats given free access to water and an alcohol neatly separate themselves into "alcohol lovers" and "alcohol haters." The "lovers" drink as much as 80 percent of their total fluid from the alcohol bottle, whereas the "haters" drink as little as 5 percent from the alcohol bottle. This occurs prior to any stressful episode.

During conditions of stress, however, the alcohol preferences switch, with the "lovers" reducing their alcohol intake and the "haters" increasing theirs. Most significantly, both lovers and haters drank more alcohol after a stressful episode than during the stress itself, an effect the authors dub "The Happy Hour Effect."

The clinical implications to alcoholics, to people in occupations involving considerable stress and to social practices which promote drinking such as "Happy Hour," are relevant to this line of research, according to the authors.

The journal of Alcoholism: Clinical and Experimental Research provided a perfect forum for a joining of the experimental research approach of Ulm with the clinical relevance interests of Hopson.

"This is exactly what we need more of in the field of psychology, and we look forward to further collaboration," they said.

Dining Services has donated free passes to a Sunday Brunch on the Hill and the annual Christmas dinner (December 12) and Mitzi Perdue has donated two of her cookbooks. The campaign ends Friday, November 30. The drawing for the CD and the other prizes takes place on Monday, December 3. The winners will be contacted immediately.

While considering whether to contribute, please consider that the agencies which receive funds from United Charities depend on generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered.

"Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you," said campaign co-coordinator Gains Hawkins, director of Public Relations. "Be as generous as you can be."

Campaign coordinators at the University this year are Debbie Merryweather (543-6050) and Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them if you have any questions.

as its dialogue. After six years of teaching at an American university, Teddy, a philosophy professor, brings his wife back to North London to meet his widowed father, a bachelor uncle, and two younger brothers. An amoral crew with the ethics of asphalt-jungle cats, the four live in "the land of no holds barred." Teddy's wife is oddly fascinated by this menange of men. They make their moves and she is pliable. At the end they propose she stay on and earn her keep by working for them as a part-time prostitute. Meanwhile Teddy maintains his deadpan cool.

"Pinter's brutal, dream-like action unfolds with such precision, so unerring a grasp of style and movement, as to constitute a lesson in the dramatic arts and a reminder of how exciting theater can still be," Richard Gilman wrote in Newsweek.

The predominantly male interpretation plays November 14, 16 and 18, the female November 15, 17 and 19. Curtain is at 8 p.m. except, Sunday, November 18, which is a 2 p.m. matinee. Tickets are free to SSU students, faculty and staff. Reservations may be made by calling the SSU Theatre Box Office at (301) 543-6228.

to experience literature that was written and is being written expressly for their instruments which should include a variety of ensemble settings, both conducted and non-conducted. In addition, I feel we have an obligation to prepare these individuals for their future vocation by providing them with the most comprehensive knowledge and musical skills in order that they can intrinsically educate and perform at the highest professional level.

"We still have a number of students who are waiting to organize other chamber ensembles once the right combination on instrumentists are available," said Johnson.

"This solo performing experience is demanding of these students and it requires a solid fundamental knowledge of their instrument and its literature. The performance opportunities, both on and off campus, are almost unlimited," said Johnson.

The SSU chamber ensembles perform throughout the Eastern Shore including public performances at the St. Peter's Episcopal Church's Bach Lunches, Maryland Gov. William Donald Schaefer's United Way Campaign, the WSCL "Radio Free Delmarva" program, the Pine Bluff Village Auxiliary and numerous on-campus performances. A recent event, which also involved high school students from the Shore, included professional french horn artist Arthur Brooks and composer Douglas Allenbrook at Salisbury State. At Brooks' performances and lecture, both SSU brass ensembles were featured in the workshop setting.

All wind chamber music ensembles are under the auspices of Johnson. In addition, Johnson teaches courses in conducting, music theory, instrumental methods and low brass techniques.

Prior to coming to SSU, Johnson enjoyed success as conductor for high school programs in Wisconsin and Illinois. His concert and marching bands have received awards and recognition for excellence of performance in Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin. From 1984-86, Johnson served as principal conductor to the Crystal Lake Adult Community Band in Illinois. In 1987, he served as interim conductor to the Grand Rapids Concert Band in Michigan.

Recently, Johnson appeared as adjudicator for the Maryland Regional Solo and Ensemble Festival and the Maryland District Band Festival. In 1989, he appeared as guest conductor to the 27th anniversary Senior All-Shore Band Festival, the Worcester All-County Fine Arts Festival and the Sussex All-County Senior Band Festival in Maryland and Delaware. In January 1990, Johnson appeared at the Percy Grainger Wind Music Symposium in East Lansing, MI where he served as guest conductor with clinician/lecturer/conductor Keith Brion. Johnson has appeared as clinician, adjudicator, lecturer and guest conductor in Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland and Michigan.

Molenda Published

Dr. John R. Molenda, professor of biology in the Henson School of Science and Technology, has had a paper titled, "Tracking Down 'Typhoid Mary'" published in the Journal of Dairy, Food and Environmental Sanitation.

Molenda's paper traces the involvement of Mary Mallon and the outbreak of Typhoid Fever during the winter of 1906-07 in New York.

Bonfire To Begin Holiday Food Drive

University students hope to begin a tradition on Friday, November 30, when they launch their 1990 Holiday Food Drive with a campus bonfire, hot chocolate, marshmallows and music provided by WSUR, the student radio station.

"We had a bonfire at Homecoming and it was so popular we thought it a good way to launch the food drive," said John Gunson, a vice president of the Student Senate which is sponsoring the campus effort. "We would like it to become an annual event."

Gunson has been busy the last few weeks rounding up pallets to be burned that night and he has asked SSU President Thomas Bellavance to deliver the greeting. Festivities start promptly at 7:10 p.m. on the athletic fields across from the Power Professional Building.

The campus community is invited to bring donations of food that night which will be given to the Salisbury chapter of the Maryland Food Bank.

During the University's 1990 Food Drive, which officially runs from November 30-December 11, various student organizations will be putting food collection boxes around campus. All members of the University community are urged to help the Maryland Food Bank during the holiday season.

To wrap up the 1990 drive, the University Center will sponsor a free concert by the U.S. Army Field Band and Soldier's Chorus, on Tuesday, December 11, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The Maryland Food Bank will accept both perishables and non-perishables, but the University requests that only non-perishables and canned goods be donated during the Food Drive. Those wishing to donate perishables may take them directly to the Maryland Food Bank, 317 Truitt Street in Salisbury, or telephone them at 742-0050.

For more information on the University's 1990 Holiday Food Drive, please call Gunson at the Student Senate office at 548-4757.

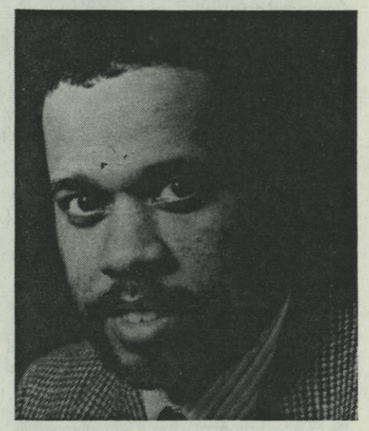
Distinguished Journalist Juan Williams on Campus Nov. 27



Juan Williams

What was it like in America prior to Selma, the desegregation of Ole Miss and the march on Washington? How did affirmative action come into being and why is it still important? Why are we experiencing a re-emergence of racism on college campuses—including Ku Klux Klan recruitment drives? These are some of the issues that Washington Post writer Juan Williams will discuss at the University on Tuesday, November 27.

Williams, political reporter for the Washington Post, commentator for PBS' MacNeil-Lehrer Report and the author of the highly acclaimed history of the Civil Rights movement, "Eyes on the Prize," will explore the past and the present of that important social phenomenon in a 7:30 p.m. presentation in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. His address is titled "Eyes on the Prize—How Today's Student Can Make a Difference." Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Williams' appearance is sponsored by the University's Union of African-American Students (UAS). "This prominent Washington Post reporter gives a powerful and moving presentation which has earned praise at colleges across the country," said Vaughn White, SSU coordinator for minority programming and UAS advisor.

Williams, who is only 35 years old, has had a distinguished career as a journalist and writer. On the Washington Post staff since 1976, he worked his way up from intern to covering all areas of the news, serving as White House correspondent, and reporting the campaigns of George Bush for vice president and Jesse Jackson

'Mastery Teaching' Author at SSU Nov. 29

Dr. Madeline Hunter, whom Educational Leadership magazine has called "a household word in education" and whose techniques are used in classrooms around the world, is the next E. Pauline Riall lecturer at SSU.

Hunter will be on the campus Thursday, November 29, for day-long activities, including master teaching sessions with area school children and SSU student teachers, culminating in the Riall address at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The public is cordially invited. Admission is free.

Originally trained as a psychologist, Hunter will talk on "Enhancing Your Own and Students' Learning: How the Brain Functions."

The award-winning educator's ability to communicate, in both the spoken and written word, has made her a favorite internationally. Her programs are used in 35 foreign countries and every U.S. state.

"Hunter communicates in very clear, plain, understandable language" eschewing the verbal gobbledygook that too often creeps into academe, said Dr. John Wolinski, SSU education professor. A tribute to the strength of her ideas, and her clarity, is her 1982 book, "Mastery Teaching," which has gone through 26 printings as of March 1989.

The author of 12 books, she also has developed an educational "model" or process for approaching teaching which Wolinski calls "elegant in its simplicity." It has been presented to "tens of thousand of educators" according to Educational Leadership and adopted by hundreds of school districts.

At the heart of her work is a genuine respect for teachers as leaders and decision-makers, and their charges. The purpose of her "teacher decision-making model" as she calls it is to help with "all of the 5,000 decisions a teacher makes

Health Careers Day And Job Fair

The Center for Personal and Professional Development is sponsoring a Health Careers Day and Job Fair on Friday, November 16, from 10:30 a.m.-1 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Representatives from over 35 hospitals and health organizations will be on hand to provide SSU students and alumni with information about health careers and employment opportunities. Participating employers include hospitals such as Johns Hopkins, Sheppard Pratt, Peninsula General Medical Center, Mercy Medical Center and organizations such as the Maryland State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, Commission on Mental Health Services and the University of Virginia Health Sciences Center. Students majoring in nursing, medical technology, social work, respiratory therapy and any other majors interested in careers in the health field should consider attending.

More information, including a complete listing of employers who will be attending, is available in the CPPD on the second floor of the University Center.

Concert Choir Performs at Asbury

The University Concert Choir presents its annual holiday concert on Saturday, December 1, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church.

Sponsored by the Department of Music and the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, the performance features guest soloists Katherine Turner Barlow, soprano; Dr. Larry Vote, baritone; Shu ju li Hom, harp; and Helen Quinby, cello. The holiday concert includes choral compositions by three British composers, Gerald Finzi's "In Terra Pax," Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols" and Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on Christmas Carols."

The concert is free and open to the public.

Math Modeling Contest

Dr. B.A. Fusaro, professor of mathematics in the Henson School of Science and Technology and contest director for the Mathematical Contest in Modeling, has announced the date for the 1991 contest as the weekend of March 1. Fusaro created the contest in 1985 with a three-year grant from the Department of Education.

The Mathematical Contest in Modeling is a national competition for teams of college undergraduates. It is designed to stimulate and improve problem-solving and writing skills in a team setting. Most of the problems arise from real-world situations.

Last year, 236 teams submitted solution papers, representing 146 schools. Every year there have been teams whose results were of such a professional level that they were published in scientific journals.

SSPB Ski Trip

The Salisbury State Program Board is arranging a weekend ski trip to the Friar Tuck Inn & Resort in Catskill, NY, on February 8-10. Skiers will have the opportunity to try Hunter Mountain or Cortina Valley.

The package includes transportation, hotel accomodations, various meals and many activities. Information on the trip and cost is available at the information desk in the University Center. Sign-up and a $50 deposit is due by November 20.

Piano Concert

Piano students in the Music Department will perform Friday, November 30, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The concert will be performed on two Steinway pianos and will include works by J.S. Bach, Haydn, Beethoven, Kabalevsky, Ravel and Milhaud.

The "Bach Concerto in F Minor" will feature soloist Charles Grogan from Salisbury; the "Haydn Concerto in D Major" will be performed by Karen Orr from Bel Air, MD; the first movement of "Concerto #2 in B-flat Major" by Beethoven will be played by Wynel Cooper of Salisbury; and the first movement of "Concerto #3 in D Major" (Opus 50) by Kabalevsky will feature Scot Hawkins as soloist. Other works will include "The Mother Goose Suite" for two pianos by Ravel and "Scaramouche" by Milhaud.

This is the second piano concerto and duo recital done at SSU. Last November, works by Mozart, Shostakovich, Poulenc and Khatchaturian were performed. The concert is free and the public is invited to attend.

On Sunday, December 2, at 1 p.m., local pianists—Patricia Wroten, Joanne Peters, Harriet Robinson and Theresa Rose—will perform music for two pianos-eight hands. Music of Chopin, Handel, Agay, Steve Reich and Ravel will be played. Included in the workshop will be student performers from the concerto recital who will discuss their works in conjunction with local pianists who will also demonstrate and discuss pedagogical techniques for teaching the duet/duo literature.

The event is also in the Wicomico Room of the University Center and is free and open to the public.

Spring Music Courses

Spring semster course offerings from the Division of Wind Activities include MUSA-101-001, Wind Sinfonia, Monday and Wednesday, 3:25-5 p.m. (alternate Monday evening rehearsals required), in 190 Power Professional Building. This is a select ensemble for calibre wind and percussion instrumentalists. Performance features both "chamber" and "large" ensemble repertoire spanning all musical epochs.

The course is required of all instrumental music majors. However, it is open to all non-majors.

MUSA-102-151, Jazz Ensemble, is on Wednesdays, 7-9 p.m., in 190 Power Professional Building. This is a select group of approximately 20 University and community personnel. Emphasis is on the study and performance of various jazz styles ranging from the "Big Band" sound to contemporary and "fusion" forms. It includes development of jazz improvisation skills.

For further information regarding performance ensembles in the Department of Music, call 543-6385.

Flu Vaccine

A limited supply of flu vaccine is available for faculty, staff and students. The shot is free to full-time students; there is a charge of $5 for faculty, staff and part-time students.

As a routine, vaccine should not be given to persons who have an allergic response to eggs. Persons who are currently ill with fever should not be vaccinated until symptoms are improved.

Please call the Health Center at 543-6262 to arrange for your vaccination.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

IABC Plans

The International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) has several events planned for the month of November.

The comrhunity events committee has volunteered to help the American Heart Association assemble luminaries (bags with candles and sand in them) for the Winter Wonderland Walk, a fund-raising event sponsored by AHA, in December. IABC members will be assembling them on Saturday, November 17. Assembly is very simple and should only take a few hours. The place and time will be announced. Any IABC members or students interested in helping please contact Kristi Swift at 546-4205. The more people to help the better.

Members of the SSU Dance Company performing at Oktoberfest

SSU Dance Company Has Busy Schedule

The SSU Dance Company, under the direction of new Dance Program Director Victoria Hutchinson, is having an active performance schedule this fall.

Dance Company members donated over 15 hours of rehearsal preparation for the German folk dance performances during the October 31 Oktoberfest on the SSU campus. Directed by Assistant Company Director Deborah Lombardo-Wehlan, the dancers were Holly Bryan, Chrissy Donahue, Wendy Holtzman, Jamie Mineo, Kim Reisinger, Christine Sincak, Trudy Stevenson and April Wetherell.

On November 3, the dance company helped SSU football team enthusiasts swing into a winning mood with its half-time entertainment "Jump, Shout, Boogie," choreographed by Wehlan. Performers included Shelley Cathell, Terrey Dale, Chrissy Donahue, Liz Ellis, Jennifer Kelly, Christina Macabenta, Jamie Mineo, Kim Reisinger and Lauren Witczak. On display at the main gate was the company's award-winning 1990 Homecoming banner displaying the theme "A Night on the Town."

Thanks to the efforts of Head Football Coach Joe Rotellini and Athletic Director Bill Lide, VCR/monitor equipment was donated by the football team to the dance company for rehearsal use in mounting and reconstructing dance works.

Also active in the Salisbury community, the dance company will participate in the Salisbury Jaycees "Christmas 1990, A Parade of Hope" on December 2.

During its upcoming Winter Concert, Thursday-Saturday, December 6-8, at Holloway Hall Auditorium, the company invites people to participate in the 1990 SSU Maryland Food Bank Drive and bring a can of food to the concert. Collection boxes will be set up in the lobby. Also in conjunction with its Winter Concert, a "Christmas Crafts and Baked Goods Sale" will be held immediately before and after each performance, with proceeds to benefit the dance company.

For further information about the SSU Dance Company and its schedule of events, please contact the SSU Dance Program at 543-6353.

National Gallery Bus Trip

On Friday, November 30, the University Center will sponsor a bus trip to the National Gallery and the Smithsonian National Museums on the Mall in Washington, D.C. Full-time students may begin sign-ups on Friday, November 16, and the cost will be $10. Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may begin sign-ups on Monday, November 19, and the cost will be $12. Sign-ups will take place at the Information Desk in the University Center. The bus will leave the Dogwood parking lot of the University Center at 8 a.m. and return at approximately 6:30 p.m. There will be no stops.

In addition to the permanent collection, the National Gallery will be featuring "Titian: Prince of Painters" and "Anthony Van Dyck." The Titian exhibit celebrates the 500th anniversary of the birth of the Venetian master and the Van Dyck exhibit is a major retrospective marking the 350th anniversary of the Antwerp portrait painter. Some 90 masterpieces from all periods of Van Dyck's career will be on view.

Also on the Mall, participants may visit the Sackler Gallery with exhibitions of Asian and Near Eastern art, the National Museum of African Art with over 6,000 works in wood, metal, fired clay, ivory and fiber from cultures of sub-Saharan Africa, the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, as well as the National Air and Space Museum and the National Museum of Natural History.

Bus seats are limited and those interested must be present to sign-up for the trip. For more information, call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Thoreau Presentation

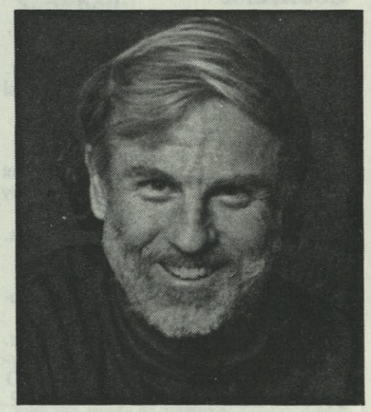
The Thoreau '90 Series will resume on Wednesday, December 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Dr. J. Parker Huber continues the semester-long tribute to Henry David Thoreau with a lecture/slide presentation entitled "Thoreau as a Naturalist and Traveler."

Huber is a private practice counselor and a member of the adjunct faculty of Southern Vermont College where he specializes in environmental history, environmental literature and the New England landscape. He taught "Thoreau's Maine Woods" at the University of Michigan and lectured on Thoreau's New England and teaching literature outside the classroom at the U.S. Naval Academy.

He guided British landscape artist Tony Foster through "Thoreau's New England" in the summer of 1984, "John Muir's Sierra Nevada" in the summer of 1986 and the Grand Canyon in April of 1988 and 1989.

While associate professor of history at Connecticut State University, he was awarded a grant for program change from the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges. With this, he created the Henry D. Thoreau School of Wilderness Studies, which offered a variety of outdoor programs focused on self-discovery, exploration of inner and outer landscapes, the literature of the land, journal writing and a sense of place and self. Included in the programs were "Thoreau's Maine Woods" and "Thoreau's Cape Cod" where the classes followed the author's journeys by canoe and on foot while discussing his philosophy and keeping journals of their adventures.

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information, call the University Center Office at 543-6100.



Dr. J. Parker Huber

Thoreau Reading Group

As an adjunct for the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center is sponsoring a Thoreau reading group.

The group is meeting on Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss different ideological views of Thoreau's writings. Remaining discussion leaders will be Dr. Tony Whall on freedom and dignity in Thoreau (November 15) and Dr. Dave Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6).

Participants in Whall's session should review the major philosophical chapters in Walden. For further information, contact Dr. Bill Horne at 543-6445.

International Students Fundraiser

Some international students at SSU need help getting to know the United States. The students are planning and organizing many fundraisers for a spring trip to Florida. The upcoming one will introduce "The Farmer's Cookbook," written by Mitzi Perdue.

Perdue, a graduate of Harvard University and George Washington University, is an author of many publications on a variety of subjects. "The Farmer's Cookbook" is a collection of recipes for cooking nutritious, wholesome meals. It includes tips on buying, handling, storing and preparing a medley of fresh foods readily available at nearby markets. The recipes are unique in their shortness and simplicity, yet provide for a tasty Eastern Shore cuisine.

The books are available for $19.95 with autograph, and $14.95 without autograph. To order, please call Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313.

Building Manager

The University Center has an opening for a part-time building manager. Duties include on-site supervision of the facility and its staff during evening hours and weekends, averaging 20-25 hours per week on a rotating basis. High school education is required; supervisory experience is preferred. This is a contractual position (no paid benefits), paying $6-$7 an hour, depending on experience. Ideal for college student or retiree. Apply at the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University not later than November 12.

Counselor

Applications are being accepted for a temporary, contractual (no state benefits) position as a counselor in the University's Counseling Center.

Responsibilities include providing individual and group counseling for students regarding personal, social, relationship and academic concerns. Qualifications include a master's degree in counseling or field related to student development. Experience counseling university students, particularly women, minorities, handicapped and returning students, is desirable.

The position is for 30 hours per week from February 4 - March 31, and 15 hours per week from April 1 - May 24. Salary is commensurate with experience.

Send resume to Kathryn Reading, Counselor, Center for Personal and Professional Development, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Deadline for resumes is November 22.

Management Information Systems

A search is currently underway to fill one tenure-track position to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in MIS and related areas. The position requires a commitment to high quality teaching and demonstrated research potential.

Ph.D./D.B.A. is required, A.B.D. near completion will be considered. Rank and salary will be commensurate with education and experience.

Send vita and letter of application to Dr. James D. Brodzinski, Department of Information and Decision Sciences, the Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Consideration of applicants will begin December 15 and continue until the position is filled.

Athletic Training Interns

The University is seeking two graduate interns in athletic training. Desirable applicants should possess or be eligible for NATA certification. In addition, CPR instructor and first aid instructor certification is preferred. This is a two-year appointment. Salary/stipend will be $6,000-$6,500 for the year.

The athletic training program is an internship program with a concentration in athletic training within the physical education curriculum. It furnishes services to 19 varsity sports, 32 intramural activities and eight club teams. SSU is a member of the NCAA Division III.

To apply send a letter of application, resume and three letters of recommendation to Athletic Trainer Search, Salisbury State University, Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Screening will begin on February 1 and applications will be accepted until the positions are filled. The anticipated starting date is August 5.

Cash Cart Operator

University Dining Services has an immediate opening for a part-time cash cart operator. Hours are 10 a.m.-2:30 p.m., Monday - Friday. The position requires the ability to work independently. Starting salary is $5 per hour. This is a contractual position (no paid benefits).

Make application not later than November 13 to Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University.

Secretary

The Office of Institutional Advancement has an immediate opening for a full-time secretary. Experience with WordPerfect a must. Salary is $8/hour. This is a contractual position (no paid benefits). Qualified individuals may apply at the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University no later than Monday, November 19.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Lyme Disease

by John Zimmerman, C-ANP

Lyme disease is caused by a spirochete and is transmitted by ticks. People who get the illness sometimes do not remember being bitten by a tick because the deer tick, which commonly transmit the disease, is quite small.

There are three stages to the disease. The first stage begins several weeks after the tick bite and common symptoms are a low grade fever, fatigue, muscle and joint aches. Many times a large reddened area occurs around the site of the tick bite with swelling over the bite area. If not treated other circular lesions may develop over various parts of the body.

If not treated 15% of the people can develop a second stage which occurs weeks to months after exposure. In this stage meningitis and neuritis of the cranial and peripheral nerves may occur. Symptoms include memory changes, weakness, numbness and loss of reflexes of the body parts involved. In this stage cardiac involvement can also occur with symptoms of passing out, palpitations or shortness of breath.

If left untreated during the second stage of Lyme disease 80% of the reported cases progress to a third stage which can manifest itself as arthritis of the knees, shoulders, ankles, elbow, temporomandibular joint, wrists or spine can be involved. The arthritis can be intermittent or chronic.

Treatment of this disease can easily be accomplished with antibiotic therapy. To prevent being bitten by a tick it is recommended that you cover any exposed body parts well when going into wooded areas during the warm months of the year and inspecting the body for ticks after being in a wooded area and removing them. If an infection with Lyme's disease is suspected it is important to be evaluated by the Health Services or your health care provider.

No Newsletter On Thanksgiving

No newsletter will be published Thursday, November 22. The next issue is Thursday, November 29. The final newsletter of the semester is December 13. It resumes publication on January 31. The deadline for the first newsletter of 1991 is Friday, January 25. Now, have a happy holiday season.

'The Homecoming': Wrapped in an Enigma

by Carolyn Woods

"The Homecoming" by Harold Pinter which opened on Wednesday in Holloway Hall Auditorium, is being produced by two University directors with two separate casts.

Dr. Andrew Hepburn, chair of the Communication Arts Department, is directing a predominantly male cast. Robert Smith, communication arts professor, is directing a mostly female ensemble.

Will Shupe who plays Joey in the Hepburn cast said that much of the dramatic action is mental rather than physical. "There are big meanings in stares, pauses and double takes, and there are double entendres as far as sexual references," he said.

Tom Morgan who portrays Joey's brother, Lenny, agrees: "Pauses mean everything."

Teddy, the brother of Joey and Lenny, is played by Sean Thomas. Thomas said that seeing the play is a psychological experience. He also notes an element of dark humor in the production. "You find yourself laughing at things you shouldn't be laughing at," he said.

Thomas said Pinter's writing is "gripping—it leaves you on the edge—Pinter takes everyday, trivial things and builds it and builds it and builds it until you have to ask yourself, 'What the hell is going on here?'"

Shupe and Thomas both find it difficult to portray their characters. Thomas said his character shows no emotion, which is hard to do in the highly emotional situations created by the playwright. Shupe said, "The hardest thing to do is to portray your inner thinking so well that others know what you are thinking without you saying it."

What do the actors believe to be the theme of the play? Their opinions differ, although all agree that Pinter leaves much of the decision up to the audience.

Thomas said Pinter is dealing with the dehumanization of humans. "We don't really care about anyone but ourselves."

Don Atkinson who plays Max, the father of the three boys, said the play shows "what love should be by showing what love can degenerate into."

Ed Atkinson who plays Sam, Max's brother, ironically sees the theme as the rehumanization, rather than the dehumanization, of people. "The play is about rejuvenation; putting back into life something that was missing," he said.

That missing element is found in Ruth, played by Jeannine Oliver. She is a maternal figure for Joey and a sexual object that could be employed by Lenny.

Head carpenter for "The Homecoming," John Staiger, said Ruth is "...colorful, she represents new life and new sexual arousement." She is a direct contrast to the dark setting of the play.

Staiger consulted with both directors and set designer Jerry Patt. "They wanted a gray space, morbid set," Staiger said, "with a late attic, early basement effect in furniture."

Georgia Chipouras is an assistant stage manager. Chipouras said the setting is so dark and old that, "You almost expect to see the moth balls."

Morgan strongly recommends that the audience attend both versions of the play to compare them. He feels everyone will see a bit of themselves in each characater.

"The Homecoming" under Hepburn's direction will play November 14 and 16 at 8 p.m., and November 18 at 2 p.m, Smith's performs November 15, 17 and 19 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3 and $5. Call the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228 for reservations.

Art Students Photosilkscreen Exhibit

The work of six University students enrolled in Dr. Kent Kimmel's seminar class, Issues in Art: Photosilkscreen, will be exhibited in the Atrium Gallery located next to the bookstore in the University Center. The show will be open daily, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m., until December 3 (closed Thanksgiving).

The seminar, described as "an introduction to the principles of printing black and white photographs through direct and indirect photographic emulsions using standard serigraphic techniques" is being offered for the first time at SSU. The students enrolled are Karen Brown, Bill Campbell, Cara Michele Nether, Kenny Ruback, Debbie Burley and Barbara Stitcher. All are upper-level photography students, but bring a variety of education direction and work-background to class. They also plan to use the skills they will learn in a variety of ways.

Nether, from Mechanicsville, MD, works full-time with photosilkscreen and goes to school part-time. She plans to make her career in the printing field. Both Brown, of Salisbury, and Ruback, of Bowie, are graphic design majors. Ruback feels the course will help combine color, photography and silkscreen skills. Brown hopes to use alternative processes of photography after graduation in December.

Burley, of Salisbury, has been a professional photographer for 15 years. Her special interest are the shapes and textures indigenous to her native Eastern Shore. Campbell, of Salisbury, is combining his interest in photography and desire to broaden his knowledge in printing techniques. Stitcher, of Parsonsburg, is a senior fine arts major and plans to pursue a career in graphic design. She is a past-president of the Art Institute and Gallery in Salisbury.

Admission to the exhibit is free and the public is invited.

SSU Students Compute a First

Resident students are registering giant strides for Parkside High School students.

All 10 residence halls at the University are collecting Giant Food register receipts and turning them over to the Parkside High PTA in that organization's efforts to take fullest advantage of the grocery chain's computer give-away program for elementary and secondary schools.

Participation in the program by Salisbury State is unprecedented among colleges and universities in Maryland, according to a Giant Food representative.

The Office of Residence Life will contact the other two high schools in Salisbury to inquire about their interest in SSU students sponsoring those schools in future years.

Senkbeil: Combining Research and Undergraduate Teaching

Dr. Edward Senkbeil, professor of chemistry and physics in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, has published an article titled "Flourometric Analysis of Riboflavin" in the September issue of the Journal of Chemical Education.

The results are part of Senkbeil's ongoing chemistry research program in cooperation with Dr. Hal White of the Chemistry and Biochemistry Department at the University of Delaware.

Senkbeil describes a flourometric technique for the analysis of riboflavin in the article, which may also be adapted as an under-graduate biochemistry experiment. The method describes the use of a specific riboflavin binding protein from egg whites for analyses.

His research efforts have directly involved many SSU undergraduate chemistry majors over the past 10 years. The article includes results of the undergraduate research project of Ji Yue Hu of Rockville, a recent chemistry graduate.

Hu, an analyst I for Versar Laboratories, Inc. in Springfield, VA, won the SSU 1989 James F. Glenn Memorial Award for Excellence in Chemistry.

According to Senkbeil, "The direct involvement of under-graduate chemistry majors in research projects provides the student with a valuable learning experience and allows the student to do independent problem solving."

Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School, applauded Senkbeil's efforts to involve undergraduates in research. Creighton added that this type of involvement is a significant factor in encouraging students to follow careers in specific science disciplines.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

With the football, field hockey and other fall sports seasons now complete, SSU's sports focus shifts to the winter teams, notably swimming, wrestling and men's and women's basketball. The Sea Gull swimmers opened their season on November 3 at Loyola College, and will continue their eight-meet schedule through December 12. The Gulls welcome Notre Dame (MD) College on Saturday at 1 p.m. in their final pre-Thanksgiving outing. The team will have meets at Hood, Gallaudet and Marymount in December, before closing out the season at home against Coppin State on December 12.

Coach Ron Otto's wrestling team is still involved with preseason practice. The grapplers open the season December 1 at the York (PA) Tournament.

Meanwhile, opening this weekend in different tournaments is the men's and women's basketball teams. The Sea Gull men take part in the Greensboro (NC) Tip-off Tournament, playing Emory College in Friday's opening round. Greensboro hosts Marietta in the other first round contest, with the consolation and championship games scheduled for Saturday. The Gulls, who set an NCAA Division III scoring record of 104.5 points/game last season, finished 14-13 overall in 1989-90. The team features good depth this season, highlighted by senior guard David Byer (16.0 ppg) and junior forwards Andre Foreman (25.5 ppg in '88-89) and Jamie Gosweiler (14.3 ppg). Coach Ward Lambert will once again utilize the run-and-gun, up-tempo style that characterized SSU's play last season.

The SSU women meet host Marietta College in the first round of their tournament on Friday. Allegheny and Bluefield State round out the field. The Gulls, 12-12 last year, are under the direction of first-year coach Bridget Benshetler. Leading the returning players are seniors Vicki Miller (9.8 ppg) and Christie Ivison (9.7 ppg), along with junior forward Jeannie Daly (6.4 ppg). Despite the graduation of last year's top scorer Sandy Jankevicius, Bentshetler feels her squad possesses good depth and much potential. Like the men's team, the women will feature an up-tempo style and a pressing defense.

Both squads open their home seasons on Wednesday, November 28, against conference-rival Wesley. The women's game tips off at 5:30 p.m. and the men's game follows at 7:30 p.m.

Children's Book Sale Dec. 1-6

The Rho Eta Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, the education honor society on campus, is planning a Book Fair the week of December 1-6. Children's books will be available for purchase in the University Center on Saturday, December 1, and in Caruthers Hall Monday-Thursday, December 3-6.

The book titles will include Caldecott and Newberry award winners from preschool to eighth grade reading level. These books would make fantastic Christmas presents or serve as a great addition to any classroom library, sale backers say. And the proceeds from the Book Fair will help to buy books for underprivileged children in the local area. Look for the book carts December 1-6.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

Students and alumni must have a resume and/or credential file personal information form on file with the Placement Office prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the placement office as soon as possible to complete this requirement.

Fri. Nov. 16	Health Careers Day/Job Fair-Interviewing biology, chemistry, nursing, respiratory therapy, medical technology, physical education, psychology, social work and any other major interested in a career in the health field. Visit with over 25 hospital and health organizations from 10:30 a.m.-1 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. No sign-ups are required.
Tues. Nov. 27	Metropolitan Life Insurance-Interviewing all majors for account representative positions.
	Radio Shack-Interviewing business administration and computer science majors for manager trainee and marketing representative positions.
Thur. Nov. 29	Staples, the Office Superstore-Interviewing all majors for management trainee positions for the Washington, D.C., and Philadelphia areas.
Tue.-Wed. Dec. 4-5	U.S. Marine Corps-A table will be set up in the lobby of the University Center for interested students from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.
Wed. Dec. 5	Naval Air Systems Command-Interviewing business and liberal arts (math background required) majors for contract specialist positions.
	Roadway Packing Systems-Please contact the CPPD Office for more details.
Thur. Dec. 6	Indian River School District-Interviewing education majors for teaching positions.
	State of Maryland, Division of Parole and Probation-Interviewing Bachelor's degrees with 30 credits in social, behavioral and correctional sciences. Group meeting from 10-11 a.m. with appointments after that. Sign-ups are required.
Fri. Dec. 7	Office of Inspector General-Please contact the CPPD Office for more details.
Tue. Dec. 11	Enterprise Leasing Company-Interviewing all majors for management trainees for Washington, D.C. metropolitan area. December 1991 graduates also encouraged to sign up.

Currently enrolled students and alumni may make appointments immediately. All recruiting requires sign-ups unless noted. Contact placement services, University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

SPECIAL NOTE: Those wishing to participate in on-campus interviewing must first attend an interview and placement briefing. The next meetings are: Tuesday, November 27, and Thursday, December 6. Contact the Placement Office for sign-ups.

SENIOR RESUME BOOK: Employers often ask to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors and then contact selected seniors about job openings. Interested seniors should bring their resumes to the placement office.

WORKSHOPS: Resume Writing–A one-session workshop designed to help the student develop one of the job campaign's basic tools, discussion of such topics as various formats, uses of resume, printing, cover letters and sections of the resume are featured. Handouts are provided. Bring a draft resume if available.
Thursday, November 29, 4-5:30 p.m.

Interview Skills–A must for every senior. This one-session workshop is designed to assist in preparing for the professional job interview. A review of such topics as nonverbal behavior, dress, questions, and interview phases and preparation is featured. Handouts are provided. Prior attendance at a senior interview and placement briefing is suggested.
Tuesday, November 27, 1:30-3 p.m.

All workshops require sign-ups. Contact placement services office, University Center room 263, or call 543-6075.

GENERAL INFORMATION: 34th Annual Advertising Career Conference will be held on November 30, and December 1 and 2, at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York. Deadline for application is November 16

New Jersey Collegiate Career Day will be held on Friday, January 4, from 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. at Rutgers, NJ.

CONNEXION: This is a new free service provided by Peterson's that links people in transition to employers and graduate schools across the country.

More information can be obtained from the Center for Personal and Professional Development.

Outdoor Club

The Outdoor Club will hold its next meeting on Monday, December 3, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. The club will discuss tentative plans for the downhill and cross-country skiing trip to Montreal, Canada, over the winter term break.

Weight Club Meeting

The University Weight Club will hold a meeting on Tuesday, November 13, at 7 p.m., in room 204 of Maggs Gym. All interested faculty, staff and students are urged to attend. If there are any questions please contact Chris Antonio at 860-0653.

Welch said, "We're taking those same raw ingredients and using a different recipe and coming up with a sound like you've never heard before."

Radio Free Delmarva

On Saturday, November 17, the award-winning radio variety show RFD-Radio Free Delmarva, moves into its second year with a production guaranteed to give new meaning to the term "quality entertainment, according to producer Van Williamson. With none of the trappings of super-slick Las Vegas-style productions, RFD, Williamson says, "would have plenty of those trappings if only we could afford them. Barring bomb threats or serious uprisings, RFD will go on as scheduled with a full roster of music and semi-comedy," . . . including performances by the folk trio Ironweed, the Abend Musiken Singers with music from "The Mikado," gospel music from the Ebenezer Methodist Men's Chorus, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore Jazz Ensemble, chapter five in the continuing semi-drama "Shore Thing," animal stories from beyond the news and much, much more. The show is performed before a live audience in Caruthers Auditorium and is broadcast live at 89.5 FM. Show time is 8-10 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited.

SSU Choir Holiday Concert Dec. 1

The University Concert Choir presents its annual holiday concert on Saturday, December 1, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church.

Sponsored by the Department of Music and the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, the performance features guest soloists Katherine Turner Barlow, soprano; Dr. Larry Vote, baritone; Shu ju li Hom, harp; Helen Quinby, cello; and David Lawson, organist. The holiday concert includes choral compositions by three British composers, Gerald Finzi's "In Terra Pax," Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols" and Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on Christmas Carols."

The choral ensemble is conducted by Dr. Duane R. Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities.

Barlow is presently on the SSU adjunct music faculty as voice instructor and gives master classes at the Delaware Music School in Milford and the Academy of the Arts in Easton. In 1987 she made her New York City debut with the Jefferson Chamber Orchestra performing Mozart's "Exultate, Jubilate." She will perform that same work this spring when the Concert Choir performs a program of choral music by Mozart, in tribute to the 200th anniversary of the composer's death in 1791.

Dr. Larry Vote is currently associate professor of music and director of vocal activities at St. Mary's College of Maryland. An accomplished vocal soloist and conductor, he has performed throughout the United States and Europe. He is a member of the Tidewater Chamber Players, an ensemble whose many performances have been broadcast regionally and on National Public Radio. Dr. Vote is a founding member of the Maryland Bach Aria Group which will shortly issue its first compact disc of music of Bach, Handel and Telemann on Crystal Records. In 1980 he performed as baritone soloist in the nation's first performance of "Messiah" utilizing period instruments. This past summer Dr. Vote toured the United Kingdom as soloist and music director of InterAct, a Washington, D.C. based theatre company, and in the summer of 1991 he is scheduled to appear with the Bolshoi Chamber Orchestra in its tour of France, performing Mahler's "Songs of a Wayfarer."

Shu ju li Hom was born in Darliani, a city in Northeast China. After studying the piano and violin at an early age, she began harp studies, and received her Bachelor of Music in harp performance from the Shenyang Conservatory of Music in China. She has performed with the Shen Zhen City Orchestra in China as a symphony harpist. In 1986 she came to the United States to study harp at the Peabody Conservatory of Music where she had received a full tuition scholarship. Shu ju li Hom graduated in May 1990 from the Peabody Conservatory with an artist's diploma in harp performance. She also has studied at the Salzado Summer Harp School in Maine. Shu ju li Hom will accompany the SSU Choir on Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols," a work for choir, harp and soprano soloist.

Guest cellist Helen Quinby currently performs with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra. She is from Cambridge, MD. Guest organist, David Lawson, studied organ with Dr. Ray Zeigler at SSU and is currently accompanist for the Salisbury Choral Society. He has served that choral ensemble for 12 years. Lawson is also organist at Trinity United Methodist Church here in Salisbury.

Karna conducted members of the SSU Choir on a highly-acclaimed concert tour of southern Bavaria in Germany during the 1990 winter term last January. The SSU Choir performed well-received concerts in Altenstadt, Marktoberdorf, Augsburg and Munich while living, studying and rehearsing for two weeks in residence at the Bavarian Music Academy in Marktoberdorf. In a review of one of the choir's German appearances, Heinrich Weihrauch, music critic for the Altenstadt newspaper, wrote: "In conjunction with a tour of Germany, the Salisbury State University Choir from Maryland gave a concert in the St. Michael's Church in Altenstadt. In spite of the lack of heat in the thousand-year-old church, the sanctuary was filled to the last pew. A third of the choir consisted of music majors; the remainder were studying a variety of disciplines...Clearly and purely the difficult choir phrases were mastered. The choir members sang with astounding certainty and freshness. The positioning of singers, not in like voice groups, but to rather mix them colorfully was unusual, yet the result became an astonishingly homogeneous sound. The ensemble was blended by its director, Dr. Duane R. Karna, into a precise and highly flexible unity."

Karna was recently invited to be the guest conductor of the 1990 All-Shore Senior High School Chorus, sponsored by the Eastern Shore Choral Directors Association. He is currently the college/university representative for the Maryland Choral Educators Association and was elected this past summer president of the Maryland Chapter of ACDA, the American Choral Directors Association.

The December 1 concert is free and open to the public.

every day."

"The only time I've seen Hunter upset is when students are not treated with respect and dignity," Wolinski added.

Hunter began her career as a clinical psychologist at Children's Hospital in Los Angeles, often working with the terminally ill. She then moved to Juvenile Hall. In both positions she felt she was delivering "too little too late." Becoming a school psychologist, she worked in the Inglewood and Los Angeles school districts for 13 years before serving as principal at the Univerisity of California at Los Angeles Lab School, where she formulated many of her ideas. She remained at the Lab School for 20 years.

Hunter supports the use of a gamut of techniques, including metaphor, in teaching. She compares the rigor needed to master the fundamentals of the classroom to that of learning ballet. As a teenager she fell in love with the dance form, but it took years to learn to dance well, to make dance a natural part of her being. It was hard work, but "my ballet training stood me in good stead," she said. "I learned that rigor undergrids artistic performance...."

And she believes teaching is an artistic practice. "I hope I live to see public recognition of the incredible complexity of teaching," she continued. Most people believe "teaching is just telling kids what to do and maintaining discipline." To Hunter it's more like surgery "where you think fast on your feet.... You must be skilled...and exquisitely well-trained, because neither the teacher nor the surgeon can say, 'Everybody sit still until I figure out what in the heck we're gonna do next....'"

Because Hunter practices what she preaches, Dr. Maurice Bozman, Riall Professor of Education, believes area parents, children and educators are in for a treat during her visit. Her presentations are "amazing" he noted, and her subject on integrating the left and right sides of the brain in the learning process may have implications for eveyone in and out of the classroom.

Hunter, who maintains a remarkable pace is impatient with those who would proscribe what education should or should not be. Said Hunter, "...there is absolutely nothing you should expect to see in every lesson and nothing you have to do in education—except think."

For more information on the Hunter presentations, contact the SSU Department of Education at (301) 543-6280.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

NOVEMBER 29, 1990 VOL. XII NO. 13

Nursing Program Offers Career Change Opportunity

For post-war baby-boomers dissatisfied with their lives and thinking of mid-life career changes, the University may have an answer. SSU has created a challenging new program which proponents say offers endless career possibilities and guaranteed job security.

The School of Nursing and Health Services has developed an accelerated academic program, the first of its kind in Maryland, that will allow students to receive two degrees, a Bachelor of Science and a Master of Science in nursing, in three years.

"This program offers an exceptional opportunity for college graduates thinking about a change, in a career field that is meaningful," said Dr. Elizabeth Barfield, dean of the School of Nursing and Health Services. "Having both degrees will provide students with opportunities for rapid advancement in nursing and qualify them to provide valuable services to others."

Students interested in pursuing the accelerated dual-degree program must have a bachelor's diploma in any area and meet the University's requirements for admission to graduate study. Nurses who hold degrees in other fields may be awarded advance placement in the undergraduate phase of the program as a result of their previous education and work experience.

The course of study requires 83 semester credit hours. The program is designed so that it can be completed in three academic years of full-time study. During the first year participants enroll in undergraduate-level clinical and theory courses designed specifically for students in this track. The second year, they take undergraduate and graduate-level courses which enable them to complete the requirements for the B.S. degree in nursing. These courses also serve as the foundation for advanced clinical practice in Family Health Nursing in rural areas. In the final year students select either a clinical specialization or nursing service administration role.

Although this dual-degree program was designed for people desiring major career changes, it also presents new directions for people already working in health care.

George Nepert, for example, is a 47-year-old registered respiratory therapist and pulmonary technologist currently working at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center.

"I guess I'm having my midlife crisis," Nepert said. "I want to establish new career goals."

Nepert says he began thinking about nursing because of the critical shortages in the profession. "I realized there was a great demand for nurses—not just in Salisbury, but everywhere." Guaranteed job opportunities and an increase in salary were powerful incentives, along with earning two degrees in only six semesters.

"A rare opportunity is now being offered right on my doorstep," he said.

Army Field Band Performs Holiday Concert, MD Food Bank Benefits

The internationally acclaimed United States Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus will perform on Tuesday, December 11, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Known as the "Musical Ambassadors of the Army," the band has performed throughout Europe, the Far East, and Central and South Americas as well as all 50 states.

Although admission to the concert is free, patrons are asked to bring a donation of non-perishable food or a monetary donation to the Maryland Food Bank to help pay off the $100,000 debt remaining on the new $500,000 Wicomico County distribution center. All monetary donations and food stuff stay on the Shore, according to Robert White, chairman of the Advisory Board of the Maryland Food Bank, Inc.

Unique among military bands, the Army Field Band performs music appealing to all age groups and spanning the musical spectrum from classics to pop. Its members are selected by personal audition and many have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music.

Tickets to the concert are available Tuesday, November 27, at the Salisbury State University Center information desk, The Daily Times reception desk and the U.S. Army Recruiting Center at the Twilley Shopping Center. For more information about the concert or food bank donations, contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

28 New Faculty Announced

According to Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, "Salisbury State University has long been the home of many outstanding faculty members and we are both fortunate and pleased to add to their growing ranks an outstanding new group this year."

Butler is talking about the 28 new faculty members who have joined the University this semester. With 78 degrees from 60 schools, they bring an array of expertise to the campus.

The School of Education and Professional Studies has hired four new faculty members, all in the Department of Physical Education. In addition to teaching, Bridgett Benshetler is the new head women's basketball coach. She earned her M.S. in health and physical education from West Chester University, PA, and was the head women's basketball coach at Penn State University-Delaware County Campus.

Assistant professor and associate chair of physical education at SSU is Steveda F. Chepko, who holds her D.Ed. in sports history/curriculum and instruction from Temple University, PA. She was an assistant professor at Castleton State College, VT. Victoria V. Hutchinson, a certified movement analyst who serves as a consultant to graduate educational, psychiatric and therapeutic programs, is a new physical education instructor. Her M.A. in dance in physical education is from the University of Arizona.

Aubrey A. Kelly is a new physical education lecturer and assistant football and assistant track coach. He earned his M.A. in interdisciplinary studies in education from Southwest Texas State University.

The Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts has acquired 10 new faculty members. Wayne Ackerson is a new lecturer in the History Department. While earning his M.A. in history from SSU, he was a graduate assistant responsible for lecturing, testing and tutoring world civilization classes.

Three new assistant professors join the Psychology Department. Ronald A. Boykin, former visiting assistant professor at Mary Washington College, VA, holds his Ph.D. in

Christmas Seminar

Dr. George Harton will present a seminar titled, "Christmas in a Post-Christian Society," on Thursday, December 6, at 4 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 122. Faculty and staff (and spouses) are invited to attend the lecture and to interact with Harton on the subject of Christmas. The seminar is sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ. Refreshments will be provided.

Harton received his B.A. in Germanic languages in literature from Princeton University in 1965. His post-graduate work includes a M. Div. in theology from Grace Theological Seminary (1969) and a Th.D. in bible exposition from Dallas Theological Seminary (1981). Harton presently serves as associate professor of practical theology at the Capital Bible Seminary in Washington, D.C.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

'Met Marathon' Saturday

The "Met Marathon," which will be broadcast over WSCL-FM (89.5) on Saturday, December 1, at 1:30 p.m., will salute the 50th birthday of the first Texaco-Metropolitan Opera broadcast which took place on December 7, 1940, and also preview the upcoming season by surveying five decades of live Texaco-Metropolitan Opera broadcasts.

'Mastery Teaching' Author Here Nov. 29

Dr. Madeline Hunter, whom Educational Leadership magazine has called "a household word in education" and whose techniques are used in classrooms literally around the world, is the next E. Pauline Riall lecturer at SSU.

Hunter will be on the campus Thursday, November 29, for day-long activities, including master teaching sessions with area school children and SSU student teachers, culminating in the Riall address at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The public is cordially invited. Admission is free.

Piano Concert

Piano students in the Music Department will perform Friday, November 30, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The concert will be performed on two Steinway pianos and will include works by J.S. Bach, Haydn, Beethoven, Kabalevsky, Ravel and Milhaud.

The "Bach Concerto in F Minor" will feature soloist Charles Grogan from Salisbury; the "Haydn Concerto in D Major" will be performed by Karen Orr from Bel Air, MD; the first movement of "Concerto #2 in B-flat Major" by Beethoven will be played by Wynel Cooper of Salisbury; and the first movement of "Concerto #3 in D Major" (Opus 50) by Kabalevsky will feature Scot Hawkins as soloist. Other works will include "The Mother Goose Suite" for two pianos by Ravel and "Scaramouche" by Milhaud.

The concert is free and the public is invited to attend.

On Sunday, December 2, at 1 p.m., local pianists—Patricia Wroten, Joanne Peters, Harriet Robinson and Theresa Rose—will perform music for two pianos-eight hands. Music of Chopin, Handel, Agay, Steve Reich and Ravel will be played. Included in the workshop will be student performers from the concerto recital who will discuss their works in conjunction with local pianists who will also demonstrate and discuss pedagogical techniques for teaching the duet/duo literature.

The event is also in the Wicomico Room of the University Center and is free and open to the public.

Children's Book Sale Dec. 1-6

The Rho Eta Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, the education honor society on campus, is planning a Book Fair the week of December 1-6. Children's books will be available for purchase in the University Center on Saturday, December 1, and in Caruthers Hall Monday-Thursday, December 3-6.

The book titles will include Caldecott and Newberry award winners from preschool to eighth grade reading level. These books would make fantastic Christmas presents or serve as a great addition to any classroom library, sale backers say. And the proceeds from the Book Fair will help to buy books for underprivileged children in the local area. Look for the book carts December 1-6.

Thoreau Reading Group

As an adjunct for the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center is sponsoring a Thoreau reading group. The group is meeting on Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss different ideological views of Thoreau's writings.

The remaining discussion leader will be Dr. David Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6).

Participants in Heidler's session should review Thoreau's philosophical musings on political subjects in "Walden" and "Civil Disobedience." For further information, contact Bill Horne at 543-6445.

Animal Hunting Forum Here Dec. 2

"Animal Protection Versus Responsible Hunting" is the subject of an upcoming forum in Salisbury featuring two speakers with national reputations and contrasting perspectives.

On Sunday, December 2, Wayne Pacelle, national director of the Fund for Animals, and Joe Reynolds, northeast editor of Field and Stream magazine, will square off.

The forum is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

"I'm always fascinated to see two strong environmentalists with different views. I think the public will be too," said Dr. Ben Fusaro, president of the Wicomico Environmental Trust (WET).

Sponsored by WET and the SSU student organization, Eco-Concerns, the forum has free admission. The public is cordially invited to attend. For more information contact Fusaro at (301) 543-6470 or Kerrie Jones, Eco-Concerns president, at (301) 376-3798.

The Vital Connection

Every day the media bombard us with stories of the starving people in Ethiopia and other countries. Rarely do we confront the reality of the hungry in our own community. Who are the hungry? Take a moment to look around you and you will find hungry children, parents, shut-ins, laborers, and even students. While these people carry on day to day, malnourished, an abundance of good, untouched food is unnecessarily thrown into the landfills.

The problem is that there is a lack of information and organization. A group of determined students wants to make the connection between the food and the people.

Join the Vital Connection on Wednesday, December 5, at 8 p.m. in the University Center by the fireplace, next to the Gull's Nest. For more information contact Pete Jacques (548-2817) or Krissy Monks (548-4198).

Doctoral Program In Human Development

The University of Maryland College Park will hold an informational session for anyone interested in obtaining a Ph.D. in human development (education) on Saturday, December 1.

The session will begin at 1 p.m. in room 220 of the Power Professional Building (School of Nursing and Health Sciences). If enough people in the region are interested in pursuing this degree, the classes will be taught on the Salisbury State campus.

For more information contact Terry Clay in the Center for Personal and Professional Development at 543-6070.

Winter Dance Concert Features Guest Artist

A 10-foot helium-filled balloon, syncopated Latin rhythms and choreography by a guest artist who has received national and international recognition promise a festive Winter Dance Concert.

Performances are at 8 p.m., Thursday and Friday, December 6-7, with a matinee on Saturday, December 8, in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Tickets will be sold at the door beginning one-half hour before performance. Admission is $6 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and children under 12.

The hour length program of six dances will feature guest artist Peter Madden's energetic and humorous "Flocking." Madden is on the faculties of Goucher College, the Baltimore School for the Arts and is national director of the Leban Movement Analysis Certification Extension Program. He has taught, performed and choreographed extensively achieving national and international recognition, according to Victoria Hutchinson, new Dance Program director.

Three modern dance works choreographed by Hutchinson include the premiere of "Suspension, Cycle I" a solo danced with a 10-foot helium-filled balloon and set to music by California-born composer Steve Roach. "Landscapes" evokes environmental images of deserts and wooded hillsides. "Sonata in 7" is a bright, lyrical work set to composer Julia Smith's "Quartet for Strings, 1st Movement."

Two dance works are choreographed by assistant company director Deborah Lombardo-Whelan. Audiences are sure to get "In the Mood to Swing" with such popular dance music numbers as "Jump, Shout, Boogie; Shake, Rattle, and Roll; and Hand-Jive!" "Rhythm is Gonna Get You" is an elegantly styled jazz dance performed to a Latin sound.

Immediately before and after each performance, a Christmas Crafts and Baked Goods Sale in the lobby of Holloway Hall will feature holiday decorations, wreaths, and cookies created and donated by Company parents and friends Kathryn Morgan, Edna Berkey and Becky Meilhammer. Proceeds will benefit the Dance Company.

The Company also invites people to participate in the 1990 SSU-Maryland Food Bank Drive and bring a can of food to the concert. Collection boxes will be set up in the lobby.

Dance has been an active part of the campus since 1936. Formerly the Modern Dance Ensemble, the company was established in the 1970s. It is currently composed of 25 students and adult community members and is funded by the Student Appropriations Board. Open auditons are held at the beginning of each semester.

The company seeks to provide an understanding of the basic elements of dance through regular presentations of dance concerts and lecture-demonstrations. It presents two concerts a year on campus and performs for community groups, fashion shows, area schools and arts festivals. Contributions include Homecoming, Oktoberfest, Chautaqua, Alumni Phonathon, the Maryland Food Bank Drive, football game entertainments and the Charleston Jaycees. A new community service was established this year in the form of a free school matinee.

Uppity Blues Women Perform Here Dec. 8

Saffire: The Uppity Blues Women trio, which has won critical kudos from the Washington Post and People Magazine, performs in concert Saturday, December 8, at 8 p.m.

Curtain is 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Tickets, $5 for general admission, $2 for students with an ID, are available at the door.

Saffire: The Uppity Blues Women is a group of three women in their mid-40s who turned their abundance of talent and close friendship into an acoustic blues trio that appeals to diverse audiences. As the Washington Post put it, "even people who don't like the blues can't resist them." These independent, ethnically diverse women quit their 9-to-5 jobs in 1988 and hit the road, playing and singing compelling, sometimes raunchy yet good-humored acoustic blues.

The Virginia-based trio's self-titled debut, "Saffire-the Uppity Blues Women," on Alligator Records, showcases a repertoire that focuses on the subjects of love and life, but with a perspective that's often missing in songs written and performed by men. Five originals, including the band's signature song, "Middle Aged Blues Boogie," are featured on the self-produced album. Three tracks feature a guest appearance on harmonica by Mark Wenner of the famed D.C.-based blues band, The Nighthawks. For more information, call Michael Bellina or Benn Ray at 543-6197.

Winter Dance Concert To Be Performed For Elementary, Middle School Students

The Dance Company is offering, as part of its annual Winter Concert, a special afternoon matinee for area elementary and middle school students on Thursday, December 6, from 1-2 p.m.

The one-hour program features live commentary and introduces students to ideas and concepts that can be explored in movement.

While there is no admission charge students may participate in SSU's 1990 Maryland Food Bank Drive and bring a can of food to the concert in lieu of admission.

To reserve a block for their school, teachers are asked to contact Dance Company director, Victoria Hutchinson at 543-6353, preferably by November 30. Because seating capacity is limited to 750, reservations will be made on a first come, first serve policy.

Choral Concert

The Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Department of Music present "A Ceremony of Carols" by the SSU Concert Choir, Dr. Duane R. Karna, conductor, on Saturday, December 1, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury.

The program features "In Terra Pax" by Gerald Finzi, "A Ceremony of Carols" by Benjamin Britten and "Fantasia on Christmas Carols" by Ralph Vaughan Williams.

Special guests include Katherine Turner Barlow, soprano soloist; Dr. Larry Vote, baritone soloist; David Lawson, organ; Helen Quinby, cello; and Shu jon li Horn, harp.

Admission is free and the public is invited.

Montreal Ski Trip

Again this year the Outdoor Club is sponsoring a winter term trip to Shawbridge, Quebec for cross-country and downhill skiing. Trip dates are January 20 - February 1.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill University Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauveur, Mont Ste. Anne, Stoneham and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience is strongly recommended for downhill skiers, but is not necessary for cross-country skiers. The trip includes sightseeing in old Montreal and a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec, with opportunities for both sight-seeing and skiing.

The trip this year features 11 days in Canada with departure from SSU on January 20 and return on February 1. Cost including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner while in Canada will be approximately $230. This does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($3 Canadian per day at the McGill house), rental fees for downhill skis, or lift tickets (about $20-$30 Canadian per day or lower with student discount). Downhill skis may be rented in Salisbury for the entire trip or by the day at the slopes in Canada.

To guarantee a spot on the trip provide a non-refundable deposit of $50 to the club treasurer, Liz Thomas, at the meeting on December 3 or 10. Club meetings are held at 9 p.m. on Mondays in Nanticoke A of the University Center. The balance is due by January 6.

Outdoor Club Meeting

The Outdoor Club will hold its next meeting on Monday, December 3, at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. The club will discuss tentative plans for the downhill and cross-country skiing trip to Montreal over the winter term break.

Phi Kappa Phi Invites Applications

The SSU chapter of the honor society of Phi Kappa Phi announces that applications for membership can be made prior to Friday, December 14.

Phi Kappa Phi accepts members from all majors and disciplines. Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is among the highest academic awards presented to students at SSU. The basic criteria for membership involve superior academic achievement including, for seniors, a GPA of at least 3.6 and, for juniors, a GPA of at least 3.85. The GPA is calculated using all letter grades. Certain limits are placed upon the number of students who can be initiated in any year.

Students who believe that they are eligible for membership in Phi Kappa Phi should submit their names to Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna in the Biology Department prior to December 14. Selection of candidates and invitation to membership will be completed by early spring.

December 1990 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

General Information and Directions

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 16, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

3. Caps, gowns and master's hoods will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning November 26. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Announcements may be purchased in the bookstore beginning November 26, but quantities are limited and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday-Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Friday, December 14, from 8:30 a.m.- 4 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 4 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by Dr. Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, December 10. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing and Health Sciences will hold a Pinning Ceremony on Saturday, December 15, at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall.

12. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through letter M (Thomas Martin) will report to Drs. Bozman and Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with Kristine Martinez through the letter Z will report to Drs. Wulff and Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

13. All Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through Margaret Marsh and will report to Drs. Delpaz and Basehart at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

All Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with Dawn Marshall through the letter Z will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. St. Martin and Jerome Miller. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

14. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

15. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park), and report to Drs. Lewis and Johnson in the corridor nearest the Midway Room. They will direct you into a line according to your degree. All master's candidates will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart.

16. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline and white collar on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice President of Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South/Specialists in Graduate and Event Photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

17. Graduation Decorum

Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Ashley Cleveland Plays the Blues

Touted as "an emotional and intense performer," Ashley Cleveland performs at the Gull's Nest on Friday, November 30, at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Cleveland has enjoyed stints on Emmylou Harris' and do El Sonniers' newest albums.

She has extensive experience as a guitarist and song writer. For a number of years she played the San Francisco Bay area club circuit and developed her songwriting and performing skills. That got her noticed by blues guitarist Robert Cray, who gave her a position in his touring band. Cleveland debuts her first LP, "Angel," on Atlantic records, in January and a national tour is in the works.

Although Cleveland has performed with a variety of artists, her own tastes and influences are in blues/rock. Her shows are said to be like a rollercoaster, rolling from one mood to the next—a slashing impatient whiplash guitar song turning into an unsure, tentative and revealing ballad.

Art Scholarship Sale

Shoppers looking for original and unique gifts which won't max out the credit card are invited to the annual Holiday Art Sale for scholarships at Salisbury State.

Handmade unique gifts, from Christmas ornaments and jewelry by students to major works from artists with regional and international exhibition exposure, will be sold. Prices have traditionally started as low as $1.

The holdiay season is for giving," said Marie Cavallaro (Quillen), SSU art professor and sale organizer. "I'm most proud that current art students are contributing to the sale, now in its seventh year, to help fund scholarships for their future colleagues."

The sale is in the University Atrium Gallery on Saturday, December 8, from 9 a.m.-1 p.m.; Monday-Friday, December 10-14, from 9 a.m.-6 p.m.; and Monday-Tuesday, December 17-18, from 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

Holladay Next In Writers Series

The Department of English is pleased to announce its second reading in the 1990-91 Writers-on-the-Shore series. On Wednesday, December 12, fiction-writer Cary Holladay will read from her work at 8 p.m, in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Holladay's collection of short stories "The People Down South," was published by the University of Illinois Press last year. "In these 15 succinct and perceptive stories," stated Publishers Weekly, ...(Holladay) draws some extraordinarily fine portraits..."

Co-founder of the Maryland Review, Holladay is Writer-in-Residence at LaSalle University in Philadelphia. Her fiction has been published in numerous journals, including Cosmopolitan, The Virginia Quarterly Review, The Missouri Review, and O. Henry Festival Stories 1989. Her articles have appeared in America and Writers Digest, and a piece on her recent trip to the Soviet Union is forthcoming in Four Quarters.

The reading will be a homecoming of sorts for Holladay. Originally from Virginia she taught part-time at SSU during 1985-87. Copies of her book are available at the SSU Book Rack and will be available at her reading.

A reception will immediately follow the reading. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Chemistry Assistant Professor Sought

A tenure track, faculty position in chemistry at the assistant professor level is anticipated for the 1991-92 academic year.

A Ph.D. in chemistry and a strong commitment to teaching and research at the undergraduate level is required. Preferred candidate will be able to teach Instrumental Analysis and have a background/interest in the use of computers in chemical education. Salary is based upon experience.

Send resume, three letters of recommendation and description of teaching and research goals by February 15 to: Dr. E.T. Shaffer, Chemistry Search Committee, Chemistry/Physics Department, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Graduate Assistantships

Qualified graduate students for the position of graduate assistant in teaching physical education and graduate assistant in dance are sought. Both positions are within the Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics Department. Candidates will be expected to teach two to three classes per semester in specific areas: dance - ballroom, aerobics, social dance, etc., teaching - activity courses, wellness components, etc. The position requires admission to a graduate program within the University.

The dance graduate assistant will be expected to participate fully in dance production responsibilities, including rehearsals and organizational activities. Both positions include a tuition waiver and salary.

Please submit a letter of application, vitae and three letters of reference to Graduate Assistants' Search, Department of Physical Education, Recreation & Athletics, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. The position will remain open until filled.

Philosophy Professor

An assistant professor in philosophy, tenure-track, is an anticipated position beginning fall 1991. Four courses, three preparations per semester at the undergraduate level, are required. Ph.D. is preferred. AOS is open but not political philosophy or philosophy of religion.

AOC should include some of the following: the phenomenological tradition, feminist thought, aesthetics, Eastern philosophies, applied ethics, logic, critical thinking and modern philosophy. Salary is competitive.

Philosophy is a small, energetic department open to a diversity of philosophical approaches. It is seeking a person with wide-ranging philosophical (and intellectual) interests who is an enthusiastic and deeply committed undergraduate teacher. Non-teaching responsibilities include helping with the student Philosophical Society.

In addition to complete dossier, please send syllabi for an Introduction to Philosophy course and any upper level course the applicant would enjoy teaching. Writing sample is not necessary but the department would appreciate receiving something that might give it some indication of one's philosophical perspective.

Candidates wishing to be considered for pre-arranged interview Eastern Division meeting should have application in by December 3. No applications accepted after January 1.

Address applications to Dr. Jerome Miller, Department of Philosophy, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, Maryland 21801.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Social Work Club

The Social Work Club thanks everyone who made the pumpkin-gram and bake sale a success.

The club is having its annual Christmas social on Saturday, December 1, at 8 p.m. at Kathleen Mead's house. Directions are posted on the Social Work Department's bulletin board. Everyone is asked to bring a ready-to-serve dish.

Also, the club is currently working on the Bear Hugs program, which provides gifts to the needy elderly during the holidays. Please, don't forget your time to volunteer.

Finally, the club is sponsoring an adopt-a-family for Thanksgiving and Christmas. Boxes for canned goods are located in Caruthers Hall and the University Center. Help a needy family by donating your non-perishable products.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanion

After opening the season with three straight games away from home, the men's basketball team plays seven of its next eight contests in the Maggs Center, including Wednesday's game with local rival Wesley College. The Gulls entered the Wesley game with a 1-2 record after losing at Christopher Newport on November 20, 134-98, and having split a pair of games at the Greensboro (NC) Tournament to start the season. Following a visit to Cabrini on Saturday, SSU closes out the month at home, including the annual Gull Classic Tournament on December 7 and 8.

The Gulls had an average of 105.5 points per game entering Wednesday's game, with junior forward Andre Foreman leading all scorers at 29.3 ppg. Guard David Byer is adding 16.3 ppg and sophomore Joe Zdrojewski is averaging 14.6 ppg through the first three contests. The 6-6 Foreman also leads the squad in rebounds with 11.3 per game.

The women's team is hoping to notch its first win of the season this week after an 0-3 pre-Thanksgiving start. The Gulls also welcomed Wesley on Wednesday, and continue at home with a game versus Immaculata on Saturday at 5 p.m. The women are in the midst of a five-game homestand that carries them through December 12. They then visit nearby UMES on December 14 in the final game before the semester break.

Forward Jeannie Daly is the team's top scorer through three games, with 12.6 points per game. Senior Connie Ivison is adding 10.6 ppg while guard Cheryl Ish is chipping in 9.3 ppg. Daly also leads the team in rebounds with 9.6 per game, while Ish is averaging 6.7 boards.

Also on Saturday, wrestling coach Ron Otto begins his seventh year at SSU as the grapplers open the year at the York (PA) Tournament. Top returnees include seniors Marty Lewis and Ron Rossi, amd juniors Seong Kim and Will Sandidge. The Gulls also visit Gallaudet on December 8 before resuming the season after Christmas in the Hunter Tournament on January 5.

The swim team resumes its season on Saturday with a meet at Hood College. The women, 2-2 on the season, are coming off a 137-125 victory over Notre Dame (MD) in their last meet. Sophomore Lisa Kidd captured four first place medals to lead Salisbury while junior captain Mary Jo Tantalo added three first place finishes and one second.

Habitat for Humanity

The SSU team of volunteers for Habitat for Humanity has already completed two workdays this semester and had a great time. The team has spackled, painted, insulated, helped build a deck and more.

Habitat is an international program that works with low-income families to build decent, affordable housing. Working one Saturday a month, SSU provides one of many teams for Habitat on the lower Eastern Shore.

Join them for their next workday on Saturday, December 8. They will meet in front of Maggs Gym at 8:45 a.m. and return to campus for lunch around noon. Between 1-1:15 p.m. they will meet again and work at a Habitat house until 4 p.m. Work during the morning, the afternoon, or both.

Meet new people from SSU and the community, learn new skills, and just have a great time. Teachers, students and friends are all welcome. For more information, please contact Krissy Monks (548-4198) or Greta Trumpower (546-4168).

Sandra Poole, coordinator of advocacy and area ombudsman at the MAC Inc., Area Agency on Aging, agrees that this new program will provide students with endless career options.

She received her master's degree in psychology from SSU last year after deciding to pursue a profession that made a difference in people's lives.

As part of her work, Poole is in close contact with administrators, staff and nurses at local nursing homes. She wanted to learn more about the nursing profession and is particularly interested in the graduate portion of the accelerated program. "It would enhance my ability to work with medical staff and increase my ability to understand clinical issues," she said.

"...The people in the Nursing Department at SSU have been very accommodating," she added. "They have taken a very personal approach to my situation."

Classes start in February. Members of the Nursing Department will be available to counsel any individual interested in pursuing the accelerated dual-degree program. Faculty members will also provide information about scholarships. According to Barfield, students may be eligible to receive financial aid through the State of Maryland as well as private sources.

For additional information about the accelerated dual-degree program, contact the Nursing Department at 543-6401.

Frana on Viruses

Dr. Mark F. Frana, assistant professor of biology, recently published a paper with the Journal of Virology concerning virus replication and how viruses cause diseases.

Along with Dr. Kathryn Holmes at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences in Bethesda, MD, Frana has studied a particular group of viruses known as Coronaviruses. These widespread viruses infect several different animal species as well as humans.

The diseases associated with these viruses generally involve intestinal disorder or respiratory disease. The particular Coronaviruses associated with humans are thought to be responsible for as many as 20 percent of the cases of the common cold and an undetermined percentage of the cases of infant diarrhea.

The first molecule that a virus encounters in its attack of the host cell is the virus receptor. Frana's research is being used to help identify the receptor for Coronaviruses.

"This information may be useful in developing a means of blocking this receptor, thus preventing virus attachment and infection," said Frana.

Small Business Help Provided in Perdue School

Did you know that 58 percent of the American work force is employed by small businesses, that small businesses have generated 85 percent of the net new jobs in the last 20 years and that they comprise 95 percent of the enterprise in the U.S. economy?

According to Dr. Richard B. Palmer, associate professor of management in the Perdue School of Business and interim director of the Small Business Institute housed in the school, 40 percent of new businesses fail within the first year, 60 percent have failed by the end of the second year and 90 percent have closed within 10 years of their start-up.

"Survival, however, is linked to a threshold of $1 million sales and 25 plus employees," said Palmer at a recent Salisbury Lion's Club meeting. "Achieving that threshold gives the business owner a 95 percent chance of success. Growth, then, is critical to long-term survival. Given the nature of small business and the personal commitment of the entrepreneur in terms of time and energy, growth is most likely to come about as a result of outside assistance," he added.

Palmer suggests several places to which the small business owner may turn for help. Those considering starting their own business might choose to take an entrepreneurship class at the University. Students learn how to analyze a new venture and determine its viability as a profit-making organization. They write a business plan and in many instances start their own businesses as a result of a class.

The Small Business Institute at SSU assigns teams of fourth-year students who have completed the entrepreneurship class to specific companies who have requested assistance in solving a particular problem. Palmer works closely with the students, putting together viable teams to solve problems.

The Eastern Shore Region of the Maryland Small Business Development Center Network has recently received a joint federal/state grant from the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED). The Center provides aid to existing small businesses and also to potential small business owners in several ways, including direct one on one counseling, educational seminars, assistance in developing a viable business plan for potential owners and help with identifying potential sources of funding for expansion purposes or start-up ventures.

Palmer describes the Regional Technology Council as "designed to assist existing organizations in identifying their long-term technical needs. It further provides the mechanism to assist local boards of education to project economic needs of an area and provides the trained work force to meet those needs."

Finally, Palmer is excited about the new International Business Development. "We at the University and the Small Business Development Center have met with the Maryland International Division (MID) of DEED and have initiated a transfer intern program with an organization in Brussels. This cooperative agreement will be the foundation of a program which will enable us to provide opportunities for Maryland businesses to access international markets," said Palmer. The program should come to fruition in the late spring of 1991.

Those wishing to take advantage of Palmer's umbrella organizations should contact him at 546-4325.

Boykin Presents Paper at Eastern Conference

Dr. Ronald A. Boykin, assistant professor of psychology, recently presented a paper entitled "Students' Satisfaction, Self Evaluation and Academic Achievement in a Student-centered Course" at the Eastern Conference on the Teaching of Psychology in Harrisonburg, VA.

"Student-centered education is an approach which emphasizes the ability and responsibility of students to direct their own learning," said Boykin. "Courses based on this approach are designed to encourage greater student participation than traditional instructor-centered courses," he added.

"The study of student-centered courses is important in order to document the positive effects which are presumed to occur," he said. Boykin's study examines student knowledge, final grades and reactions to a student-centered course.

Fourteen undergraduate students (mostly seniors) participated in a humanistic psychology seminar during the spring '90 semester. The content of the course was determined by the students through popular vote. Students also chose the means by which the content would be covered—through team presentations. At the end of the semester, students evaluated their participation in the course and assigned themselves final grades.

In addition to final grades, other information collected included student scores on a test of knowledge of course content and student reactions to the course. For their final grades, seven students assigned themselves a grade of A; the other seven assigned themselves a grade of B. On the Student Course Reaction Questionnaire, the average overall rating of the course was 4.1 on a scale of one (poor) to five (excellent). On the test of knowledge of course content, the average score was 72.

"The results indicate that students had an overall favorable reaction to this course," said Boykin. "Despite having a great deal of control over their final grades, only half of the students assigned themselves a grade of A. Moreover, the average score on the test of knowledge of course content was achieved in the absence of a formal evaluation procedure in the course. These findings suggest that positive benefits may accompany courses which are developed using a student-centered approach to education," he concluded.

Meilhammer, Foreman Crowned at Homecoming

Andre Foreman and April Meilhammer
1990 Hommecoming King and Queen

Two area students were honored at this year's homecoming weekend. April Meilhammer, 20, daughter of Donald and Charlotte Meilhammer of Delmar, MD, was named homecoming queen and Andre Maurice Foreman, son of Betty Ann Sawyer of Berlin and John Foreman of Glen Burnie, was named homecoming king.

Meilhammer is a 1988 graduate of Delmar Junior/Senior High School and is currently a junior majoring in communication arts and minoring in psychology at SSU. Foreman graduated from Stephen Decatur High School in 1987 and is a junior majoring in liberal arts and minoring in business administration at the University.

Both students were surprised when they discovered that they had won. "I didn't know until that day," said Foreman, "and I was really overwhelmed. Nothing like this has ever happened to me before. In fact, I told my mother that she didn't need to bother to come because I knew I wouldn't win," he added.

"Ever since I was little I wanted to be homecoming queen," said Meilhammer. "From the way we were positioned, I was sure that I hadn't won, so when they announced it, I was really surprised."

Meilhammer is no newcomer to this type of contest. In the past six years, she has entered 35 pageants, taking first place in ten, being named first runner-up in seven and second runner-up in five. She is the SSU Beta Mu Princess '90 and second runner-up for National Alpha Sigma Tau Queen '90. She is alumnae chair, chaplain and a member of the retreat, social and community service committee of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority. A member and secretary of the SSU cheerleading squad, she was named Most Improved Cheerleader in 1988.

A small forward on the Salisbury State basketball team, Foreman was named Most Valuable Player during the '87-88 and '88-89 seasons. An All Eastern State Athletic Conference player and an All South Atlantic Region Team member, he won Leading Scoring Freshman in the Nation during his '87-88 season. Last spring he played in a charity basketball game to benefit handicapped children which was sponsored by Franklin P. Perdue.

When asked how being named homecoming king has affected him, Foreman replied, "I don't see any change. I'm the same person I was and haven't done anything differently than I did before. But it did make me realize how many friends I have," he continued. "You never really know how many friends you have until something like this happens."

"I think I have to set a positive example for other girls on campus," said Meilhammer, "to show them that they should be active in school activities. Academics are important but it's important to be a well-rounded individual so that when you get involved in the working world, you'll be better prepared.

"Anything is possible," she added. "You just have to have faith and believe in yourself. Everybody is special in their own unique way. If you're being yourself then you are being the best that you can be."

Following graduation, Foreman plans to become a second lieutenant with ROTC (Reserved Officer Training Corp) and eventually aims to pursue a career in the business field. Meilhammer intends to become a broadcast journalist.

Ward Museum Gift Shop Discounts

The Ward Museum Gift Shop invites faculty, staff and students to begin their holiday shopping there while taking advantage of 25 percent off regularly priced merchandise (excluding consignment items). A special sale will take place on Thursday, December 6, and Friday, December 7, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Take advantage of discount days while choosing among a wide variety of specialty items and educational materials. Purchases fund the work of the Ward Foundation.

Winter Plants Of Pemberton Park

Although little is in bloom at Pemberton Park in December, it is a great time to observe and identify trees, shrubs and dried plants.

Retired University botanist Charles Wingo will lead a walk on Saturday, December 15, at 10 a.m. Registration fee is $2; it is limited to adults and children aged 10 years or above.

Call 548-4900 for reservations or more information.

Holiday Voice Recital

The Voice I class, under the direction of Katherine Turner Barlow, will perform a recital featuring songs of the holiday season. The recital will be held on Thursday, December 6, at 7 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center. All are welcome to attend.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

DECEMBER 6, 1990 VOL. XII NO. 14

Carnegie Foundation Head To Deliver Commencement Address

Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, who has been called "the nation's leading educator" and in 1987 was voted by his peers as "Man of the Year in Higher Education," will deliver the Commencement address at the University's 66th graduation ceremony on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m., in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

The president of one of the nation's leading educational think tanks, The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, Boyer has been listed for seven consecutive years by U.S. News and World Report as one of the top educators in the country. In 1983 he was chosen by his peers as the nation's leading educator. He holds honorary degrees from over 100 U.S. colleges and universities and was awarded the President's Medal from Tel Aviv University.

He is also Senior Fellow at the prestigious Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton University and is education columnist for The London Times.

Said Dr. Maurice Bozman, Riall Lecturer of Education at SSU, "Dr. Boyer is a national leader who not only has published extensively but is active in promoting excellence in all levels of education." Boyer inaugurated SSU's E. Pauline Riall Lecture Series.

Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts, praised Boyer as both a researcher and speaker. "His work is taken extremely seriously by people, not only in education, but in politics. He is an excellent speaker, a wonderful, charming, entertaining person who says

Boyer is not afraid of controversy. For example, in his book, "High School," published in 1983, he advocated community service by teenagers as a curriculum requirement.

Boyer also has advocated more autonomy to teachers and principals. "Excellence," said Boyer, "is what happens between the teacher and the student in the classroom. And that's where my confidence and hope are greatest. I am most discouraged when I'm talking to people who don't meet with students every day, but I'm most encouraged when I meet with teachers and students. They have a better fix on what's needed than all the experts on leave from Mt. Olympus."

Before joining the Carnegie Foundation in 1979, he served as the 23rd U.S. Commissioner of Education, administering a $12 billion federal budget. As commissioner he emphasized excellence in education and the centrality of language. During this period federal support to education increased 40 percent.

From 1970-77, he was chancellor of the State University of New York (SUNY). As head of the largest university in the United States, he directed a system of 64 institutions with over 350,000 students.

His book, "College: The Undergraduate Experience," published in 1987, has been widely acclaimed in educational circles. It argues that it's time to reaffirm the spirit of community at colleges and universities, and that the total campus, not just the classroom, should be viewed as a place of learning. So much of what a student learns happens outside the classroom, teachers and administrators must take seriously what is or is not happening there, Boyer said.

"Today's students have been labeled the 'me generation' concerned only about private ends. But we found that this generation of

Annapolis Brass and Charlie Byrd Here December 14

Friday night, December 14, will find the Annapolis Brass Quintet and Charlie Byrd collaborating once again in a concert of holiday music that has been a popular favorite in Salisbury for the last two years.

Holloway Hall Auditorium will ring with traditional holiday music, sure to delight listeners of all ages. "A Byrd and Brass Christmas" draws on the distinctive musical styles of the Charlie Byrd Trio and Annapolis Brass Quintet, resulting in a sound that is a hit with audiences and critics alike.

The Annapolis Brass Quintet was formed in 1971 as America's first full-time brass ensemble and has been heralded as one of the world's truly fine chamber ensembles. Their imaginative presentations and consummate artistry have dazzled audiences and critics in every state and in 22 foreign countries.

Byrd first gained recognition in the jazz world in the late '40s, and later developed the distinctive combination of jazz and classical techniques with Latin rhythms for which he is known today.

Tie One on With MADD

The Office of Public Safety and the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center are co-sponsoring the MADD Red Ribbon Campaign on campus. Sgt. Carlton "Toby" Tobias and Jennifer Berkman, director of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, are working together to establish the campaign throughout the SSU community.

A red ribbon on a vehicle symbolizes a commitment to drive free of alcohol and other drugs and also serves as a reminder to others to keep this a safe and sober holiday season.

The Office of Public Safety will place red ribbons on University vehicles. The Red Ribbon Campaign will be a part of campus efforts sponsored during National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week, December 9-15. "We hope everyone will help make this a red ribbon holiday and a safe break through a commitment to sober and clean driving," said Berkman.

Anyone interested in obtaining additional ribbons can call the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center at 543-6309.

Army Field Band Performs Tuesday

The internationally acclaimed United States Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus will perform on Tuesday, December 11, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Although admission to the concert is free, patrons are asked to bring a donation of non-perishable food or a monetary donation to the Maryland Food Bank to help pay off the $100,000 debt remaining on the new $500,000 Wicomico County distribution center. All monetary donations and food stuff stay on the Shore, according to Robert White, chairman of the Advisory Board of the Maryland Food Bank, Inc.

Unique among military bands, the Army Field Band performs music appealing to all age groups and spanning the musical spectrum from classics to pop. Its members are selected by personal audition and many have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music.

Tickets to the concert are available Tuesday, November 27, at the Salisbury State University Center information desk, The Daily Times reception desk and the U.S. Army Recruiting Center at the Twilley Shopping Center. For more information about the concert or food bank donations, contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Thoreau Reading Group

As an adjunct for the Thoreau Series for the fall, the University Center is sponsoring a Thoreau reading group. The group is meeting on Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center (near the fireplace) to discuss different ideological views of Thoreau's writings.

The remaining discussion leader will be Dr. David Heidler on Thoreau and the pitfalls of applied theory (December 6).

Participants in Heidler's session should review Thoreau's philosophical musings on political subjects in "Walden" and "Civil Disobedience." For further information, contact Bill Horne at 543-6445.

Children's Book Sale December 1-6

The Rho Eta Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, the education honor society on campus, is planning a Book Fair the week of December 1-6. Children's books will be available for purchase in the University Center on Saturday, December 1, and in Caruthers Hall Monday-Thursday, December 3-6.

The book titles will include Caldecott and Newberry award winners from preschool to eighth grade reading level. These books would make fantastic Christmas presents or serve as a great addition to any classroom library, sale backers say. And the proceeds from the Book Fair will help to buy books for underprivileged children in the local area. Look for the book carts December 1-6.

A tenure track, faculty position in chemistry at the assistant professor level is anticipated for the 1991-92 academic year.

A Ph.D. in chemistry and a strong commitment to teaching and research at the undergraduate level is required. Preferred candidate will be able to teach Instrumental Analysis and have a background/interest in the use of computers in chemical education. Salary is based upon experience.

Send resume, three letters of recommendation and description of teaching and research goals by February 15 to: Dr. E.T. Shaffer, Chemistry Search Committee, Chemistry/Physics Department, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Christmas Seminar

Dr. George Harton will present a seminar titled, "Christmas in a Post-Christian Society," on Thursday, December 6, at 4 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 122. Faculty and staff (and spouses) are invited to attend the lecture and to interact with Harton on the subject of Christmas. The seminar is sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ. Refreshments will be provided.

Harton received his B.A. in Germanic languages in literature from Princeton University in 1965. His post-graduate work includes a M. Div. in theology from Grace Theological Seminary (1969) and a Th.D. in bible exposition from Dallas Theological Seminary (1981). Harton presently serves as associate professor of practical theology at the Capital Bible Seminary in Washington, D.C.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Final Newsletter

The final newsletter of the semester is December 13. It resumes publication on January 31. The deadline for the first newsletter of 1991 is Friday, January 25. Have a happy holiday season.

Montreal Ski Trip

Again this year the Outdoor Club is sponsoring a winter term trip to Shawbridge, Quebec for cross-country and downhill skiing. Trip dates are January 22 - February 1.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill University Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauveur, Mont Ste. Anne, Stoneham and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience is strongly recommended for downhill skiers, but is not necessary for cross-country skiers. The trip includes sightseeing in old Montreal and a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec, with opportunities for both sight-seeing and skiing.

The trip this year features 11 days in Canada with departure from SSU on January 22 and return on February 1. Cost including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner while in Canada will be approximately $230. This does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($3 Canadian per day at the McGill house), rental fees for downhill skis, or lift tickets (about $20-$30 Canadian per day or lower with student discount). Downhill skis may be rented in Salisbury for the entire trip or by the day at the slopes in Canada.

To guarantee a spot on the trip provide a non-refundable deposit of $50 to the club treasurer, Liz Thomas, at the meeting on December 3 or 10. Club meetings are held at 9 p.m. on Mondays in Nanticoke A of the University Center. The balance is due by January 6.

Phi Kappa Phi Invites Applications

The SSU chapter of the honor society of Phi Kappa Phi announces that applications for membership can be made prior to Friday, December 14.

Phi Kappa Phi accepts members from all majors and disciplines. Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is among the highest academic awards presented to students at SSU. The basic criteria for membership involve superior academic achievement including, for seniors, a GPA of at least 3.6 and, for juniors, a GPA of at least 3.85. The GPA is calculated using all letter grades. Certain limits are placed upon the number of students who can be initiated in any year.

Students who believe that they are eligible for membership in Phi Kappa Phi should submit their names to Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna in the Biology Department prior to December 14. Selection of candidates and invitation to membership will be completed by early spring.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

UPPITY BLUES WOMEN PERFORM HERE SATURDAY. Saffire: The Uppity Blues Women trio, which has won critical kudos from the Washington Post and People Magazine, performs in concert Saturday, December 8, at 8 p.m.

Curtain is 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Tickets, $5 for general admission, $2 for students with an ID, are available at the door.

Saffire: The Uppity Blues Women is a group of three women in their mid-40s who turned their abundance of talent and close friendship into an acoustic blues trio that appeals to diverse audiences. As the Washington Post put it, "even people who don't like the blues can't resist them." These independent, ethnically diverse women quit their 9-to-5 jobs in 1988 and hit the road, playing and singing compelling, sometimes raunchy yet good-humored acoustic blues.

Wind Sinfonia Concert December 13

The University Wind Sinfonia's winter performance is at 8 p.m. on Thursday, December 13, in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The concert is free and open to the public.

A special feature of the concert is a solo performance by Heather Rager, principal flute for the Sinfonia. Rager will perform Cecile Chaminade's "Concertino, Op. 107" for solo flute and ensemble accompaniment. A junior in music performance at Salisbury, Rager is a graduate of the Peabody Preparatory School of Performance with an advance certificate.

A native of Maryland, she has appeared with the Maryland State Orchestra and the Anne Arundel Community Orchestra. She studies applied flute with the internationally reknown Wallace Mann, former flutist with the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D.C. Upon graduation from Salisbury State, Rager intends to pursue graduate study in performance. SSU Wind Sinfonia conductor Richard L. Johnson said, "Heather is one of the bright young stars in our degree program. I have been extremely impressed with her maturity of performance and musical expression since the first day she walked in to the department to audition. Her commitment and dedication to the instrument and the art as a whole is truly exceptional."

Another feature of the concert is the Wind Sinfonia's performance of Vincent Persichetti's "Symphony No. 6 for Band." The symphony, composed in 1956, "is one of the benchmarks in American wind literature," said Johnson. "Persichetti composed the work as a continuation of his rationale for his 'Fifth Symphony' which was written for only strings."

"Persichetti is one of the few internationally recognized composers who made no aesthetic distinction between orchestra and band," said Johnson. "In his thinking, both were equally viable intrinsic musical outlets for his compositional creativity. He composed nine works for wind groups that span every phase of his career as a composer. His unexpected death in 1987 certainly has deprived the music profession of one of the foremost composers of the 20th century.

"The 'Four-Movement Symphony for Band' follows all of the proper conventions that we have been taught to expect of the genre," said Johnson. "The level of sophistication of Persichetti's composing craft permeates the 20-minute work. It has proven to be a challenging piece for the Wind Sinfonia, and it is clearly indicative of the level of literature that should be performed by a university ensemble of this caliber."

Other works to be performed by the Wind Sinfonia include "Flourish for Wind Band" by Ralph Vaughan Williams, "Prelude, Siciliano, and Rondo" by Malcolm Arnold, "Canzon Primo Toni No. 1" for brass choir by Giovanni Gabrieli and "Pas Redouble" by Camille Saint-Saens.

Skeeter Published in Prestigious Geo Journal

Dr. Brent R. Skeeter, assistant professor of geography, recently was published in the December issue of The Annals of the Association of American Geographers.

His article was titled, "Variations in the Association Between Mid-tropospheric Flow and Surface Temperature Variations Across the United States."

The Annals is the major journal of the Association of American Geographers which is the primary American geographical society. It is considered the most prestigious of American geographical journals.

December 1990 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

General Information and Directions

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 16, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

3. Caps, gowns and master's hoods will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning November 26. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Announcements may be purchased in the bookstore beginning November 26, but quantities are limited and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday-Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Friday, December 14, from 8:30 a.m.- 4 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 4 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by Dr. Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, December 10. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing and Health Sciences will hold a Pinning Ceremony on Saturday, December 15, at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall.

12. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through letter M (Thomas Martin) will report to Drs. Bozman and Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with Kristine Martinez through the letter Z will report to Drs. Wulff and Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

13. All Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through Margaret Marsh and will report to Drs. Delpaz and Basehart at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

All Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with Dawn Marshall through the letter Z will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. St. Martin and Jerome Miller. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

14. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

15. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park), and report to Drs. Lewis and Johnson in the corridor nearest the Midway Room. They will direct you into a line according to your degree. All master's candidates will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart.

16. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline and white collar on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice President of Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South/Specialists in Graduate and Event Photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

17. Graduation Decorum

Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Faculty Art Show: An Exceptional Range

Recent work in various styles and media by members of the Art Department will be on display through December 13 in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library.

Organized by Ursula Ehrhardt, the Gallery's director, the exhibition features paintings by James Burgess, John Cleary and Steven Morris; sculpture by Marie Cavallaro and Lucy Rabine; works in mixed media by Kent Kimmel and Dean Peterson; photographs by Jeanne Anderton and John Gencel; and a piece of "wearable art" by Marie Halverson.

Halverson's work is a contemporary interpretation of a traditional oriental hippari jacket, handwoven in silk and linen and patterned with nubby-textured, abstract, flowing forms.

In addition to drawings in mixed media, Kimmel is exhibiting designs and working drawings for pieces in stained glass. These include a design depicting Christ as the Good Shepherd, commissioned for a memorial window for St. John's Methodist Church in Fruitland; and a floral design for the glass doors of a china cabinet, one of which is on display in the show.

Among the more unusual items is Morris' "artist's book." A contemporary interpretation of the traditional theme of life as a journey or voyage, it consists of quotations culled from the writings of famous thinkers interspersed with Morris' abstract images. The images become increasingly varied and complex as the reader turns the pages, progressing from youth to adulthood and culminating in more reflective, quiet forms which allude to old age and eventual death.

Different approaches to abstraction are evident in the works of Burgess, Cleary and Peterson. Although both Cleary and Peterson make use of a geometric module, Cleary's paintings are more concerned with color and proportional relationships, whereas Peterson is more interested in developing subtle textures and multi-layered, light-tinged surfaces, using a vaiery of media to achieve these effects. Burgess uses free-flowing, organic shapes in his paintings, varying their size and definition, and combining acrylic, water color and colored inks to create a sense of gently moving forms in a ambiguous, shifting space.

The exhibition is accompanied by a brochure with brief statements by the artists, intended to guide viewers in understanding the style and meaning of the works on display. "The statements also give readers some insight into how different artists work and think," Ehrhardt said.

Anderton, for example, states that photographs of "tent meetings," which depict groups of worshippers gathered together in tents, were photographed in black and white, rather than in color, to underscore the idea that these groups were continuing a long-established tradition. Gencel explains that the simplicity of his photographs, which focus on landscape or on cropped images of himself, is intended to encourage a wide range of visual interpretations.

Cavallaro's statement assures viewers that it's all right to smile or even chuckle when seeing her series of ceramic fish sculptures, bedecked with feathers and ribbons and bearing titles such as "Fish Lipped and Half-Cocked." Inspired by Cavallaro's expereince of snorkeling in the Gulf of Mexico, the fish sculptures are shown suspended from the ceiling or extended from the wall, enhancing the effect of floating movement conveyed by their shapes.

Rabine evokes a very different sense of movement in her sculpture of a "Devil Dancer." Inspired by the shape of the piece of wood from which it was carved, the work shows an abstract, hoofed devil dancing on a bed of nails. Thorny branches of a different type of wood function as arms and an inscription in code on the dancer's torso states "I bear you no harm."

undergraduates has hopes and aspirations that reach beyond themselves," he wrote. "A good college affirms that service to others is a central part of education."

As a college administrator, Boyer introduced the experimental mid-year term—the nation's first, which subsequently was adopted by many other colleges. He also initiated a five-year review of college presidents, developed an experimental three-year A.B. program, established a new rank of Distinguished Teaching Professor and negotiated the first undergraduate exchange program with the Soviet Union.

Boyer has been named by three presidents of the United States to national commissions. He also is deeply committed to the arts in education. He has been a member of both the Saratoga Performing Arts Center and the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. Currently he is a member of the Council of Foreign Relations and a trustee of several colleges, including Haverford College and the University of Pennsylvania Medical Center.

Boyer will receive an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters at the Commencement ceremony. It will be the 110th honorary degree he has received.

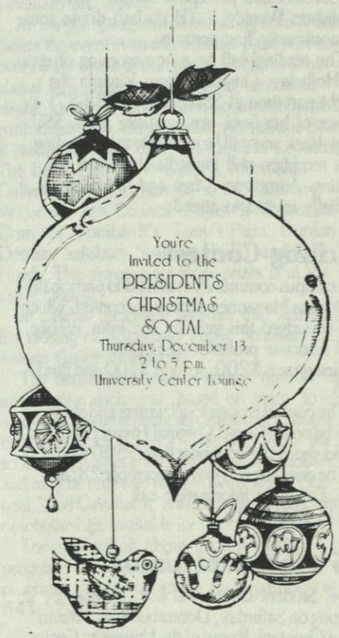
by the Salisbury State University Performing Arts Fund and the Department of Music. Tickets for the 8 p.m. performance on December 14 are $12 for adults and $8 for students, and may be purchased at Salisbury Music and Instrument Repair on Eastern Shore Drive, at the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, at any Peninsula Bank branch, at the Salisbury branch of John Hanson Bank and at the door the night of the performance.

For more information, contact the Department of Music at 543-6385.



Ward Museum Gift Shop Discounts

The Ward Museum Gift Shop invites faculty, staff and students to begin their holiday shopping there while taking advantage of 25 percent off regularly priced merchandise (excluding consignment items). A special sale will take place on Thursday, December 6, and Friday, December 7, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Take advantage of discount days while choosing among a wide variety of specialty items and educational materials. Purchases fund the work of the Ward Foundation.

Winter Plants Of Pemberton Park

Although little is in bloom at Pemberton Park in December, it is a great time to observe and identify trees, shrubs and dried plants.

Retired University botanist Charles Wingo will lead a walk on Saturday, December 15, at 10 a.m. Registration fee is $2; it is limited to adults and children aged 10 years or above.

Call 548-4900 for reservations or more information.

Holiday Voice Recital

The Voice I class, under the direction of Katherine Turner Barlow, will perform a recital featuring songs of the holiday season. The recital will be held on Thursday, December 6, at 7 p.m. in the main lounge of the University Center. All are welcome to attend.

Holladay Next In Writers Series

The Department of English is pleased to announce its second reading in the 1990-91 Writers-on-the-Shore series. On Wednesday, December 12, fiction-writer Cary Holladay will read from her work at 8 p.m, in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Holladay's collection of short stories "The People Down South," was published by the University of Illinois Press last year. "In these 15 succinct and perceptive stories," stated Publishers Weekly, ...(Holladay) draws some extraordinarily fine portraits...."

The reading will be a homecoming of sorts for Holladay. Originally from Virginia she taught part-time at SSU during 1985-87. Copies of her book are available at the SSU Book Rack and will be available at her reading.

A reception will immediately follow the reading. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Writing Contest

The campus community is invited to participate in Oceana Magazine's short story contest, which will be judged this year by Dr. John Wenke, SSU associate professor of English.

First prize is $200, second $100 and third $50.

The contest is open to all writers and stories may be on any topic. Original (never published) works should be no longer than 3500 words.

The deadline is Friday, December 28, at 5 p.m. For more information call (301) 250-5512.

25+ Student Union

25+ Student Union will hold its monthly meeting on Saturday, December 8, at 10 a.m. in the Choptank Room of the University Center.

Everyone is welcome; refreshements will be provided.

Math Positions

Applications are invited for one or more tenure-track positions to begin August 15, at the assistant/associate professor level. All specialties will be considered, but preference will be given to discrete math, visual mathematics and dynamical systems. Commitment to the mathematical sciences point of view (a blending of pure and applied mathematics, statistics and computer science), strong teaching, a doctorate in a mathematical science by September 1991 and scholarly activity are essential. Candidates must be able to teach service and major courses, and those who can stimulate undergraduate mathematical activity will be given special consideration. Rank and salary will be commensurate with credentials and experience.

Send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, unofficial transcripts and three letters of recommendation, at least one addressing teaching, to Dr. Donald Cathcart, Search Committee Chair, Department of Mathematical Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Screening of applications will begin February 15 and continue until the position(s) are filled.

Courses for State Employees

The Employee Development Division of the Maryland Department of Personnel has issued its latest Course Catalog for the first six months of 1991. They offer training programs to help employees develop supervisory skills, perfect current clerical or management skills, or update their knowledge of state regulations. Courses range in cost from $25 to $210 depending on several factors. Expense would be charged to an employee's work department if the budget administrator approved their application.

More precise information may be obtained by contacting the campus Personnel Office in Holloway Hall, room 222, or telephone 543-6035.

RFD-Radio Free Delmarva

Tune into public radio station WSCL Saturday, December 15, for the RFD-Radio Free Delmarva Christmas spectacular. RFD is the Peninsula's only live radio broadcast featuring musicians and artists living and working on Delmarva.

Featured musicians include the Lenny Grazier Group playing jazz favorites and a seasonal tunes...classical guitarist Linda Winchurch and trumpet player Jason Rodgers with Christmas duets...tuba player Tim Whittemore...an original Christmas piece from trumpet player Jim Miller...and a professionally-recorded intermission duet from host Van Williamson and Sesame Street guitarist Jim Mitchell.

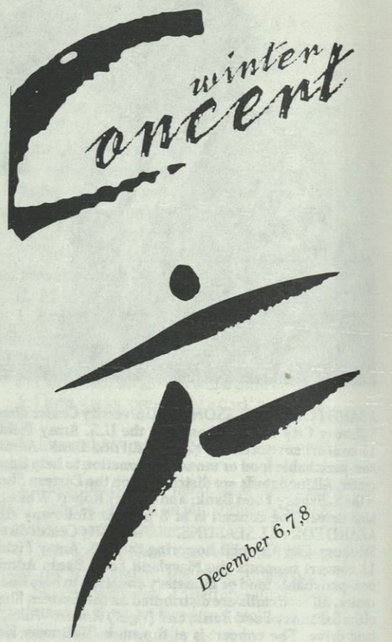
Also, authors Tom Horton and Jack Wenke will talk about their works...and the final episode of the continuing drama "Shore Thing."

The free show is performed before a live audience in Caruthers Auditorium at Salisbury State University, and the public is invited. Show time is 8 to 10 p.m. WSCL is at 89.5 on the FM dial.

The Teacher/Coach: What Is the Proper Balance?

On Thursday, December 6, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center, Dr. Carol Williamson, dean of students and Dr. Doran Christensen, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies will discuss this issue on a panel moderated by Dr. Terry Rupert, of the physical education faculty.

Open participation is welcome. Refreshments will be served. The panel is sponsored by the Workshop and Seminar Committee of the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics.



Winter Dance Concert This Weekend

A 10-foot helium-filled balloon, syncopated Latin rhythms and choreography by a guest artist who has received national and international recognition promise a festive Winter Dance Concert.

Performances are at 8 p.m., Thursday and Friday, December 6-7, with a matinee on Saturday, December 8, in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Tickets will be sold at the door beginning one-half hour before performance. Admission is free to SSU students.

The hour-length program of six dances will feature guest artist Peter Madden's energetic and humorous "Flocking." Madden is on the faculties of Goucher College, the Baltimore School for the Arts and is national director of the Leban Movement Analysis Certification Extension Program. He has taught, performed and choreographed extensively achieving national and international recognition, according to Victoria Hutchinson, new Dance Program director.

The Company also invites people to participate in the 1990 SSU-Maryland Food Bank Drive and bring a can of food to the concert. Collection boxes will be set up in the lobby.

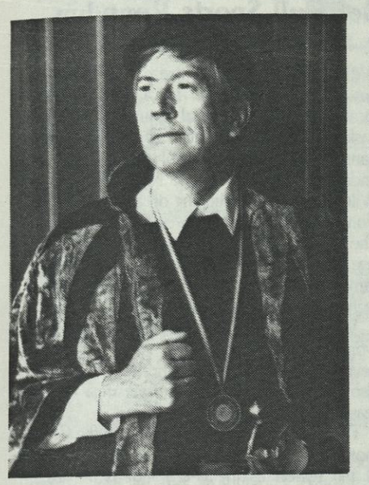
Fusaro Gains Soviet and National Appointments

Dr. Ben Fusaro, professor of mathematical sciences, has been honored with two appointments of national and international stature.

Fusaro, a recognized figure in the field of mathematical modeling, has been asked to serve on the editorial board of the Soviet Journal of Electronic Modeling. The request came through the prestigious Soviet Academy of Sciences. According to Professor Anatoly Martynuyk, it is "a great honor" to have Fusaro join the editorial board.

Nationally, Fusaro has been asked to chair the ad hoc committee on Mathematics and the Environment of the Mathematical Association of America.

"I consider this one of the most important national committees the MAA could have," said the SSU professor. Fusaro established and is currently president of the Wicomico Environmental Trust.



William Palmer

SSU Leads in Columbus Anniversary Planning

than 100 teachers from schools in nine counties of Maryland's Eastern Shore are expected for a one-day workshop on Friday, January 25, on campus.

The program will be in preparation for the observance in Shore schools next year of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' famous mistake of 1492. Thinking he was discovering a new route to the riches of the Orient, he sailed into a whole new world all unsuspected in between.

The latest research on Columbus and his times along with an assessment of the impact of the discovery on today's world will be presented at the workshop by scholars in the fields of history, geography, language and biology.

The teachers will take the information back to their classrooms to give their students a fresh look at Columbus and his times. The teachers also will receive a packet of especially prepared materials to help them plan study units at their grade levels. Each school will get a videotape of a portion of the proceedings.

Coordinating the workshop are two SSU faculty members, William E. Palmer, associate professor of Spanish, and Dr. A. Nayland Page, professor of history. They have received a $7,000 grant for the project from the Maryland Humanitites Council. The workshop will open with Palmer acting the role of Columbus as an old man reflecting on the success and failures of his adventurous career and "bemoaning the woeful circumstances of this last year of his life." At the end Columbus was much criticized for losing all his ships on his last voyage and for never producing the riches of the Orient that he had promised.

A well-known expert on Columbus' world, Dr. Donald L. Williams, professor of geography at the University of Southern Mississippi, will discuss the "European View of the World in 1492."

Other speakers will be Page discussing Spain at the time of the discovery and colonizing of the new world; Sylvia Bradley, SSU history professor, describing the status of women in Columbus' time; Dr. Dan R. Sistrunk, SSU biology professor, explaining the exchange of plant and animal life that resulted from the discovery; and Patsy Somers, a Somerset County teacher, outlining a bibliography of source materials on Columbus' times. The luncheon speaker will be Ann Hartman, executive director of the Maryland Quincentennial Observance, who will discuss her group's plans for the celebration.

A round-table discussion by all the speakers will conclude the program. The emphasis, Palmer said, will be less on Columbus as a hero and explorer of the unknown and more on the impact of his discovery, both good and bad on the New and the Old Worlds. The controversial aspects of that impact—the discrimination of the Indians, the exploitation of New World resources—will be covered along with the positive aspects of the colonization and development of New World societies.

The Quincentennial will be celebrated worldwide, Palmer said. The highlight will be a replay of Columbus' voyage by replicas of his three ships, the Nina, the Pina and Santa Maria, which have been built in Spain. They will sail from Palos, Columbus' port of departure in Spain, to the island he named San Salvador where he landed on October 12, 1492.

Palmer is well qualified to play the role of Columbus for the workshop participants. Fluent in Spanish, he has traveled in that country and met and married his wife, Angeles, there. His interest in Columbus developed while he was teaching at the University of Salamanca in 1965. He has visited many of the places important in Columbus' life and has written a book on the famous navigator titled "the Secret Journal of Christopher Columbus," a semifictional account of his first voyage of discovery.

Have a Safe Break

National Drunk/Drugged Driving Awareness Week will be observed on campus December 9-15. The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center will launch a "Safe Break" campaign coordinated with the week's activities.

"The week gives us an opportunity, through increased awareness, to highlight the drinking and driving issues that are such a problem for college-age drivers," said Jennifer Berkman, Center director. "The Maryland Department of Transportation gives us a sizeable grant because of the large numbers of deaths that occur in the 16-24 year age group due to drinking/drugging and driving. It is important that individuals understand that holiday time is a period of high risk for alcohol and drug related accidents."

Berkman has been working with student volunteer David Burke to create a campaign that will educate the campus community on the issues. "David has helped develop materials that students can relate to. We wanted to let them know that a 'designated driver' is someone who hasn't had anything to drink as opposed to the person who has had the least. David came up with 'Sober means Soda and Soda means Sober' slogan. I think it has a better chance with students than 'designated driver' does," Berkman said.

Burke's ideas will be printed on table tents, flyers and advertisements, and used in public service announcements throughout National Drunk/Drugged Driving Awareness Week and during the rest of the "Safe Break" campaign.

Meekins Discusses Co-op Learning

Dr. Amy Meekins, assistant professor in the School of Education and Professional Studies, recently presented a paper at the Maryland Association for Adult, Community and Continuing Education (MAACCE) Region IV Professional Development Conference at Cambridge-South Dorchester High School in Cambridge, MD.

The presentation, "Cooperative Learning: Its Promise for Adult Education Teachers," included an overview of cooperative learning strategies, methods of student grouping, thinking skills and the management of classroom learning environments.

Attended by adult education teachers representing the counties on the Eastern Shore, the conference offered teachers the opportunity to receive training on topics of current interest.

Christmas Art Sale Saturday!

Shoppers looking for original and unique gifts which won't max out the credit card are invited to SSU's annual Holiday Art Sale for scholarships.

Handmade unique gifts, from Christmas ornaments and jewelry by students to major works from artists with regional and international exhibition exposure, will be sold. Prices have traditionally started as low as $1.

"The holiday season is for giving," said Marie Cavallaro (Quillen), SSU art professor and sale organizer. "I'm most proud that current art students are contributing to the sale to help fund scholarships for their future colleagues."

The sale is in the University Center Atrium Gallery on Saturday, December 8, from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.; Monday-Friday, December 10-14, from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m.; and Monday-Tuesday, December 17-18, from 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

Art students are participating in all phases of the project, from making works, to organizings and setting up displays. This involvement is the first chance for most of them to sell their works, Cavallaro said, and is educational as well. Proceeds go toward the Art Department scholarship fund.

The sale, now in its seventh year, draws hundreds of shoppers throughout the area. "The Atrium Gallery will be filled with appealing works appropriate for holiday gift giving," Cavallaro continued. They include a combination of realistic and abstract paintings, drawings, prints, photography and pottery. This collection of original works has traditionally appealed to all levels of taste, sophistication and pocketbooks.

Due to its growth and popularity, this is its longest run ever, lasting eight days. "This is our department's major scholarship drive and I'm gratified by the efforts of art majors to help their department."

Contributing artists and crafts people are Jose and Vesra Dovis, Dan and Rhonda Heineche, Beth Fusaro, Jilliam Olson, Sharon Himes, Jan Hills, Rebecca Taylor White, Dot Truitt, Alice Jackson, Jody Grier, Angie Herbert Hodges, Paula Hepburn, Jean Anderton, Sharon Gribbin-Lindeman, Jane Heddelton, John Cleary, Cavallaro and others.

An on-going tradition of awarding door prizes makes the event even more fun for patrons. For every $10 worth of purchases, a ticket will be placed in a drawing box making customers eligible for one or more prizes. Local merchants contributing gifts and gift certificates include Basil Restaurant, City Florist, Art Express, Legends, The Book Rack, The Gallery, Macmillan Gallery, Johnny & Sammy's, the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, English's Restaurant, Dominos, Lombardi's, Tony's Pizza, Dunkin Donuts, Salisbury Seafood, TCBY and CPI Finish. The drawing for door prizes is at the sale's closing.

In case of inclement weather that warrants the closing of Wicomico Public Schools, the Atrium Gallery will close.

The department offers a limited number of scholarships each year, based on merit, to incoming full-time freshmen intending to major in art (B.A. or B.F.A.). The amount of the scholarship varies from $300 to $500 dollars and may be renewed the following year. "Our goal," said Cavallaro, "is to increase the amount of scholarships available for future art students."

For information about the scholarship program, the art major or other art related programs, please contact the Art Department at 543-6270.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

With the arrival of December on the SSU campus, its time once again for a time honored, local tradition, the annual "it-just-wouldn't-be-basketball-season-without-it" Gull Classic Tournament. The two-day event will be held this Friday and Saturday in the Maggs Gym, with Wilmington College tipping off against Catholic University in the first game on Friday at 6 p.m. The hosting Sea Gulls then meet York (NY) College in the second game at 8 p.m. The consolation game is at 6 p.m. on Saturday, with the tournament championship slated for 8 p.m.

While the SSU women are not hosting a women's tournament this year, they will nevertheless be in action at home on Saturday also, hosting Marymount College in a regular season contest at 4 p.m.

Forward Andre Foreman has been the Gulls' most consistent producer through the early part of the season as the 6-6 junior is averaging 30.0 points per game and 13.0 rebounds. Guard David Byer is contributing 15.2 ppg and Jamie Gosweiler is adding 11.4 ppg. Salisbury, currently in the midst of a six game homestand, will be without the services of sophomore forward Joe Zdrojewski the rest of the season as he undergoes surgery on his injured finger.

Jeannie Daly has been the women's most consistent player thus far, averaging 13.2 points per outing and 9.9 rebounds. Senior guard Vicki Miller nearly recorded a triple-double in last Saturday's 80-66 win over Immaculata, with 21 points, 11 rebounds and eight assists. The women close out a five-game December homestand against Virginia Wesleyan on Wednesday, then play their final pre-Christmas game at UMES on Friday, December 14.

Coach Ron Otto's wrestlers return to the mats this Saturday in Washington, D.C. as they meet Lebanon Valley and Gallaudet in a tri-meet. SSU opened the season last Saturday in the York (PA) Tournament, where senior Marty Lewis captured second place at 177 pounds and Ron Rossi placed fourth in the heavyweight bracket.

The swim team begins the final stretch of its season this week with meets at Gallaudet and Marymount. The Gulls, closing out their first season with Coach Chris Wagner, host the season-finale against Coppin State on Wednesday.

Texas-Metropolitan Opera Radio Broadcasts

The following is the repertoire and casting for the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Saturday afternoon radio broadcasts on WSCL-FM. The performance will be live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Saturday, December 8, at 1:30 p.m.—Verdi's "La Traviata"—Rico Saccani conducting, with Diana Soviero (Violetta), Jerry Hadley (Alfredo), and Brian Schexnayder (Germont).

Habitat for Humanity

The SSU team of volunteers for Habitat for Humanity has already completed two workdays this semester and had a great time.

Join them for their next workday on Saturday, December 8. They will meet in front of Maggs Gym at 8:45 a.m. and return to campus for lunch around noon. Between 1-1:15 p.m. they will meet again and work at a Habitat house until 4 p.m. Work during the morning, the afternoon, or both.

Meet new people from SSU and the community, learn new skills, and just have a great time. Teachers, students and friends are all welcome. For more information, please contact Krissy Monks (548-4198) or Greta Trumpower (546-4168).

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

DECEMBER 13, 1990 VOL. XII NO. 15

Commencement Sunday: 340 to Graduate

At Salisbury State University's fall Commencement 267 bachelor's degree and 73 master's degree candidates will be recognized for their academic achievements at the University's 66th year graduation ceremonies on Sunday, December 16, at 3 p.m., in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

The class of 1990 includes 164 receiving the Bachelor of Science, 98 receiving the Bachelor of Arts, and five receiving the Bachelor of Arts in Social Work. In addition 73 students will receive master's degrees: 52 the Master of Education, 13 the Master of Arts, seven the Master of Business Administration and one the Master the Science.

On Saturday, December 15, at 1 p.m., a pinning ceremony will honor the University's nursing graduates in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, who has been called "the nation's leading educator" and in 1987 was voted by his peers as "Man of the Year in Higher Education," will deliver the Commencement address.

The president of one of the nation's leading educational think tanks, The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, Boyer has been listed for seven consecutive years by U.S. News and World Report as one of the top educators in the country. In 1983 he was chosen by his peers as the nation's leading educator. He holds honorary degrees from 85 U.S. colleges and universities and was awarded the President's Medal from Tel Aviv University.

He is also Senior Fellow at the prestigious Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton University and is education columnist for The London Times.

Before joining the Carnegie Foundation in 1979, he served as the 23rd U.S. Commissioner of Education, administering a $12 billion federal budget. As commissioner he emphasized excellence in education and the centrality of language. During this period federal support to education increased 40 percent.

From 1970-77, he was chancellor of the State University of New York (SUNY). As head of the largest university in the United States, he directed a system of 64 institutions with over 350,000 students.

Boyer has been named by three presidents of the United States to national commissions. He also is deeply committed to the arts in education. He has been a member of both the Saratoga Performing Arts Center and the

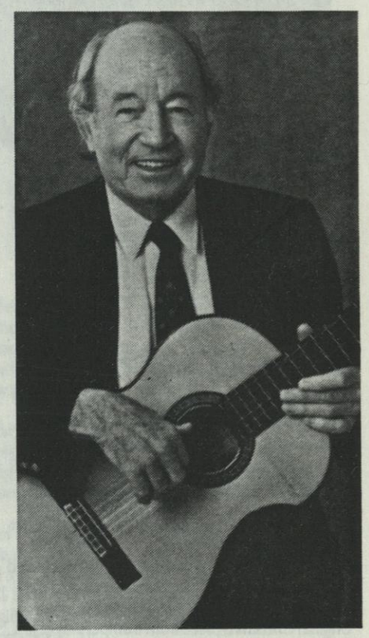
Byrd, Brass Christmas Here Dec. 14



Charlie Byrd

Acclaimed guitarist Charlie Byrd collaborates with the Annapolis Brass Quintet for a "Byrd and Brass Christmas," a concert of holiday music, on Friday, December 14, at 8 p.m., in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

In the past decade, Byrd has emerged on the international music scene as a guitar giant. Although the guitar has bridged the worlds of classical and popular music throughout its long history, one seldom finds a guitarist who works with equal ease in the idioms of both classical music and jazz.

Willis Conover of the Voice of America has said: "Charlie Byrd's versatility in the literature of the guitar surpasses that of anyone else. He is a masterful jack of all guitar trades."

In 1956, Byrd produced an album on the Savoy label, "Blues for Night People," which marked a turning point in his professional career. He has since produced more than 50 albums of his own and has been featured on more than two dozen others. In 1962, Byrd and saxophonist Stan Getz recorded "Jazz Samba" and according to jazz authority Leonard Feather, "...the entire bossa nova craze in the United States may be said to have sprung directly from this album."

Byrd also performs classical recitals and concerts and in recent years has performed with the National Symphony, the Baltimore Symphony, the Minneapolis Symphony and the Feldman String Quartet. He has produced three albums of classical music. A great honor was bestowed upon him in April 1972 when he was invited to perform a concert with the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Arthur Fiedler conducting.

A perfectionist, Byrd practices at least three hours a day and still more when his schedule allows. He is a compulsive experimenter, and in recent years has been studying the work of Ravi Shankar, the sitarist. Byrd also finds time to write scores for films and for television and has won many awards in this field. He has also scored music for modern dance groups and for plays.

"A Byrd and Brass Christmas" is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Performing Arts Fund and the Department of Music. Tickets are $12 for adults and $8 for students, and may be purchased at Salisbury Music and Instrument Repair on Eastern Shore Drive, at the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, at any Peninsula Bank branch, at the Salisbury branch of the John Hanson Bank and at the door the night of the performance.

For more information, contact the SSU Department of Music at 543-6385.

Audubon Scholarships

The Maryland Ornithology Society (MOS) is now accepting applications from Maryland teachers and youth leaders for five scholarships to attend summer ecology workshops which the National Audubon Society holds at its camps in Maine, Connecticut and Wyoming.

Each grant covers the cost of tuition, room and board for one week of field study and instruction in ecology, conservation and natural history. These scholarships are funded by the MOS, by the World Nature Association, and by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cotton.

The MOS is also accepting applications from Maryland teachers and youth leaders for two scholarships for a week of study in ornithology at the Audubon summer workshop in Maine. These scholarships are funded by the MOS.

Although any person over 18 years of age may pay tuition and attend a National Audubon Camp, the MOS requires that its scholarship recipients be those who work with young people. This includes teachers, camp counselors, club officials specializing in youth work, students and others who are planning to make nature education a part of their careers.

Applicants need not be members of MOS but each must be endorsed by a chapter or member of MOS. Each candidate must provide a written statement showing in what manner the Audubon experience will be used to help develop in young people an appreciation of the U.S.'s wild heritage and a sense of responsibility for the care of natural resources and for the quality of the environment. Two or more letters from individuals who know of the candidates' interest and activities are requested.

Applicants wishing to be endorsed by the Wicomico Chapter of MOS must complete an application by January 31. Additional information may be obtained by calling 749-2804 after 5 p.m.

Brochures can be obtained from the Registrar, Audubon Camps and Workshops, 613 Riversville Road, Greenwich, CT 06831.

Applications and letters of recommendation are to be sent to Linda Cashman, Rt. 1, Box 105, Salisbury, MD 21801. Winning candidates will be selected by the statewide MOS Scholarship Committe, and will be notified of results in March.

Winter Plants Of Pemberton Park

Although little is in bloom at Pemberton Park in December, it is a great time to observe and identify trees, shrubs and dried plants.

Retired University botanist Charles Wingo will lead a walk on Saturday, December 15, at 10 a.m. Registration fee is $2; it is limited to adults and children aged 10 years or above.

Call 548-4900 for reservations or more information.

Writing Contest

The campus community is invited to participate in Oceana Magazine's short story contest, which will be judged this year by Dr. John Wenke, SSU associate professor of English.

First prize is $200, second $100 and third $50.

The contest is open to all writers and stories may be on any topic. Original (never published) works should be no longer than 3500 words.

The deadline is Friday, December 28, at 5 p.m. For more information call (301) 250-5512.

RFD-Radio Free Delmarva

Tune into public radio station WSCL Saturday, December 15, for the RFD-Radio Free Delmarva Christmas spectacular. RFD is the Peninsula's only live radio broadcast featuring musicians and artists living and working on Delmarva.

Featured musicians include the Lenny Grazier Group playing jazz favorites and a seasonal tunes...classical guitarist Linda Winchurch and trumpet player Jason Rodgers with Christmas duets...tuba player Tim Whittemore...an original Christmas piece from trumpet player Jim Miller...and a professionally-recorded intermission duet from host Van Williamson and Sesame Street guitarist Jim Mitchell.

Also, authors Tom Horton and Jack Wenke will talk about their works...and the final episode of the continuing drama "Shore Thing."

The free show is performed before a live audience in Caruthers Auditorium and the public is invited. Show time is 8-10 p.m. WSCL is at 89.5 on the FM dial.

Courses for State Employees

The Employee Development Division of the Maryland Department of Personnel has issued its latest Course Catalog for the first six months of 1991. They offer training programs to help employees develop supervisory skills, perfect current clerical or management skills, or update their knowledge of state regulations. Courses range in cost from $25 to $210 depending on several factors. Expense would be charged to an employee's work department if the budget administrator approved their application.

More precise information may be obtained by contacting the campus Personnel Office in Holloway Hall, room 222, or telephone 543-6035.

Wind Sinfonia Concert

The University Wind Sinfonia's winter performance is at 8 p.m. on Thursday, December 13, in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Library Exam Week Hours

Blackwell Library will be open the following hours during exam week:

Saturday, December 15, 10 a.m.-10 p.m.; Sunday, December 16, noon-2 a.m.; Monday, December 17, 7 a.m.-2 a.m.; Tuesday, December 18, 7 a.m.-2 a.m.; Wednesday, December 19, 7 a.m.-2 a.m.; Thursday, December 20, 7 a.m.-midnight; and Friday, December 21, 7:45 a.m.-6 p.m.

The Library will be closed December 22 - January 1.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Phi Kappa Phi Invites Applications

The SSU chapter of the honor society of Phi Kappa Phi announces that applications for membership can be made prior to Friday, December 14.

Phi Kappa Phi accepts members from all majors and disciplines. Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is among the highest academic awards presented to students at SSU. The basic criteria for membership involve superior academic achievement including, for seniors, a GPA of at least 3.6 and, for juniors, a GPA of at least 3.85. The GPA is calculated using all letter grades. Certain limits are placed upon the number of students who can be initiated in any year.

Students who believe that they are eligible for membership in Phi Kappa Phi should submit their names to Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna in the Biology Department prior to December 14. Selection of candidates and invitation to membership will be completed by early spring.

Math Positions

Applications are invited for one or more tenure-track positions to begin August 15, at the assistant/associate professor level. All specialties will be considered, but preference will be given to discrete math, visual mathematics and dynamical systems. Commitment to the mathematical sciences point of view (a blending of pure and applied mathematics, statistics and computer science), strong teaching, a doctorate in a mathematical science by September 1991 and scholarly activity are essential. Candidates must be able to teach service and major courses, and those who can stimulate undergraduate mathematical activity will be given special consideration. Rank and salary will be commensurate with credentials and experience.

Send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, unofficial transcripts and three letters of recommendation, at least one addressing teaching, to Dr. Donald Cathcart, Search Committee Chair, Department of Mathematical Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Screening of applications will begin February 15 and continue until the position(s) are filled.

Assistant Director Of Horticulture

Salisbury State University is reopening its search for an assistant director of horticulture.

The applicant should be familiar with the operations of a small grounds organization with emphasis on interior plant management, turf management, equipment operation, personnel scheduling and general horticultural maintenance. The successful candidate must be an excellent communicator, possess a degree in horticulture or the equivalent and have at least three years practical experience in the field of horticulture.

This is a full-time state position with all benefits and a starting salary commensurate with experience. Interested applicants should submit a resume to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801 by December 14.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Room Assignment Process For Fall 1991, Spring 1992

Information on the random room selection process (RRSP) for fall 1991, spring 1992 follows and should be carefully read.

This change in room assignment procedures was developed to: provide assignment parity for all returning students; enable students to know their housing assignment before leaving campus in May, to include overflow spaces; provide a more systematic approach to assigning rooms and to utilize a software package specifically designed for room assignment purposes; and eliminate any confusion in the former room assignment procedure resulting from the University of Maryland System revision of credit hours for class standing.

All students housed on-campus for spring 1991 and desiring housing for the academic year 1991-92 will be guaranteed on-campus housing provided all of the housing assignment procedures and deadlines are met.

Procedures include the assignment of random numbers to all persons living on-campus for spring 1991. These random numbers will be used, along with five assignment preferences, to determine who is given assignment priority. The software program will consider the following preferences, in order: student wishing to remian in their present location with their present roommate; students wishing to remain in their present location with a new roommate; students desiring a new location with their present roommate; students desiring a new location with a new roommate; and students selecting a best location as requested on a random room selection preference form and contigent upon the available remaining rooms for assignment.

Those assignment preferences will work in tandem with random numbers starting with random number one and continuing in ascending order until all assignments are made. The RRSP will continue until all rooms are filled.

If there are more students desiring housing than spaces available, then students whose combination of random number and assignment preference keep them from being assigned a room will be placed in an overflow category unless a space opens up through a cancellation or dismissal. As space becomes available the next eligible random number/assignment preference will be contacted and advised of the opening and the roommate.

A waiting list of upper-class students not on-campus during spring 1991 will be kept to fill vacancies as they occur after the RRSP is complete.

The room deposit fee is increased to $200. This fee will hold a space in housing for the fall 1991-92 academic year and will be credited toward the spring 1992 housing bill. The deposit is fully refundable through May 1, 1991.

The residence hall contract is for one full academic year (summer school or winter term, if applicable) or any prorated portions thereof. Refunds for withdrawal from the University are based upon the University refund policy as stated in the catalogue. Reassignments for spring semester are based on roommate changes only. However, new students (freshmen and transfers) will continue to be assigned rooms in Manokin, Nanticoke, Pocomoke, Wicomico and Choptank halls. Assignments there are for the full academic year.

Important RRSP dates are listed below and should be carefully followed. Questions about this new procedure for assigning rooms should be directed to the Housing Office (543-6040).

RRSP Timetable 1991

Tuesday, February 12 (noon)

Posted random room selection list residence, life staff distributes RRSP forms.

Friday, February 15

RRSP forms returned to either the building AD or RD, who will verify the return. Failure to return this form will result in being eliminated from the room selection process.

Friday, March 1

Room assignments, contracts and room deposit forms sent through campus mail to students. If students fail to receive the assignment, contract and room deposit form by March 1, they must report in person to the Housing Office by March 1.

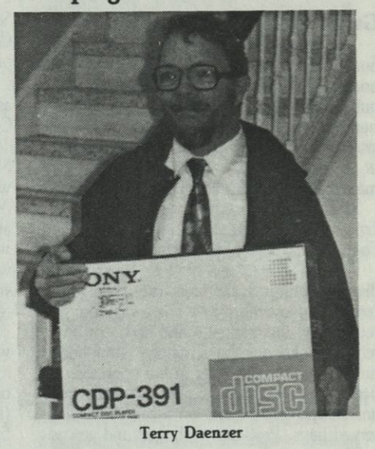
Friday, March 15 (4 p.m.)

Room deposit of $200 due.

Wednesday, May 1

Refund of $200 room deposit if requested by this date either in person or by postmark on letter.

United Charities Campaign Winners



Terry Daenzer

Terry Daenzer of the Blackwell Library staff was the lucky winner of the Sony CD player, the top prize given away at the end of the University's United Charities Campaign. The CD player was generously donated by the SSU Foundation.

The campaign has raised over $11,500 thus far, the University's best effort ever, with a few pledges and contributions still coming in. That figure represents an increase of better than 10 percent over last year's record-setting campaign.

Other winners in the post-campaign drawing of donated prizes to those who contributed at least $1.50 per pay period were: Jana Long, Hess $10 gift certificate; Lorraine Pollitt, Hess $10 gift certificate; Charlotte Benton, Hess $10 gift certificate; Robert Spery, Hess $10 gift certificate; Dr. Barbara Schultz, Hess $10 gift certificate; Dr. Florence Pritchard, Mitzi Perdue autographed cookbook; Dr. Nelson Butler, Mitzi Perdue autographed cookbook; Charlotte Ganoe, Sunday Brunch for two; and Mary Fridie, Dining Hall Christmas dinner for two.

Debbie Merryweather and Gains Hawkins, co-chairs of this year's campaign, would like to thank all those who assisted in and contributed to the campaign, making it the University's best ever.

Science Celebrity To Visit SSU

Lynn Margulis, biologist, educator and world-class researcher, will visit SSU on Friday, February 1, for the Science Midyear Kickoff. There will be a general lecture in the morning in Devilbiss 149 and a more technical program in the afternoon.

The morning topic will be the Gaia Hypothesis. This hypothesis says that the earth is a living system that regulates itself much like a large organism. This novel and striking concept was the brain child of the English physical chemist and inventor, James Lovelock. Margulis immediately recognized the value of this concept and helped Lovelock champion it against dogged resistance. The presentation is open to the public, faculty, staff and students.

"Everyone is invited to attend this thought-provoking event," said Dr. Ben Fusaro, professor of mathematics in the Henson School of Science and Technology. "Here is a chance to meet a stimulating celebrity who has the content to match the dazzle." The afternoon program will expand on some of Margulis' more technical scientific ideas. Its target audience is the Henson School.

Margulis exhibited creativity, independence and general insouciance for the scientific establishment when she was a fledgling doctorate in the 1960s. She proposed that DNA might exist outside the nucleus of a cell, an idea that flew in the face of microbiology dogma. While a junior faculty member she proposed that some cells evolved not by genetic accident, but result from self-organization by bacteria. Both ideas were rejected when proposed; both ideas are now part of biology.

One of her current controversial views is that only bacteria are individuals—the rest of us are colonies of constituent microbes. She has many other ideas on tap, enough to keep the teeth of her staid colleagues on edge. Some of her fascinating ideas have been aired by WSCL on "Pulse of the Planet."

Margulis has written seven books, scores of research papers and maintains a keen interest in education, from kindergarten to 20.

"Those who participate in these events can expect a fulfilling and stimulating experience," said Fusaro.

Senior Resume Book

The Center for Personal and Professional Development often gets requests from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors, so they can contact them about job openings. To participate, seniors should bring a resume to the Center Office. The resume is filed alphabetically and made available to interested employers.

General Information

New Jersey Collegiate Career Day - It is on Friday, January 4, from 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. at Rutgers, NJ.

Connexion - A new service provided by Peterson's that links people in transition to employers and graduate schools across the country; the service is free.

International Recruiting Fair '91 - The Ohio State University College of Education presents the seventh annual International Recruiting Fair on February 16-17. All education majors are encouraged to attend. Registration deadline is January 28.

More information can be obtained from the CPPD.

December 1990 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

General Information and Directions

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 16, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

3. Caps, gowns and master's hoods will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning November 26. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Announcements may be purchased in the bookstore beginning November 26, but quantities are limited and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday-Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Friday, December 14, from 8:30 a.m.- 4 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 4 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by Dr. Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, December 10. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing and Health Sciences will hold a semi-annual Pinning Ceremony on Saturday, December 15, at 1 p.m. in Holloway Hall

12. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through letter M (Thomas Martin) will report to Drs. Bozman and Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with Kristine Martinez through the letter Z will report to Drs. Wulff and Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

13. All Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through Margaret Marsh and will report to Drs. Delpaz and Basehart at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

All Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with Dawn Marshall through the letter Z will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. St. Martin and Jerome Miller. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

14. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

15. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park), and report to Drs. Lewis and Johnson in the corridor nearest the Midway Room. They will direct you into a line according to your degree. All master's candidates will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart.

16. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.

2. Dress hose.

3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline and white collar on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.

2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.

3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.

4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.

5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.

7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.

2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice President of Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.

3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South/Specialists in Graduate and Event Photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

17. Graduation Decorum

Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Communication Arts Profs at SCA

Four faculty members from the Communication Arts Department presented papers at the 76th annual conference of the Speech Communication Association (SCA). The conference was held in Chicago, November 1-4. This year's convention theme was "Rational Discourse in an Uncertain World."

In addition to paper presentations, all four faculty members participated in various offerings in the SCA Seminar Series. This series brings together scholars who share a common interest in issues facing the communication discipline. The format allows for a lively exchange of ideas and an open discussion of concerns.

Dr. Janet Horne participated in and presented a paper for the SCA Seminar, "Rational Discourse and the Problem of Incommensurability."

Horne also officiated as program chair for a session titled "Teaching Rhetorical Theory Courses in an Applied Communciation Age." The panel of the program discussed the contemporary problems and issues facing teachers of undergraduate rhetorical theory and related courses.

Paul Scovell participated in "Issues in the Basic Communication Course." In his contribution, "Technology in the Basic Speech Course," he discussed the way current advances in technology can enchance the contemporary undergraduate speech course.

Dr. Donald Singleton participated in "Issues in Legal Commmunication." The seminar participants considered various communication issues as they relate to the legal system, and media policy and regulation. Singleton presented "Broadcast Deregulation: A Tragedy of the Commons?"

Singleton also attended the planning session for the Southern States Communication Conference which will be held in Tampa next April. Singleton is serving as vice chair and director of planning for the Mass Communication Division of that conference.

Dr. Frances Kendall and Dr. Terry Meier (Washburn University) chaired the SCA Seminar Series "Television Programming of the 1980's: A Ten Year Assessment." The participants in this seminar covered a wide range of topics from how the prime time masculine image changed during the '80s to the emergence of televised "tabloid news." The seminar papers are currently being revised for publication. They will be resubmitted to Meier and Kendall who are working toward the publication of a selected volume on major issues and research findings from television in the '80s.

Kendall also presented a paper for the Women's Caucus Program on "Visual Victimization: Violence and Women in the Media." In her presentation, "Displays of Anger by 'Feminine' Characters in Intimate Relationships," she discussed the major recurring themes and "dances" that appeared in her study of portrayals of anger in prime time television programming.

Waters Wows

Current issues of two leading literary journals, The Georgia Review and Carolina Quarterly, feature reviews of books by Dr. Michael Waters, associate professor of English.

The critic for The Georgia Review, reviewing Waters "The Barn in the Air" (Livingston University Press, 1987), writes: "I have been following the poetry of Michael Waters for many years, and have never been disappointed by his books. His poems can be counted on to be warm, open, friendly, original and sometimes deceptively simple."

In Carolina Quarterly, their critic, reviewing Waters' "The Burden Lifters" (Carnegie-Mellon University Press, 1989), writes: "More decisively than ever 'The Burden Lifters" carries forward the steady, powerful development of Michael Waters' verse." He goes on to note that this new book, "the richest, most packed, most extensive of the volumes—offers a configuration worthy of decades of probing experience, discriminating craft and refined perception." He closes his review by stating that "the poet is engaged in the process of joining the masters of the lyric of love and contemplation."

Waters remains humble before such praise. "I just go on writing poems," he says. "I try not to pay much attention to reviews."

His new volume, "Bountiful," is forthcoming in early 1992 from Carnegie-Mellon. New poems are due to appear in several journals, including Mississippi Review, America, The Southeastern Review and Colorado North Review. His review of a book of criticism, "Mark Strand and the Poet's Place in Contemporary Culture" (University of Missouri Press), will appear in the next issue of the Chronicle of the Associated Writing Programs.

In addition, two creative writing exercises developed by Waters, along with his commentary, will be included in "The Practice of Poetry" (HarperCollins, 1991).

McBrien on Non-Addicted Children

Dr. Robert J. McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development, recently presented a program on positive parenting skills for raising non-addicted children to the Family Education Center of Southern Maryland in Waldorf.

"Parents today are very concerned with the problem addiction creates in families in our society," said McBrien. In discussing the variety of addictions young people develop, McBrien goes beyond alcoholism or drug addiction. Included in his list of addictions are foods, relationships, work, money, television and video games. Developing any addiction is the result of the interaction of one's personality with a substance or an experience. Addictive prone personalities are recognized by the attitude, "I want what I want when I want it."

The major points in McBrien's program include an understanding of how the personality is formed in the family and the impact of adult role models and parenting methods on the formation of the personality.

Parents may be able to prevent addictiveness in their children by using positive parenting methods. McBrien recommends the optimistic theory and practical methods first developed over 70 years ago by Alfred Adler, a giant in the human development movement.

Being raised in a healthy family atmosphere beginning with the child's first days home from the hospital allows the personality to thrive. Believing that children will resist addictiveness when their personalities are groomed in a healthy atmosphere provided by parents using methods taught in Family Education Centers by Alderian parent educators, McBrien said that if effective prevention of addictions is going to work, it will take place in the family, and before children reach their seventh birthday.

McBrien is a nationally certified counselor and has provided parent education workshops for over 15 years.

Tryon Institute

Dr. Adeline S.C. Tryon, assistant professor of psychology in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently presented an institute at the 24th annual convention of the Association for the Advancement of Behavior Therapy in San Francisco.

The institute, "Family Skills Training," was designed to provide special training for clinical psychologists interested in new methods of working with children and their families.

Family Skills Training (FST), a form of behavioral family therapy, aims to achieve two objectives with children and their families: resolve child and adolescent behavior problems at home and at school and improve family communication skills. FST accomplishes this by training the whole family to achieve standardized (yet individualized) solutions to common childrearing problems: messiness, bedtime, toileting, temper tantrums, fights, morning routine, school tardiness and absence, following instructions, chores, homework, loneliness, unhappiness, fearfulness, self-injury, stealing, lying, cheating, firesetting, violence, and academic and behavior problems at school.

"FST can be applied to the full range of child and adolescent psychiatric diagnoses so long as the child lives with (or will return to) the family's care," said Tryon. "FST can also be applied to problems of adherence to complex medical regimens (for example as in diabetes and asthma) where health depends upon the family's capacity to promote adherence without exacerbating stress. The instructor uses role-play to teach FST procedures and to convey strategies of effective communication believed to promote good client-family and intrafamily relationships."

Dear Graduating Seniors

by Rhonda Williams
Student Member, Commencement Committee

Graduation is a special occasion that we are all looking forward to. This occassion is marked by certain traditions set by both the University and history. Among the traditions are the wearing of the academic robe and mortarboard.

I would like to remind graduates that although no visible jewelry can be worn, you may wear your fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons. I would like to stress that no decoration of any kind is to be worn either on your mortarboard or academic robe.

Please remind family and friends that applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.

Health Insurance Update

Those whose health insurance is with MD IPA and doctor is Abrons or Reilly must select a new primary care physician by December 15 to ensure coverage starting January 1. Call MD IPA at 546-7794.

Insurance Confirmation Statements Arriving

Statements confirming insurance coverage for 1991 should be arriving at homes now. Check the statements for errors. If errors are detected, bring statements to the Personnel Office (HH 222) by December 17. Personnel can assist in getting errors corrected, but only if action is taken immediately.

Women as Leaders

The Council on Women's Issues recently hosted a panel presentation, "Gearing Up for Leadership: Women in the Workplace," as part of its fall meeting. Featured panelists included Addie Eckardt, President of Maryland Nurses Association and candidate for the Maryland House of Delegates 37th district; Dr. Evelyn Holman, superintendent of Wicomico County schools; Mitzi Perdue, author and agribusiness woman; and Dr. Philip Bosserman, professor and chair of SSU's Sociology Department.

Reviewing historical trends of working women, Bosserman remarked that although the importance of women in the workforce has increased markedly, women remain in positions where they have limited decision making ability. Family responsibilities, lower aspirations, socialization and fear of success were cited as influential factors for women as they make career decisions. Holman agreed, adding that role models for women in positions of leadership are lacking. She emphasized that women often have outstanding credentials and experience which qualify them for leadership positions, but they question their "readiness" for such a position. Perdue and Eckardt urged the audience of students, faculty, staff and administrators to be risk-takers. "Don't be afraid to take chances. The three most important things you can do for yourself are prepare, risk and act!"

The Council on Women's Issues is a group of faculty, students, staff and administrators interested in identifying women's issues which impact the implementation of the University's mission. The group works to encourage productive communication about the concerns of women in university life, and to promote research and formal study of these concerns. The Council is making plans for its spring meeting. Those interested in assisting with this project or learning more about the Council are invited to call Lisa Seldomridge at 543-6413, Katrina Grogan at 543-6070, Johanna Laird at 543-6364, Jennifer Berkman at 543-6309, or Priscilla Nichols at 543-6330.

This is a reminder to full-time faculty and administrators to please complete and return the Institutional Goals Inventory (IGI) form to Linda Cashman, director of institutional research, Holloway Hall 135 by December 19.

Nursing Pining Ceremony

The School of Nursing and Health Sciences will hold a Pinning Ceremony on Saturday, December 15, at 1 p.m. in Holloway Hall.

Understanding Pap Smears

by Rosemary Cupp, R.N., B.S., C-ANP

The term PAP smear comes from the name of Dr. George Papanicolaou, a Greek physician, who developed a test to detect the presence of cancerous and precancerous cells on the cervix. Since the 1950s when the PAP smear became a regular part of a woman's gynecological examination, the death rate from cancer of the cervix has declined by almost 70 percent. There are 13,000 new cases of cervical cancer and 8,000 deaths per year in the U.S. related to this disease.

HPV (Human Papilloma Virus) also known as Condyloma Acuminata or the genital wart virus has been proven to be almost always the causative agent for developing precancerous or cancerous changes in cells of the cervix. In the last 20 years there has been a seven fold increase in the HPV epidemic leading some to believe that this will cause a rise in the incidence of cervical cancer. Hence, the critical importance of mass screening through the PAP smear.

PAP smears are done by gently scraping the cells on the outside (ectocervix) and inside of the cervix (endocervical canal). These cells are spread on a glass slide and sprayed with a fixative to keep the cells intact. The cells are then stained and examined under a microscope by a specialist.

There are different classification systems for reporting PAP smear results. Efforts are underway to standardize the terminology for PAP smear results. PAP smears are reported as normal or if there are abnormal findings a description of the findings is given. This can range from detection of minor vaginal infections such as Candida Albicans ("yeast") or trichomonas to more significant and potentially serious cellular changes. These descriptive terms can include atypia, indicating that while there are many normal cells present, there are also cells which have irregular sizes, shapes or which stain in an unusual manner and no discernable cause is noted for these changes. Women with atypia on a PAP report may be requested to return to their health care provider to check for presence of infection and treated, if necessary. The PAP smear is usually repeated in three to four months.

Other terms which may be used to describe cellular changes include Low Grade or High Grade Squamous Intraepithelial Lesions. At this point some of the cells of the cervix are more distorted and more bizarre in appearance. Low grade lesions were previously described as slight dysplasia and/or condylomatous change (HPV infection). High grade lesions include moderate dysplasia, severe dysplasia and carcinoma in situ (CIS). Dysplasia refers to precancerous changes in cells of the cervix and involves varying degrees of thickness of the epithelial tissue covering the cervix. Cancer in situ refers to involvement of the full thickness of the epithelial tissue. Invasive cancer is the result of abnormal cells spreading deeper into the physical structure of the cervix. This extension of abnormal cells can involve nearby tissues and organs.

The goal of PAP smear screening is to detect precancerous changes in the cells of the cervix. Treatment can be initiated before more serious cellular changes develop and possibly progress to cancer.

Women should have PAP smears done on a regular basis when they begin having sexual intercourse, at whatever age. Precancerous changes and evidence of HPV infections are being detected with increasing frequency even in teenagers. Women can reduce their risk for abnormal PAP smears by delaying intercourse until at least the late teens. Cells on the cervix in younger teens are much more vulnerable to a host of sexually transmitted infections which may serve as co-factors in the development of precancerous changes. Those who have never had sexual intercourse should begin having gynecological exams around 18 to 20 years of age.

PAP smears on a yearly basis are strongly encouraged for females with any of the following risk factors: history of previous abnormal PAP smear; history of HPV infection or if a sexual partner has had HPV; history of treatment for sexually transmitted disease such as Chlamydia, Genital Herpes or Gonorrhea; or history of any type of genital cancer.

Also, if you have had sexual intercourse with more than one partner over your lifetime or if your partner has had multiple partners; if you had sexual intercourse with a male whose previous partner had precancerous or cancerous changes noted on PAP smear; if you have a history of sexual contact with a male who has or has had penile cancer; if your mother took DES (dielhylstilhesterol) during pregnancy with you (drug was used between 1940 and 1971); if you smoke; if you use birth control pills; or if your first sexual intercourse or first pregnancy occurred before age 18.

Women who do not have any of these risk factors should contact their health care provider regarding frequency of PAP smears.

It is important to remember that the PAP smear is a screening test. Women who have repeated atypia, or Low Grade or High Grade Squamous Intraepithelial Lesions, are referred to a gynecologist for further studies including colposcopy examination. This involves the use of a microscope to examine the tissue on the surface of the cervix in order to determine the source of the abnormal cells detected in the PAP smear. Small pieces of tissue may be removed (biopsied) and sent to a laboratory for analysis. Results of these tests guide the physician in determining an appropriate treatment plan.

For further information regarding PAP smears please call the Health Center at 543-6262 or consult your personal health provider.

Schultz on Multicultural Kid Lit Issues

Dr. Barbara Townsend Schultz, associate professor of education, recently conducted a course titled "Choosing and Using Multicultural Children's Literature" for the Delaware Teacher's Center.

In-service Delaware teachers took the course in Georgetown for one-fifth of a credit. It covered a variety of books from many cultures with emphasis on the kinds of hands-on activities that could be used in the classroom.

Dance Co. Auditions

The Dance Company will hold open auditions for its spring semester productions on Wednesday, February 6, from 6-7:50 p.m. in the Dance Studio in Maggs Center.

All interested students and adult members of the community are invited to audition. Performance/production credit is available through PHEC-323, Dance Experience.

For further information, please contact Victoria Hutchinson, Dance Company director, at 543-6353.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

There's lots of odds and ends to highlight in the final wrapup of the semester. Congratulations go out to the men's basketball team for winning the Gull Classic Tournament championship last weekend. Coach Ward Lambert's squad downed York (NY) College and Catholic University to win the title. Junior forward Andre Foreman was named the MVP after scoring 50 points and grabbing 24 rebounds in the two games. Sea Gull forward Jamie Gosweiler also earned all-tournament team honors.

The women's team had its three-game winning streak snapped last Saturday in a 78-71 loss to Marymount. Vicki Miller and Jeannie Daly continue to lead the squad with outstanding individual efforts. Miller provides key leadership from her point guard position while Daly is the team's leading scorer and rebounder.

The swim team closed out its season on Wednesday against Coppin State. Among the most consistent performers throughout the season was co-captain Mary Jo Tantalo. The junior had one of her finest outings last week in a meet against Gallaudet as she was involved in four first-place finishes. Tantalo recorded individual firsts in the 50 breaststroke, the 100 breaststroke and the 200 individual medley, then contributed to a team first in the 200 medley relay.

The wrestling team heads into the holiday break with its first win under the belt as the Gulls downed Gallaudet last week. SSU benefitted from five Bison forfeits in the match. The Gulls return to the mats on January 5 in the Hunter College Tournament in New York City.

Kudos extended to field hockey coach Dawn Chamberlin for being selected as South Region Coach-of-the-Year. The fourth-year coach is now a candidate for national honors, scheduled to be announced later this month.

Other award winners announced at the Fall Sports Banquet include the following team MVPs: Michelle Hammond, volleyball; Kathy Ferdensi, women's soccer; Kevin Jackson, men's soccer; Francis Bundukamara, football defense; Joe Darminio, football offense; Vicki Miller, field hockey; Tim Smith, men's cross country; Erin Green, women's cross country; and Krissy Skalstad, cheerleaders.

Five members of the 1990 SSU field hockey squad earned All-America and All-South Region honors. Pictured clockwise from top are: Cheryl Ish, first-team AA; Vicki Miller, first-team AA; Kristen Guttilla, second-team All-South Region; Tracy Wolfe, second-team All-South Region; and Vicki Conklin, second-team AA.

Sports Medicine Clinic

Registration is now being accepted for the SSU Sports Medicine and Coaching Clinic on Saturday, January 19. The one-day workshop, held on campus, is geared for athletic trainers, coaches, physical educators and other allied health personnel. The event begins at 8:30 a.m., with the formal schedule slated to conclude at 3:30 p.m.

The clinic's primary purpose is to introduce new ideas in prevention, care and rehabilitation of various athletic injuries as well as ideas in coaching techniques. Sports medicine topics to be addressed include shoulder injury and care, head and face injuries, abdominal injuries, and lower leg injuries, in addition to an optional taping clinic.

The coaching clinic will include presentations on baseball conditioning, lacrosse techniques, football techniques, practice organization and motivation of athletes. Complimentary tickets to the SSU men's and women's basketball games Saturday evening will also be provided.

The registration fee of $20 may be sent by mail in advance, or made payable at the door on the day of the event. A complimentary lunch buffet is included for those who preregister. For further information and a registration brochure, please contact Pat Lamboni or Tiffany Lebengood of the SSU training staff at 543-6355.

Lutz Gives Workshop for Famed Gardens

Leslie F. Lutz Jr., SSU director of horticulture, recently conducted a workshop for the New York Botanical Gardens national fall symposium.

This forum was held cooperatively with the National Wildlife Federation and the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University.

Lutz taught a one-day session on the successful cultivation of perennials (flowers and plants which reblossom each year) at the National Wildlife Federations's Laurel Ridge Conservation Center in Vienna, VA.

His workshop was designed for gardeners who may have 10-20 kinds of perennials blooming and who need practical gardening information.

Lutz, who has advised local civic groups on area beautification, formerly worked at the famed Longwood Gardens and the New York Botanical Gardens.

During his tenure the SSU campus has been recognized as an arboretum site for its outstanding collection of rare outdoor plants.

Laws Family Documents Donated to Research Center

Margaret Laws Engel and her brother, Victor Laws, of Salisbury, recently donated artifacts belonging to the Laws' family to the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture located at Salisbury State University.

he large collection contains letters, photographs and military documents from America's rise to an imperialist nation around the turn of the century. The documents consist of infantry drill regulations, official military reports, commissary papers, recruitment papers, hospital records and other papers relating to service in the Spanish-American War and the Philippines.

The extensive records follow the military service of Capt. Albert Laws who graduated from West Point on June 12, 1893. Laws served as a major of the 35th U.S. Volunteers and a captain in the 24th U.S. Infantry while taking part in the Spanish-American War.

He was wounded at the Battle of San Juan Hill and recieved a promotion "For distinguished conduct and public service in the presence of the enemy." After the United States acquired the Philippines from Spain, Laws was ordered to travel there as part of the occupying force. While there he found himself fighting "yellow fever" as well as insurgents.

The collection contains historical information which may provide researchers with a better understanding of this extremely nationalistic period in American history.

Capt. Laws died shortly after his return to the United States at the age of 39 on April 3, 1908. On his tombstone the following inscription pays tribute to his devotion to country: "My country may it always be right, but right or wrong my country."

Co-directors for the Delmarva Research Center for History and Culture are Sylvia Bradley and Dr. G. Ray Thompson. The Research Center is located in Holloway Hall, room 270, and is open to the public from 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Friday when the University is in session.

Montreal Ski Trip

Again this year the Outdoor Club is sponsoring a winter term trip to Shawbridge, Quebec, for nine days of cross-country and downhill skiing. Trip dates are January 22 - February 1.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill University Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauveur, Mont Ste. Anne, Stoneham and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience is strongly recommended for downhill skiers, but is not necessary for cross-country skiers. The trip includes sightseeing in old Montreal and a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec, with opportunities for both sight-seeing and skiing.

Cost, including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner while in Canada, is approximately $230. This does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($3 Canadian per day at the McGill house), rental fees for downhill skis or lift tickets (about $25-$30 Canadian per day or lower with student discount). Downhill skis may be rented in Salisbury for the entire trip or by the day at the slopes in Canada.

There is a short club meeting on Thursday, December 13, at 6 p.m. outside Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. This is the last chance to pay the non-refundable deposit of $50. If you can not attend this meeting and are interested in the trip, call Dr. Bill Horne at 548-7990 as soon as possible.

Khazeh Presents Paper

Dr. Khashayar Khazeh, assistant professor of finance, recently presented a paper at the 21st annual meeting of the Decision Sciences Institute in San Diego, CA.

The paper, "Consumers' Bank Selection Decisions," was co-authored by Dr. Wayne H. Decker, associate professor of management at SSU.

Findings were that bank failures were not blamed on deregulation. Men more than women agreed that failures were due to shortcomings of bank personnel (mismanagement and fraud). Respondents were not anxious to change banks when theirs changed ownership, nor choose their banks' investments, but they did desire to know how their deposits were invested.

There was interest in home banking, particularly among men. Charges and dividends, along with reputation, were among the top ranked determinant attributes (rated importance times perceived variation among banks) with friendly tellers being more important to women.

Advertising effectiveness and direct deposit services were among the attributes rated lowest. Besides striving for a competitive edge in the areas found to be important determinant attributes, banks may gain customers by competing on dimensions ranked high in importance, but not particularly high as determinant attributes due to little perceived variation among banks, as for example, interest paid and hours of operation.

VA Benefits

Students currently receiving Veterans Administration benefits who plan to attend winter term classes should stop by the Office of Veterans Affairs to apply for benefits. Also, those wishing to receive an advance payment for the spring semester should come into the office to begin their paperwork.

It is the responsibility of the students to come into the Veterans Office at the beginning of each semester. This is to confirm enrollment and update records as needed.

Students may stop in the office Monday-Friday from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. The office is located in the annex building directly behind Maggs Gym. For more information, please call 543-6189.

Sunday Brunch

The Gull's Nest will hold its final brunch of the fall semester on Sunday, December 16, from 11 a.m.-2 p.m., the same date as Commencement ceremonies.

Brunch on the Hill will return during winter and spring terms to its regular biweekly schedule with the exception of spring and Easter breaks.

Brunch on the Hill is the Gull's Nest's award-winning co-operative venture between the Gull's Nest and catering staffs, and was designed to promote better community awareness of SSU and its offerings. The brunch is open to faculty, staff, and students and their guests.

Reservations are strongly advised for the Commencement brunch and can be made by calling 543-6103 or 543-6105.

Future dates for Brunch on the Hill are January 13 and 27, February 17, March 3 and 17, April 14 and 28, and May 12.

Prices are $6.95 for adults and $3.95 for children for the all-you-can-eat event. The menu features carved steamship round of beef, whole tom turkey, an omelet bar with both regular and low-cholesterol eggs, salad bar, Belgian waffle bar, broccoli spears with chef's cheese sauce, bacon, scrambled eggs, sausage links, biscuits and gravy, hash browns, French toast, assorted pastries, breads and muffins, and a full assortment of dessert items.

Financial Aid Forms

Students can pick up the Financial Aid Form for the 1991-92 academic year from the Financial Aid Office immediately. Forms should be filed as soon after January 1 as possible. The analysis from the form should be received by the Financial Aid Office by March 1 for priority funding, as well as the SSU Financial Aid Application.

Any student who is interested in applying for financial aid, including the Stafford Student Loan, must have these forms on file before processing can begin.

Tennis Center Closed for Winter Term

The indoor Tennis Center will be closed during winter term. During winter term heaters will be installed in the building. The courts will reopen for spring semester.

Math Major Contestants

Five mathematics majors competed this year in the 51st William Lowell Putnam Mathematical Competition. Kelly-lyn Anderson of Centreville, MD, Robert Henkel of Berlin, MD, Joseph (Joey) Pepper of Delmar, Robert Simms of Salisbury and Leanne Wells of Pittsville, MD, took the six-hour test on Saturday, December 1. The test is given to select undergraduates across the United States and Canada.

The test is notorious for its difficulty, and those who successfully solve some of the problems are virtually guaranteed admission to a first-rate graduate program in mathematics. The results of the test will be announced by the Putnam Examination Committee early in spring 1991.

Students at MMA

Six students participated recently in two regional functions of the Mathematical Association of America (MAA).

Chris Tellier, Robert Simms and Leanne Wells accompanied Dr. Kathleen Shannon, assistant professor of mathematics in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, to the opening reception for the exhibit "Mathematics in Stone and Bronze" at the MAA headquarters in Washington, D.C. Joey Pepper, Bob Henkel and Kelly-lyn Anderson attended the fall sectional meeting of the Maryland, Washington, D.C. and Virginia section of the MAA with Drs. Horner Austin, Ben Fusaro, Mohammad Moazzam, Shannon and Robert Tardiff.

SSU, UMES Offer Dual Degree In Environmental Sciences

Encouraged by previous success, another joint effort between Salisbury State and University of Maryland Eastern Shore began this year. Two years after the Salisbury and Princess Anne Schools successfully joined forces to offer a dual degree program in sociology and social work, a second dual degree program is being offered.

The fall semester saw six Salisbury students participating in the newly created environmental science/biology program offered by the two schools. An additional 11 students have signed on for the spring semester. Dr. Tom Jones, chair of the Biological Sciences Department and SSU coordinator, reports that 60 students have applied for admission to the program.

According to Jones, it was two summers ago when the presidents and vice presidents of the two universities, the chairs of the science departments and others sat down to work on putting together the dual degree program. It was agreed that the new program would be patterned after the social work/sociology program begun two years before. The difference, Jones said, is that under the first program, UMES students benefit the most because that school does not have a social work degree.

Under the environmental sciences/biology dual degree program, however, SSU students benefit because UMES is the only institution in the University of Maryland System allowed to offer an undergraduate degree in environmental sciences.

Jones believes the new offering will be a tremendous benefit for biology majors at SSU. Under the plan, students take only four additional credits above the 120 normally required for one B.S. degree, and they earn two bachelor's degrees—a Bachelor of Science in biology from SSU and a Bachelor of Science in environmental sciences/marine biology from UMES.

SSU students are required to take at least 30 credit hours at UMES, primarily in their junior and senior years.

"One of the advantages of a dual degree is if a student wants to get a job right out of college, having (just) a general biology degree does not automatically open doors," said Jones.

Whereas, having a biology degree along with an environmental science degree makes a recent college graduate much more attractive to potential employers, he said. SSU students also benefit from the reputation UMES has in the field, said Dr. Gian Gupta, a professor of environmental science and chemistry at UMES. The program has been in place 12 years and has graduated 25 students.

Morgan State Choir Kicks Off African-American History Month

The Morgan State University Choir, an academic chorus with an international reputation, inaugurates African-American History Month Celebrations at the University. The month-long activities will include lectures, dance, art, film and music, to which the public is invited.

On Saturday, Februray 9, the Morgan State Choir will give a free concert in Holloway Hall Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Led by Dr. Nathan Carter, the 65-member choir has a distinguished history. It has toured both the United States and Europe, recording with the London Symphony and Helsinki Philharmonic Orchestras. It also has sung with the Baltimore Symphony and New York Philharmonic.

"The choir has become a traditional part of African-American History Celebrations at SSU. And the positive response of the campus and local community has encouraged the Office of Minority Affairs to bring the choir to the Salisbury metropolitan area once again," said Vaughn White, program coordinator.

On Wednesday, February 13, a keynote lecture will be given by Roger Wilkins, the Robinson Professor of History and American Culture at George Mason University. His lecture topic is "Issues Facing the Black Community for the Year 2000." His talk will be held at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center, off Dogwood Drive.

Additional events scheduled for the month include local artist Patrick Henry's oil painting exhibit shown daily in the Atrium Gallery of the University Center, February 6-February 26 from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

The Soul in Motion Dance Company will be performing on Friday, February 15, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

The Union of African-American Students will hold it's annual Valentine's Dance on Saturday, February 16, from 9 p.m.-1 a.m., in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

Reginald McKnight, novelist and author of "I Get on the Bus" will present readings at 8 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri Center on Monday, February 18.

The annual African-American History Month Dinner will be held at the Ruth Powell Dining Hall on Wednesday, February 20, starting at 4:30 p.m. For ticket information, please call (301) 543-6105.

Persian Gulf Advising Committee Established For Campus

A Persian Gulf Advising Committee composed of faculty, staff and students has been formed. The group will meet weekly and share concerns regarding the war voiced by various segments of the campus community.

Anyone who has a concern or question related to the Persian Gulf War as it relates to the University contact any of the committee members listed below: Dr. Phillip C. Bosserman, sociology, 742-4945 (H) 543-6430 (W); Robert Carr, student, 289-2187; David B. Ganoe, Guerrieri University Center, 742-0278 (H) 543-6100 (W); Dr. Stephen Gehnrich, biology, 543-6423 (W); Susan Hardman, military science, 543-6296 (W) (302) 629-3749; Brian Holmes, student, 546-4369 (W); Gains Hawkins, public relations, 546-5357 (H) 543-6030 (W); Kerrie A. Jones, student, 376-3798 (H); Barry King, Dean of Students, 546-3835 (H) 543-6080 (W); Lynn Maguire, student, 860-0898 (H) 548-4757 (W); Robert McBrien, Center for Personal and Professional Development, 543-6070 (W); Jim Phillips, public safety, 543-6222(W); Donald Whaley, history, 742-9046 (H) 543-6264 (H); Elaine Patterson, Dean of Students, 742-4954 (H) 543-6080 (W); Maryanne Southard, Dean of Students, 749-0123 (H) 543-6080 (W), David Kelser, student, 543-6189; and Elizabeth Rettew, nursing, 742-0752 (H) 543-6404 (W).

Code of Conduct, Judicial System Guide, Sexual Harassment Policy

In order to better provide students with information on expectations for responsible citizenship and procedures for judicial proceedings, a written Student Code of Conduct is published along with a Judicial System Guide.

Topics included in the Code of Conduct include academic and computer dishonesty, theft, possession, storage and use of firearms, drug and alcohol use, misuse of University property, false information, assault and verbal harassment, violence and extremism, disruptive behavior, sexual harassment and hazing.

The Judicial System Guide explains disciplinary proceedings in residence halls and campus-wide, the function of student advocates, procedural and due process, sanctions and appeals.

The University Sexual Harassment Policy describes informal and formal procedures for handling complaints.

Copies of all three brochures were mailed to every student the week of August 20. Students who did not receive their copies (or misplaced them), please stop by the Dean of Students Office, University Center, room 212.

Education Rights And Privacy Act

The University will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information without prior consent of the student.

Directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information.

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please promptly notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, room 212, University Center.

Student Insurance Plans

University students, spouses and/or their dependents now have an opportunity to explore two flexible and convenient insurance plans, The Sentry Student Security Plan and the ABCO 100 Plan. Please stop by the Health Center for information and applications.

CLEP Test

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, March 20. The deadline for registration is Wednesday, February 20. Applications are available in the Admissions Office, Holloway Hall, room 155.

Missing Videotape

A videotape titled "What You Are Now is Where You Were When" was delivered to the SSU library by mistake in December and, according to a librarian, placed into inter-departmental mail to go back to the Nursing Department.

This tape has never been received by the Nursing Department and the Post Office is unable to locate it. If you have any knowledge regarding the location of this tape, please contact Dr. Edna Quinn, 543-36420.

I.D. Office Hours

The University's I.D. Office hours for the spring semester are Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m.

If these hours are inconvenient, please call Cheryl Morris at 543-6053 to schedule an appointment.

Spring Music Courses

Courses in the Music Department's vocal/choral program include Concert Choir (MUSA 100-001). Rehearsals are on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30-5 p.m. at the Power Professional Building, music rehearsal room, 190, with Dr. Duane R. Karna, conductor (one hour credit).

This spring students will study American choral music and choral music of Mozart in celebration of the 200th anniversary of his death.

Class Voice II (MUSA 208-001) meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2-3 p.m. in the Musical Arts Center, room 102. Katherine Turner Barlow is the instructor.

The course is an introduction to vocal techniques and development of skill in singing through proper voice placement, breathing, tone production and diction. It is recommended for the general student as well as students who are interested in musical theatre and communication arts. Class Voice I and II includes and introduction to art song literature and musical theater repertoire (two hours credit, two hours per week).

Private Voice Lessons (MUSA 390-005) are one-half hour private voice lessons. Contact Karna or Barlow for further information (Department of Music 543-6385).

Management Seminar

"Management Excellence Through 'Quality'" is the title of an exclusive one-day seminar sponsored by the Perdue Center for Professional Development and Tom Barry Associates, Inc. The seminar will be held on Friday, February 15, from 8 a.m.- 4:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center.

This one-day course will give executives, managers and business owners an overview of the techniques required to implement total "quality" management in organizational environments.

The seminar leader, Dr. Thomas J. Barry, is president of Tom Barry Associates, Inc., and was previously with the President's Commission on Executive Exchange as the executive assistant to the associate director for management in the Office of Management and Budgets. He served as the full-time consultant in the federal government's efforts to create a Federal Quality Institute which will have the responsibility of training approximately 4,000 senior executive service employees in the federal government.

Prior to his White House assignment, he founded and served as the director of the IBM Quality Institute where he was responsible for developing the instructional material used to teach the practical application of white-collar quality to IBM executives and key government officials in eight Asian countries.

Barry is an adjunct professor at numerous universities in the field of management, organizational behavior and industrial psychology. He is a published author of several articles worldwide and has recently published a book, "Quality Circles: Proceed with Caution," for the American Society for Quality Control.

The registration fee is $95 per person. Early bird registration is $80 if paid by February 1. The final deadline for reservations is February 8. Fee includes continental breakfast, refreshment break, lunch and course materials.

For additional information contact the Perdue Center for Professional Development at 543-6394.

Seminar Turns Ideas Into Business Reality

A free seminar designed to guide an individual in analyzing the prospects of turning an idea into a business reality will be conducted by the Eastern Shore Regional Small Business Development Center, which is housed in the Perdue School of Business, in conjunction with C.W. Amos and Company, the Worcester County Department of Economic and Employment Development and First National Bank of Maryland.

Titled, "Analysis and Start Up," the seminar will provide the basic understanding of what is needed for a new business to function effectively. The program will be held on Thursday, February 7, from 5-8 p.m. at the Department of Economic and Employment Development located at 105 Pearl Street in Snow Hill.

For registration and information, please call (301) 546-4325.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

Calcott Scholarship

Applications are now being accepted for the Doris Gay Calcott Memorial Scholarship, offered by the Salisbury branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,000 scholarship was named in memory of the long-time Salisbury civic leader. Full-time junior or senior women attending Salisbury State who are residents of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and show financial need may qualify.

Applications may be obtained from the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, 212. The deadline is March 8.

Mrs. Calcott, who died in 1985, was president of the Salisbury branch of AAUW when it began its scholarship program 20 years ago. A vigorous supporter of the AAUW, she spearheaded its scholarship fund-raising drives, brought the American Field Service exchange student program to Salisbury, started the first senior Girl Scout troop here and was active in the United Way.

For many years, Mrs. Calcott was a writer for The Daily Times.

Faculty/Staff Wellness Program

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program will resume on Monday, February 11.

As in the past the Nautilus room will be staffed for exclusive use by faculty and staff Monday-Friday, from 5-6 p.m. Aerobic dance will be offered on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday from 5-6:15 p.m. in the Maggs Dance Studio. The only requirement for participating in the Wellness Program is completion of a registration form and a physician consent form.

For forms or further information contact Bob Cross at 543-6340.

Aerobic Exercise Class at PGHMC

Take the next "Step" toward ultimate cardiovascular training and muscle conditioning. A new wave in aerobic exercise is "Step Reebok," combining the high intensity of stair climbing with the impact and safety of walking.

Classes begin on Monday, February 18, and are held Monday and Wednesday, 6:30-7:30 a.m.; Monday and Wednesday, 4:30-5:30 p.m.; and Tuesday and Thursday, 5-6 p.m.

The Step classes are taught at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center by qualified, certified (International Dance and Exercise Association) exercise instructors, Dawn Steen and Linda Mills.

For more information about Step classes at PGHMC, please call 543-7029.

There is a special discount to SSU students: six week fee of $34, I.D. required upon registration.

Book Rack Hours

The Book Rack has announced extended hours for the spring semester: Friday, February 1, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.; Saturday, February 2, 11 a.m.-5 p.m.; and Sunday, February 3, noon-6 p.m.

Beginning Monday, February 4, the Book Rack will be open its regular hours for the spring semester: Monday-Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. and Friday, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.

If paying by personal check during the first two weeks of the semester, please make sure you have it approved prior to coming to the checkout. The Book Rack also accepts VISA and MasterCard with proper identification.

U.S. Army Jazz Ambassadors

Jazz Ambassadors Present February 14 Concert

The Jazz Ambassadors of the world-travelled U.S. Army Field Band will present a free concert on Thursday, February 14, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall. Sponsors are the Salisbury Daily Times, Salisbury State and the University's ROTC detachment.

The Jazz Ambassadors from Washington, D.C. is a select group of military musicians who use their talents to bring the Army image to the American public.

Created in 1969, the Jazz Ambassadors is a component of the United States Army Field Band. Each year this elite big band travels thousands of miles throughout the nation to perform free concerts.

The musicians of the Jazz Ambassadors have earned widespread acclaim with their distinctive musical styling. They show remarkable versatility in their handling of tunes ranging from the swing sounds of the '30s to the popular songs of today's youth.

Many of these performers also are adept composers and arrangers. Their original compositions are sprinkled throughout each program. This arranging dexterity helps to give the band its unique sound.

All the members of the Jazz Ambassadors are chosen by competitive audition. They come from the country's leading universities such as North Texas State, California at Berkley, Towson State and Miami. These performers have achieved national recognition through the superior standard of musicianship they maintain during hundreds of concerts before the public and on radio and television.

Audiences and critics alike have praised this organization as one of the finest performing groups in America. The Jazz Ambassadors present the music of yesterday and today in a program that young and old alike will enjoy.

Free tickets are available, beginning Thursday, January 31, at the Salisbury Daily Times, the Army Recruiter in the Twilley Center, Salisbury, and the SSU University Center information desk.

For additional information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Priscilla "Pat" Black

Pat Black Retires From University

Priscilla "Pat" Black, former supervisor II for University Dining Services, recently retired after 25 years of service with the University. She became affiliated with SSU in September 1966 as a contractual cook in the Snack Bar.

In 1970, Black was accepted as a state employee with the Dining Services Office. She began her career as a dietary worker doing everything from preparing and serving foods and washing dishes to mopping floors. Over the years she progressed to cook and then to her supervisory position.

Black comes from a long line of SSU employees. Her father-in-law, David Black, worked on the construction of Holloway Hall, and upon completion of the building was hired as the first engineer for the school. Black's husband, Walter W. Black, inherited his father's job as engineer and worked until his retirement 25 years later in the early 70's. Her mother-in-law worked here as a cook and her sister-in-law, Eva Bailey, retired from SSU as a cook as well.

Black looks upon her retirement as "another challenge." She is looking forward to taking some history courses, traveling and working around her home in Fruitland.

SWAC Grant Recipients

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council made project grant awards totalling $17,700 to local arts organizations to aid in the financing of cultural programs for the community.

Alumnus Named Teacher of Year

Former University student Geraldine Carrier of Hurlock has been named Conservation Teacher of the Year by the Dorchester Soil Conservation District. She teaches science at the North Dorchester Middle School.

Carrier, who has been teaching for the past 16 years, earned her Bachelor of Science in elementary education from SSU in 1975 and her Master of Education from SSU in 1981.

During her career, she has taught several grades in almost every subject. For the last five years, she has been teaching science.

Carrier has encouraged students to be actively involved with conservation projects at North Dorchester Middle School. These projects have involved special conservation-oriented clubs, Earth Day projects and an outdoor classroom area. She also led the school reforestation project which was sponsored by the Dorchester Forestry Board.

She resides in Hurlock with her husband, Dale, and is serving her second year as president of the Dorchester Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The Book Rack's winter buy back is beginning Wednesday, February 13, through Friday, February 15. If you missed out on the December buy back, here's a chance to clean off your bookshelf and get money for this semester's books. The hours for the buy back are Wednesday and Thursday, 9 a.m.-6 p.m., and Friday, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Please be aware that the buy back hours will be adhered to strictly.

Office Secretary

The University has an opening for a full-time secretary in the Environmental Safety Office. This person will provide secretarial support to the environmental safety manager and various members of the Public Safety Office staff.

Applicants must possess a high school diploma or its equivalent, have two years experience as a secretary and be able to type 40 WPM. The successful candidate will be the one whose background reflects strong interpersonal skills, is able to work under pressure and deadlines, and is competent in d-Base II plus, Lotus 1,2,3 and WordPerfect.

This is a full-time contractual position (no paid benefits) that pays $7.50 an hour. Qualified individuals may apply by submitting a resume and completing and application in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University by February 11.

Part-time Secretary

The University has an opening for a part-time secretary. The position is contractual (no paid benefits), 20-25 hours weekly and $7 an hour. It requires skilled typing and experience with WordPerfect; Lotus 1,2,3 is a must. The applicant must be able to perform responsibilities with minimal supervision in the Affirmative Action/Institutional Research Office.

Qualified individuals may apply by submitting a resume and completing an application in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University by February 8.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

DeSormeau Joins Chef's Association

Jon DeSormeau, an executive chef at the University, has joined the Delmarva Chefs' Association, a chapter of the American Culinary Federation. He earned his associates degree in applied sciences from the Culinary Institute of America at Hyde Park, NY, in 1979.

DeSormeau worked for several years as food production manager on the opening team for Marriott Hotels, Inc. Among the hotels he opened were the Marriott Hotel in Bethesda, MD; Crystal Gateway Hotel in Crystal City, VA; Harbor Beach Marriott in Fort Lauderdale, FL; and J.W. Marriott Hotel in Washington, D.C., the flagship hotel of the company, where he was promoted to sous chef (assistant chef).

The Delmarva Chefs' Association is a professional organization of 30 or more food service representatives from all aspects of the food industry. Chefs, cooks, bakers and purveyors all work together to help each other grow personally, professionally and educationally.

Through their membership with the American Culinary Federation, many chefs achieve the highest rank of certified master chef and gain recognition through the American Academy of Chefs.

Regular members include persons who are in or who have held supervisory positions for one year in a hotel, club, institution, full meal or gourmet restaurant. The organization also accepts junior members who are entering, are in, or who are actively seeking food service as a career through education or one of the above mentioned areas.

"I admire the Delmarva Chefs Association because it maintains professional standards within the organization," said DeSormeau. "I also like the fact that they participate in community events and have established a scholarship fund," he continued.

"For example, this month I worked with area chefs on the Chefs Year of the Child Dinner. We volunteered our time, resources, experience and expertise and put together a dinner. Ticket sales have been donated to the creation of a video describing the plight of homeless children in Washington, D.C. in order to increase public awareness of the rapidly growing problem," said DeSormeau.

"I like the environment here at Salisbury State. The priority is the students—serving them and making sure they get the best and most for their money," he said. "What I like most about my job is that every day the menu changes. I'm not tied down to one menu so I don't get bored. It is an innovative and challenging position."

Originally from Albany, NY, DeSormeau resides in Salisbury with his wife, Ann, and their three children, Jonelle, 8; Ashley, 6; and Jon Jr., 4.

CPPD Personnel Changes

Joseph Andrade III was designated assistant director for the Center for Personal and Professional Development during the fall semester. Andrade is in his third year with CPPD and in addition to his counseling activities will now be assisting Dr. Robert McBrien with the management, planning, coordinating and evaluating of CPPD operations.

Patti Selig joins the CPPD staff in a part-time counselor position while Kathryn Reading is on maternity leave. Selig has her master's degree from Salisbury State and most recently was director of counseling at Wor-Wic Tech. Kathy and Rob Reading welcomed their 7 lb., 1 oz. daughter, Ann Montgomery, into the world on January 5.

Tom Jones (left) of SSU and Dr. Gian Gupta of UMES are seen next to a liquid scintillation counter for measuring radio-activity. The two schools have joined forces to offer a dual degree in environmental science and biology.

Most of our students who we graduate in environmental sciences have had very good job offers," said Gupta, "as compared to those with just biology degrees."

Gupta notes a new $5 million building is under construction to house the new environmental science program. The new facility when completed will be installed with $1 million worth of new equipment.

Because UMES is a research oriented school, Gupta said, "Its students, and now SSU students, benefit from working with people completing master's and doctorate level work. Students also are able to participate in a variety of on-going research projects, including studies on air and water pollution."

Another plus is that the environmental science field has experienced a boom over the past several years as both government and private industry make a renewed committment to the environment.

"There are certainly a lot of job openings," Jones said. "Especially in coastal states."

The largest employer of environmental science graduates is government. Jones said that all municipalities need environmental specialists to help run sewage treatment systems or monitor health concerns. Private industry like chemical companies or chicken processors also hire a large number of environmental scientists.

Another big growth area is in the field of private consulting work, Jones said, which is ever growing because of increased governmental regulations dealing with the environment.

The cooperating universities have worked hard to coordinate their programs for the dual degree programs. For example, because of scheduling differences (UMES began its spring semester January 9, while SSU does not begin until February 4), shuttle bus service will be used to transport students.

On February 21, Peter Pippin, ethnomusicologist of the Smithsonian Institute will give a lecture demonstration titled, "African Instruments, Patterns and Rhythms," about the variety of African instruments and their use in traditional and modern African music and dance.

The African-American History Month Film Series will include the following films: "James Baldwin: The Price of the Ticket," "The Road to Brown," "Ethnic Notions," "Wild Women Don't Have the Blues" and "We Shall Overcome." Dates and times for the film series will be forthcoming.

For additional information concerning activities scheduled for African-American History Month, please call White at the Office of Minority Affairs at 548-4503.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

"Unsung Hero" Award of Wicomico Rotary Club Initiated

Entries are now being sought for the first annual "Unsung Hero" award presented by the Rotary Club of Wicomico County to a local resident who has made a valuable contribution toward a local environmental cause and has not received public recognition for his or her efforts.

The object of Rotary, an international organization with over a million members worldwide, is to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise.

Individuals entered for consideration for the Wicomico Rotary Club's "Unsung Hero" award must have made their societal contribution without financial reward, must be residents of Wicomico County, cannot be a Rotarian or a member of a Rotarian's immediate family and must meet the credo of the Rotary's "Four Way-Test": is it the truth?; is it fair to all concerned?; will it build goodwill and better friendships?; and will it be beneficial to all concerned?

Entries will be reviewed by the Unsung Hero Committee of the Wicomico Rotary Club which will make the selection of this year's winner, to be announced at the club's regular weekly meeting at noon on Tuesday, February 26, at the Salisbury Sheraton Inn.

The award winner will receive $1,000 to be donated to the charity or non-profit organization of his or her choice.

While this year's award will go to someone who has made a significant contribution to Wicomico County in the area of the "environment," awards in subsequent years will acknowledge the efforts of individuals in other categories such as aiding youth, senior citizens or the handicapped, improving race relations, impacting poverty stricken families and upgrading the educational system. Each year the president of the club will choose the category.

This year's president is Gains Hawkins. His theme for programs at club meetings this year is "Environmental Concerns in the '90s; When Progress and Protection Collide."

The Rotary Club of Wicomico County was founded in October 1988. It has grown from a charter membership of 28 members to its current contingent of 72 business people and professionals.

To submit an entry for the "Unsung Hero" award, fill out an entry form and forward it to "Unsung Hero," P.O. Box 3621, Salisbury, MD, 21801. For entry forms call Hawkins at 543-6030 between 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Deadline for entries is Friday, February 8.

The "Unsung Hero" award is presented annually by the Rotary Club of Wicomico County to an individual who has made a valuable contribution to Wicomico County without receiving public recognition and without receiving any type of compensation for his or her efforts. In 1991 an individual will be recognized for his or her efforts in making a beneficial contribution to the county's environment. Categories will change in subsequent years as selected by that year's club president. Each year's award winner will receive $1,000 to be donated to the charity or non-profit organization of his or her choice.

Nominees cannot be Rotarians or members of a Rotarian's immediate family.

Deadline for entries is Friday, February 8. The award will be announced on Tuesday, February 26, at noon at the Salisbury Sheraton Inn.

Send entry forms and any supporting documents to "Unsung Hero," P.O. Box 3621, Salisbury, MD, 21801.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

Both Sea Gull basketball teams boast winning records entering the final weeks of the season. Coach Ward Lambert's men were 12-6 overall and 4-3 in the conference entering Wednesday night's game with Shenandoah, while the SSU women were 9-8 overall and 3-2 in conference heading into Wednesday's contest.

Junior forward Andre Foreman continues to be the catalyst for the men's team, averaging 31.2 ppg and 12.5 rebounds. Foreman is currently second in the nation in scoring, and has been named the E.C.A.C. Player of the Week each of the last two weeks. His 1,838 career points are second best all-time at SSU, and a strong showing over the next few weeks could move him past Juan Gabourel (2,064 pts) into the top spot by season's end.

Other Sea Gulls enjoying good seasons include senior guard David Byer, averaging 16.8 ppg and 56 three-point field goals made on the season; and forward Jamie Gosweiler, 11.5 ppg and 6.9 rpg. Byer, who moved past the 1,000 career points mark earlier this season, also set a new school-record with eight three-point FGs made in one game at Allentown in early January.

New records are not being set by just the men's team, however, as women's guard Vicki Miller has etched her name in the record book a couple of times also. Miller set new marks for steals in a game, 12, at Shenandoah on January 16, and steals in a season, currently 97 and counting. Sandy Jankevicius held the previous single-season record of 93, set just one year ago.

Coach Bridget Benshetler's team has won four-straight games entering Wednesday's contest with Shenandoah. Junior forward Jeannie Daly is leading the club in scoring and rebounding, with 15.5 ppg and 9.5 rpg. Jennifer Boone is adding 13.7 points/game, including a career-best 25 points in last week's 80-78 win at Catholic University.

The SSU wrestlers were 4-6 in dual meets entering Wednesday's matches against Newport News Apprentice and Longwood. Despite an 0-3 afternoon for the team last Saturday, Andy Ryan won twice and J.P. Dunn, Marty Lewis, Ron Rossi, Seong Kim and Mike Skinner picked up one win apiece.

Dr. Lynn Margulis

Noted Biologist Visits

What if the earth were really a single living organism? What if all its elements and teeming populations, including man, were parts of a complex being? Like human beings, or other living creatures, could the planet die if it became too diseased?

Dr. Lynn Margulis, a luminary of the science community, visits the University on Friday, February 1, to give a public lecture on this fascinating theory which has captured the imagination of the scientific world.

An acclaimed biologist and educator, and a world-class researcher, Margulis is guest speaker for the Henson School of Science and Technology's "Spring Semester Kickoff." Her presentation, titled "Gaia: the Living Earth From Space," is at 10:30 a.m. in Devilbiss Science Hall, room 149. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

FEBRUARY 7, 1991 VOL. XII NO. 17

Roger Wilkins At SSU Feb. 13

Roger Wilkins, Pulitzer Prize winning journalist, author, and member of one of the founding families of America's civil rights movement, caps African-American History Month celebrations at SSU.

On Wednesday, February 13, at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center, Wilkins delivers a keynote address titled "Issues Facing the Black Community for the Year 2000." Admission is free and the public is cordially invited.

"Throughout his career Wilkins has been on the cutting edge of some of the greatest changes in our history while at the same time moving among the highest echelons of American society," said Vaughn White, SSU director of minority affairs.

Wilkins has worked as a journalist and editorial writer for such leading newspapers as the Washington Star and The New York Times. At The Washington Post he shared a Pulitzer Prize with Robert Woodward, Carl Bernstein and cartoonist Herblock for his Watergate editorials.

Earlier in the 1960s Wilkins was part of a family legacy of civil rights involvement created by his parents and uncle, Roy Wilkins, the late executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Wilkins held several posts in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations including U.S. assistant attorney general, and was an officer at the Ford Foundation.

He has been a news commentator for CBS and the Mutual Broadcasting radio networks. For television he conceived, wrote and narrated two documentaries, "Keeping the Faith" and "Throwaway People," which aired on public television in 1989.

He co-founded the "Free South Africa Movement" and was coordinator of Nelson Mandela's historic visit to the United States.

Today he is a fellow at the Institute for Policy Studies, a Washington think tank, and is Clarence J. Robinson Professor of History and American Culture at George Mason University.

His two most recent books are "A Man's Life" and "Quiet Riots." Wilkins is married to Patricia A. King, a professor of law at Georgetown University; they have three children.

For more information on the Wilkins visit and lecture, contact White at 548-4503.

Technology Council Established at SSU

TECHNOLOGY CHECK Michael S. Lofton, left, deputy director of the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development, presents Richard Palmer, center, the interim director of the new Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council, and President Thomas E. Bellavance, right, with a $120,600 check for the newly formed council.

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced, that a $120,600 grant will be awarded to SSU to establish the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council. The council, with headquarters in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, will serve Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset counties.

Governor Schaefer said that the regional technology council, the fifth to be established through funding by the Department of Economic and Employment Development's (DEED) Office of Technology Development (OTD), will provide an organized forum within which private businesses can work together with educators, local officials and economic development specialists on issues specifically related to technology.

"The new council will promote technology transfer, stimulate growth and development through the use of technology in business and manufacturing operations, and create opportunities for technology export," said the Governor.

DEED Deputy Secretary Michael S. Lofton represented Governor Schaefer at a ceremony held on campus last week where he presented the grant check to president Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance and Dr. Richard Palmer. Palmer, director of the Maryland Small Business Development Center (SBDC) Network's Eastern Shore subcenter, will serve as interim director for the new council.

"By developing a technology council for the Lower Shore, we are investing in our future," said Palmer. "Providing a vehicle for technology transfer and creating a positive atmosphere for growth will help existing businesses and attract the kind of development appropriate to the area."

"The new council will address what I consider to be one of the most serious concerns involving the Eastern Shore's labor pool," said Tom Crawford of Grumman Corporation in Salisbury. "The lack of technically trained personnel has forced us to recruit prospective employees in the engineering field from outside the area. By developing technical training and education programs, the new council will make an invaluable contribution to our region," said Crawford.

The new Lower Shore Regional Technology Council Advisory Board includes Dr. Palmer; Bob Elliott, vice-president of finance for K&L Microwave, Wicomico County; Jeff Baker, manager of Rubberset Company, Somerset County; Peter Pearce, protein manager of Hudson Foods, Somerset County; Warren Rosenthal, director of economic development, Worcester County; Thomas Laidlaw, director of economic development, Somerset County; Bill Cain, special assistant to the superintendent of the Somerset County Board of Education; Dr. Richard Walker, assistant superintendent of instruction, Worcester County Board of Education; John Seipp, an attorney with Adkins, Potts & Smethurst and a member of the Wicomico Board of Education; and Nola Arnold, associate dean of community and continuing education, Wor-Wic Community College.

Members of the council's executive board are Dan Kuennen, director of the Rural Development Center at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore; Richard Bernstein, director of Brandebury Aerostructures, Inc.; Robert Kiley, executive director of Salisbury-Wicomico Economic Development, Inc.; Melvin Shreves, executive director of the Delmarva Advisory Council; Wally Gordon, president of Mid-Atlantic Foods, Inc.; James Hart, manager of Carvel Hall, Inc.; David Collins, personnel manager of Freudenberg Wheaton/Pharmatech; and Odetta Perdue, executive director of the Lower Shore Private Industry Council.

Code of Conduct, Judicial System Guide, Sexual Harassment Policy

In order to better provide students with information on expectations for responsible citizenship and procedures for judicial proceedings, a written Student Code of Conduct is published along with a Judicial System Guide.

Topics included in the Code of Conduct include academic and computer dishonesty, theft, possession, storage and use of firearms, drug and alcohol use, misuse of University property, false information, assault and verbal harassment, violence and extremism, disruptive behavior, sexual harassment and hazing.

The Judicial System Guide explains disciplinary proceedings in residence halls and campuswide, the function of student advocates, procedural and due process, sanctions and appeals.

The University Sexual Harassment Policy describes informal and formal procedures for handling complaints.

Copies of all three brochures were mailed to every student the week of August 20. Students who did not receive their copies (or misplaced them), please stop by the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212.

Education Rights And Privacy Act

The University will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information without prior consent of the student.

Directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information.

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please promptly notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, room 212, Guerrieri University Center.

Student Insurance Plans

University students, spouses and/or their dependents now have an opportunity to explore two flexible and convenient insurance plans, The Sentry Student Security Plan and the ABCO 100 Plan. Please stop by the Health Center for information and applications.

CLEP Test

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, March 20. The deadline for registration is Wednesday, February 20. Applications are available in the Admissions Office, Holloway Hall, room 155.

I.D. Office Hours

The University's I.D. Office hours for the spring semester are Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m.

If these hours are inconvenient, please call Cheryl Morris at 543-6053 to schedule an appointment.

Spring Music Courses

Courses in the Music Department's vocal/choral program include Concert Choir (MUSA 100-001). Rehearsals are on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30-5 p.m. at the Power Professional Building, music rehearsal room, 190, with Dr. Duane R. Karna, conductor (one hour credit).

This spring students will study American choral music and choral music of Mozart in celebration of the 200th anniversary of his death.

Class Voice II (MUSA 208-001) meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2-3 p.m. in the Musical Arts Center, room 102. Katherine Turner Barlow is the instructor.

The course is an introduction to vocal techniques and development of skill in singing through proper voice placement, breathing, tone production and diction. It is recommended for the general student as well as students who are interested in musical theatre and communication arts. Class Voice I and II includes and introduction to art song literature and musical theater repertoire (two hours credit, two hours per week).

Private Voice Lessons (MUSA 390-005) are one-half hour private voice lessons. Contact Karna or Barlow for further information (Department of Music 543-6385).

Management Seminar

"Management Excellence Through 'Quality'" is the title of an exclusive one-day seminar sponsored by the Perdue Center for Professional Development and Tom Barry Associates, Inc. The seminar will be held on Friday, February 15, from 8 a.m.- 4:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center.

This one-day course will give executives, managers and business owners an overview of the techniques required to implement total "quality" management in organizational environments.

The registration fee is $95 per person. The final deadline for reservations is February 8. Fee includes continental breakfast, refreshment break, lunch and course materials.

For additional information contact the Perdue Center for Professional Development at 543-6394.

Seminar Turns Ideas Into Business Reality

A free seminar designed to guide an individual in analyzing the prospects of turning an idea into a business reality will be conducted by the Eastern Shore Regional Small Business Development Center, which is housed in the Perdue School of Business, in conjunction with C.W. Amos and Company, the Worcester County Department of Economic and Employment Development and First National Bank of Maryland.

Titled, "Analysis and Start Up," the seminar will provide the basic understanding of what is needed for a new business to function effectively. The program will be held on Thursday, February 7, from 5-8 p.m. at the Department of Economic and Employment Development located at 105 Pearl Street in Snow Hill.

For registration and information, please call (301) 546-4325.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

Calcott Scholarship

Applications are now being accepted for the Doris Gay Calcott Memorial Scholarship, offered by the Salisbury branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,000 scholarship was named in memory of the long-time Salisbury civic leader. Full-time junior or senior women attending Salisbury State who are residents of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and show financial need may qualify.

Applications may be obtained from the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, 212. The deadline is March 8.

Mrs. Calcott, who died in 1985, was president of the Salisbury branch of AAUW when it began its scholarship program 20 years ago. A vigorous supporter of the AAUW, she spearheaded its scholarship fund-raising drives, brought the American Field Service exchange student program to Salisbury, started the first senior Girl Scout troop here and was active in the United Way.

For many years, Mrs. Calcott was a writer for The Daily Times.

Campus Safety Tips From Towson

Walking from Linthicum Hall to a car in one of Towson State's parking garages, a lone female student is attacked by a mugger. She becomes another Maryland State Police statistic. Betty Johnson, stated that on the average, five women were attacked and/or raped each day of 1990 in Maryland. This article is intended to keep another Towson (and Salisbury) State student from becoming part of these terrifying statistics.

"My interest in martial arts and may concern for other female students at Towson State made me suggest a course for the women at TSU designed to help them in an assault situation. In suggesting this action, I went to my Karate instructor," said Jane Gervasoni.

"Sensei" (master) has been a Karate instructor for six years and has himself taught several courses in women's self-defense. "The basis of any self-defense course should involve becoming conscious of yourself and your surroundings," he told Gervasoni. "Use your environment to your advantage by being alert."

Most assault situations occur to single females when they are alone after dark, according to state police records. Take some basic precautions, Gervasoni suggests. "Don't go anywhere after dark alone! There is safety in numbers (How often have you heard that statement?)". If you must go out alone, do some basic preparation:

–Know the territory.
–Carry your keys in your hand as a possible weapon.
–Avoid carrying bags, purses, or other items which might hinder your escape.
–Wear clothes and shoes that allow you to move easily.
–Be aware of people and things around you.

Anything you carry or any part of your surrounding can be used as a defense if you are aware enough to use it. Key chains are deadly when scraped across the eyes. An umbrella or cane is an ideal weapon to trip or disable an opponent. A parked car used as a support allows one to push against an enemy with extra force. A bottle used as a club, dirt thrown to the eyes, the content of your purse thrown into the face all provide screens to give you time to run. Your best protection may be a loud scream.

You are part of your environment. Your body can be used as a basic tool in self-defense. A fist, an elbow, or fingers can be deadly weapons. The knee and the heel of the foot (especially with high heeled shoes) can be a means of disabling an opponent. Some elementary defenses can stun an attacker long enough for escape. These techniques require only a few moves that are easy to remember and if practiced, they become second nature.

Simple strategies can be used in many combinations as defense techniques. The knee thrust or kick to the groin, the finger thrust to the eyes, or the heel onto the attacker's foot can all be excellent methods to buy you time to run. Remember, you may not have the knowledge to defeat your enemy, so buy yourself the time to run away.

Prevention is not the complete cure, but it is probably the best method for women's self-defense. William Young, convicted serial rapist, said in a television interview that the major reasons for his crime were "part enjoyment of the women's fear and part sexual." This twisted reasoning is hard to understand making it difficult to protect against such an assailant. It is always easier to defeat a known enemy. Avoid situations in which you may meet this kind of opponent. Remember to look for a weak point and attack it.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Book Buy Back

The Book Rack's winter buy back is beginning Wednesday, February 13, though Friday, February 15. If you missed out on the December buy back, here's a chance to clean off your bookshelf and get money for this semester's books. The hours for the buy back are Wednesday and Thursday, 9 a.m.-6 p.m., and Friday, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Please be aware that the buy back hours will be adhered to strictly.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

'Magic Flute' Saturday!

The following is the repertoire and casting for the Texaco-Metropolitan radio broadcast of Mozart's "Die Zauberflote" (1,000th Broadcast) on Saturday, February 9, at 1:30 p.m. on WSCL-FM. All performances will be live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House: James Levine conducting, with Kathleen Battle (Pamina), Luciana Serra (Queen of the Night), Barbara Kilduff (Papagena), Francisco Araiza (Tamino), Heinz Zednik (Monostatos),
Manfred Hemm (Papageno), Andreas Schmidt (Speaker), and Kurt Moll (Sarastro).

RFD Feb. 16

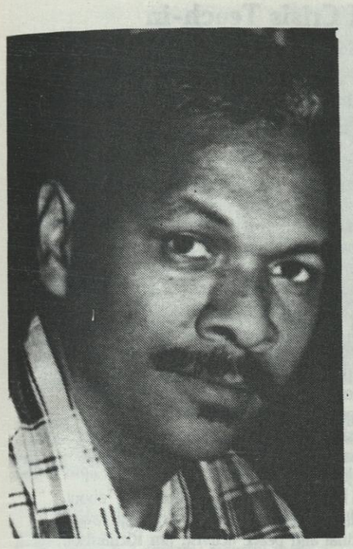
Saturday, February 16, marks the return, after a two-month absence, of the peninsula's only Ivie radio variety show, RFD-Radio Free Delmarva. The show presents musicians, writers and artists in a made-for-radio fromat.

February's program features jazz guitar duets with Sesame Street guitarist Jim Mitchell and RFD host/producer Van Williamson, folk music from Virginia minstrel Bob Zentz, pianist/composer Lee Mitchell, author/environmentalist Tom Horton and, to celebrate the 200th anniversary of Mozart's death, a portrayal of the composer by actor Joseph Corn from the Tred Avon Players. Also, the RFD Players will present their latest original semi-drama.

The show is performed before a live audience in Caruthers Auditorium on the campus of Salisbury State University. Showtime is at 8 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited. The show will be broadcast live on public radio station WSCL, 89.5 FM.

Book Rack Deadline

The Book Rack will begin returning unsold textbooks to the publishers around February 25. It asks patrons to please purchase all of the textbooks they will need for the spring 1991 semester prior to February 25.



Artist Patrick Henry

Henry Exhibit Opens

"Recollections, Oils by Patrick L. Henry" has opened in the Atrium Gallery of the Guerrieri University Center. The exhibit is 11 a.m.-4 p.m. daily until February 26. A reception and gallery talk by Henry will be at 4 p.m. on Thursday, February 14, in the gallery; the public is invited. The exhibit is part of the African-American History Month celebrations.

Henry graduated from Stephen Decatur High School and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore with a Bachelor's of Science in art education. He taught art at Stephen Decatur and worked as a color illustrator, a sign and graphic designer and an interior designer assistant before concentrating fulltime on his own painting. Today he and a fellow-artist maintain the Main Street Studio in Berlin, MD.

In the past year Henry's art has gained much recognition. He has painted an eight-section mural for UMES, he entered and won the Worcester County Tourism logo contest, and was selected as the Ocean City Chapter of the Ducks Unlimited Artist of the Year for 1991. He finished the year with a highly successful one-man show in Richmond. "Recollections" is a version of that Richmond show.

Painted partly from memory and partly from photographs he has taken, Henry communicates mood and emotions to the viewer. With color, value and expressive brush strokes he depicts the landscapes of, the Eastern Shore and city scenes from memories of a long-ago trip to New York City. Each painting reveals something about Henry and his experiences with life.

A member of the Balcony Gallery Artist's Guild in Berlin, Henry's work can be found in several area galleries. They include The Gallery in Salisbury, Donald's Duck Shoppe in Ocean City and the Asseateague National Park Visitor's Center.

The Atrium Gallery is one of two galleries on campus. Information about the University Gallery in Blackwell Library may be obtained by calling 543-6270; information about the Atrium Gallery is available at 543-6100. A schedule for exhibits in both also may be obtained by calling 543-6100.

Student Environmental Club Meeting

The Eco- Concerns Environmental Club will have its next meeting on Tuesday, February 12, at 5:30 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center.

'Maryland on View' Exhibit

"Maryland on View," an exhibition featuring the work of Maryland artists David J. Gleeson, Chevelle Makeba Moore, Soledad Salame and Donna Schudel, will be on display in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, through February 28.

The exhibition, which was curated by Charlotte Cohen, is one of an on-going series of non-thematic group shows organized by Maryland Art Place, an artists' cooperative gallery in Baltimore, to give artists throughout Maryland the opportunity to show their recent work. Each of the four artists works in a different style and medium.

Moore's expressionist, brilliantly colored acrylic paintings are influenced, in part, by the colors, symbols and patterns of Christian, African and West Indian art and religions. According to the artist, the principal themes of her work are "human relations and the metaphysical nature of our existence."

Salame, who was born in Venezuela and educated there in printmaking, makes abstract works in mixed media. Her works, some of which incorporate aerial views taken by satellites, depict what she describes as "futuristic visions of landscape and space," and make numerous references to flight, science and technology.

Schudel's photographic series, "Women as Monuments," explores society's expectations and perceptions of women, especially their size, strength and power. "This is an on-going project that I'm confident will last a lifetime," said the artist, who received a 1990 Fulbright Scholarship to study photography at the Dusseldorf Academy of Art in Germany last year.

Sculptor Gleeson's large, abstract wooden constructions consist of vertical modular units which pierce, break through, or otherwise interact with horizontal elements, evoking ideas of resistance, movement and change. Gleeson, who is originally from Ireland, said his sculpture is "a response to natural phenomena," but each work has "innumerable visual interpretations."

The Gallery is open Monday-Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1-5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5-8 p.m. Regularly scheduled gallery talks on the exhibition, given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Wednesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. For more information about the exhibit contact the Gallery at 543-6271.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

With impressive basketball wins over conference foes Shenandoah and Cabrini last week, the Sea Gulls had improved their record to 14-6 overall and 6-3 in ESAC action entering Wednesday's game at Wesley. SSU has won five straight games and seven of its last eight.

Forward Andre Foreman continues to push for All-American recognition as he is averaging 30.8 ppg, second best in the nation, and also averaging 12.9 rebounds/game, sixth best in the country. Additionally, point guard Vince Ross is sixth in the nation in assists with 8.0/game.

Meanwhile, sharpshooting guard David Byer has moved into position to snap Joe McCahon's record for most three-point field goals made in one season. Byer has converted 65 treys this season, including at least two in each of the last 17 games, and trails McCahon's mark by just 11 with at least six games left to play.

Records continue to pile up for the women's basketball team by senior point guard Vicki Miller. With seven steals in last week's two games, Miller has placed her name on the school's all-time career steals record, with 328 thefts. She breaks the record held by former teammate Sandy Jankevicius, who also fell victim to Miller's new single-season steals record established two weeks ago. Miller has 104 steals this season through 19 games.

The women's team will be playing its third game of the week on Saturday when they travel to Frostburg, having visited Glassboro and Wesley earlier this week. SSU started the week with a 10-9 overall record and 4-3 ESAC mark.

Despite a solid showing by the wrestling team in a 28-21 win over Longwood and a narrow 25-20 loss to Newport News Apprentice, the grapplers ended up with just one win in four tries last week as they also dropped matches to Glassboro State and Delaware State. Individual highlights on the week included two wins in three outings by 118-pounder Todd Martinek; two wins and one tie in four starts by Marty Lewis; two wins in three outings by HWT Ron Rossi; and a victory in his only start by HWT Mike Skinner. The Gulls now stand 5-9 overall heading into Saturday's Metro Tournament in Trenton, NJ.

Singer/Songwriter Dave Meyer Performs Feb. 8

The Salisbury State Program Board presents a spotlight club featuring singer/songwriter Dave Meyer at 8 p.m. Friday, February 8, in the Gull's Nest.

Meyer has performed throughout New York at clubs and colleges for the past nine years. His background includes formal training in theory and composition at SUNY New Paltz, as well as the study of voice, keyboard, and classical and jazz guitar. During the 1985 Agent Provocateur tour Meyer worked as a band technician for Lou Gram and Foreigner. Meyer has opened shows for The Good Rats, The John Hall Band, John Hammond Jr., Doug Kershaw and Don McLean.

Always ready for fun, he demonstrates a rapport with the audience which intensifies, as he delivers a show that includes classic rock, blues and ballads, and strong original material. With the aid of a drum computer and well prepared backup tapes he leads his audience through some powerful musical experiences, fans say. Meyer's friendly personality and high energy have delighted listeners who keep coming back for more. Meyer performs a wide variety of music including Billy Joel, Jimmy Buffet, Aerosmith, Don Henley, Pink Floyd, and his own originals. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited.

'Unsung Hero' Award Honors the Environment

Entries are now being sought for the first annual "Unsung Hero" award presented by the Rotary Club of Wicomico County to a local resident who has made a valuable contribution toward a local environmental cause and has not received public recognition for his or her efforts.

To submit an entry for the "Unsung Hero" award, fill out an entry form and forward it to "Unsung Hero," P.O. Box 3621, Salisbury, MD, 21801. For entry forms call Hawkins at 543-6030 between 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Deadline for entries is Friday, February 8.

Comedian Lance Crouther Performs Feb. 9

On Saturday, February 9, the Salisbury State Program Board welcomes comedian Lance Crouther to SSU. Crouther (Crouther is pronounced with "ow" sound as in "cow," "south," and "mouth") is a stand-up comedian, actor and a writer who was told by both Steven Wright and Jackie Mason that he was going to be a star.

Crouther began writing in elementary school; at 13 he wrote and acted in a comedy sketch that aired on public access cable, and in high school co-founded Mary Wong, a comedy group that survives today. Crouther worked professionally with Mary Wong for six years, making club, college and television appearances. During this time he also went to Columbia College in Chicago where he majored in film, appeared in two plays at Second City and as an extra in "Cheech and Chong's Times are Tough All Over." He departed Mary Wong and began his solo career by winning a contest at the Apollo Theatre in Harlem. He went on to become the warm-up/host of NBC's monster hit "The Cosby Show" by impressing the producers at a comedy club in New York. He has since written a wine cooler radio commercial for Grey Advertising Inc. and appeared on Nightflight Comedy Cuts on USA Cable.

As a comedian, Lance Crouther is a thinking, energetic performer who dramatizes his ideas. In his act he discusses his hatred of sandals, convicts who believe they've won Superbowl tickets, nudity in the locker room, the embarrassment of going to the movies alone, children who cheat in games, the language of romantic novels and much more. The Program Board suggest that patrons get to the show early; the performance starts at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room. Admission is free.

Gulf Crisis Teach-in Presented Here Feb. 20

A "Teach-in on the Crisis in the Middle East" will be held on Wednesday, February 20, from 3:30 - 11:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The student Sociological Society, the Sociology Department and a number of other departments at the University, plus the Peace Alliance of the Lower Shore and Pacem in Terris of Wilmington, DE, are co-sponsoring the event. The purpose of the teach-in is to provide an opportunity for an in-depth analysis of this war: how it started, the unfolding developments of "Desert Storm," and what possibly will ensue after hostilities have stopped.

Speakers include Mubarak Awad, director of the Palestinian Center for Nonviolent Studies in Jerusalem; David Schilling, Fellowship of Reconciliation, Nyack, NY; Fran Donelan, American Friends Service Committee, Baltimore; Jerry Shields, lecturer and author of "David Ludwig, the Invisible Billionaire," about the politics of oil; Jill Benderly, writer, Jewish intellectual and peace activist; Jim Richardson, Vietnam Veterans for Peace; Mary Flouders, Fellowship of Reconciliation, recently returned from Iraq; Dale Johnson, former chair and professor of sociology, Rutgers University; Rev. Elaine Ayers, United Methodist Church and the NAACP; Rev. Dan Higgins, Unitarian-Universalist Church; Harry Shaw, military budget analyst, Washington, D.C.; and several musicians including Suzanne Mallow and Meg and Owen Hooks.

Others who will present are SSU professors Don Whaley, Evan Kraft, Robert Berry, Greg Cashman and Mike O'Loughlin, Rick Maloof of public relations, plus townspeople who are knowledgeable of the Middle East and the medical problems a war of this magnitude presents.

Literature tables, exhibits, films, slide presentations will also be a part of the teach-in. Admission is free and the public is invited. All are invited to attend as much of the event as possible. Contact Patti Baassiri, 548-2312, or the Sociology Society, 543-6430, for further details.

Soul In Motion Theatre Troupe at SSU Feb. 15

The Soul In Motion Players present "We Are Africa" on Friday, February 15, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Founded in 1984 by director Micael Friend, Soul In Motion was created to teach youth about African-American history and African culture.

Friend said he was dismayed that so many young people did not know their history. He had majored in theatre at Howard University as an undergraduate and felt that a theatrical production would be an excellent medium by which to expose African-American students to their heritage.

"We Are Africa" focuses on the study of Egyptian history and its relationship to African-American experience. It was inspired by "From the Browder Files" by Tony Browder.

Members of the troupe are Natii Mathewson, Greg Poole, Kevin Campbell as well as Friend. This will be their first visit to SSU.

Soul In Motion's appearance is part of African-American History Month celebrations at Salisbury State University.

Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend. For additional information call Vaughn White, director of minority affairs, at 548-4503.

C.W. Amos Co. Launches Partnership in Excellence

C. W. Amos & Company recently made a $10,000 gift to the Department of Accounting.

The largest local accounting firm in Maryland with offices at Mt. Hermon Road in Salisbury, C.W. Amos becomes the initial contributor to the Perdue School's Partnership in Excellence Program, aimed at raising $350,000 for the Accounting Department over the next five years.

"We are pleased and excited to be at the forefront of this fund drive to further enhance one of the community's biggest assets, the Perdue School of Business and its fine accounting program," said Thomas L. Trice, IV, CPA and Partner in Charge of C. W. Amos' Salisbury office.

The accounting program has been highly successful over the years, placing students in regional and national accounting firms, and has experienced a high pass rate on the CPA exam. In addition, two recent graduates are winners of the prestigious Sells Award, granted to approximately the top one-10th of one percent of those passing the CPA exam annually.

Recent notable additions to the accounting program include a number of new outstanding faculty members, a CPA review course, a five-year accounting program (leading to both a B.S. and an M.B.A.), a redesigned curriculum, a Professional Accounting Studies Program and a nationally recognized Accounting Advisory Board.

"These wonderful advancements and achievements have not come without a significant strain on our resources, however," said Doug Marshall, chair of the Accounting Department. "We are now competing for quality faculty and students with universities that have well established endowment funds and resources. For us to continue our upward strides in the quest for excellence, we will need to identify and procure new sources of funds.

"The accounting community has a significant interest in the quality of the accounting program at the Perdue School," said Marshall. "Our graduates are among the most important contributors to the success of the regional community and our programs are important for continuing professional development." The Partnership in Excellence Program allows area businesses to assist in the continued development of the accounting program with financial contributions over the next five years at four levels: Senior Partner, $5,000 annual contribution; Full Partner, $4,999-$2,000 annually; Partner, $1,999-$1,000 annually; and Associate Partner, $999-$500 annually.

"We at the University believe that the Partnership in Excellence Program is a two-way street," said Marshall. "While the accounting and business community receives the benefit of our graduates and our programs, partners would also receive a one hour credit for every $40 contributed to the program. Special CPE courses will be sponsored each year in which partners and their employees will be able to participate and use the hours they accumulate.

"Full partners and senior partners will be additionally recognized by having faculty offices named in their honor," added Marshall. "A gift to the Department of Accounting," summarized Marshall, "is an investment in the future and success of our accounting program, the Perdue School, Salisbury State, the University of Maryland System and the state of Maryland."

Saying 'No'

Lisa Seldomridge, assistant professor of nursing, recently led a lively discussion, "Learning to Say No to Drugs," with children from Donna June Trout's morning and afternoon kindergarten classes at Fruitland Primary School.

The children explored the difference between good and bad drugs through the use of videotapes and games. In a decision-making game, children were presented with situations and possible decisions. They were invited to make a decision and discuss the consequences.

Students practiced saying "no" in as many different ways as they could imagine. Coloring books, stickers and pencils provided by the Wicomico County Drug/Alcohol Prevention Center were distributed to all participants.

Seldomridge is a member of Salisbury State University's Speakers Bureau which provides speakers on a wide variety of topics free of charge.

Respiratory Therapy: A Growth Career

"I look at it as a field for people who like to deal with people." That is how Ted Wiberg, program director, describes the field of respiratory therapy, but Wiberg also notes that it is a feild with ample job opportunities.

Salisbury State University is home to a small, but thriving respiratory therapy program and is the only public university or college in the state of Maryland to offer a bachelor's degree in the field. "I think it's a wonderful program, obviously," said Dr. Elizabeth Barfield, dean of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences.

Barfield notes that last year on the national exams, Salisbury respiatory therapy students recorded a 100 percent passing rate. Students in the program regularly achieve well above the national norms. "I think that is one indication of the quality of the programs," Barfield said.

Respiratory therapy is the term used to encompass a wide range of programs that vary in intensity. Graduates can specialize in such critical care fields a neonatology—the care of premature infants—or heart-lung transplants. A rapidly growing area of the field is in home care, Wiberg said.

"(There are) a lot of different areas that you can specialize in," said Wiberg. He describes respiratory therapy work as supportive in nature, rather than curative. The field of respiratory therapy first came about around 1960, and most college programs initially were one- or two-year programs. Wiberg said that demand in the early years necessitated a shorter training period. Over the past 30 years, however, approximately 20 bachelor degree programs in the field have been developed across the country, including Salisbury's which was established in 1985.

Currently enrolled in the program are 10 seniors and 20 juniors, the largest class since the program's inception. In the works is a transfer program with other public colleges and universities in the state which would allow students to take their first two years of classes elsewhere, and then transfer into the respiratory therapy program at Salisbury.

"It would probably give us a stable student base," Wiberg said of the expected benefits of such a program. "It would allow us to provide more of the luxuries that we can't provide right now."

While Salisbury respiratory therapy students benefit from a great deal of hands on experience at nearby Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center, Wiberg notes that Eastern Shore hospitals do not have neonatology sections or transplant units. To make up for that, students are sent over to the University of Maryland-Baltimore hospitals or to Johns Hopkins hospitals for training. Still, Wiberg and Barfield feel strongly that respiratory therapy graduates from Salisbury are among the best in the nation.

"Our students get involved with procedures that pretty well train them for work anywhere in the United States," said Wiberg.

While Barfield said, "It's a field that has many job opportunities, particularly for our graduates." And in a time when the job outlook for many college graduates is bleak, Wiberg believes there will continue to be ample opportunities in health care because the demand does not go away simply because there is a downturn in the economy. "I can't see the demand decreasing," said Wiberg.

Peninsula Bank Pillar in Community

For more than three years, Peninsula Bank has played Santa to 17 area non-profit groups. The bank not only supports those groups financially; it actively encourages others to do the same. In underwriting announcements it purchases on public radio station WSCL-FM, Peninsula Bank urges listeners to join it in backing such groups as American Red Cross, Maryland Food Bank and Boy Scouts.

We felt if Peninsula Bank was truly going to be a community asset that we had to make a strong effort to support our community," said John Di Peitro, senior vice president of Peninsula.

Each weekday between 5 and 6:30 p.m., on "All Things Considered" from National Public Radio, WSCL listeners hear the bank's invitation to join it in helping one of the area's non-profit organizations. Other groups included in the rotating announcements are Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore, Ward Foundation, WMCA, Arthritis Foindation, Coastal Hospice, Salvation Army, Wor-Wic Tech Community College, Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore, Diakonia, Lower Shore Enterprises, Wicomico Teen Adult Center, Holly Center and Blood Donor Month.

This is an excellent way for business to support the non-profit community and at the same time help develop the wider grass roots support so essential to these groups," said Fred Marino, WSCL General Manager.

Volleyball Weekend

The 1991 Century 21/WZBH Volleyball Weekend will be held on Friday and Saturday, February 15 and 16, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Proceeds from this event benefit the Easter Seal Society of Del-Mar.

Any group of friends, co-workers or neighbors are welcome to play. A team consists of 6-10 players. Teams are matched according to playing ability and play three one-half hour games during a two-hour period. To enter a team in the Volleyball Weekend, please call the Easter Seal Hotline at 1-800-677-3800.

Newman Club Mass

Catholic mass will be held every Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. All students, faculty, staff and their families are welcome. Also, mass will be offered on campus on Ash Wednesday, February 13, at 3:30 p.m. in Devilbiss 149. The first meeting of the Newman Club will be on Tuesday, February 10, in Nanticoke C of the Guerrieri Center at 8:30 p.m. The following week, Feburary 19, the Newman Club will have a guest speaker: "Rap with Father: Everything You Were Curious About But Afraid to Ask." Again this will be held in Nanticoke C of the Guerrieri Center at 8:30 p.m. For further information please contact Father Wiggins at St. Francis de Sales rectory.

Outdoor Club Ski Trip

The Outdoor Club will hold its first meeting of the semester on Monday, February 11, at 9 p.m. in the second floor lounge of the Guerrieri University Center. The meeting will feature planning for the spring semester and sign-up for the downhill and cross country ski trips to The Wisp and New Germany State Park, MD, on February 15-17. (Trip plans may change subject to snow conditions.) Lodging will be in Frostburg SU dorms. The cost of the trip, which does not include lift tickets, will be $10.

Perdue Faculty at Conference On Business Ethics

Drs. K. Khazeh, Memo Diriker, Robert Dombrowski and James Brodzinski, all of the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, were recently invited to participate in the Arthur Andersen & Co. Conference on Teaching Business Ethics in St. Charles, IL. Anderson is among the largest six public accounting firms globally.

The purpose of this conference was to make business ethics as an integral part of business education. The conference was based on practical studies and vignettes that can be incorporated into existing business curricular of finance, marketing, accounting and management.

The conference objective was to update the participants on the application of basic ethical principals and problem-solving models—recognizing the complexity of moral reasoning skills—facilitate a discussion of ethical issues, utilize a variety of techniques for integrating ethics in functional courses, and study the use of case studies and videotapes on ethical issues in functional courses.

Students Prominent in Feb. 24 Showcase

Faculty and students will once again share their talents and special interests with the general public in a Campus Showcase program on Sunday, February 24, at 2 p.m. Campus Showcase programs are based on the old Chautauqua format of educational and cultural activities combined with entertainment.

The program, held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center, will begin with a performance of the SSU Dance Company in the "Big Circle Mountain Square Dance." Victoria Hutchinson, director of the Dance Company, believes that this selection fits into the theme of America in the present age.

Wayne Ackerson, instructor in history, will follow with readings from Livy and Tacitus on "The Present Age."

From the writings of these famous Romans, he has selected comments and observatios that are as relevant today as they were during the Roman's time.

Selections of old American folk songs will be presented by Dr. Duane Karna accompanied by student Scot Hawkins. Karna, assistant professor in the Music Department has chosen American folk songs arranged by the late Aaron Copland.

The program will conclude with a solo performance by Lee Townshend of the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business. A traditional part of the Chautauqua program includes the impersonation of historical or literary figure. Townshend will do scenes from the life of the American poet Emily Dickinson in a segment titled "The Belle of Amherst."

Campus Showcase programs are sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee at SSU. Admission is free and the public is invited. For more information call 543-6522.

T'ai-Chi Course Offered

The Office of Continuing Education is sponsoring two courses in T'ai-chi Ch'uan, a Chinese form of physical culture. Both courses will meet in the Dance Studio of the Maggs Center.

The beginning class will meet on Tuesdays, starting February 13 and an intermediate course will be offered on Thursdays, beginning February 15. Each one hour class meets from 8-9 p.m. and runs for eight sessions.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Ben Fusaro, professor of mathematics, who has studied T'ai-chi both in the U.S. and in Taiwan. He has been teaching T'ai-chi Ch'uan in Wicomico County since 1976.

T'ai-chi Ch'uan is a non-aerobic exercise that requires no special physical or physiological equipment. Tuition and fees are $32. For more information call 543-6170.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

FEBRUARY 14, 1991 VOL. XII NO. 18

Palestinian-American Lectures at 'Teach-in'

Internationally known nonviolence activist, youth advocate and educator Mubarak Awad is a featured speaker at a symposium, "Teach-in: Crisis in the Middle East," on Wednesday, February 20, from 3:30-11:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The presentation is co-sponsored by the student Sociological Society, the Sociology Department and a number of other departments at the University, plus the Peace Alliance of the Lower Shore and Pacem in Terris of Wilmington, DE.

Mubarak, a Palestinian-American advocate of nonviolence, is the founder and director of Nonviolence International and the founder and director in exile of the Palestinian Center for the Study of Nonviolence in Jerusalem. Professionally trained as a counselor and psychologist, Mubarak is also director of the U.S. National Youth Advocate Program, a nonprofit organization coordinating the activities of several state-level advocate programs for troubled youths.

Born in Jerusalem in 1943, Mubarak completed his secondary education in the United States and holds bachelor's degrees in social work and sociology from Bluffton College, a Mennonite college in Ohio.

Mubarak holds a Master of Science in education from St. Francis College in Indiana.

Literature Award Goes to Poet Waters

Dr. Michael Waters, associate professor of English, has been awarded the 1990 Towson State University Prize for Literature. He was awarded the $1,200 prize for his book of poetry, "The Burden Lifters" (Carnegie-Mellon University Press, 1989).

Waters, who teaches creative writing at SSU, has published four volumes of poetry. A fifth volume, "Bountiful," is scheduled for publication in 1992. He has won a fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts, as well as two Pushcart Prizes. His poems have been published in literary journals such as Poetry, The American Poetry Review, The Georgia Review, North American Review and others.

The TSU Prize for Literature was established in 1979 through a grant from Alice and Franklin Cooley. It is awarded annually on the basis of literary and aesthetic excellence of a work of fiction, poetry, drama or imaginative

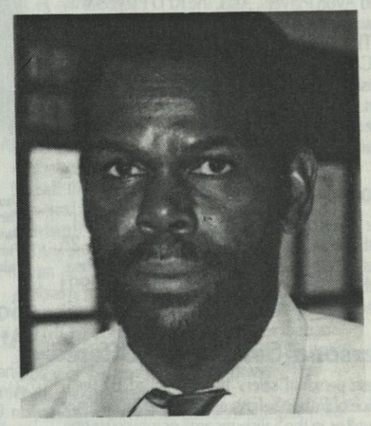
Brennan Taylor: Mixing Community Service, Teaching; Producing Competent Students

The social conscience of SSU professor Dr. Brennen Taylor developed at an early age. During his high school years in Norwalk, CT, he worked with the United Nations to solve the problems of war and famine within the continent of Africa. Thirty years later his commitment to improving the plight of all people through service represents an international humanitarian outpost.

The road between the socially conscious teenager and the man striving to help others was not a straight one, however. Initially he thought he would pursue a doctorate in paleontology (the study of fossils) at Princeton University. However, he decided to attend Howard University in the District of Columbia. He graduated with a bachelor's degree in English while minoring in geology. Teaching nor social work were foremost in his plans during his employment in the Department of Paleontology at the Smithsonian Institute.

"I returned to Connecticut and worked in a criminal justice program designed to reintegrate ex-offenders into the community," he said. This experience endeared him to pursue social work at the graduate level. He earned a Master's of Social Work from Howard University in 1979 and a Master's of Public Health from the University of Pittsburgh. Finally, he earned his doctorate from the School of Social Work at Pittsburgh.

Taylor has been employed at SSU for almost five years. He and his wife, Dr. Ann Taylor, arrived in Salisbury after teaching at the University of Nebraska. Their relocation to the East Coast allowed them to be closer to family and friends. Ann Taylor is also on the Salisbury State faculty and teaches in the School of Education and Professional Studies. They conduct joint research as "social work and education has an excellent fit," said Brennen Taylor.



Dr. Brennen Taylor

Since joining SSU Brennen Taylor has contributed to humanitarian service beyond the University. He juggles teaching with volunteer work at Barney Neighborhood Settlement House in Washington, D.C., a program designed to promote deinstitutionalization. Volunteer services are also provided at Carroll House, a men's shelter in Silver Spring, MD, he helped found in 1986 along with Catholic Charities. Taylor has also served on the following local boards: Go Getters Inc., Coastal Hospice and Wicomico County Commission on Admission is free.

RFD Feb. 16

Saturday, February 16, marks the return, after a two-month absence, of the peninsula's only live radio variety show, RFD-Radio Free Delmarva. The show presents musicians, writers and artists in a made-for-radio format.

February's program features jazz guitar duets with Sesame Street guitarist Jim Mitchell and RFD host/producer Van Williamson, folk music from Virginia minstrel Bob Zentz, pianist/composer Lee Mitchell, author/environmentalist Tom Horton and, to celebrate the 200th anniversary of Mozart's death, a portrayal of the composer by actor Joseph Com from the Tred Avon Players. Also, the RFD Players will present their latest original semi-drama.

The show is performed before a live audience in Caruthers Auditorium on the campus of Salisbury State University. Showtime is at 8 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited. The show will be broadcast live on public radio station WSCL, 89.5 FM.

Book Rack Deadline

The Book Rack will begin returning unsold textbooks to the publishers around February 25. It asks patrons to please purchase all of the textbooks they will need for the spring 1991 semester prior to February 25.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

Soul In Motion Theatre Troupe At SSU Feb. 15

The Soul In Motion Players present "We Are Africa" on Friday, February 15, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Soul In Motion's appearance is part of African-American History Month celebrations at Salisbury State University.

Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend. For additional information call Vaughn White, director of minority affairs, at 548-4503.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Athletics Internship

The Department of Physical Education and Athletics seeks applicants for an internship in collegiate sports management.

Candidates should need the internship to fulfill graduation requirements for a master's degree.

General responsibilities include assisting the professional staff in the coordination of all phases of operation of the Maggs Center. Specific responsibilities may include assisting in scheduling student employees, scheduling the facility for various practices and activities, supervising the facility, assisting in administration of athletic events, supervising special events, checking inventory, evaluating programs, supervising computer usage and newsletter, and other duties as assigned.

The nine-month internship begins September 1. The annual stipend is $8,000.

Deadline for application is March 22 or until the position is filled. Send a letter of interest, resume and two letters of recommendation to Dr. Thomas P. Stitcher, Facilities Coordinator, Maggs Physical Activities Center, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Fiscal/Clerk Secretary

The Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics seeks an individual for the contractual position of fiscal clerk/secretary.

The successful candidate must possess expertise in Lotus 1-2-3, filing and record keeping, and have upper-level typing skills, a comprehension of budget management and records, and other applicable office management skills.

The salary is $7.54 per hour for a 40-hour week. This is a contractual position (no paid benefits).

Qualified individuals may apply by submitting a resume and completing an application in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD, by February 20.

Models Needed

Models for painting and drawing classes are needed. Please contact the Art Department at 543-6270.

Consequences of War Discussed at 'Teach-in'

David Schilling, United Methodist minister and national program coordinator with the Fellowship of Reconciliation (FOR) in New York, is another distinguished speaker for the University symposium, "Teach-in: Crisis in the Middle East," to be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center on Wednesday, February 20, from 3:30-11:30 p.m.

The presentation is co-sponsored by the student Sociological Society, the Sociology Department and a number of other departments at the University, plus the Peace Alliance of the Lower Shore and Pacem in Terris of Wilmington, DE.

Schilling graduated from Union Seminary, New York City, and has worked as assistant dean of the Chapel, Stanford University, and minister of United Methodist churches in northern California. Before joining the Fellowship of Reconciliation in November 1987, he was co-director of the Riverside Church Disarmament Program in New York City.

Since the 1960s Schilling has been involved in peace and justice organizing with Clergy and Laity Concerned, the National Farm Worker Ministry and Bread for the World as well as local organizing projects for racial justice. He spent three years living in the Middle East and North Africa and has traveled extensively in Europe and Central America.

Schilling currently coordinates national programs for FOR in peace and disarmament, and economic and racial justice. He helped organize the FOR Plowshare Coffee House during the U.N. Third Special Session on Disarmamemt; and a "Witness for Justice" project in Robeson County, NC, where racism and poverty mixed with drugs and corruption have lead to rising levels of violence. He recently returned from leading a peace tour to the West Bank, Gaza Strip and Israel.

Schilling's topic is "The Consequences of War on the Iraqi People." He is scheduled to begin his presentation at 4:30 p.m. Sign language interpretation will be provided. The presentation is free and open to the public.

For more information contact Patti Baassiri, 548-2312, or the Sociology Society, 543-6430, for further details.

Karen Goldberg

Folk Pop Performer in Gulls Nest Feb. 23

Karen Goldberg, among the "New Wave" of folk pop, performs in the Gulls Nest in the Guerrieri University Center on Saturday, February 23, at 8 p.m. A Baltimore born singer/songwriter who has been performing mainly in Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and New York since 1973, she has three albums, the most recent a solo released last fall. She has performed in Los Angeles, New York, Key West, FL, and the Virgin Islands. She supported The March for the Animals sponsored by National Alliance for Animals Legislation held in Washington, D.C. before a crowd of 50,000 people.

Vital Connection

An important "Vital Connection" meeting on Monday, February 18, at 8 p.m. at the Honors House will feature a discussion on an upcoming visit from Stan Curtis, the chairman of USA Harvest, a national organization to help feed needy people.

Curtis will be flying in from Kentucky in March to help the club get started. For more information contact Pete Jacques at 548-2817 or Krissy Monks at 548-4198. The group's motto is "Stop feeding our trashbins and start feeding our people."

Epilepsy Group Meetings

The Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore, Inc. has a pair of upcoming meetings scheduled.

Parents of Children with Epilepsy will meet Tuesday, February 19. Pharmacist Joanne Sherr is the guest speaker. "Topics of Interest to People with Epilepsy" will be addressed at a general support group meeting on Wednesday, February 20.

All meetings are at 7 p.m. at the Power Professional Center. For more information call 543-0665.

African-American History Month continues with a reading by author Reginald McKnight on Monday, February 18, at 8 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Recipient of the 1988 Drue Heinz Literature Prize for his work, "Moustapha's Prize," the 1989 Kenyon Prize for Literary Excellence and the 1990 O'Henry Award for his short story, "The Kind of Light That Shines in Texas," and the Ernest Hemingway Foundation Special Citation, McKnight will read from his first novel, "I Get on the Bus."

Set in modern Senegal, Africa, "I Get on the Bus" is the story of Evan Norris, a young African-American who joins the Peace Corps in an attempt to find his identity. Malarial fever and marijuana blur the edges of reality for Evan and lead him to a marabou, a man of religious and occult influence. Absorbed in a world that is at once modern and ancient, Evan finds himself the target of evil spirits and becomes entwined in a liaison with the marabou's daughter.

"Anyone who wants to 'feel' what it means for an American black to confront Africa, anybody who wants to understand what it means for any American to deal with the power of the 'Old Country,' can do no better than to board McKnight's bus," said David Bradley, author of the award-winning novel, "The Chaneysville Incident."

McKnight earned his bachelor's degree from Colorado College at Colorado Springs and his master's degree in creative writing from the University of Denver. Colorado College recently bestowed upon him the honorary doctor of humane letters degree. Professor of English at the University of Pittsburgh, he is currently visiting professor at Western Michigan University at Kalamazoo.

The New Yorker says of McKnight's "I Get on the Bus," "there is an exhilarating breadth to the book's best passages, and his hero is a not unworthy successor to Ralph Ellison's invisible man."

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend. For further information, call 543-6100.

'Teach-in' Features Peace Movement Talk

Another speaker for the University symposium, "Teach-in: Crisis in the Middle East," to be held Wednesday, February 20, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center, is Dr. Sally Milbury-Steen, director of Pacem in Terris, Wilmington, DE, since 1985.

Milbury-Steen earned her Ph.D. from Indiana University in comparative literature. She was a Fulbright professor of literature at the University of Gabon, Libreville, Gabon, Africa from 1975-1977.

From 1965-1967 she was a Peace Corps volunteer in the Cameroons, West Africa. She is the author of "African Stereotypes in Modern Fiction." The title of her discussion in the Teach-in is "The Current Status of the Peace Movement: the Delmarva Peninsula." All are invited to attend. Sign language interpretation will be provided.

The presentation is co-sponsored by the student Sociological Society, the Sociology Department and a number of other departments at the University, plus the Peace Alliance of the Lower Shore and Pacem in Terris of Wilmington, DE.

For more information contact Patty Baassiri, 548-2312, or the Sociological Society, 543-6430.

State Archives Summer Intern Program

The Maryland State Archives has four internships available this summer for its 10-week summer internship program. The internships are available to Maryland college students (graduate or advanced undergraduate) or Maryland residents attending an out-of-state school.

The purpose of the nationally-recognized program is to expose interns to archival procedures. This includes establishing archival control over permanently valuable historical records and assisting researchers by answering mail and working in the public search room.

Qualifications for candidates include demonstrated academic excellence, preferably with an interest in archival science, history, library science or related fields. The salary is $2,100 each (before taxes).

For information and application materials write to Archival Intership Program, Maryland State Archives, 350 Rowe Boulevard, Annapolis, MD 21401. Application deadline is April 1.

Faculty/Staff Mentors Sought

The Office of the Dean of Students and the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center are initiating a Community Involvement Project this spring.

The project pairs student organizations on campus with community programs serving youth in Wicomico County. Student organizations will need the help of a faculty/staff mentor. These mentors would attend the beginning of project orientation, meet regularly with student volunteers to discuss and process their experiences, and participate in an evaluation of the project.

The Community Involvement Project begins March 3 with the orientation session and runs through May 17 (excluding spring break). Any faculty or staff member interested in providing leadership to a student organization for the project or who needs more information can contact Barry King, 543-6080, or Jennifer Berkman, 543-6309.

Cycling Club News

The University Cycling Club invites all those interested to its weekly meeting on Mondays at 8 p.m. in the second floor lounge of the Guerrieri University Center or to participate in any of its daily and weekend recreational and training rides.

The club also has several special events planned this semester. A spring-break trip to Florida, departing Friday, March 22, and returning Saturday, March 30, will feature 60 miles of riding a day. Dates are still to be determined for a weekend trip to Harper's Ferry (30-mile, off-road ride on the C & O Canal tour path) and a Saturday trip to Washington, D.C. during the Cherry Blossom Festival (34-mile ride on the bike path from Mt. Vernon to the Lincoln Memorial).

On Earth Day, April 20, the club will take a pedal-paddle ride to Snow Hill, picking up trash in the Pocomoke River during the canoe portion of the trip (40 miles biking, eight miles canoeing).

On Saturday, May 4, a Cycle Across Maryland (CAM) workshop will be held; the next day, Schumaker Park is the site of the Wild and Fowl Triathlon.

Additionally, the club needs men and women for a club racing team.

Last semester featured a ride on the C & O Canal tour path, sponsorship of the Sea Gull Century (624 riders) and a winter-break trip to the Florida Keys, from Key West to Flamingo in the Everglades.

Membership in the club is open to all SSU students, faculty and staff, and their families, with all levels of cycling ability represented.

For more information, stop by the Recreation and Intramural Office in Maggs Center.

New Employment Services

The Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) has two new services available to students and alumni looking for a job or graduate study opportunities. Both services offer free registration in national computer databases.

Peterson's Connexion registers individuals in a growing database where companies can fill full-time, summer or internship positions. Graduate schools also participate in Peterson's Connexion database. To register with Connexion, pick up a registration form at the CPPD, fill it out and return it to the same office. It's quick and easy to use.

The second new service is the kiNexus database. KiNexus offers registration with prospective employers for job opportunities. Registration is accomplished via a personal computer. The resultant computerized profile is added to a nationwide database. Stop by the CPPD office to receive more information about registering with kiNexus.

The CPPD office is located in the Guerrieri University Center, room 263. Office hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Linowes Commission Report

The report of the Maryland Commission on State Taxes and Tax Structure (Linowes Commission) is on reserve at the circulation desk of Blackwell Library.

The Commission's recommendations have received much media comment and are causing spirited discussion in the Maryland General Assembly.

Nancy Schlossberg To Speak At Mid-Atlantic Conference On Teaching

by Elizabeth Curtin
Assistant Professor of English

Salisbury State University prides itself on the emphasis it places on teaching and on faculty who make students their first priority.

In recent years, many national educators have noted the difficulty dedicated teachers have in maintaining their spirit and enthusiasm, particularly when they continually face public scrutiny and criticism. Dealing directly with the specific stresses that develop form conscientious teaching, Nancy Schlossberg, a professor in the Department of Counseling and Personnel Services at the University of Maryland College Park, will be the major speaker at the annual Mid-Atlantic Conference on Teaching to be held in the Guerrieri University Center on March 1.

Schlossberg, whose expertise is in the areas of adult development, adult transition, career development and adults as learners, has written extensively on these subjects. In addition to numerous articles and chapters in edited books, she has written six books herself, including "Improving Higher Educational Environments for Adults" and "Overwhelmed: Coping With Life's Ups and Downs," the latter of which won the 1990 Delta Kappa Gamma Society International Educator's Award.

A graduate of Barnard College, with a doctorate from Columbia University, Schlossberg has received honors and citations for her contributions to administration, counseling and research. In 1990 the National Association for Women Deans, Administrators, and Counselors presented her with the Woman of Distinction Award.

Throughout her career, she has given over 50 keynote addresses to colleges, universities, professional organizations and community groups. In addition she has also appeared on national television programs dealing with the pressures of both adult transitions and educational environments.

Schlossberg's speech, "Sustaining Faculty Enthusiasm," will begin the spring conference at 3:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri Center. The Faculty Development Committee is planning an afternoon and evening that will also include an informal questioning session, a reception and dinner, and a faculty panel discussion. The conference should provide an opportunity to relax, renew and rejuvenate.

The registration fee, which includes dinner and a reception, is $5 for SSU faculty and staff if paid before Wednesday, February 20. On-site registration is $20.

For more information call Dean Defino at 543-6145.

Clio Awards Film

The Art Department presents the 1990 Clio Award winners in international television commercials on Wednesday, February 20. The film of the winning commercials, shown in Caruthers Hall Auditorium at 7:30 p.m., is free and open to the public.

Last year's winners were chosen from 17,000 entries submitted from 44 countries. The entries are from a variety of categories and include non-profit sponsors as well as conventional clients.

The Clio Awards presentation has been a popular annual event. Japan, Great Britan, Germany and the U.S. are usually well represented. The international content of the film grants a rare insight into the approach advertisers around the world apply to respective audiences. The international language of humor is easily understood by all.

Viewing the cream of the past year's commericals gives the viewer a very different perspective on the impact of the 30-second art form. The film will run approximately 45 minutes.

For more information call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Caving and Backpacking

The next Outdoor Club meeting is scheduled for Monday, February 18, at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. All students are welcome.

The Outdoor Club continues its efforts to encourage environmental awareness on campus. Anyone interested in serving on an environmental awareness committee, please attend the meeting on February 18.

All Outdoor Club meetings are scheduled for Mondays in the Nanticoke room A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other tentative trips planned for the spring semester include: March 22 - April 1 (spring break), canoeing in Florida or backpacking on Appalachian Trail in North Carolina; April 19-21, backpacking in northern Virginia; and May 3-5, hang gliding in Naggs Head, NC.

Viola Brown

Brown Retires

Viola Brown of Fruitland, former Dietary Aide IV for Dining Services, recently retired after 17 years of service with the University. She began her employment with SSU in August 1973 as a food service aide in Dining Services.

Her efficiency reports over the years reflect the fact that she was highly regarded by her supervisors and was well liked and respected by her fellow workers.

Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarships

Applications for the Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarships are in the Financial Aid Office. Deadline is March 31.

The scholarship is not need-based. The award is up to $5,000 per academic year for up to four years. Recipients must teach two years (in any state) for every year of scholarship received.

Applicants must be Maryland residents to apply who attend a college or university in Maryland if accepting award. Applicants must have been in top 10 percent of their high school graduating class.

Rock Concert

The Norfolk, VA, based band, Ant Man Bee, headlines a rock concert on Friday, February 15, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The concert is sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board.

Ant Man Bee has been described as "what you get when you mix funk, jazz, R & B, rock and rap in a big pot and sprinkle in some reggae for that extra kick." Featuring a horn section and female back-up singers, Ant Man Bee's performance begins at 10 p.m.

The night's preliminary act is Red Weasel, a popular Salisbury band. Its performance has been described as "full of distortion, feedback, wailing guitars and more."

Tickets, on sale at the door the night of the performance, are $2. Free sodas and munchies will be available; beer will be on sale.

Faculty Bible Study

All are invited to join the Faculty Bible Study. This semester participants will be studying the Old Testament book of Daniel and considering some of the prophecies and how they might relate to present events in the Middle East. Steve Young, who works with Campus Crusade for Christ, will be leading the discussion.

Bring a brown-bag lunch any Friday from noon - 1 p.m. in Devilbiss 318.

Members include Homer Austin, Greg Citizen, Ed Senkbeil, Ed Shaffer, Wayne Shelton, Brent Wilhelm and Jeanette Wolinski.

Mayflower Chief Next Great Leader

The Great Leader Lecture Series sponsored by the Perdue School of Business continues with a presentation by Michael L. Smith, president and chief executive officer of the Mayflower Group, Inc. as well as its subsidiary Mayflower Transit, Inc.

He will address an audience of students, faculty and members of the area business community on Thursday, February 21, at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Smith also serves as president of Mayflower Contract Services, Inc., the nation's second largest public transportation contractor and a Mayflower subsidiary based in Kansas City, MO. Elected to Mayflower's board in 1981, Smith, 42, has been with Mayflower since 1974.

He also serves on the board of directors of First Indiana Corporation and its subsidiary, First Indiana Bank. In addition, he is a director of The State Life Insurance Company and Somerset Group, Inc.

Smith's civic and professional association activities have included: director, Indianapolis Children's Museum; director, Crossroads Rehabilitation Center; director, Junior Achievement of Central Indiana; director, Family Support Center; director, St. Vincent's Hospital Foundation; director, 500 Festival Associates; and member of the Young President's Organization.

He has also served as a director of the Crossroads Council of the Boy Scouts of America, Mental Health Association in Indiana and the Indianapolis Chapter of the Red Cross.

As a 1970 graduate of DePauw University he served as a board member of the Housing Corporation for the Sigma Chi Chapter 1980-85 and as a DePauw Alumni Association board member for four years, and was a Balfour Nominee in 1968, the recipient of the Frank Moore Scholarship in 1970 and named "Outstanding Young Alumni DePauw University" in 1987.

Smith, his wife, Sue, and their two children reside in Leawood, KS.

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information on the Great Leader Lecture Series, call the Perdue School at 543-6316.

Habitat for Humanity

The SSU Habitat for Humanity team of volunteers is ready to kick off another semester of working with the community to help low-income families build decent, affordable housing.

Join the team on Saturday, February 16, in front of Maggs Gym at 8:45 a.m., or come for the afternoon session at 1 p.m. They will carpool to the worksite, located in Salisbury. You don't need tools or experience, just be willing to work. Students, teachers, staff members, or friends...everyone is welcome to join the team.

If you would like to participate, but cannot make it this time, they will be working again on March 16, April 13 and May 11. Come once just for the experience, and if you like it, join them any time.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

The men's basketball team continues to pursue an NCAA Tournament bid as the 16-6 Gulls won their sixth straight with a 104-88 win at Frostburg last Saturday. Once again Andre Foreman led SSU with a 32-point, eight rebound effort. He also broke the school's single-season scoring record, which he previously held. He had 689 points on the year entering Wednesday evening's home finale against Lincoln. Foreman's 31.3 scoring average places him first in the nation.

Wednesday's game was the last home contest for seniors David Byer and Bill Lewit. Byer entered the game with a string of 19 straight games in which he had converted at least two three-point field goals. He also had 71 treys on the season, five shy of the single-season record set by Joe McCahon last year. Lewit, meanwhile, hit four treys at Frostburg last Saturday and has converted 36 of 97 attempts (37.1%) from behind the stripe.

Four members of the women's team also donned the home uniforms for the last time on Wednesday evening against Lincoln. Vicki Miller, Kim Keyack and the Ivison twins, Christie and Connie, all bid farewell to Maggs. Approaching the end of their SSU careers, several will leave their mark in the record books. Miller will leave as the school's career steals leader, career assists runnerup, and should finish in the top 10 in both points and rebounds. Christie Ivison will leave as the career leader in three-point field goals, with 94 entering Wednesday's contest.

The women were 11-11 entering the Lincoln contest, and close out their regular season at Goucher on Monday. SSU will then play in the ESAC Tournament, which begins on Friday, February 22 at Frostburg.

The wrestling squad, coming off a 10th place finish among 19 teams at last weekend's Metro Tournament, closes out its season at the NCAA East Regionals this weekend. The regionals serve as the qualifier for the national tournament, with the top three finishers in each weight class advancing to the nationals. SSU's best chance for a national tournament qualifier probably rests with 167-pounder Marty Lewis, who won five of six matches and placed third at the Metro Tournament last week. Hwt. Ron Rossi also fared well last weekend, finishing 3-3 and capturing sixth place in the weight class.

That's Entertainment? Campus Variety Show Looking for Performers

It's Saturday, April 6, and you are standing in front of 700 cheering people as the spotlights beam down on you. You have just finished singing through a 2,000 watt P.A. system and people are throwing flowers onto the stage. Is that just a dream? Or did it happen because you were part of the first annual Salisbury State Variety Show? It's up to you to decide.

The SSU Auditorium Services Department presents the first full-stage professional variety show in the history of the University. Anyone associated with Salisbury State is encouraged to be part of the show.

There are hundreds of ways to be part of the show. If you can dance, tell jokes, play a piano, juggle or anything that would be fun for the audience, you are encouraged to audition. If you have ever been curious on the technical side of the show you are encouraged to help with the stage crew.

Auditions for Mistresses and Masters of Ceremonies will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 12, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Auditions for performers will be held March 18 and 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room. If additional auditions are needed, they will be held in the Power Building on March 20. Sign-up sheets and show guidelines will be available beginning March 1 in the WSCL lobby (in Caruthers Hall). If you have any questions, please contact Tony Broadbent in his office or by phone at 548-4597.

With less than two months before the show, it's time to get out your Chopin sheet music, order those ballet slippers, practice with your band and work on your best Bert Parks' voice. The show is going to be big and you want to be part of it.

VITA Program

Are you elderly or handicapped, or on a limited income and need tax help but can't afford to pay for it? Free federal and Maryland tax preparation assistance is available through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program sponsored by the Perdue School of Business through April 15.

Volunteers will prepare and teach individuals how to prepare their own federal and Maryland tax returns. Interested persons should bring their 1990 tax package of forms, wage and earning statement(s), Form(s) W-2, interest statement(s) from bank(s), Form(s) 1099, a copy of their 1989 tax return (if available), and any other relevant information concerning income and expenses.

Tax assistance will be available at the following locations: Wicomico County Social Services, Maryland Multiservice Building, 201 Baptist Street, Mondays and Wednesdays, 12:30-4:30 p.m.; SSU's Blackwell Library, first floor seminar room, Thursdays, 6-10 p.m. and Saturdays, 1-5 p.m.; The Centre at Salisbury, Sears entrance, Saturdays, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.; and Ocean City Library on 14th Street and Philadelphia Ave., Saturdays, 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

For more information contact the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Ralston Published

Dr. Scott Ralston, assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School of Business, recently had an article accepted for publication in the Journal of Applied Business Research.

The article, co-authored with William Park of the University of Tennessee and Edward Frampton of Salisbury State, is titled "Contingent Valuation and Recreational Demand."

The study used the contingent valuation method, a nonmarket valuation technique, to estimate the benefits of a recreational resource. Additionally, the study indicated how these estimates might be useful in the management of such a resource.

Prague Trip

See Mozart's favorite city. Partake of the fresh breath of democracy in the heart of Europe. Celebrate and support the arts.

All this by traveling with the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council to Prague, the cultural center of central Europe, for its Classical Music Festival. Hear Beethoven's Ninth in the period atmosphere of a beautiful city you'll fall in love with.

From May 27 to June 7 be a part of this magnificent adventure. Your host will be Czech native and SSU modern language professor, Dr. Dagmar Berry. Early reservations are necessary. Please call 543-ARTS for further information.

Mubarak Awad

He did his postgraduate work in counseling at the International Graduate School in St. Louis.

Mubarak became an American citizen in 1978, in lieu of remaining "stateless" as a result of Israel's occupation of Palestine in 1967. He returned to Jerusalem in 1983 to establish a Palestinian Counseling Center, which continues to help Palestinian youth with psychological and emotional problems.

"While living in the occupied city and observing the treatment Palestinians faced at the hands of Israeli soldiers, as well as the growing international acceptance of the stereotype of Palestinians as terrorists," said Mubark, "I saw that Palestinians needed ideas on ways to achieve their goals and maintain their human dignity as well as the international legitimacy of their desire for independence from Israel."

In 1985 Mubarak decided to open a center that would provide Palestinians with educational materials on nonviolent resistance. He founded the Palestinian Center for the Study of Nonviolence. The Center's programs include coordinating direct, nonviolent resistance actions. The work of the Center includes a family reunification project and the publication and translations of writings on the theory and practice of nonviolence in Arabic.

In 1988 the Israeli officials deported Mubarak after arresting him in May and holding him in solitary confinement in prison for 40 days. The Israeli government alleged that he was directing the Intifada (the Palestinian uprisings in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip).

Since then Mubarak has continued to work for a nonviolent solution to the Palestinian-Israeli conflict by promoting what he advocated in Jerusalem—a two-state solution—and by speaking on the issues before numerous organizations in the U.S. and around the world.

In 1989 Mubarak founded Nonviolence International. Like the Center in Jerusalem, the purpose of the organization is to educate people about nonviolent resistance. It also supports training activists in methods of nonviolent action for social justice.

"Nonviolence International draws on the expertise and experience of people familiar with various regions of the world to address case-specific issues and problems," said Mubarak. "After returning from Jerusalem I realized that nonviolence is needed by everyone everywhere. My goal is to contribute my experience in order to help others struggling against oppression and injustice."

Mubarak is scheduled to begin speaking at 8:30 p.m. He will discuss "The Palestinians-Nonviolent Resolution." Sign language interpretation will be available. The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information contact Patty Baassiri, 548-2312, or the Sociological Society, 543-6430.

Piano Recital

Amanda Meyers, an SSU music major, will perform her senior piano recital on Thursday, February 14, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Aging. Last year, he was appointed as a state health commissioner to the Maryland Health Resources Planning Commission by Governor William Donald Schaefer. Coupled with this, he is the state representative for the Lower Eastern Shore Health Planning Organizations in conjunction with serving on the state's Mental Health and Addictions Committee. The latter organizations are responsible for the planning and regulating of health, mental health and human services statewide.

Within his discipline, Taylor has many interests. A few areas are health, mental health, social policy analysis, maternal child health, clinical practice and minority social welfare. "Currently I am involved in clinical research designed to assist psychiatrically ill individuals with limited way finding skills or ability to develop independent travel skills by public transportation so that they can receive treatment in less restricted environments.

"In a more generic vein, I am concerned about the lack of public transportation on the lower Eastern Shore," said Taylor. "Transportation is intricately linked to people's health. It is a critical concern of mine because places that are more rural than Salisbury have public transportation. Mobility, in its broadest perspective, is one of the most important skills a human being possesses," he said.

His research on the subject has paid off in an unexpected way. Next month, a paper of Taylor's will be published in a special issue of the Transportation Research Record, one of two national transportation research journals.

Taylor's commitment to humanity is evident when asked about the quality of social work graduates from SSU. "One of my goals while at Salisbury is to remind students that I'm not here to produce 'A' students," he said. "I am here to produce competent students with a multi-ethnic humanitarian focus."

A competent student to Taylor is one who is capable of performing the skills of social work that help people solve their problems. "It (social work) requires a person to know himself or herself in order to help others. This help is not predicated on receiving A's but can be done by 'C' or better students. My mission while serving in various capacities at SSU is to effect positive social change that moves the lower Eastern Shore into the 21st century of human progress. The time for structural change has and always will be now," said Taylor.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

FEBRUARY 21, 1991 VOL. XII NO. 19

Reaching Out to the SSU Community in the Middle East

Some two dozen students, faculty, staff and alumni from the University are currently serving in Operation Desert Storm.

For those wishing to correspond or send packages to these SSU community members, the campus Gulf Advisory Committee has gathered the names and addresses listed below.

Helpful items to send to troops in Saudi Arabia include: lip balm, toilet articles (men's and women's), eye drops, foot powder, deodorant, tee-shirts, sun visors, insect repellent, sunblock, cotton socks, books (paperback) and appropriate magazines.

Things forbidden to send: alcoholic beverages, pork and pork-related products, pornography, munitions and material contrary to the Islamic religion.

Packages should be kept as small and as lightweight as possible. The Postal Service recommends packages no heavier than 12 ounces and if at all possible using bubble pack mailers instead of boxes.

If you would like to send a package or write a letter to any service person, use the following address: Any Servicemember, Operation Desert Storm, APO NY 09848-0006.

Every Wednesday at 7 p.m. a prayer meeting is held at Christ United Methodist Church on Phillip Morris Drive. Everyone is welcome.

If you have further questions about the Persian Gulf War and its impact on the SSU campus, contact SSU Gulf Crisis Committee members: Dr. Phillip C. Bosserman, Robert Carr, Dr. Stephen Gehnrich, Sue Hardman, Gains Hawkins, Brian Holmes, Kerrie Jones, David Kelser, David Ganoe, Allison Maynard, Barry King, Agata Liszkowska, Lynn Maguire, Dr. Robert McBrien, Elaine Patterson, Jim Phillips, Elizabeth Rettew,. Maryanne Southard and Donald Whaley.

As of January 22, the following were involved in Operation Desert Storm. Please write them. (If anyone is aware of others, please inform a member of the Gulf Advisory Committee. Those on the list are sent a copy of the weekly campus Newsletter and the student Flyer News/Magazine.)

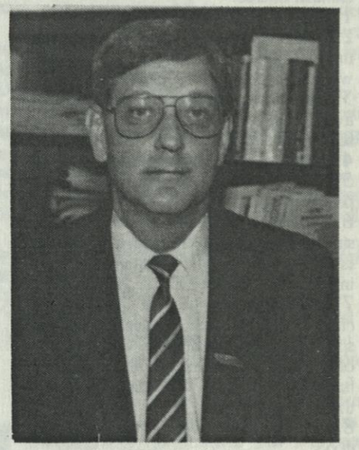
Visiting Dean— A New Type of Administrator



Dr. Elliot Kline

Dr. Elliot Kline likes to tell the story of his first faculty meeting at the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business.

Kline took over as visiting dean at the 1,300 student business school in September, but he waited a month before calling the meeting. The wait was designed to give Kline time to meet the faculty on an individual basis.

At the meeting, Kline began by telling business school faculty members that he was there to tell them what was good and bad about the school, and what they needed to accomplish in the coming year—then Kline took his shirt off.

"I said 'I don't want you to think I'm some kind of Superman, that I think I know all the answers and that I have a big "S" on my chest that motivates me, but there is something on my chest that does motivate me,' and I slowly removed my tie, took off my sport coat, unbuttoned my shirt and I turned around and took off my shirt," Kline said with a laugh. "For my birthday, someone had given me a T-shirt that says Rent-A-Dean, and that is what I was wearing."

The phrase on that birthday gift explains in a humorous way the field Kline is attempting to carve out, because he is an apparent pioneer when it comes to being a visiting dean—someone who fills in, runs the school and helps conduct the search for a permanent dean.

Both the American Association of College Schools of Business and the National Faculty Exchange have not come across anyone of

Book Rack Deadline

The Book Rack will begin returning unsold textbooks to the publishers around February 25. It asks patrons to please purchase all of the textbooks they will need for the spring 1991 semester prior to February 25.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Athletics Internship

The Department of Physical Education and Athletics seeks applicants for an internship in collegiate sports management.

Candidates should need the internship to fulfill graduation requirements for a master's degree.

General responsibilities include assisting the professional staff in the coordination of all phases of operation of the Maggs Center. Specific responsibilities may include assisting in scheduling student employees, scheduling the facility for various practices and activities, supervising the facility, assisting in administration of athletic events, supervising special events, checking inventory, evaluating programs, supervising computer usage and newsletter, and other duties as assigned.

The nine-month internship begins September 1. The annual stipend is $8,000.

Deadline for application is March 22 or until the position is filled. Send a letter of interest, resume and two letters of recommendation to Dr. Thomas P. Stitcher, Facilities Coordinator, Maggs Physical Activities Center, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Fiscal/Clerk Secretary

The Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics seeks an individual for the contractual position of fiscal clerk/secretary.

The successful candidate must possess expertise in Lotus 1-2-3, filing and record keeping, and have upper-level typing skills, a comprehension of budget management and records, and other applicable office management skills.

The salary is $7.54 per hour for a 40-hour week. This is a contractual position (no paid benefits).

Qualified individuals may apply by submitting a resume and completing an application in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD, by February 20.

Models Needed

Models for painting and drawing classes are needed. Please contact the Art Department at 543-6270.

Folk Pop Performer In Gulls Nest Feb. 23

Karen Goldberg, among the "New Wave" of folk pop, performs in the Gulls Nest in the Guerrieri University Center on Saturday, February 23, at 8 p.m. A Baltimore born singer/songwriter who has been performing mainly in Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and New York since 1973, she has three albums, the most recent a solo released last fall. She has performed in Los Angeles, New York, Key West, FL, and the Virgin Islands. She supported The March for the Animals sponsored by National Alliance for Animals Legislation held in Washington, D.C. before a crowd of 50,000 people.

Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarships

Applications for the Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarships are in the Financial Aid Office. Deadline is March 31.

The scholarship is not need-based. The award is up to $5,000 per academic year for up to four years. Recipients must teach two years (in any state) for every year of scholarship received.

Applicants must be Maryland residents to apply who attend a college or university in Maryland if accepting award. Applicants must have been in top 10 percent of their high school graduating class.

Caving and Backpacking

The next Outdoor Club meeting is scheduled for Monday, February 18, at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. All students are welcome.

Sign-up for the caving trip in Bath County, VA, and backpacking on the Shenandoah trail on the weekend of March 1 begins Monday evening. Non-experienced backpackers are welcome. Anyone interested in the trip should attend the meeting on February 18 or 25 for more information.

The Outdoor Club continues its efforts to encourage environmental awareness on campus. Anyone interested in serving on an environmental awareness committee, please attend the meeting on February 18.

All Outdoor Club meetings are scheduled for Mondays in the Nanticoke room A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other tentative trips planned for the spring semester include: March 22 - April 1 (spring break), canoeing in Florida or backpacking on Appalachian Trail in North Carolina; April 19-21, backpacking in northern Virginia; and May 3-5, hang gliding in Naggs Head, NC.

Math Professors At AMS Conference

Several faculty members from the Department of Mathematical Sciences recently attended the joint meetings of the American Mathematical Society and the Mathematical Association of America in San Fransciso.

Dr. Ben Fusaro organized two sessions for the meeting—one session on mathematics and the environment, the other on the mathematical modeling competition, an event founded by Fusaro in 1985.

Dr. Kathleen Shannon presented a paper titled "Special Problems: An Alternative to Journals in Mathematics Courses," a joint work with Dr. Elizabeth Curtin in the English Department.

Professors Barbara Wainwright and Homer Austin presented a paper titled "Elementary Statistics via Electronic Classroom: A Course," a joint work describing instruction at SSU made possible by the newly equipped classrooms with computers and overheads.

Nursing Computer Lab Open House

The Department of Nursing is hosting an open house of the new Nursing Computer Lab on Wednesday, February 27, from 11 a.m. - 1 p.m. This lab, which is available for both undergraduate and graduate nursing students, was funded as parts of two grants from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

This lab is located in the Power Professional Building, room 312. The room may easily be reached by walking through the walkway near the Math Department to the parking lot behind the Power Professional Building. Turn left and enter the first door on your left that is marked Nursing Computer Lab.

The campus community is invited to come see what is available in this new lab. Various nursing computer programs will be available to preview.

Mark your calander now and don't forget to drop by February 27.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

Congratulations are extended to wrestler Andy Ryan, SSU's lone qualifier from last weekend's regional competition for the Division III national championship. Augustana College in Rock Island, IL, will host the finals on March 1 and 2. Ryan won two of his three matches and finished as the 190-pound weight class runnerup to earn the bid to the championship.

Other Sea Gulls who fared well at the regionals in Rochester, NY but failed to make the national championship field include HWT. Ron Rossi and 167-pounder Marty Lewis. Rossi finshed fifth in his weight class, while Lewis placed fourth.

Both Sea Gull basketball teams begin championship play in the Eastern States Athletic Conference tournaments this week. The men's team, riding an eight-game winning streak, opens Thursday with a first round game against Lincoln University. The Gulls topped Lincoln 106-96 at home last Wednesday in the final home game of the season. The tournament is being hosted by ESAC regular season champion Shenandoah College in Winchester, VA.

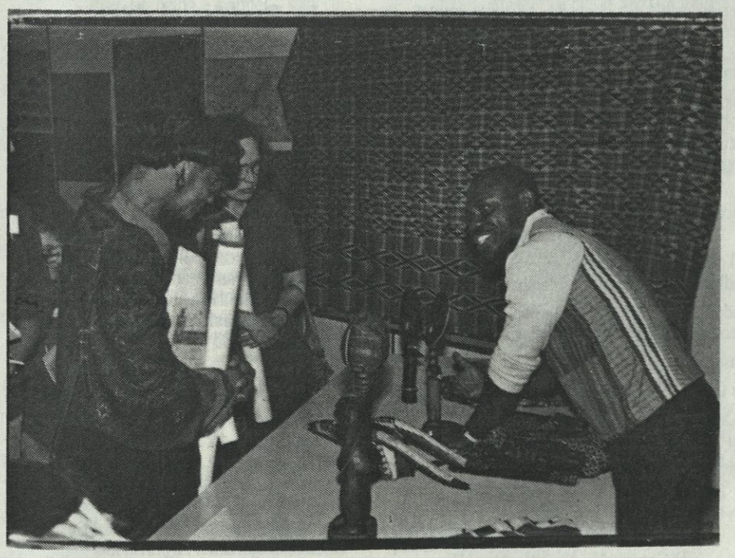
The women's team opens play in their tournament on Friday, meeting
Allentown in the first round. Should SSU avenge their 63-60 midseason loss to Allentown in the opener, the Gulls would move into the championship on Saturday, probably against Frostburg State, who serves as the host school.

Noting individual accomplishments, Andre Foreman became the first ever player in the state of Maryland, Division I, II or III, to reach 2,000 career points in his junior year. The 6-6 forward achieved the milestone last week against Lincoln University. He finished with 45 points in the game. On Monday, Foreman was also named the ECAC South Region player of the week for the fourth time in five weeks. Over 33 teams nominate players for the weekly award.

Meanwhile, senior David Byer set a new single-season school record for most three-point field goals made when he netted three in SSU's 121-86 win at Upsala last Saturday. Byer's 78 treys on the season broke Joe McCahon's mark of 76 set last year.



Peter Pippim of the Smithsonian Institution

The Rhythms of Africa in Music and Art February 21

A program which explores the relationship between rhythms in African music and patterns in African textiles is being presented by Peter Pippim of the Smithsonian Institution at Salisbury State University. Pippim, a member of the education staff of the National Museum of African Art, gives a lecture-demonstration on Thursday, February 21, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited. As part of the demonstration, participants will be asked to play instruments to learn African musical structures and compare them with the complex visual patterns found in textiles, said Vaughn White, SSU director of minority affairs. The music and art presentation is part of African-American History Month celebrations at the University. Pippim has been at the Smithsonian for 15 years. He earned a B.A. in anthropology from Fordham University and a diploma in motion picture production from the Institute of Photography in New York. A native of Kumasi, Asante, Ghana, Pippim has also served as field research assistant on a number of archaeological sites. Working with Rene Bravermann, Pippim conducted art historical field work with nine ethnic groups in Ghana, the Ivory Coast and Upper Volta. For more information call White at 548-4503.

Dance Company Spring Calendar

The Salisbury State University Dance Company presents an array of performances and workshops during the spring semester including a visit by the acclaimed Alvin Ailey Repertory Dance Ensemble.

On Sunday, February 24, at 2 p.m. the Dance Company performs an Appalachian square dance in the Guerrieri University Center as part of the Campus Showcase. The Chautauqua-style format of performances is free and open to the public.

"DanceWorks—An Informal Showing of Student Dances" will be performed on Wednesday, February 27, at 7 and 8 p.m. in the Maggs Dance Studio on campus. Admission is free.

Guest artist Peter Madden conducts a master class in the Dance Studio on Tuesday, March 5, at 7:30 p.m. Again, admission is free and the public is invited.

The Alvin Ailey Ensemble visits on Thursday, April 27, with a 7 p.m. lecture and demonstra tion followed by a master class at 8 p.m. in Maggs Gym. The event is sponsored by the Dance Company, the Office of Minority Affairs, the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council.

The Dance Company's annual spring concert, this year featuring guest artist Jeanne Denney, will be Thursday-Saturday, May 9-11, in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The program will feature choreography by guest artists Linda Lloyd and Peter Madden, and Dance Company director Victoria Hutchinson.

The Dance Company will also present a lecture and demonstration at Pinehurst Elementary School on March 20 during "Fine Arts Week"; perform for Furnance Town's "Rites of Spring" event on April 13; perform at the Salisbury Festival on May 3-4; and present a children's matinee for area schools on May 9.

For more information contact the Dance Company at 543-6353.

Politics '92: An Evening With Ray Briscuso

On Tuesday, March 5, at 7:30 p.m., the SSU Political Science Club will welcome Ray Briscuso as a guest speaker. Briscuso is a former First District Congressional candidate who, in 1988, served as the Maryland state chairperson for the Bush-Quayle campaign. He has been credited by many as the engineer of Bush's upset victory over Gov. Michael Dukakis in Maryland, a state noted for its strong Democratic majority.

Briscuso will be speaking on the current profile of the state and national electoral arena, and how each are being affected by today's tumultous world situation. As a man who has attained prominence in both political realms, his insights will be both timely and provocative.

The event will be held in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Admission is free and all are invited to attend. For more information, please contact club president Len Foxwell at 228-3306, or club advisors, Drs. Michael O'Loughlin or Cyril Daddieh at 543-6388.

Seminar Available On Home Business

The Small Business Development Center Eastern Shore Region (SBDC) is sponsoring a seminar, "How to Start a Home Based Business," on Thursday, February 21, 4-7 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri Center. Co-sponsored by the Delmarva Business League, the seminar is free and the public is invited to attend.

For more information contact the SBDC at 543-6394.

WORKSHOPS: Resume Writing—A one-session workshop designed to help the student develop one of the job campaign's basic tools. Discussion includes such topics as various formats, uses of resume, printing, cover letters and sections of the resume. Handouts are provided. Bring a draft resume if available. Tuesday, February 26, 3:30-5 p.m.; Thursday, March 7, 3-4:30 p.m.; and Wednesday, March 20, 10-11:30 a.m.

Interview Skills—A must for every senior. This one-session workshop is designed to assist in preparing for the professional job interview. A review of such topics as nonverbal behavior, dress, questions, and interview phases and preparation is featured. Handouts are provided. Prior attendance at a senior interview and placement briefing is suggested. Thursday, February 28, 4-5:30 p.m.; and Monday, March 11, 10-11:30 a.m.

All workshops require sign-ups. Contact Placement Office, Guerrieri Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

GENERAL INFORMATION: PROJECT SEARCH: CAREERS FOR TEACHERS—April 25 and 26 at the University of Delaware. Deadline for registration is March 22.

CONNEXION: A new free service provided by Peterson's that links people in transition to employers and graduate schools across the country. This service is free.

Phi Alpha Theta Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, is soliciting nominations for its spring initiation.

Phi Alpha Theta requires the junior, senior or graduate student to have completed at least 12 semester hours in history courses and to have an overall average of B in at least two-thirds of the remainder of all work. In addition, students must rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

For information about Phi Alpha Theta contact the co-advisors Dr. Greg Ference and Dr. Clara Small or the History Department, by Friday, March 15.

Pi Gamma Mu Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in social science, is soliciting nominations for its spring initiation.

Pi Gamma Mu requires the completion of at least 20 hours in five social science areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations) and in some other social sciences courses such as social psychology, criminal justice and geography, with an average of B (85 percent). In addition, an eligible student should be in the top 35 percent of his/her class (senior, junior, etc.).

For information regarding specific qualifications for Pi Gamma Mu membership, students should contact the co-advisors Dr. Clara Small or Dr. Greg Ference or the History Department, by Friday, March 15.

Wine Cooler

by Jennifer Berkman
Director, Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center

It looks, tastes and costs about the same as wine coolers. It is very often displayed in the same case as wine coolers in many convenience stores. However, Cisco is not just another wine cooler.

Two bottles of it can kill a 100-pound person. Cisco is actually a dangerously potent alcoholic beverage. Called "liquid crack" on the streets, it contains the same amount of alcohol as four shots of 80-proof liquor. Some people purchase Cisco thinking it is a new cooler-type beverage. The problem lies in the way it is packaged and marketed—it doesn't look harmful.

People drinking Cisco can develop high blood alcohol content quickly, often without realizing what is happening. A 150-pound person who drinks one bottle of Cisco an hour will be legally drunk in Maryland and could drive with a blood alcohol content over the legal limit. Once people reach a certain level of toxicity due to the amount of alcohol in their system, they are in medical danger. With Cisco, that level is reached more quickly, sometimes without the individual realizing what is happening or having time to slow their drinking rate. For more information about Cisco, contact the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center at 543-6309.

Graduate Assistantships In Residence Life

The Department of Residence Life will have three openings for the academic year 1991-92 for resident directors. The resident directors supervise a residence hall and its staff and support a secure living/learning environment.

Applicants must be enrolled in a fall 1991 graduate program and must possess strong interpersonal skills. Remuneration includes a tuition waiver, furnished one bedroom apartment, meal plan and $2,250 per semester.

Applications will be available Friday, March 1, in the Housing and Residence Life Office in Chesapeake Hall. They are due March 22.

For more information call Andrea Goldblum at 546-2483.

On-Campus AA Meetings

AA meetings will be held on campus in Potomac Hall, room 123, from 3:30-4:30 p.m. Tuesdays. The open meetings are to be held each Tuesday throughout the semester (except spring break). Anyone who has a desire to stop drinking or a sincere interest in learning more about Alcoholics Anonymous is welcome to attend. For more information, call the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center at 543-6309. All meetings are confidential.

Drug Prevention Materials Available

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center houses a repository of materials on alcohol, drugs and related issues. Any faculty, staff, student or community member can check out videotapes, reference materials or pamphlets. The program is grant-funded and serves the Eastern Shore of Maryland. For more information, contact the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center (located behind Maggs Gym) at 543-6309.

Computer Bowl March 1

The Second Annual Eastern Shore Computer Bowl, a high school competition in computer literacy and programming co-sponsored by Delmarva Power and the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, will be held on Friday, March 1, in the Guerrieri University Center.

The Computer Bowl is a unique cooperative outreach effort by the University and Delmarva Power to promote computer literacy on the Eastern Shore. "The competition encourages teamwork, creativity, and computer and programming skills. It is an event where everyone ends up being a winner," said Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School.

High schools from all Eastern Shore county school districts in Maryland and Virginia have been invited to participate, and so far 22 teams have registered. According to Mary Lou Malone, chair of the Department of Computer Science and director of the 1991 Eastern Shore Computer Bowl, "We are delighted that four teams from Virginia will be participating in this year's event. It's a unique opportunity for some of our best high school computer students to gather for a day of challenge and excitement."

Each high school is permitted to bring two teams of four students to compete. Students will be tested on their basic knowledge of computers and computer programming. For the programming competition, each team will have two hours to solve over 20 programming problems with points awarded based on the number of problems solved and the difficulty of those problems. The programs will be judged by faculty from the Henson School and volunteers from the Office of Computer Services on campus.

During the programming competition, the coaches and district supervisors who have accompanied the students will be invited to attend two "coaches' sessions" in the Pocomoke Room: "Fractals and the Geometry of Nature" by Dr. Ben Fusaro and "I've taught the basics of BASIC . . . What next?" by Dr. Don Cathcart, both of the SSU Department of Mathematical Sciences.

Following the competition, the students and coaches will be given a buffet luncheon followed by an awards presentation. Delmarva Power, which co-sponsors the event with the Henson School, will award the first place team prize money to be used toward the purchase of computer hardware and software. The teams placing first, second and third will receive plaques, and team members will receive savings bonds. Each participant will receive an official Computer Bowl tee-shirt and a certificate of participation. "We appreciate the support which Delmarva Power has given to this event," Malone said, "and hope that the Eastern Shore Computer Bowl will continue as an annual event."

Cathcart Visits Parkside High School

by Rosemary Heher

It has been said that despite the passing of over 2,000 years, Euclid, the so-called "Father of Geometry," would find little difference in the way most students traditionally have learned geometry. But no longer is this true at Parkside High School in Salisbury! The computer has brought about significant changes in the way Parksiders are "doing geometry." As a result of a recent visit by Dr. Donald Cathcart, professor of mathematics in the Henson School of Science and Technology, students in Rosemary Heher's geometry classes are being exposed to state-of-the-art geometry in a way that Euclid never would have dreamed possible.

Cathcart provided Heher's students with an opportuntiy to work with interactive computer software and technological equipment ordinarily not available to Wicomico County math students. Using computer generated models, the students were able to sharpen their inductive and deductive reasoning skills by conjecturing about the models and experimenting with geometric proofs for those conjectures believed to be mathematically sound.

As a result of Giant Food's "Apples for the Students" program, students are using new Macintosh computers and award winning math software to better understand geometric principles. Heher's recent award of a Delmarva Power Company mini-grant resulted in Parkside's acquiring additional Macintosh computer hardware which will permit spreadsheet and database applications in the general math curriculum.

In visiting Parkside, Cathcart provided additional opportunities for Heher's students to view computer modeling as a mathematical tool. Later in the spring, some of Heher's accelerated geometry students are scheduled to visit the new electronic classroom installed in the SSU Department of Mathematical Sciences and math faculty members will guide the students through computer generated activities appropriate for their level of study in geometry.

On hand for Cathcart's visit were Ed Carey, supervisor of Mathematics and Computer Science Instruction for Wicomico County Schools, and Philip Briggs, Parkside High School principal. Of special interest to the students was the fact that Cathcart revealed both their teacher and principal were his former students. However, at the time they were his math students, computer technology had not been developed sufficiently for it to be as interesting and meaningful as today.

WSCL Has a Quiet Drive

WSCL-FM, 89.5 Delmarva Public Radio, has decided to cancel the March fund drive.

Fred Marino, WSCL general manager explained, "Instead, through Aporil we will be running a quiet drive. The station hopes to raise $60,000 by July," said Marino. This includes income from a thousand new members and also renewal memberships.

"Delmarva art audiences," added Marino, "have an exceptionally good track record of supporting work they value. It's up to our listeners to make this drive a success, and we're confident they will."

During the quiet drive, WSCL-FM will devote a few minutes each hour to produced "spots" during which on-air personalities at the station and other volunteers from the Delmarva community will explain how listeners can contribute and why.

The station needs to raise these funds because nearly 30 percent of the station's cash comes from listeners. Continued classical music programming and in-depth news reporting rely increasingly on income from listeners.

Membership benefits include participation in WSCL's special events, opportunity to attend receptions at WSCL, tours of the station, and the finest music and public affairs programming on Delmarva.

Ulm, Hopson Published

Dr. Ronald Ulm and Dr. Natalie Hopson of the Psychology Department and Dr. Joseph Volpicelli of the University of Pennsylvania have collaborated on a second publication which has recently been accepted in the journal, Alcohol. The title of the article is "Alcohol drinking in rats during and following morphine injections."

The results showed that morphine reduced alcohol consumption in rats in a dose dependent manner — the more morphine, the more reduction. Over an eight-day period following the morphine injections, the rats increased their alcohol consumption well above their original baseline levels and above a comparison control group which had no morphine injections.

At a theoretical level, these results implicate the endorphin system of the brain in alcohol drinking. Endorphins are morphine like chemicals occurring naturally in the brain which help modulate pain as well as feeling of euphoria.

At a practical level, the results may apply to humans in that they suggest that people may be highly susceptible to the rewarding effects of alcohol if they have recently used pain reducing drugs.

In previous research, these authors have shown that alcohol seems to "hit the spot" particularly after stressful events. The present research extends this finding to substances such as morphine as well; namely, that a period of increased vulnerablilty to alcohol exists for a substantial period of time after either morphine injections stop and/or after stressful experiences stop.

The research article represents the second successful collaboration of these authors in combining practical and theoretical research.

Great Leader Rescheduled

The Great Leader Lecture by Michael L. Smith, president and CEO of the Mayflower Group Inc., scheduled for Thursday, February 21, has been rescheduled for Wednesday, March 13, at 11:05 a.m., in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

For more information contact the Perdue School of Business, 543-6316.

Bloodsworth Salisbury Festival Poster Judge

If one image could best capture the essence of the Salisbury Festival, what would it be?

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council is sponsoring the First Annual Salisbury Festival Poster Design Competition to try and answer that question. This competition, which has a $1,000 winning prize, is open to artists and graphic designers from the Delmarva Peninsula, the Baltimore/Washington area, and the Wilmington/Philadelphia area. The goal of the artist should be to create a poster that best describes and celebrates the Salisbury Festival. The competition entry deadline is Friday, March 15.

The competition entries will be reviewed by a panel of distinguished design professionals. The panel members are Steve Makovenyi, visual information specialist and exhibit designer with the Smithsonian Institution; Lew Fifield, chairman, Visual Communication Department, Maryland Institute, College of Art; and Carol Bloodsworth, director of publications, Salisbury State University. They will judge the submitted posters according artistic excellence, capturing the essence of the Salisbury Festival, effectiveness as a poster, and its ability to be reproduced. The artist of the winning entry will receive a $1,000 prize. The selected Salisbury Festival 1991 poster will be sold at the Salisbury Festival (May 3-5), through local galleries and all the entries will be exhibited at a special showing prior to the festival at The Gallery in Court Plaza.

To receive the Salisbury Festival 1991 Poster Design Competition Guidelines call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

Book Rack Prepares For Tough Times

"Most of us are aware of the fact that we are in a recession," said Stanley Shedaker, director of the Book Rack. "In other words, times are tough—money is tight. You don't have money to waste, and neither does the Book Rack. We need your cooperation in getting our money where it will be of the most use."

More used books are provided by the Book Rack than ever before. Used books are priced 25 percent less than new books, and represent a savings to the consumer. "Now we need your help, and you can help us get our cash back into circulation again," said Shedaker. "This is how—purchase all the books you'll need for the spring semester prior to February 25."

"Cash flow" in business terms indicates how much cash is actually available for use. "The Book Rack, your campus bookstore, is a business like any other, and must keep track, among other things, of its cash flow," he continued. "Books sitting on our shelves represent unsold inventory. Unsold inventory must be converted into cash in one of two ways—either we must sell it, or we must return it to whomever we bought it from. Because of the nation's economy, it is imperative that we move our stock, convert it back into cash and get it moving again as soon as possible. Returning our books to their sources also helps the industry in general, in that our unsold stock becomes available for other stores to buy, thus relieving the publishers of 'out of stock' titles.

"This is the reason we are asking you to purchase all of your textbook needs prior to February 25. After February 25, unsold texts will be returned so that the credits received can be used to pay for next semester's books. A bookstore in Virginia was able to show a significant difference in their cash by adjusting the date for returning their unsold textbooks.

"Thank you for your help."

Kline's caliber who offers his expertise to schools on an interim basis.

"He's the only one I'm aware of at this point," said Eunice Lange, director of accreditation for AACSB. "There could be others, but they're not as flexible as Elliot."

Kline calls himself a management consultant and serves as president of In the Interim Management Consulting, a company he formed in 1989 after being asked to serve as visiting dean at the Robert Merrick School of Business at the University of Baltimore.

Until that request, Kline had plans to move to a beach in Florida after 21 years as a teacher, administrator and dean. His 12 years as business school dean at the University of the Pacific and the University of Denver make Kline a rarity, because the average life of someone holding that post is just under four years. In fact, of the 270 accredited business school programs in the United States, approximately one-quarter of the deanships turnover every year, Kline said. Which partly explains how Kline ended up at Baltimore and now at Salisbury State.

"So we were down in Florida, I believe it was about the end of September. We were looking for housing and attempting to buy a business . . . when I received a call from the University of Baltimore saying they would like me to come up there and be their visitng dean," said Kline. "I said 'no.'"

Kline had been recommended by Lange based on his past association with the St. Louis organization and his knowledge of accreditation.

Kline agreed to think about the offer and eventually took the post for six months, under certain conditions, which the school consented to do.

"We wanted someone who could help with the search process for a new dean but was not interested in the job itself as well as someone who was familiar with national accreditation," said Catherine Gira, provost at the University Baltimore. Once a university or college accquires accreditation it must maintain prescribed standards annually. The University of Baltimore has been accredited since 1983.

Kline ended up staying at the school for eight months. "Then I assumed I would just go back to Florida and start again," said Kline. Instead, a number of other schools contacted him. One of those phone calls came from Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs at Salisbury State.

"He called and asked for the same things (accreditation and a dean search); we talked about what it would take, and I said I would be willing to come for just nine months," he said.

Months later, Vice President Butler believes he made the right decision. "We're seeking accreditation and it's a fairly hard won process," said Butler. "We did not want to lose ground in terms (of that). When it became known that (Kline) was available, there was no other option."

Attaining accreditation would be an important step in helping Salisbury State build on the reputation of the Perdue School of Business. Not all business schools receive national accreditation. In fact, only 272 of the approximately 1,200 schools and programs of business in the nation have been accredited by AACSB. Fifteen schools are currently involved in the process.

"We can say we're the greatest thing in the world," Butler said. "But accreditation from a national organization is an independent validation of that belief. Butler also noted that there is some correlation between accreditation and the quality of education a school can offer to students.

Salisbury State is in the first year of the lengthy process which entails a self-study of curriculum and faculty, and a great deal of analysis. Once the self-study is completed, AACSB will review it. Butler said that if all goes well, SSU would receive accreditation during the next two or three years.

Both Butler and Gira agree that using Kline in the interim worked out well for a number of reasons, mainly because of the talent and knowledge he posseses.

"He's not ensconced in any kind of system," Butler said. "He brings a fresh approach." Gira added, "It keeps the whole internal operation virtually intact. In Elliot's case, what's really valuable is his recent connection with accreditation, the vitality he brings to it."

Kline is unsure of what he will do when he leaves Salisbury State in May. "I'm not actively looking for my next post, although I would like to continue being a visiting dean," he said. He would, however, like more people to know about what he is doing and has tried to convince others in the field to give being a "Rent-A-Dean" a try.

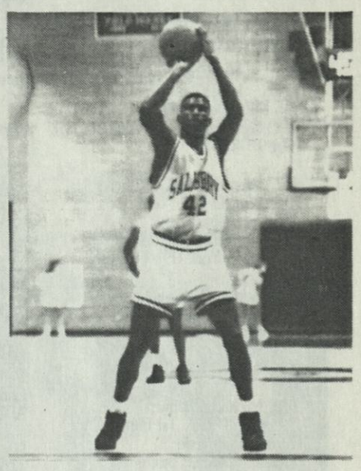
"I called some other deans my age, who I don't think are particularly happy about what they are doing, and said 'Why don't you join me on this?'" Kline said. "And not one of them would do it. There are some valid reasons for not being a visiting dean, including giving up job security and frequent moves."

Kline said most visiting dean positions do not open up until the spring semester. If no schools contact him, he plans to send out letters to presidents of universities and private industry.

Would bringing in a visiting dean work at other institutions? Both Lange and Betty Worley of the National Faculty Exchange believe it could, provided the person and the school meet each other's needs. "It's just personal preference of the president or provost of a university," Lange said. "But I think for some institutions, it's the right idea."

Worley notes that a visiting dean would need strong faculty and staff support in order to make the effort work. "You can't just walk in tomorrow and be an administrator. I think it probably takes special circumstances to make it work," said Worley, adding, "I think it's a terrific idea."

Kline meanwhile, could not be happier. "It's fun when I do it this way. It takes sophisticated University administrators to hire a visiting dean, and it's satisfying working with such administrators. You don't have fun when you're hired to do a job and the people who hired you make it impossible for you to do that job. This often happens to permanent deans which is one reason for the high turnover. I haven't been angry in two years. I like owning my own soul!"



Andre Foreman

Foreman Named SI Player of the Week

Forward Andre Foreman is the Sports Illustrated "Player of the Week" for his effort in SSU's two wins last week. The 6-6 junior, who leads NCAA Division III in scoring with a 34.4 average, scored 86 points, grabbed 26 rebounds and had five steals. He also scored his 2,000th career point, becoming the first junior in the state of Maryland—Division I, II or III—to reach that milestone. Copies of the magazine are available at the SSU Book Rack.

This past Monday, Foreman became Salisbury State's career scoring leader when he tallied 34 points in the regular season finale at Messiah College. He now has 2,088 points entering Thursday's ESAC Tournament opener. Juan Gabourel (1976-80) was the previous career scoring leader with 2,064 points. Foreman snapped the school's single-season scoring record of 663 two weeks ago, and now has 809 points through 25 games.

SSU, which has won a school record nine straight games, meets Lincoln University in the conference tournament's first round at 7 p.m. on Thursday.

Dance Showcase Feb. 27

Here's a chance to see fellow students dance their hearts out! The SSU Dance Company is putting on a student showcase which features works choreographed by Holly Bryan, Kelli Dial, Liz Ellis, Christina Macabenta, Trudy Stevenson and Amber Wright. The music of Yello, Janet Jackson, and Metallica (to name a few) will set the beat on Wednesday, February 27, at the dance studio in Maggs Gymnasium. The Time Bomb, a local rap group, is scheduled for a special showcase introduction.

This informal concert also features an Appalachian square dance performed by the students of the PHEC 360 Dance in Education class. Admission is free but bring a dollar for the raffle! Show times are at 7 and 8 p.m.

A photographic exhibit of the Indians of southern Maryland, "The Birds Flew Off, The Preservation of a Culture," opens in the Atrium Gallery on Tuesday, March 5. The gallery is located next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center. The exhibit is open daily, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. through March 22. Admission is free.

Curated by Patricia King, chairwoman of the Governor's Interstate Indian Council's 41st annual meeting, the exhibit documents the Maryland Indian cultural experience historically and currently in photograph and word. Its purpose is to make Marylanders aware of its still viable indigenous community of Indians.

Chief among the groups, now thought to total more than 20,000, is the Piscataway who are spread mostly in Charles and Prince George's counties. The Piscataway Confederacy, an Algonquian-speaking tribe, settled on the rivers and inlets of the lower western shore of the Chesapeake several hundred years ago. Rather than follow the fate of other more southerly tribes who were compelled to seek land elsewhere, many Piscataway often cross-married and lived in a mixed land between the loosely-defined borders of one society and another.

"A strong message of the exhibit is that southern Maryland Indians are of today's society and today's world," said King. "They wanted to regain the dignity of their culture and fill the gaps of their historical past. The message, rather than angry and confrontational, is an uplifting re-affirmation of the American

English Stage Satire Is 'Survival of the Fastest'

Seated, first row—Martha Pfeiffer and Jennifer Clymer; row two—Will Shupe, Georgia Chipouras, Todd Gillenardo, Janean Gray, Stacy Pushkar and Chris Harris; row three—Sean Thomas, Donald Atkinson, David Hyland, Ed Atkinson, Nicole Wells, Alex Ulrich and John Venable.

A biting satire on courtship and marriage which is considered a comic masterpiece of the English stage opens this semester's theatre season.

"Love for Love" by William Congreve which begins a three weekend run on March 8, was performed first in 1695 in London during the apex of the morally lax Restoration period.

Three hundred years later "Love for Love" and Congreve's better known "Way of the World" "are still considered masterpieces because of their brilliant scenes, sparkling dialogue and clear-cut characterizations," wrote theatre historian Oscar G. Brockett.

For T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre at SSU, contemporary overtones abound in this satire. It has as many slamming bedroom doors, attempts at arranged marriages and frantic gold diggers and gold bricks as an episode from "Dallas" or "Dynasty."

Like characters on a TV soap, those in "Love for Love" are "game playing and malicious, but no one takes it seriously. It's survival of the fastest," Pfeiffer said.

'Savor the Symphony' Orchestra Fundraiser

Members of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University are in rehearsal for "Savor the Symphony III," the annual fund raiser to be held at the Guerrieri University Center on the campus of Salisbury State University on Friday, March 22, at 6:30 p.m.

As in the past, "Savor III" offers a sampling of the finest food and beverage in the area, while various ensembles of the SSO entertain with music.

"Dr. Mark Clinton's performance last year of Mozart's Piano Concerto #20 in d minor was so exciting that he is back this year to perform Mozart's Piano Concerto #23 in A Major," said Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, music director and conductor of the Orchestra.

After the piano concerto, several ensembles from within the Orchestra will perform throughout the Guerrieri Center while patrons sample food and beverages donated by area restaurateurs and caterers. The evening will end with a flourish of orchestral arrangements of show tunes and other old favorites, including a selection of songs performed by soprano Katherine Turner Barlow.

"This finale to a wonderful night includes ballroom dancing, heavenly desserts and flavored coffees," said Elliot.

Several area restaurants have already committed to exhibits at "Savor III." Among the early signers are the Atlantic Hotel, The Garden and the Sea Inn, Phillips Seafood Restaurants, English's Family Restaurants, the Plump Parrot and the Salisbury Sheraton Inn. Cheers and Pepsi have also signed up to participate again

Moment of Silence

On Thursday, February 28, at 10:05 a.m., Governor William Donald Schaefer, his cabinet and the members of the General Assembly will observe "Maryland's Moment of Silence" in support of American and allied troops serving in the Persian Gulf. All state agencies, including SSU, will also observe the moment of silence.

"Like the President, who has been called upon to make difficult decisions of tremendous significance and who has our support, our troops continue to have a special place reserved in our thoughts and prayers," said Gov. Schaefer. "Many of these dedicated and highly trained soldiers hail from Maryland. We want them to know that their efforts, courage and sacrifice are not forgotten. Hopefully, the Middle East crisis will reach an expedient and proper conclusion before the February 28 date. If this does happen, we will still mark this observance in honor of their contributions."

Social Work Club

The Social Work Club will hold its next meeting on Monday, March 4, at 8 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center near the fireplace. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Phi Alpha Theta Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, is soliciting nominations for its spring initiation.

Phi Alpha Theta requires the junior, senior or graduate student to have completed at least 12 semester hours in history courses and to have an overall average of B in at least two-thirds of the remainder of all work. In addition, students must rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

For information about Phi Alpha Theta contact the co-advisors Dr. Greg Ference and Dr. Clara Small or the History Department, by Friday, March 15.

Pi Gamma Mu Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in social science, is soliciting nominations for its spring initiation.

Pi Gamma Mu requires the completion of at least 20 hours in five social science areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations) and in some other social sciences courses such as social psychology, criminal justice and geography, with an average of B (85 percent). In addition, an eligible student should be in the top 35 percent of his/her class (senior, junior, etc.).

For information regarding specific qualifications for Pi Gamma Mu membership, students should contact the co-advisors Dr. Clara Small or Dr. Greg Ference or the History Department, by Friday, March 15.

Graduate Assistantships In Residence Life

The Department of Residence Life will have three openings for the academic year 1991-92 for resident directors. The resident directors supervise a residence hall and its staff and support a secure living/learning environment.

Applicants must be enrolled in a fall 1991 graduate program and must possess strong interpersonal skills. Remuneration includes a tuition waiver, furnished one bedroom apartment, meal plan and $2,250 per semester.

Applications will be available Friday, March 1, in the Housing and Residence Life Office in Chesapeake Hall. They are due March 22.

For more information call Andrea Goldblum at 546-2483.

On-Campus AA Meetings

AA meetings will be held on campus in Potomac Hall, room 123, from 3:30-4:30 p.m. Tuesdays. The open meetings are to be held each Tuesday throughout the semester (except spring break). Anyone who has a desire to stop drinking or a sincere interest in learning more about Alcoholics Anonymous is welcome to attend. For more information, call the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center at 543-6309. All meetings are confidential.

Drug Prevention Materials Available

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center houses a repository of materials on alcohol, drugs and related issues. Any faculty, staff, student or community member can check out videotapes, reference materials or pamphlets. The program is grant-funded and serves the Eastern Shore of Maryland. For more information, contact the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center (located behind Maggs Gym) at 543-6309.

'Buckle Up'

In recognition of the Maryland Chiefs of Police Association "Seat Belt Awareness Month," Dr. Bellavance urges all members of the University community to "buckle up" when driving or riding as a passenger in a motor vehicle.

Statistics have shown that traffic deaths rank as the number one killer of Americans between the ages of six months to 32 years, and that the probability of being involved in a motor vehicle accident is 86 percent during a lifetime.

To ensure personal safety for drivers and passengers through the use of seat belts, please "buckle up."

Linowes Commission Report

The report of the Maryland Commission on State Taxes and Tax Structure (Linowes Commission) is on reserve at the circulation desk of Blackwell Library.

The Commission's recommendations have received much media comment and are causing spirited discussion in the Maryland General Assembly.

Area Director Positions

Openings for area directors are anticipated July 1. Duties include recruitment, selection and supervision of resident assistant staff, delivery of educational programs and services, the handling of disciplinary cases and sanctions, and general administrative duties within two residence halls.

Each area director functions as an assistant director of residence life by overseeing departmentwide projects on a rotating basis. This is a live-in position on a 12-month appointment. Competitive salary, health insurance allowance, apartment, utilities, and meal plan are provided.

Master's degree in college student personnel, higher education, counseling or related field is required. Experience involving a multicultural emphasis and/or application of student development theory is desirable.

Send cover letter, resume and names of three references to: Dr. Kathleen E. Groutt, Director of Residence Life, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be processed beginning April 1 and continue until positions are filled. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. immigration and naturalization certification to accept employment.

Professor of Finance

The Perdue School of Business is seeking applications for an anticipated tenure-track opening in finance beginning August 15.

Qualifications include a Ph.D. in finance. Rank is open. Applicants should have expertise in financial management. Secondary fields in risk management and insurance or real estate finance are highly desired. The Perdue School requires a commitment to high quality teaching as well as an active research agenda. Candidates for a senior rank should have an established research record. Salary is competitive with AACSB institutions.

Send vita and letter of application to Dr. Robert C. Winder, Finance Search Committee, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Canoeing, Backpacking

The next Outdoor Club meeting is scheduled for Monday, March 4, at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. All students are welcome.

The Outdoor Club will again sponsor a canoeing trip to Florida and a back-packing trip to North Carolina over spring break, March 22-April 1. To sign-up or for more information come to the March 4 meeting. A $25 deposit will be required due to limited space.

The Outdoor Club is also selling ODC T-shirts at the meeting. The cost is $11.

The Outdoor Club meetings are on Monday evenings in the Nanticoke Room A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other tentative trips planned for the spring semester include backpacking in northern Virginia, April 19-21; and hang gliding in Nags Head, NC, May 3-5.

Briscuso Speaker

On Tuesday, March 5, at 7:30 p.m., the Political Science Club will welcome Ray Briscuso as a guest speaker. Briscuso is a former First District Congressional candidate who in 1988 served as the Maryland state chairperson for the Bush-Quayle campaign.

Briscuso will be speaking on the current profile of the state and national electoral arena, and how each are being affected by today's tumultuous world situation.

The event will be held in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Admission is free and all are invited to attend. For more information, contact club president Len Foxwell at 228-3306 or club advisors, Drs. Michael O'Loughlin or Cyril Daddieh at 543-6388.

Spring Amphibians At Pemberton Park

In March, frogs, toads and salamanders will be active and in various stages of their breeding season. Join naturalist Bob Kreiter as he searches for these creatures as well as their eggs and tadpoles at Pemberton Historical Park on Saturday, March 9, at 10 a.m.

The tour is limited to adults and children ages 10 and above. The registration fee is $2.

For more information or reservations, call 548-4900.

Study Abroad Information at SSU

In a world of expanding global awareness, international education has become an essential part of higher education. Despite turmoil in certain parts of the world, the international student exchange is following its usual course. An increasing number of international students arrive on most American campuses, and a large number of American students choose to spend a semester or a year abroad.

To accomodate the growing interest in travel and study in other countries, the University collects information on a variety of programs. They range from language specific studies to business, sciences, art or pre-medical studies. Students will be guided through appropriate policies and procedures concerning study abroad.

For more information regarding Spanish language study please contact Dr. William Palmer at 543-6522 in Holloway Hall, room 382. For other languages (French, German, Italian, Japanese, Russian, etc.) please see Dr. Gerald St. Martin at 543-6254 in Holloway Hall, room 383. For foreign study in other subjects please contact Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313 in the Guerrieri University Center, room 242E.

Self-Help and Support On Campus

The following groups meet weekly on campus for the convenience of students, faculty and staff. All meetings are confidential and open. Individuals with a desire to stop drinking/using, with a sincere interest in examining their level of use or in finding out more about a particular meeting are welcome.

"Peer Support Group" is for individuals who want to look at their level of drinking/using. Most people in this group are feeling their drinking has increased, their reasons for drinking have changed, or their behavior is influenced by their drinking. It meets Mondays from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Science Hall, room 323.

"Alcoholics Anonymous" is for individuals who have a desire to stop drinking or to learn more about AA. An open meeting, AA is based on "12 Steps," is non-smoking and wheelchair accessible, and features discussion. It meets Tuesdays at 3:30 p.m. in Potomac Hall, room 123.

"Narcotics Anonymous" is for individuals who have a desire to stop using or to learn more about NA. An open meeting, NA is based on "12 Steps," is non-smoking and wheelchair accessible, and features discussion. It meets Sundays at 7 p.m. in Caruthers 132.

Seventh Annual High School Math Contest Here

Students from 24 public high schools on the lower Eastern Shore have been invited to Salisbury State to participate in the seventh annual High School Mathematics Contest.

The contest will be held in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center on Monday, March 18. Registration is at 9:30 a.m. and the test is given in two parts, at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m.

The three highest scorers are declared winners and receive plaques and prizes; a permanent plaque engraved with the name of the first-place winner will remain in the Department of Mathematical Sciences. A luncheon given by the University follows the testing.

Dr. Phillip D. Creighton, dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, will give an address titled "On the Shoulders of Giants: A View of Math in the 21st Century."

Schools participating include Colonel Richardson High School, Federalsburg, MD; North Caroline High School, Ridgely, MD; Cambridge-South Dorchester High School, Cambridge, MD; North Dorchester High School, Hurlock, MD; Crisfield High School, Crisfield, MD; Washington High School, Princess Anne, MD; James M. Bennett High School, Salisbury; Parkside High School, Salisbury; Wicomico Senior High School, Salisbury; Mardela High School, Mardela Springs, MD; Pocomoke High School, Pocomoke, MD; Snow Hill High School, Snow Hill, MD; Stephen Decatur High School, Berlin, MD; Indian River High School, Frankfurt, DE; Cape Henlopen High School, Nassau, DE; Delmar High School, Delmar, DE; Laurel High School, Laurel, DE; Seaford High School, seaford, DE; Woodbridge High School, Woodbridge, DE; Northampton High School, Eastville, VA; Chincoteague High School, Chincoteague, VA; Nandua High School, Onley, VA; Arcadia High School, Oak Hall, VA; and Tangier Combine, Tangier, VA.

Arrangements for the contest are being handled by Homer W. Austin, Joseph D. Jones, Mohammad Moazzam, Mary A. Nichols and Barbara A. Wainwright, all of the Department of Mathematical Sciences. For further information, contact Wainwright at 543-6477.

Trolley to the 'Follies'

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) is sponsoring a bus trip to the Morris A. Mechanic Theatre in Baltimore for a matinee performance of the lavish musical, "Ziegfield: A Night at the Follies," on Saturday, April 13.

The bus leaves the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center parking lot at 9:30 a.m. Tickets are $54 for SWAC members and $56 for non-members and can be purchased through the SWAC Office. The ticket deadline is March 11. For more information call 543-ARTS.

Festival Applications Now Being Accepted

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council is once again looking for talented performers and gifted artists and craftmakers to be a part of the Salisbury Festival 1991. Delmarva's largest outdoor festival is May 3-5. The Arts Council, in conjunction with the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce, co-sponsors the event.

The Festival attracts crowds of over 20,000 people each year from around the state as well as up and down the East Coast. On Saturday, May 4, these thousands of people will be treated to two performance stages which will be active all day with local and regional performers. A stroll through the Downtown Plaza offers the chance to browse among over 40 exhibits and booths set up by area artists and craftmakers.

"In order to ensure a diverse performance mix that best accommodates all those interested in performing, we have to have an application process," said Ellen Walston, performance chair and secretary of SWAC's board of directors. "The arts and crafts booths are the same way," added Mary Lou Henry, arts and crafts chair and SWAC board member. "We have had to add booth spaces in the past two years and we anticipate the same situation this year."

The deadline for receipt of booth applications for original arts and crafts is Friday, March 29. The deadline for applications for interested performers is Friday, March 15. These early deadlines assure that publicity can be generated for the Festival, including a program/brochure for the day. Any applications received after the deadline dates may not be accepted.

For more information call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

Seafood Business Management Seminar

A "Seafood Business Management Seminar," sponsored by the Small Business Development Center (SBDC) Network, Eastern Shore Region, will be held on Thursday, March 21, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Carousel Hotel in Ocean City, MD. The SBDC Network is headquartered in the Perdue School of Business.

Seminar speakers include Dr. Richard Palmer, director of the Eastern Shore SBDC; Dr. Douglas Lipton, marine economic specialist with the Department of Agriculture and Resource Economics; Lloyd Byrd, director of purchasing at Phillips Seafood Restaurant; and William Sieling, chief of seafood marketing with Sea Grant at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

Co-sponsors of the event are the C.W. Amos Co. and the UMES Office of Continuing Education.

The registration fee of $40 (payable to the SBDC) should be sent to: Small Business Development Center, Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. For more information call the SBDC at 546-4325.

Peter Madden Offers Master Dance Class

The public is cordially invited to attend a master class by Peter Madden, artistic director of Baltimore's Dance Process, during his three-day residency at Salisbury State March 4-6.

Admission is free to the master class in modern dance which will be Tuesday, March 5, from 7:30-9 p.m., in the studio of Maggs gymnasium. Those wishing to participate are asked to wear loose clothing and be ready to dance, said Dance Company Director Victoria Hutchinson. The public is also invited to observe Madden's teaching techniques as he works with the Dance Company during his three day visit. For more information telephone 543-6353.

During his residency he will set his three-section modern dance work "Gallia" for the 22 company members. "Gallia" will be presented in the company's Spring Dance Concert May 9-11.

A certified movement analyst, dance therapist, and registered nurse, Madden is director of Certificate Extension Programs at the Laban Institute of Movement Studies in New York City, and on the Dance Therapy faculty at Goucher College, Baltimore, and the Theater Department of the Baltimore School for the Arts. He maintains a private practice, and conducts workshops and seminars around the country integrating movement theory with education, the arts and therapy.

Madden has taught, performed and choreographed extensively with national and international recognition. From 1974-1979, he was principal dancer and assistant director of Omega Liturgical Dance Company in New York City, performed with the New York Dance Quintent, and the Sachiyo Ito Kabuki Dance Company. His work has been presented at the Spoleto Dance Festival and in 1987 was nominated for an American Choreographer Award from the National Corporate Fund for Dance.

This Year's Gala Has 'Cruise' Theme

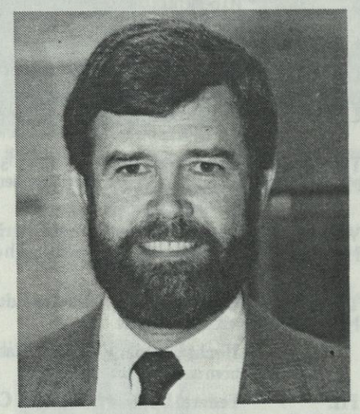
A "Cruise 'Round the World" is the theme of the Salisbury State University Foundation's 12th annual Gala on Friday, May 31, it was announced by Henry Hanna, chairman of the SSU Foundation board of directors.

"This is always a fun-filled event, surely one of the social highlights of the year on the Eastern Shore," said Hanna, president of Ahtes Hanna McLaughlin Realtors in Salisbury. "The decorations are invariably magnificient, the dinner and appetizers delicious, and the entertainment first-rate. Plus, it's a friendly, jovial atmosphere for everyone in attendance. And, for the first time, by moving the Gala to later in the spring, we will be able to hold the affair in the Guerrieri University Center, certainly one of the most stylish buildings on the Shore."

"Most importantly, however," said Hanna, "the Gala offers an opportunity for Eastern Shore residents to get to know the University better and to offer it some financial support by attending the event."

Hanna noted that Salisbury State University began as a two-year state normal school in 1925, involved in training public school teachers.

"What a difference 66 years can make," he said. "From a beginning of one building on 29 acres, an administrative and faculty staff of 13 and only 103 students on campus to a comprehensive university today. We can now boast 25 buildings on 100 acres and offer 37 undergraduate majors and graduate programs in business, education, nursing, English, history and psychology."



Henry Hanna, chairman of the board of directors SSU Foundation

"The Salisbury State University Foundation has much to celebrate on the 12th anniversary of the Gala," said Hanna.

The SSU Foundation, established in 1973 for the encouragement and enrichment of education at the University, is incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for education, charitable and scientific purposes.

Tickets for the Gala are $150 per couple. For more information, contact the Office of Institutional Advancement at 543-6175.

Cowall Published in Medical Technology Journal

Cynthia Cowall, an instructor in the Medical Technology Department, has recently won fourth place in a nationwide writing competition.

The contest was conducted by Advance for Medical Technologists, a news journal for laboratory professionals. The article written by Cowall, titled "National Health Insurance, Selected Options and Feasibility for the United States," has since been published in the journal.

The article explores the highly controversial issue of federal health insurance, including possible ways of administration according to advocates of the concept. Advantages and disadvantages of such a system for the U.S. are also explored as well as the difficulty of legislating such a highly charged issue.

Cowall teaches hematology, clinical microbiology and laboratory management to junior and senior students at Salisbury State. She holds a Master of Education from Salisbury State and Bachelor of Science from both Ohio State University and SSU.

Honors Convocation Deadline Upcoming

The Honors Convocation Committee would like to remind faculty and administration that the deadline for submitting Honors Convocation award selections to the Vice President of Academic Affairs Office is Friday, March 1.

Awards given by departments listed in last year's Convocation program will be included in the 1991 program upon request. Please respond on the blue form (received earlier) to Nancy Culver with title of award, name of recipient(s) and type of award.

Honor organizations are reminded to select new members so that names of all recipients can be submitted by the March 1 deadline.

For additional information please contact the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, or call 543-6080.

In fact, the characters seem caught in a state of suspended adolescence—"self-seeking, self-absorbed and totally subservient to their hormones," he noted.

The story centers on Valentine who has squandered his fortune pursuing the lovely Angelica, a young heiress with a mind of her own. Valentine's father, Sir Sampson, threatens to disinherit him in favor of his younger brother. Soon, however, the father is threatening to disinherit both and pursue Angelica himself.

Surrounding this troubled family are characters with names such as Scandal, Tattle and Frail who comically complicate eveyone's lives with racy shenanigans of their own.

Moral order is triumphant, however, as Angelica teaches Valentine that she is not a commodity to be traded nor a possession to be purchased. "True love must be met by true love," Pfeiffer said, thus the title of the play. "What we see in 'Love for Love' is ... (a) vision of comedy as holiday world of liberated vitality," wrote critic Brian Gibbons, and the adolescent vitality of its characters (whatever their age or amoral disposition) is part of the appeal of the script—particularly to college age actors, Pfeiffer noted. Leading the cast are Todd Gillenardo as Valentine, Janean M. Gray as Angelica, Donald Atkinson as Sir Sampson and Chris Harris as Scandal. Set and lighting design are by Gerry Patt, and costume design is by guest artist Beverly Thomas, currently costume designer for the Department of Theatre at Florida Atlantic University.

Performances are in Holloway Hall on stage at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, March 8-9, 15-16 and 22-23, and Thursday, March 14 and 21; with two matinees at 2 p.m., Sunday, March 10 and 17. Tickets are $5 general admission; $3 for students and senior citizens; and free for SSU students, faculty and staff. For more information contact the SSU theatre box office at 543-6228.

experience."

The exhibit consists of 25 photographs and a number of panels organized chronologically and conceptually with relation to posted oral histories. Many of the latest photographs are the work of Marion Warren, an accomplished Annapolis photographer who exhibited in the Atrium Gallery two years ago with photographs of the Chesapeake Bay.

Warren's photographs as well as the older, collected ones illustrate the symbolism of the show's title, "The Birds Flew Off." According to King, the flying bird in one of the oral histories symbolizes freedom to express the Indian heritage within the context a highly assimilated lifestyle.

Drake's lecture is part of the UMES Department of Natural Sciences spring seminar series. For more information contact Dr. M.M. Albano at 651-2200, extension 318 or 314.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Friday, March 1
NCAA Wrestling National Championship — 11 a.m.
Saturday, March 2
Baseball at Eastern (2) — 1 p.m.
Men's Basketball at Ramapo (NCAA Tournament) — 7:30 p.m.
Sunday, March 3
Baseball vs. Rutgers-Camden — 1 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

By Paul Ohanian

For the second time in school history, the men's basketball team has earned an invitation to the NCAA Division III Tournament, which begins this week. The Sea Gulls, 22-6, will visit Ramapo (NJ) College on Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Salisbury State solidified its position for a bid last weekend by winning its first Eastern States Athletic Conference championship. The Gulls beat Lincoln 99-82, Allentown 85-82, and Cabrini 112-94 to win the ESAC Tournament. Andre Foreman, who was honored as the conference's "Player of the Year" in a special awards ceremony held on the tournament's first day, was also selected as the tournament's MVP after he scored 90 points and grabbed 41 rebounds. Senior captain David Byer was also named to the all-tournament squad and was chosen to the all-conference second team. The Gulls take a school record 12-game winning streak into Saturday's playoff contest.

One member of the Sea Gull wrestling team will also be competing for a championship this weekend as Andy Ryan travels to the NCAA National Championship in Rock Island, IL. Ryan, 13-10 on the year, qualified for the nationals by placing second at 190 pounds at the Eastern Regionals two weeks ago.

The women's basketball team concluded its season at last weekend's ESAC Women's Tournament. Despite trailing by just three points with a little over two minutes remaining, the Gulls lost their opening round game to Allentown 80-64. SSU finished the year at 12-14. Frostburg State won the women's championship.

Meanwhile, baseball coach Deane Deshon begins his 28th season this Saturday as the Gulls open the season with a doubleheader at Eastern. SSU, the four-time ESAC champions, will likely be the team to beat once again in the conference. Seniors Frank Szymanski (.336, 5 HR, 23 RBI) and John Hershberger (.268, 22 RBI) lead the returnees, with the biggest question mark heading into the season surrounding the pitching staff. Doug Burig and Andy Redmond are the top two candidates to replace departed starters Mark Perry and Brad Beck. Salisbury's home opener will be on Sunday, with a 1 p.m game against Rutgers-Camden.

NCAA Tournament Tickets On Sale

Tickets for SSU's NCAA Tournament game at Ramapo (NJ) this Saturday are available from the Athletics Department at Maggs. The $4 general admission tickets will be on sale from Wednesday - Friday, 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MARCH 7, 1991 — VOL. XII NO. 21

SSU's Fusaro Wins Rotary's 'Unsung Hero' Award

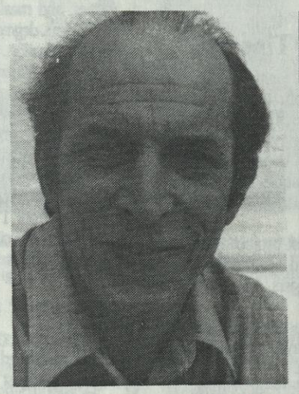
The Rotary Club of Wicomico County recently made Ben Fusaro, professor of mathematics in the Henson School of Science and Technology, the recipient of its first annual Unsung Hero Award for his work on environmental causes.

Award nominees Aaron Kleiman and King Burnett also received plaques for their work.

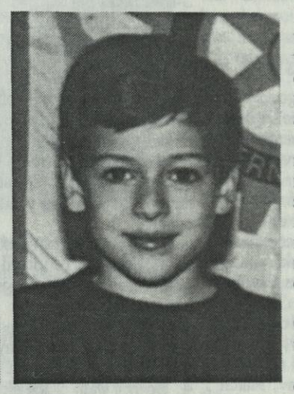
Project criteria for the award, which is for work in environmental causes, included the number of people involved, creativity and originality, the obstacles overcome and impact of the work.

Fusaro organized the Wicomico Environmental Trust (WET) and is the current president. The trust's goals are to voice environmental concerns, monitor local rivers and streams for pollution, and advocate and practice recycling.

"This person is deserving because he has given of himself," said George Godfrey of the Rotary Club. "He is genuinely honest and concerned about his fellow man."



Ben Fusaro



Aaron Kleiman

Fusaro received $1,000 to donate to his favorite charity ($400 to WET, $400 to the Lower Shore Land Trust, $150 to the Chesapeake Bay Foundation and $50 to Greenpeace). He credited the members of the trust for the award. "This consisted of a group effort."

"It's kind of amazing that a radical environmentalist like myself got the award," Fusaro said. As a supporter of "Maryland 2020" legislation, Fusaro said he realized many Rotary Club members did not agree with him on that issue.

He congratulated the Rotary Club for being open-minded about the award.

Burnett was not present at the ceremony because he was testifying in Annapolis on behalf of the environment. But Kleiman, 9, was on hand to accept his honorary mention plaque for starting a recyclable material collection center in his neighborhood.

Talks on the English Restoration

Short talks on the English Restoration world, including its theatre, will be presented for three consecutive Fridays prior to the University's theatre's production of the Restoration comedy, "Love for Love," beginning March 8.

The brief presentations from 10-20 minutes in length will be held in the Social Room of Holloway Hall at 7 p.m. Admission to the talks is free and the public is invited. The play will follow at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall on stage. Admission to the play is $3 and $5; free for SSU students, faculty and staff.

On Friday, March 8, Dr. William C. Horne of the English Department, will discuss Restoration satire and "Love for Love" as satire. First performed in 1695, "Love for Love" was written by William Congreve, whom critics rank as one of England's great dramatists. Horne's specialities are dramatic literature and satire.

On Friday, March 15 and 22, Sylvia Bradley of the History Department, will discuss the Restoration from an historical perspective. Bradley, whose specialities are English and colonial American history as well as archival and museum studies, is co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture.

For more information, call T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre, at 543-6229.

Noted Children's Author Here for Literature Conference

Lorna Balian

"Bah! Humbug? A Celebration of Children's Literature" is the name of the reading and children's books conference which will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center on March 15 and 16. The keynote speaker on Saturday is Lorna Balian, author and illustrator of more than 20 books for children which have sold more than half a million copies.

Best known for her holiday books, Balian's first is "Humbug Witch" in which a little witch could not get spells to work. Other books include "Leprechauns Never Lie," "A Sweetheart for Valentine," "Sometimes It's Turkey, Sometimes It's Feathers," "Humbug Rabbit," her Christmas story, "Bah! Humbug?" and a "Garden for a Groundhog." These books tell of a girl giant who grew so big that she could not find a dress to be married in, a child who found out that Santa was real, a turkey who was a dinner guest instead of the main course, and a groundhog who ate everything because he could not read the sign that told what was designated for him. These stories are well-known to teachers and children in this area because of their repeated use in the public schools.

Other books, which do not deal with the holidays, are "The Aminal," "I Love You, Mary Jane," "The Socksnatchers," "The Sweet Touch" and her latest book, "Wilbur's Space Machine." "Humbug Potion" is about a very homely witch who tried a beauty potion written in code.

Balian turned to creating children's books while her children were small and she could not work outside her home. Her six children are now adults, but she keeps doing the kind of tight, crisp artwork that John Carter van Vliet described as "...a very clean style with a simple—and deceiving—kind of primitivism. But most important are the story and the gentle messages for children."

Four Maryland authors will be featured at the Saturday program. Barbara Lockhart, author of "Read to Me, Talk With Me," is a kindergarten teacher from Dorchester County who collaborated with her daughter Lynn, to reproduce the book, "Rambling Raft." Margarette Reid will discuss her book, "The Button Box," listed as one of the best books in 1990 by Parenting magazine. Marcy Ramsey from Chestertown will show slides and tell about her book, "Chessie, The Sea Monster That Ate Annapolis." Cindy Ward, author of "Cookie's Week," will tell about her book which was illustrated by Tomie dePaola.

People attending the conference will have a choice of 11 reading related workshops: "Sparkling Stories: Children's Books That Inspire Creative Follow-up Activities to Share with Preschool Children" by Karen Callahan Neville,

A photographic exhibit of the Indians of southern Maryland, "The Birds Flew Off, The Preservation of a Culture," opens in the Atrium Gallery on Tuesday, March 5. The gallery is located next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center. The exhibit is open daily, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. through March 22. Admission is free.

For more information call 543-6100.

English Stage Satire Is 'Survival of the Fastest'

A biting satire on courtship and marriage which is considered a comic masterpiece of the English stage opens this semester's theatre season.

"Love for Love" by William Congreve begins a three weekend run on March 8.

Three hundred years later "Love for Love" and Congreve's better known "Way of the World" "are still considered masterpieces because of their brilliant scenes, sparkling dialogue and clear-cut characterizations," wrote theatre historian Oscar G. Brockett.

Performances are in Holloway Hall on stage at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, March 8-9, 15-16 and 22-23, and Thursday, March 14 and 21; with two matinees at 2 p.m., Sunday, March 10 and 17. Tickets are $5 general admission; $3 for students and senior citizens; and free for SSU students, faculty and staff. For more information contact the SSU theatre box office at 543-6228.

'Savor the Symphony' Orchestra Fundraiser

Members of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University are in rehearsal for "Savor the Symphony III," the annual fund raiser to be held at the Guerrieri University Center on the campus of Salisbury State University on Friday, March 22, at 6:30 p.m.

As in the past, "Savor III" offers a sampling of the finest food and beverage in the area, while various ensembles of the SSO entertain with music.

Tickets for "Savor III" are $25 per person and are on sale now at the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, all Peninsula Bank locations, the Salisbury branch of Hanson Savings Bank, and Hall's Tidewater Travel Agency. For more information, contact Hall's Tidewater Travel at 749-8131 or the SSU Department of Music at 543-6385.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Spring Amphibians At Pemberton Park

In March, frogs, toads and salamanders will be active and in various stages of their breeding season. Join naturalist Bob Kreiter as he searches for these creatures as well as their eggs and tadpoles at Pemberton Historical Park on Saturday, March 9, at 10 a.m.

The tour is limited to adults and children ages 10 and above. The registration fee is $2.

For more information or reservations, call 548-4900.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Candidates for a senior rank should have an established research record. Salary is competitive with AACSB institutions.

Send vita and letter of application to Dr. Robert C. Winder, Finance Search Committee, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Study Abroad Information at SSU

In a world of expanding global awareness, international education has become an essential part of higher education. Despite turmoil in certain parts of the world, the international student exchange is following its usual course. An increasing number of international students arrive on most American campuses, and a large number of American students choose to spend a semester or a year abroad.

To accomodate the growing interest in travel and study in other countries, the University collects information on a variety of programs. They range from language specific studies to business, sciences, art or pre-medical studies. Students will be guided through appropriate policies and procedures concerning study abroad.

For more information regarding Spanish language study please contact Dr. William Palmer at 543-6522 in Holloway Hall, room 382. For other languages (French, German, Italian, Japanese, Russian, etc.) please see Dr. Gerald St. Martin at 543-6254 in Holloway Hall, room 383. FAMILY FEUD. Sir Sampson (Donald Atkinson, left) threatens to disinherit his son Valentine (played by Todd Gillenardo, foreground center) as Valentine's brother (David Hyland, background left) and servant (Will Shupe, background right) look on. "Love for Love," a Restoration satire, opens Friday, March 8.

Restoration Society: An Alien World

English Restoration theatre is generally considered one of the most difficult for contemporary actors to perform, according to T. Paul Pfeiffer, SSU director of theatre. The language, society and way of seeing the world are vastly different from today's, Pfeiffer said.

The SSU director, whose production of "Love for Love," a 1695 satire on courtship and marriage, opens Friday, March 8, has been working with a cast of 15 in recreating such a world for University audiences.

Challenges abound. "Actors have to unlearn a blue jeans mentality, and substitute a code of behavior that dictates a facade of self-control," Pfeiffer said. With complex wigs, corsets and petticoats, men in stockings and knee britches, and indoors hats, it was also a period where artificiality ruled in dress.

And in language. "English was in transition, with both Elizabethan and modern phrasing used side by side," said Pfeiffer. "Ours is a visual culture. Language is not that important. Conversation is merely a means to an end. Elaborate metaphor and simile are not part of our vocabulary as they were then. The idea that language says something about breeding and control is alien to much of today's youth culture."

One area where similarities exist, however, is in the two societies' conception of the hero. "The Restoration hero is one who manipulates everyone else successfully without getting caught. In that sense nothing has changed," said Pfeiffer.

"Love for Love" is regarded by historians as a comic masterpiece of the English Restoration. Appearing in the SSU production of the William Congreve play are Martha Pfeiffer, Jennifer Clymer, Will Shupe, Georgia Chipouras, Todd Gillenardo, Janean Gray, Stacy Pushkar, Chris Harris, Sean Thomas, Donald Atkinson, David Hyland, Ed Atkinson, Nicole Wells, Alex Ulrich and John Venable.

"Love for Love" is in Holloway Hall on stage for three consecutive weekends March 8-23. Tickets are $3 and $5. Admission is free to SSU students, faculty and staff. For further information call the SSU Theatre Box Office at 543-6228.

Stephen Peet March 11 and 13

The Cultural Affairs Committee is sponsoring a return visit to campus of retired British Broadcasting Television producer and filmmaker Stephen Peet, who will offer two public lectures and screening of his work on Monday, March 11, and Wednesday, March 13, in Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium at 7 p.m. Peet will appear in "The Humanities in Motion" series, funded by the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts and The Maryland Humanities Council.

On Monday, March 11, Peet will show two of his films. The first "The Burston School Strike," where villagers in a rural community responded to the firing of two excellent teachers (for political reasons) by supporting a private school the fired teachers founded in a strike that lasted 20 years. The film will be followed by a panel discussion and questions from the general public, after which his BBC documentary, "The Talkies Come to Britain," which includes an interview with Alfred Hitchcock, will be shown.

On March 13, Peet will show his World War II documentary "The Shell House Raid," concerning a "surgical strike" by Royal Air Force bombers on Gestapo headquarters in Copenhagen, a successful military mission that resolved in tragedy when a Catholic school near the Shell House was also bombed by mistake. Again, there will be a panel discussion following the film and audience discussion.

These screenings are free and open to the public. Peet was a popular lecturer when he spoke at Salisbury State in the spring of 1990, said Jim Welsh of the English Department. For more information call Welsh at 543-6446 or the SSU Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Summer in Europe

As summer approaches, thoughts turn toward vacation. This year why not combine vacation with a learning experience, an SSU Study-Tour to north central Europe? During the summer learn about the history, culture and peoples of Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia on campus and follow that up with a tour to the cities of Budapest, Cracow and Prague to see firsthand what you have been studying.

Once again, SSU offers a comprehensive tour, combining experienced leadership and knowledge of the area with a program of quality sites, meals and hotels. The tour will depart July 29 and return August 9. In addition to the sights of the cities, special excursions to the Danube Bend, Auschwitz and Karlstejn are included. Each city features special dinners, and the opportunity for participants to visit on their own and to shop for specialties of the country.

"The emerging democracies of Eastern Europe are the place to be this year and you can be a part of it," said Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department. For further information, come to an interest meeting on Friday, March 7, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room B of the Guerrieri University Center. Persons interested in the trip, but unable to attend the meeting, should call Berry at 543-6245.

Strauss Opera Presented on WSCL

Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" will be broadcast live from the Metropolitan Opera on Saturday, March 9, at 1:30 p.m. over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera International Radio Network. It will be heard locally over radio station WSCL-FM, 89.5.

Mechthild Gessendorf will be heard as the Marschallin, Tatiana Troyanos as Octavian, Barbara Kilduff as Sophie, Luciano Pavarotti as the Italian Singer, Morley Meredith as Faninal and Aage Haugland as Baron Ochs. Jiri Lout will conduct the work for his Met broadcast debut, and the announcer for the broadcast is Peter Allen.

In the first intermission Yveta Synek Graff, an artistic consultant for production of Czechoslovakian opera in the United States and throughout the world, will discuss "Katya Kabanova" and its composer Leos Janacek. Graff prepared the transliteration and is the Czech diction coach for the Metropolitan Opera's new production of the opera, which will have its Texaco-Metropolitan Opera broadcast premiere on March 16.

Panelists on Texaco's Opera Quiz, heard during the second intermission, will be Pulitzer Prize-winning critic for the Los Angeles Times, Martin Bernheimer; box office consultant to the Metropolitan Opera, Alfred Hubay; and American playwright, Albert Innaurato.

No Newsletter Spring Break

No newsletter will be published on Thursday, March 21, because of spring break. It resumes publication on Thursday, March 28. Because the campus, including the Public Relations Office, will be closed Good Friday, March 29, the deadline date for the April 4 newsletter has been moved up to 4 p.m., Thursday, March 28. Best wishes for a safe and happy holiday.

Troop Vigil

The Salisbury State University Young Democrats will have a "Support the Troops" vigil on Thursday, March 14.

The "Tribute to our Troops: A Candlelight Vigil" will be held on the grounds outside the Guerrieri University Center at 7 p.m. Area clergy, military officials, community leaders, student body and general public are invited to attend.

"We feel that the men and women serving in the Persian Gulf War laid their lives on the line for us, so why shouldn't we take time to peacefully rally ourselves around them? I feel we owe them so much, and that this is the least we can do," said Jim Ireton, president of the Young Democrats.

People who attend are asked to bring candles and matches; a limited amount of each will be provided.

For more information, contact Ireton at 548-7906.

Report From Beirut

The SSU Sociological Society presents "Report from Beirut," a documentary about the Israeli invasion into Lebanon in June 1982, showing visually what an air war is like to those on the ground. The presentation will be in Devilbiss Science Hall, room 149, on Monday, March 11 at 7 p.m. The public is invited.

City Garbage Laws

New garbage regulations for Salisbury City residents follow. Note that they are applicable to renters as well as homeowners.

Ordinance No. 1505 - Operating Outline

Use metal or plastic containers, with tight fitting lids and handles, not exceeding 20-gallons in capacity.

Plastic bags with a capacity of up to 30 gallons may be used in lieu of containers so long as they are not ripped or leaking their contents.

Ashes must be cool and in a metal can no more than half full.

Automated containers, if supplied, must be used and set out properly.

Bulky items will be picked up on Wednesday provided that the Department of Public Works is notified by Tuesday at noon. Tree limbs, brush and rubbish must be bundled in lengths of 4 feet or less and weigh less than 40 pounds.

All receptacles are to be maintained in a sanitary and clean condition, free from rainwater, dead animals, vermin, lice, maggots or the like, as well as unreasonably offensive odors.

Place trash at the curb by 8 a.m. on scheduled days and remove empty receptacles by 6 p.m. Store containers at a location unseen from the public street or front yards of immediate neighbors.

Limit the number of 20-gallon trash containers to six. Bags of leaves are not included in this count.

Multifamily complex management is responsible for the proper operation of the container facility for that complex.

Refuse may not be placed on another person's property without the consent of that property owner.

Violations are a misdemeanor punishable by a fine up to $100 or incarceration for 20 days.

The property owner may be charged with the violation.

A fine in the amount of $25 for the first offense, $50 for the second offense, and $75 for the third offense within a 30-day period may be levied in lieu of prosecution of the misdemeanor.

In addition to that fine, an administrative fee of $50 for each offense will be added.

Unpaid fines and fees will be carried and collected the same as real estate taxes.

SSU Team Makes Hoops Festival

An intramural basketball team from the University will compete with up to 50 other area colleges and universities during the Schick Super Hoops Regional Festival at George Washington University on March 23.

The SSU team, including Dale Clingerman, Rich McKenzie, Matt Roberts and Mike Burton, advanced to the intercollegiate tournament by winning the on-campus Schick Super Hoops 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament.

The top two teams at the Regional Festival will advance to play for the championship at a nearby NBA arena during halftime of an NBA game. Winning teams receive K-Swiss basketball shoes, Schick Slim Twin disposable razors, a T-shirt, gym shorts, a hooded sweatshirt and the NBA's new video, "Ultimate Defenders of Sport."

In addition to participating in the double-elimination regional, each player will also compete in the "K-Swiss Shootout"—a shooting contest in which players making shots from five designated spots on the court in the shortest amount of time win pairs of K-Swiss basketball shoes. Top scoring individuals and teams will receive prizes.

Schick Super Hoops is the country's largest college recreational sports program with more than 800 participating schools and 200,000 students. Regional festivals are conducted at 22 sites nationwide. Finals are staged at 18 NBA arenas.

Canoeing and Backpacking

The next Outdoor Club meeting is scheduled for Monday, March 11, at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. All students are welcome.

The Outdoor Club again sponsors a canoeing trip to Florida and a backpacking trip to North Carolina over spring break, March 22 - April 1. Sign-up for these trips begins Monday night. A $25 deposit is required due to limited space. For more information, attend a Monday night meeting.

The Outdoor Club is also selling ODC T-shirts at the meeting. The cost is $11.

All Outdoor Club meetings are on Monday evenings in the Nanticoke Room A at 9 p.m. unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the spring semester include backpacking in northern Virgina, April 19-21; and hang gliding in Nags Head, NC, May 3-5.

Women's Soccer Coach

The University has an opening for a part-time contractual position in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics. The successful candidate must possess previous soccer coaching experience and strong leadership skills. Salary is $1,000 for the fall 1991 season.

Please submit letter of application and resume to Mr. David A. Brown, director of campus recreation, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, Maryland 21801, no later than April 30.

Health/Fitness Internship Deadline

All physical education, health/fitness students planning to complete their internship during the summer or fall semester should meet with Dr. Robert Cross by March 22.

SALISBURY STATE UNIVERSITY DINING SERVICES

Carmen DiSylvestro, associate director of UDS, with Karl Connolly who designed the new logo for the dining hall's food trays.

Art Student Wins Competition

International art student Karl Connolly won the University Dining Services competition to redesign the logo on the food trays in the dining hall.

Connolly, a 22-year-old Bachelor of Fine Arts student, was born and raised in Ireland before moving to Salisbury with his family in 1985.

Currently a senior, Connolly is working toward his B.F.A. in visual communication and has been recognized in several awards and exhibitions including the Herbert D. Brent Award and an exhibit in The Park Avenue Atrium in New York.

The competition took place last fall and was judged on originality, creativity, craftsmanship and graphic design.

Connolly's original design is a linear pen and ink design of Holloway Hall. He chose his subject because he felt it "was the most universal Salisbury State symbol which everyone could identify with."

The new dining room trays, complete with the new logo design, will be available and in service this fall.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

The memorable 1990-91 Sea Gull basketball season came to an end last Saturday night as Ramapo (NJ) College eliminated the Sea Gulls from the NCAA Tournament with an 87-75 win at home. Despite the loss, the Gulls take pride in a season that saw them win 22 of 29 games, including a school-record 12 straight, and also capture the ESAC championship.

While four of the team's top six scorers return next year, Coach Ward Lambert will look to replace his top two outside shooters, seniors David Byer and Bill Lewit. Team captain Byer leaves SSU as the school's career leader in three-point field goal shooting, with 251. He also holds the single-season record of 91 treys, set this season, and single-game record of eight, set against Allentown College on January 9. Byer scored 1,384 points in his career, seventh best all-time, and also finished second on the career steals list with 186.

Lewit, filling the role of the team's sixth man this season, ends his Gull career with 546 points. He leaves Salisbury as the third best three-point shooter, with 92 career treys. His 57 three-pointers this year was the sixth best in one season. He was also the team's top free throw shooter this year at 83.6 percent.

While basketball came to a close in New Jersey, 1000 miles away the Sea Gull wrestling season officially ended as Andy Ryan, SSU's lone qualifier for the nationals, lost in the first round of the NCAA Championship Tournament. Ryan, competing at 190 pounds, was pinned by Al Beck of Coe College in 1:26. Ryan finished the season with a 13-11 record.

With the winter sports now completed, attention turns to the spring season sports, which got underway last weekend. After dropping its season-opening doubleheader on the road at Eastern College on Saturday, the baseball team appeared to be on the way to its first win in Sunday's home opener. Leading 9-2 in the third inning, the rain clouds took control however and washed out the contest. The Gulls host Kean on Saturday, then play two exhibition games against a touring Canadian team on Sunday and Monday.

The men's lacrosse team takes a number four preseason ranking into Saturday's season opener with Roanoke College. The Gulls play Roanoake as part of the "98 Rock Spring Lacrosse Classic" at Loyola High School in Baltimore. Game time is 1 p.m., with Gettysburg playing Ohio Wesleyan in the second game at 3:30 p.m. SSU finished 11-4 last year en route to the NCAA Division III Final Four.

Choreographer Lloyd at SSU

Guest choreographer Linda Lloyd of Baltimore recently set her modern jazz dance, "Regrets," to music by the Eurhythmics for the SSU Dance Company.

An informal showing of this work was seen during the Dance Company's "Student Showcase" on February 27 in the Maggs Dance Studio. Four SSU students performed the work: Holly Bryan, Andrea Gauzza, Deborah Meilhammer and Vera Powell.

The work may be seen again during the company's Spring Concert May 9-11 in Holloway Hall.

The Vital Connection

Stop feeding our trashbins and start feeding our people! On Thursday, March 14, Stan Curtis, chairman of USA Harvest, will fly in from Kentucky to meet with the Vital Connection (VC). USA Harvest is a program located in 58 cities throughout the country, designed to avoid the wasting of good food and to help feed hungry people. VC, a new club on campus, is preparing to affiliate with USA Harvest to combat the problem here. Join VC at 6 p.m. in the Honors House to see how to become involved. For more information contact Pete Jacques at 548-2817 or Krissy Monks at 548-4198.

At Risk Forum

The Eastern Shore Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa international educational fraternity, the University's Institute for Community and Educational Development and the Eastern Shore Consortium will co-sponsor an At Risk Forum at SSU on Saturday, March 9.

Participants will be provided with current, expert knowledge and opportunities to network with others in the region who share a concern for youth who are at risk of not completing their high school education.

The forum, which will be held in Devilbiss Hall Auditorium from 8:30 a.m.- noon, will feature guest speakers Dr. Jack Frymier, senior research fellow, Phi Delta Kappa International, and Joseph Shilling, Maryland State Superintendent of Schools.

Shilling has encouraged and supported school reform which impacts on students who are at risk in Maryland. Frymier, who comes to SSU from the University of Nebraska, Omaha, will share the results of the Phi Delta Kappa nationwide survey which he organized and coordinated.

The Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium, a union of school systems in the region, initiated a program entitled "A Shore Future" in the fall of 1989. Using state funds from the Maryland Higher Education Commission, its goal is to ensure the success of economically and environmentally disadvantaged youth as they move not only through their public school years but through a post-secondary education experience as well.

The SSU Institute for Community and Educational Development is a cooperative endeavor within the University's School of Education and Professional Studies and provides service to the community in addition to offering research opportunities.

There is no participation fee but due to limited space, advance registration is required. For registration information, please call 543-6277.

1991 Run for Life

The 12th annual American Heart Association "Run for Life" will be held Saturday, April 6, at 9 a.m. The race will begin at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center and proceed through the Salisbury City Park.

"Run for Life" is an event for walkers, joggers and advanced runners. The distance categories are 2, 5 and 10 kilometers with seven age groups ranging from 12 to 55 and over in each category. Trophies provided by The Daily Times will be awarded to the first and second male and female finishers in each age group of the distance categories.

For more information on registration, call the American Heart Association office at 742-4343 or look for registration forms printed in The Daily Times.

Censorship Lecture

Tim Riley will present a lecture on censorship on Saturday, March 9, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. His presentation is sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board.

Some of the questions he will ask are: "How do you feel that the Parents Music Resource Center could strangle America new-line brilliance?"; "How do you feel about pornography falling into your child's hands?"; "Should the public be blindly led into something unknown (the Persian Gulf War), only to find out later that something monumental had been decided for them?"; and "Should the media keep things from the public to keep the 'enemy' in the dark?"

Admission for the event is free.

Financial Seminar

Financial knowledge is essential to organization success in the '90s and every member of management should be able to understand and utilize financial and operating information. That premise will be explored in a seminar, "Financial Management for Non-Financial Managers," offered through the Perdue Center for Professional Development. The seminar will teach non-financial managers the fundamentals of accounting and finance as it applies to business success.

The one-day session is Wednesday, March 20, from 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Aimed at small business owners, supervisory and management personnel, and individuals wishing a refresher course on financial management concepts, it will cover the accounting model, project planning, financial analysis and the importance of numerical controls to enhance organizational performance.

Seminar leaders are T.P. Hall, professor of business administration in the Perdue School of Business and professor emeritus in the School of Accountancy at Georgia State University, and Dr. R. Michael Garner, associate professor of accounting in the Perdue School.

Hall teaches courses in managerial control and costing, strategic planning and policy, the management process, and financial accounting and accounting systems. He has been director of the University Advanced Executive Development Programs at Georgia State and has taught at the University of Alabama and the Georgia Institute of Technology.

He is a certified public accountant who has among his clients IBM, Atlantic Richfield, Duke Power, Georgia Power, Coca-Cola USA, Hewlett-Packard, Federal Executive Seminar Centers, and the U.S. Army and Navy. He has been a featured speaker for The Southwestern, Mid-Atlantic and Mid-Western Small Society of CPAs.

Garner teaches courses in advanced accounting, accounting systems and information technology. His 15 years of experience working with multinational and start-up companies include such firms as Texas Instruments and American Microbionics. A member of the Indiana CPA Society, he has recently returned from a three-year contract to expand the accounting program at Massey University in New Zealand.

The registration fee is $95 per person or $85 if paid by March 6. The deadline for full registration is March 13. The fee includes continental breakfast, refreshment breaks, lunch and course materials.

Make checks payable to the Perdue Center for Professional Development. For additional information, call the Perdue Center at 543-6394.

Aerobic Dance Instructors Needed

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program is looking for persons interested in teaching low impact aerobic dance. IDEA certification and experience are preferred but not absolutely essential. CPR certification is required. If interested please contact Dr. Bob Cross at 543-6340.

Great Leader Series

The Great Leader Lecture Series sponsored by the Perdue School of Business continues with a presentation by Michael L. Smith, president and chief executive officer of the Mayflower Group, Inc. as well as its subsidiary Mayflower Transit, Inc.

He will address an audience of students, faculty and members of the area business community on Wednesday, March 13, at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information on the Great Leader Lecture Series, call the Perdue School at 543-6316

IABC News

The director of public relations of Ocean City, Martha Clements, will speak to the SSU Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) and interested students on Tuesday, March 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room C of the Guerrieri University Center.

Clements will discuss her job responsibilities, education and what employers look for in public relations candidates. All interested students and members are welcome to attend.

There will be a brief meeting after Clements speaks. IABC has planned several activitites for the semester. Contact Kristi Swift at 546-4205 for more information.

Kappa Delta Pi News

Kappa Delta Pi educational honor society is sponsoring a book fair during the month of March. Last semester's book fair enabled Kappa Delta Pi to donate books to children through the Salvation Army. Members of Kappa Delta Pi will be selling books at the Children's Literature Conference on Friday and Saturday, March 15 and 16, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Other dates and times will be announced.

In addition to the book fairs, Kappa Delta Pi sent its officers: Jennifer Pusey, president; Patti Bell, vice president; Ann Altfather, secretary; Laura Branson, treasurer; and Robin Taylor, historian; and its chapter advisors, Dr. Barbara Schultz and Dr. Gerri Rossi, to a leadership conference in Baltimore this past October. Colleges and universities from the northeast region of Kappa Delta Pi met to discuss topics such as fund raising, programming, communications, finance and leadership.

A meeting for all members is scheduled for Monday, March 11, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 128. Topics to be discussed include the upcoming book fair and initiation of new members.

Nerve Problems in Diabetes

A free program for nerve problems in diabetes will be held Thursday, March 14, at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico County Library. The speaker is Richard E. Bird M.D., neurologist. The program is sponsored by the Lower Shore Diabetes Association.

For more information call 1-800-634-4147.

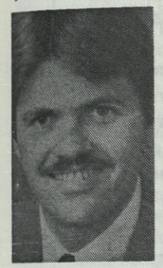
Fretterd, Williams Join Foundation Board



Donnie Williams

Ellen Fretterd

Ellen Fretterd and Donnie Williams, both alumni of Salisbury State, were recently named to the board of directors of the SSU Foundation, Inc., announced Henry Hanna, chairman of the Foundation board.

"The addition of Mrs. Fretterd and Mr. Williams to the Foundation board further strengthens an organization that is playing a pivotal role in enhancing Salisbury State's rank among the best public comprehensive universities on the East Coast," said Robert M. Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation.

Fretterd, who lives in Federalsburg, is a devoted volunteer, active in numerous community activities and organizations. She has served as an officer in Parent Teacher Associations at two different schools, has been a Girl Scout leader for eight years and has been on a variety of committees with the United Methodist Church.

She is a member of the board of advisors of the Wives Support Group of the Maryland National Guard, the Women's Club of Denton, the Caroline Country Club and the Adjutant General Wives of the United States. (Her husband, James, is Adjutant General of Maryland.)

Fretterd received her Associate of Arts from Chesapeake College and her Bachelor of Arts from Salisbury State.

Williams visited Salisbury while in high school and fell in love with Salisbury State and the Eastern Shore. After completing a two-year degree at Charles County Community College, Williams entered Salisbury State and graduated in 1975 with a degree in business administration.

While attending Salisbury State, one of the projects for senior business students was to

Clinton, Barlow Featured at 'Savor III'

Celebrated pianist Dr. Mark Clinton and renowned soprano Katherine Turner Barlow provide the headline entertainment at the upcoming "Savor the Symphony III," the third annual fundraiser to benefit the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University. An evening of food and music, "Savor III" will be held this year on Friday, March 22, at 6:30 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center.

Clinton, last year's artist-in-residence in the University's Department of Music, will open the evening's entertainment fare with Mozart's Piano Concerto #23 in A major.

Clinton began his piano studies at age four and entered the Peabody Conservatory on scholarship at the age of eight. There he studied for eight years with Julian Martin before continuing his studies with the world-famous pianist Leon Fleisher. Clinton received both his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music from Peabody.

In 1989 he received the Doctor of Musical Arts from the Shepherd School of Music at Rice University, where he studied under the direction of master-teacher John Perry. He also studied with Carlo Zecchi and Tatiana Nikolayeva at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria.

Along with numerous solo recitals, Clinton has made guest appearances with several orchestras, including the Baltimore Symphony, the Merrimack Valley Philharmonic (MA), the Prince George's Philharmonic (MD) and the National Symphony.

Critics have hailed his "polished style and commanding stage presence." One critic said that Clinton's "...interpretation was exhilarating and delightful, so bright and clean that the audience shook with applause for almost 10 minutes afterward."

After the Mozart selection, guests will have plenty of time to mingle and circulate throughout the entire downstairs of the Guerrieri Center. Exhibitors from some of the Eastern Shore's finest eateries—including The Atlantic Hotel, Cheer's, Dockside Murphy's, English's Family Restaurants, Frank's Place, The Garden and the Sea Inn, Phillip's Seafood Restaurants, Salisbury Sheraton Inn, The Plump Parrot and more—will have displays. While sampling the delicious food, guests will be treated to SSO chamber ensembles playing delightful selections from the classics. The full orchestra will lure patrons back to the Wicomico Room for some good old-fashioned ballroom dancing to old favorites such as "The Shadow Of Your Smile," "Over the Rainbow," "Old Devil Moon" and "The Pink Panther." Barlow, voice instructor at Salisbury State, will join the Orchestra with a selection of romantic favorites.

Barlow completed her bachelor's in music and her master's in opera at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. She was previously a member of The Philadelphia Singers, Inc. and the Opera Company of Philadelphia chorus.

She also has appeared with the Pennsylvania Opera Theater, the Annapolis Opera, the Suncoast Opera and the Asolo Opera Company. During the 1987 season of the Sarasota Opera Association, Barlow was acclaimed with reviews for her performances as Frasquita in "Carmen" and Lola in

Nicaraguan Art Displayed at Gallery

"Contemporary Art from Nicaragua," the first exhibition of Nicaraguan art in the United States since the 1979 Sandinista Revolution, will be on display in the Gallery through March 21.

The exhibition was curated by Dr. Jose Rodeiro, professor of art and art history at Frostburg State University, and organized by Rodeiro with the assistance of Dr. MacGregor O'Brien, professor of foreign languages at FSU.

The Inter-American Development Bank provided much of the funding for the show and also subsidized the cost of the exhibition catalogue, which includes color reproductions of many of the works. It is for sale at the SSU bookstore.

Rodeiro will give a public talk on the exhibition, addressed to a general audience, on Monday, March 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Gallery. A reception will follow. The public is invited to both events.

The exhibition, which consists of about 50 works by 35 artists, includes both traditional, "primitivist" works and works influenced by contemporary international modern art. According to Ursula Ehrhardt, the Gallery's director, most of the artists are well-known in Nicaragua and several have shown their work extensively in Europe and Latin America. "This is a very exciting exhibition," Ehrhardt said. "The works are very colorful and convey great intensity of feeling. They cover a broad range of subject matter, including landscapes and scenes of daily life, as well as abstractions and examples of fantasy and surrealism."

The Gallery is located on the second floor of Blackwell Library. Hours are Monday - Thursday, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, 1-5 p.m.; and Monday and Wednesday evenings, 5-8 p.m. Regularly scheduled talks on the exhibition, given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place every Wednesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. For more information, please call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Talks on the English Restoration

Short talks on the English Restoration world, including its theatre, will be presented for three consecutive Fridays prior to the University's theatre's production of the Restoration comedy, "Love for Love," beginning March 8.

The brief presentations from 10-20 minutes in length will be held in the Social Room of Holloway Hall at 7 p.m. Admission to the talks is free and the public is invited. The play will follow at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall on stage. Admission to the play is $3 and $5; free for SSU students, faculty and staff.

On Friday, March 15 and 22, Sylvia Bradley of the History Department, will discuss the Restoration from an historical perspective. Bradley, whose specialities are English and colonial American history as well as archival and museum studies, is co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture.

For more information, call T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre, at 543-6229.

Noted Children's Author Here

"Bah! Humbug? A Celebration of Children's Literature" is the name of the reading and children's books conference which will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center on March 15 and 16. The keynote speaker on Saturday is Lorna Balian, author and illustrator of more than 20 books for children which have sold more than half a million copies.

Co-chairs for the conference are Dr. Barbara Townsend Schultz, associate professor of education at Salisbury State, and JoAnne Mulcahy, a second-grade teacher at Showell Elementary School in Worcester County. Teachers, librarians, and Salisbury State students and parents are invited to attend. The registration fee is $5 ($3 for students) and must be received by March 15. For additional information and registration packets contact Schultz at 543-6281.

A photographic exhibit of the Indians of southern Maryland, "The Birds Flew Off, The Preservation of a Culture," opened in the Atrium Gallery on March 5. The gallery is located next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center. The exhibit is open daily, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. through March 22. Admission is free.

For more information call 543-6100.

English Stage Satire Is 'Survival of the Fastest'

A biting satire on courtship and marriage which is considered a comic masterpiece of the English stage opens this semester's theatre season.

"Love for Love" by William Congreve began a three-weekend run on March 8.

Three hundred years later "Love for Love" and Congreve's better known "Way of the World" "are still considered masterpieces because of their brilliant scenes, sparkling dialogue and clear-cut characterizations," wrote theatre historian Oscar G. Brockett.

Performances are in Holloway Hall on stage at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, March 8-9, 15-16 and 22-23, and Thursday, March 14 and 21; with two matinees at 2 p.m., Sunday, March 10 and 17. Tickets are $5 general admission; $3 for students and senior citizens; and free for SSU students, faculty and staff. For more information contact the SSU theatre box office at 543-6228.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

English Assistantships

The English Department anticipates five assistantships (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing the M.A. in English (writing or literature option). The writing option is a two-year program of study (33 credit hours) which involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas.

The literature option involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Teaching assistants will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program.

For application packets call the Department of English at 543-6445 [FAX: (301) 543-6068]. Deadlines for applications for GRE are March 15 and April 30; deadline for assistantships is April 5.

Appropriations Board Opening

Are you interested in getting involved with student organizations on campus? The Appropriations Board is currently seeking applications for an opening position next fall. All interested students with at least a 2.3 GPA are encouraged to apply.

Experience with Word Perfect 5.1 and/or Lotus 1-2-3 is helpful, and the ability to work eight flexible hours per week is required. All positions are paid positions.

Submit letters of interest to the Appropriations Board in the Guerrieri University Center, room 202, by April 5.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Area Director Positions

Openings for area directors are anticipated July 1. Duties include recruitment, selection and supervision of resident assistant staff, delivery of educational programs and services, the handling of disciplinary cases and sanctions, and general administrative duties within two residence halls.

Each area director functions as an assistant director of residence life by overseeing departmentwide projects on a rotating basis. This is a live-in position on a 12-month appointment. Competitive salary, health insurance allowance, apartment, utilities, and meal plan are provided.

Master's degree in college student personnel, higher education, counseling or related field is required. Experience involving a multicultural emphasis and/or application of student development theory is desirable.

Send cover letter, resume and names of three references to: Dr. Kathleen E. Groutt, Director of Residence Life, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be processed beginning April 1 and continue until positions are filled. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. immigration and naturalization certification to accept employment.

Professor of Finance

The Perdue School of Business is seeking applications for an anticipated tenure-track opening in finance beginning August 15.

Qualifications include a Ph.D. in finance. Rank is open. Applicants should have expertise in financial management. Secondary fields in risk management and insurance or real estate finance are highly desired. The Perdue School requires a commitment to high quality teaching as well as an active research agenda. Candidates for a senior rank should have an established research record. Salary is competitive with AACSB institutions.

Send vita and letter of application to Dr. Robert C. Winder, Finance Search Committee, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified retired people, women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Buckle Up SSU!

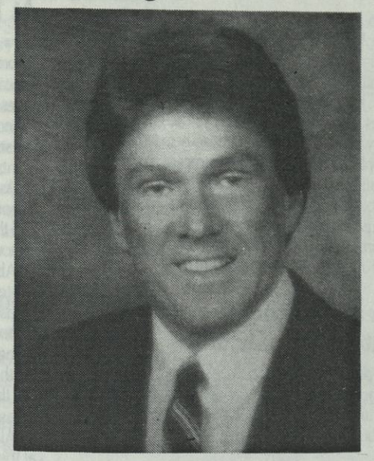
Lecture on Reading At Children's Lit Event

Dr. James Flood, professor of reading and language development at San Diego State University, presents a lecture on Friday, March 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center on "Reading and the Integrated Language Arts." His talk is free and the public is cordially invited.

Flood is nationally well-known as an expert in the field of reading. His lecture will focus on "Whole Language," helping children to learn the language skills—reading, writing, listening and speaking—in an integrated, holistic, natural way. This philosophy includes using children's literature as a central focus in the classroom. The subject of whole language is of particular interest to teachers and parents in this area.

In addition to Flood's work in reading and language development at San Diego State, he is an advisor in the joint doctoral program with the Claremont Graduate School. He has made presentations at national and state conferences throughout the nation.

Books written by Flood include "Understanding Reading Comprehension: Cognition, Language, and the Structure of Prose," "Promoting Reading Comprehension," "Language and the Language Arts" and "Teaching Students to Read." His articles have appeared in national publications such as Reading Teacher, Reading World, Reading Improvement, Newsweek Education Supplement and the Journal of Applied Developmental Psychology.



Dr. James Flood

Flood's appearance here is in connection with the Children's Literature Conference which will be held March 15 and 16 at Salisbury State. Co-chairpersons for the event are Dr. Barbara A. Schultz, associate professor of education at SSU, and JoAnne Mulcahy, second-grade teacher at Showell Elementary School in Worcester County. The conference will be attended by teachers, education students, librarians, parents and children in the area.

The conference is made possible by grants from the Aimee and Raymond Dixon Distinguished Educator Lecture Series, the SSU Class of 1938, the SSU Foundation and the Macmillan/McGraw-Hill Company.

On Saturday, March 16, Lorna Balian, author of more than 20 books for children, will be the keynote speaker. She is best known for her holiday books—"Humbug Witch," "Sometimes It's Turkey: Sometimes It's Feathers," "Bah! Humbug?," "Humbug Rabbit," "A Garden for a Groundhog" and "A Sweetheart for Valentine." Her latest book is "Wilbur's Space Machine."

Also on the program are four Maryland authors—Barbara Lockhart, author of "Read to Me, Talk With Me"; Marcy Ramsey, author and illustrator of "Chessie, The Sea Monster That Ate Annapolis"; Margarette Reid, author of "The Button Box"; and Cindy Ward, author of "Cookie's Week." There will be 11 reading related workshops and two story programs for children.

People planning to attend the Saturday conference need to register by March 15. For more information and registration packets call Schultz at 543-6281.

Choreographer Lloyd at SSU

Guest choreographer Linda Lloyd of Baltimore recently set her modern jazz dance, "Regrets," to music by the Eurhythmics for the SSU Dance Company.

An informal showing of this work was seen during the Dance Company's "Student Showcase" on February 27 in the Maggs Dance Studio. Four SSU students performed the work: Holly Bryan, Andrea Gauzza, Deborah Meilhammer and Vera Powell.

The work may be seen again during the company's Spring Concert May 9-11 in Holloway Hall.

Canoeing, Backpacking

The Outdoor Club again sponsors a canoeing trip to Florida and a backpacking trip to North Carolina over spring break, March 22 - April 1. Sign-up for these trips begins at the next meeting. A $25 deposit is required due to limited space. For more information, attend the Monday meeting on March 18 at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. All are welcome.

The club is also selling ODC T-shirts for $11 at the meeting.

All meetings are on Monday evenings unless otherwise posted. Other trips planned for the spring semester include backpacking in northern Virginia, April 19-21, and hang gliding in Nags Head, NC, May 3-5.

Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Broadcasts

Following is the repertoire and casting for the Texaco-Metropolitan radio broadcast of Janacek's "Kata Kabanova" on Saturday, March 16, at 1:30 p.m. on WSCL-FM (All performances are live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.): Charles Mackerras conducting, with Gabriela Benackova (Kata), Leonie Rysanek (Kabanicha), Susan Quittmeyer (Varvara), Wieslaw Ochman (Boris), Allan Glassman (Tichon), Peter Straka (Kudrjas) and Aage Haugland (Dikoi).

English Gardens Is Subject of Lecture

All faculty, staff and students are invited to "Gardens of England," a lecture and slide presentation on Thursday, April 4, in Nanticoke Room B of the Guerrieri University Center at 7 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Department of Horticulture.

State Publications Depository Program Cut

Blackwell Library has received word that the State Publications Depository and Distribution program has not been funded for fiscal year 1992.

At present state agencies send their publications to a central resource center in Baltimore. This center then sends these publications to state depository libraries across Maryland. Blackwell Library serves as a state depository site on the Eastern Shore.

As of June 30, this central resource center will no longer be funded. Blackwell Library will no longer receive state government publications unless arrangements can be made to acquire them individually from the issuing agencies.

Cutting this program will affect library patrons in several ways. The library will no longer automatically receive many state-issued reports. Items such as COMAR that are currently free to depository libraries will in the future need to be purchased by Blackwell Library. This purchase will result in a considerable drain on library funds if indeed funds can be found.

Other examples of information which will be affected by this budget cut include topics such as the Maryland "2020" plan, economic development reports, health statistics, criminal justice reports and state budget information. The overall effect will be a decrease in the access to state government-generated information to all Marylanders.

Eastern Shore Tuition Assistance Program

Applications for the Eastern Shore Tuition Assistance Program Scholarships for the 1991-92 academic year are available in the Financial Aid Office.

Applicants must be undergraduate students residing in Northhampton or Accomack counties, VA. Students must be commuting from home to SSU and must be juniors or seniors in 1991-92. Awards may be up to $1,500 per year.

The application deadline is August 12.

D.C. Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarship Program

Washington, D.C. residents planning a career in teaching may be eligible for $5,000 scholarships each year for up to four years. Contact the Office of Postsecondary Education, Research and Assistance, at (202) 727-3688 for more information.

D.C. State Student Incentive Grant Program

Applications for the Washington, D.C. State Student Incentive Grant Program are available in the Financial Aid Office. Students may apply if they are District residents for at least 15 consecutive months immediately prior to application.

Undergraduate or graduate students are eligible but must be enrolled for a full academic year. Applicants must have financial need with an official Financial Aid Form on file for 1991-92.

Deadline for application for the scholarship is June 28.

Troop Vigil

The Salisbury State University Young Democrats will have a "Support the Troops" vigil on Thursday, March 14.

The "Tribute to our Troops: A Candlelight Vigil" will be held on the grounds outside the Guerrieri University Center at 7 p.m. Area clergy, military officials, community leaders, student body and general public are invited to attend.

"We feel that the men and women serving in the Persian Gulf War laid their lives on the line for us, so why shouldn't we take time to peacefully rally ourselves around them? I feel we owe them so much, and that this is the least we can do," said Jim Ireton, president of the Young Democrats.

People who attend are asked to bring candles and matches; a limited amount of each will be provided.

For more information, contact Ireton at 548-7906.

City Garbage Laws

New garbage regulations for Salisbury City residents follow. Note that they are applicable to renters as well as homeowners.

Ordinance No. 1505 - Operating Outline

Use metal or plastic containers, with tight fitting lids and handles, not exceeding 20-gallons in capacity.

Plastic bags with a capacity of up to 30 gallons may be used in lieu of containers so long as they are not ripped or leaking their contents.

Ashes must be cool and in a metal can no more than half full.

Automated containers, if supplied, must be used and set out properly.

Bulky items will be picked up on Wednesday provided that the Department of Public Works is notified by Tuesday at noon. Tree limbs, brush and rubbish must be bundled in lengths of 4 feet or less and weigh less than 40 pounds.

All receptacles are to be maintained in a sanitary and clean condition, free from rainwater, dead animals, vermin, lice, maggots or the like, as well as unreasonably offensive odors.

Place trash at the curb by 8 a.m. on scheduled days and remove empty receptacles by 6 p.m. Store containers at a location unseen from the public street or front yards of immediate neighbors.

Limit the number of 20-gallon trash containers to six. Bags of leaves are not included in this count.

Multifamily complex management is responsible for the proper operation of the container facility for that complex.

Refuse may not be placed on another person's property without the consent of that property owner.

Violations are a misdemeanor punishable by a fine up to $100 or incarceration for 20 days.

The property owner may be charged with the violation.

A fine in the amount of $25 for the first offense, $50 for the second offense, and $75 for the third offense within a 30-day period may be levied in lieu of prosecution of the misdemeanor.

In addition to that fine, an administrative fee of $50 for each offense will be added.

Unpaid fines and fees will be carried and collected the same as real estate taxes.

Women's Soccer Coach

The University has an opening for a part-time contractual position in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics. The successful candidate must possess previous soccer coaching experience and strong leadership skills. Salary is $1,000 for the fall 1991 season.

Please submit letter of application and resume to Mr. David A. Brown, director of campus recreation, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, Maryland 21801, no later than April 30.

The Vital Connection

Stop feeding our trashbins and start feeding our people! On Thursday, March 14, Stan Curtis, chairman of USA Harvest, will fly in from Kentucky to meet with the Vital Connection (VC). USA Harvest is a program located in 58 cities throughout the country, designed to avoid the wasting of good food and to help feed hungry people. VC, a new club on campus, is preparing to affiliate with USA Harvest to combat the problem here. Join VC at 6 p.m. in the Honors House to see how to become involved. For more information contact Pete Jacques at 548-2817 or Krissy Monks at 548-4198.

Aerobic Dance Instructors Needed

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program is looking for persons interested in teaching low impact aerobic dance. IDEA certification and experience are preferred but not absolutely essential. CPR certification is required. If interested please contact Dr. Bob Cross at 543-6340.

Library Break Hours

Spring break hours for Blackwell Library follow: Friday, March 22, 7:45 a.m. - 8 p.m.; Saturday, March 23, closed; Sunday, March 24, closed; Monday-Thursday, March 25-28, 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.; Friday, March 29, closed; Saturday, March 30, closed; and Sunday, March 31, 6 p.m. - midnight.

Tutoring Services For Math Students

The Department of Mathematical Sciences is offering the following services to all SSU students in math courses on all levels.

Tutoring: Tutoring services are available from 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m., Monday - Thursday, and 6-9 p.m. on Sunday. The tutors are students who have been hand picked by the director of the program because of their exceptional abilities in mathematics and excellent tutoring experiences. Students are served on a first-come, first-served basis.

Tutoring backup: A backup system of instructors has been created to aid those students whose questions cannot be fully answered by tutors. These instructors are willing to help with all questions.

Math Lab: The Math Lab located in the Power Building is equipped with some software for all math courses and several tutoring packages for some individual math courses as well. Students will be directed by trained tutors in the lab or by instructors.

Social Work Club

The Social Work Club will hold a junior/senior mixer on Wednesday, April 10, at 6:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall's Social Room. Juniors are welcome to come listen and ask questions about their future placements. Juniors will have the opportunity to talk to seniors who are currently in field placements in various agencies throughout the area.

Graduation Center At Book Rack

Now is the time for prospective May '91 graduates to order their announcements and be measured for caps and gowns. A representative from Herff Jones will be in the Book Rack beginning Monday, March 11, through Friday, March 15, for seniors to order their graduation announcements.

As in the past, there will be two styles of announcements, a personalized announcement and the standard announcement. The personalized announcement must be ordered at this time.

Also available is an assortment of graduation related items such as name cards, thank-you cards, appreciation gifts and personalized steins. Those expecting to graduate in May should come by the graduation center to be measured for their cap and gown. There is no fee involved for the cap and gown, but graduates must be measured for them.

Allied health students should order their pins at this time to assure delivery in time for pinning ceremonies.

Graduation center hours in the Book Rack are Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m., and Friday, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Graduation items will be available for pick-up in the Book Rack April 29, and 30 and May 1.

For graduating seniors with families from out of town, remember to make necessary motel reservations early as graduation is on Memorial Day weekend this year.

IGI Results Available

The copy of the results from the Institutional Goals Inventory (IGI), a questionnaire distributed to full-time faculty and administrators last December, has been placed on reserve at the circulation desk of Blackwell Library for members of the University community to review.

The purpose of the inventory is to provide information to be used in University planning, reaccreditation and accountability efforts. For more information about the IGI, contact Linda Cashman, director of institutional research, at 543-6025.

B.S./M.S. Nursing Program

The application deadline for enrollment in the B.S./M.S. nursing program is May 1. This applies to all students holding a bachelor's degree in another discipline who are interested in enrolling in the accelerated B.S./M.S. nursing program.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing. Questions concerning this program may be directed to Phyllis Banks, chair of the student policies committee in the Department of Nursing.

Pre-Nursing Students

The application deadline for enrollment in the nursing major for the summer 1991 semester is March 15. This applies to those pre-nursing students anticipating registering for Nursing 300, Professional Nursing Concepts, for summer as well as other students interested in the major.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing. Applications received after March 15 will be considered on a space available basis.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

Senior attackman Rick Berkman turned out to be the hero in the men's lacrosse opener against Roanoke College last Saturday as he scored two goals in the closing minutes to give the Sea Gulls a 9-8 come-from-behind win. With SSU trailing 8-7, Berkman tied the contest off an assist from Eric Ungleich with 2:16 remaining, then tallied the game winner on a solo effort with 1:05 to go. The game was played at Loyola High School in Baltimore as part of the "98 Rock Spring Lacrosse Classic." Salisbury plays six of its next seven games at home, including this Saturday's 1 p.m. contest with Western Maryland.

The baseball team looks to end its 0-5 start when it visits Virginia Wesleyan on Thursday. Following two more road games at Lincoln on Saturday, the Gulls return home for games against Eastern Connecticut on Sunday and Wesley on Wednesday. The team begins its annual southern trip, featuring five games in five days, on March 23 at Christopher Newport.

The women's lacrosse team opened its season at College of Notre Dame on Tuesday, and continues its road trip with weekend encounters against Roanoke and Lynchburg. The Gulls return four of their top six scorers from last year's 6-6 squad, including senior Mimsy Molter (12 goals, 11 assists in 1990) and junior Jamie Bentkowski (17, 2).

The women's softball team will open its season at home this Saturday with a doubleheader against Marywood College, beginning at noon. After five consecutive winning seasons, the Gulls fell to 13-18 last year as a rash of injuries hit the squad. Coach Dawn McCrumb begins her seventh season with a solid one-two pitching duo in Amy Geppi (8-5 in 1989) and Sonja Akers (10 wins last year). First baseman Saundra Miller (.305 in 1990) and leftfielder Shari Rupertus (.274) are expected to lead the offense.

Johnson Completes Doctorate

Richard L. Johnson, director of wind activities at Salisbury State, recently completed requirements for the Doctor of Musical Arts in performance and conducting from Michigan State University.

Johnson is in third year at Salisbury State serving as conductor to the SSU Wind Sinfonia and music director for the Jazz Lab Band and Chamber Music Ensembles. In addition to his conducting responsibilities, Johnson teaches courses in music theory, conducting pedagogy, instrumental methods and applied low brass.

Johnson received his undergraduate (1975) and master (1978) degrees in music education from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. He has held the position as director of band and department chairman for high school programs in Illinois and Wisconsin. Johnson also held the position of music director to the Crystal Lake Community Band in Illinois and served as guest conductor to community ensembles in Illinois and Michigan. He continues to be in demand as an adjudicator, clinician, consultant and guest conductor. In the past three years, he has appeared in Delaware, Illinois, Maryland and Michigan.

Wellness Day

Last year's Wellness Day was a great success. Many students, faculty and staff members enjoyed the activities, performances, free screenings, Crystal Light samples and delicious fruit-kabobs. The participants included student groups, University departments and off-campus organizations.

This year's Wellness Day, the sixth, promises to be just as much fun. The departments coordinating this year's event (Office of Student Activities and Organizations, Health Center, Drug and Alcohol Prevention Resource Center, and University Dining) would like to make this a campuswide activity. It will take place on Monday, May 6, from 11 a.m - 3:30 p.m., outside and inside the Guerrieri University Center. Everyone is welcome to participate.

For more information contact Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313.

No Newsletter Spring Break

No newsletter will be published on Thursday, March 21, because of spring break. It resumes publication on Thursday, March 28. Because the campus, including the Public Relations Office, will be closed Good Friday, March 29, the deadline date for the April 4 newsletter has been moved up to 4 p.m., Thursday, March 28. Best wishes for a safe and happy holiday.

Center Spring Break Hours

Guerrieri University Center spring break hours follow: Friday, March 22, 7 a.m. - 6 p.m.; Monday, March 25 - Thursday, March 28, 7 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.; Friday, March 29, closed; Saturday, March 30, closed; and Sunday, March 31, noon - 11 p.m.

PBL/FFMA News

The Business and Economics Society (PBL) is open to all business or prospective business majors.

PBL attempts to bridge the gap between the classroom and the business environment. The organization gives students the chance to discover, develop and use organizational and leadership skills that are important in today's business community.

The Financial Management Association (FMA), open to finance and prospective finance majors, facilitates the practice of concepts learned in the classroom and provides for practical application. The Salisbury chapter of FMA, since its inception 2 1/2 years ago, has given finance majors a needed edge going into the competitive career world.

Both groups operate in conjunction with one another and offer many of the same benefits with membership. Some of their activities include guest speakers, trips to financial districts, an annual trip to New York and social activities.

By being an active member students learn leadership, organizational skills and effective communication skills. Furthermore, it makes a nice addition to any resume. The amount of time needed to be an active member is minimal compared to the experience received. If interested come to the next meeting. Meeting times are posted throughout campus and announced in business classes.

PBL officers are: Donna Wheeley, president; Justin Shelby, vice president; Megan O'Neil and Mindi Pifer, secretaries; and Doug Crysler and Dave Hessie, treasurers.

FMA officers are: Laura Boogerats, president; Kimberly Wilson, vice president; Jeffery C. Pirnat, treasurer; and Karen Gustafson, secretary.

develop a plan for a business that was needed could be improved upon in the Salisbury-Wicomico area. After interviewing several alarm companies, Williams wrote a business plan for Alarmguard for his marketing course at Salisbury State.

After graduation, the course project propelled him into the security business, fulfilling the needs of the community with a company which now has over 70 employees.

Alarmguard is a member of the National Burglar and Fire Alarm Association, the highest achievement any alarm company can achieve in an Underwriters Laboratory Listing. Alarmguard is listed with underwriters laboratory for Mercantile Grade A business installations, monitoring station, fire system monitoring and fire system installation.

Williams has received many awards, including employer of the year by the Business and Professional Women's Association. He was awarded Outstanding Young Man of America twice, and he has won Rotarian of the Year awards in 1981 and 1983. Williams was named Outstanding Young Alumni of Salisbury State in 1986. He has served on the board of directors of the Salisbury Rotary Club and is a Rotary Paul Harris Fellow. In addition, he is a Dale Carnegie sales course instructor.

The Salisbury State University Foundation was established in 1973 for the encouragement and enrichment of education and incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for educational, charitable and scientific purposes at Salisbury State.

Habitat for Humanity

During the spring and fall semesters of 1990, SSU's team of volunteers for Habitat for Humanity provided 510 hours of work with 99 different participants. This was the largest contribution made by participating organizations on the lower Eastern Shore.

Habitat for Humanity is a nonprofit organization that works with low-income families to build decent, affordable homes. Habitat teams, which come from churches, schools and workcamps, work on a rotating schedule every four to six weeks.

The SSU team will be working again on Saturday, March 16. Anyone is welcome—students, teachers, staff members or friends. They meet outside of Maggs gym at 8:45 a.m. and 1 p.m. and carpool to the site. Tools nor experience are necessary. Just be willing to meet people, learn and work.

If you would like to participate, but cannot make it this time, the group will be working again on April 13 and May 11. For more information, call Greta Trumpower at 546-4168 or Krissy Monks at 548-4198.

"Cavalleria Rusticana."

In addition to teaching at SSU, Barlow has many private voice students in the Delmarva area. She also gives master classes at the Delaware Music School in Milford and the Academy of Arts in Easton.

This summer, Barlow completed her sixth season with the Commander Boardwalk Cabaret Dinner Theater in Ocean City. In the fall of 1990, she was seen on stage as Sister Mary Amnesia in the Commander Dinner Theater's full-length production of the musical comedy "Nunsense."

Tickets for "Savor III" are $25 per person and are on sale at the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, all Peninsula Bank locations, the Salisbury branch of Hanson Savings Bank and Hall's Tidewater Travel Agency. For more information, contact Hall's Tidewater Travel at 749-8131 or the Department of Music at 543-6385.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MARCH 28, 1991 VOL. XII NO. 23

Britain Series Begins

How do you top traveling to England to study its history, economy and literature?

If you're Salisbury State University, you bring Britain here. Each year, the University offers its students a travel course to Great Britain. This year, the University is also bringing a group of lecturers, films and plays to campus. In true SSU tradition, the Britain Series is open to the off-campus community; in many cases, at no charge.

Series co-chair Edna Quinn compares the Britain Series to a patchwork quilt. Committee members from such diverse University schools as nursing, liberals arts, and science and technology joined forces to put together a program of scholars and experts from equally diverse backgrounds.

Speakers will cover topics from the decline of British imperialism to contemporary British film and television. From the headmaster of Chatham House School in Ramsgate, England, to a Boston University scholar of the works of Samuel Beckett, the Series promises a close look at the British Isles from a variety of perspectives.

Britain's controversial national health care system is the topic one evening. Scholar Graham Haynes will provide a critical analysis. Haynes has spoken to SSU nursing students in the past, when they met him in London, at the Nightingale School of St. Thomas' Hospital. Like the other visiting scholars and experts in the Britain Series, Haynes will include classroom discussions and community appearances in his Salisbury itinerary.

The impressive credentials of the Britain Series participants are even more remarkable if you consider the obstacles the committee has overcome: not the least of which was a budget that dropped from $6,000 to nothing. Since they learned of the state budget cuts, "several of us have been scrambling to get grant money," said committee member Jim Welsh. The hustle seems to have paid off, as series planners became creative fundraisers.

The Maryland Humanitites Council and the University's Fulton Liberal Arts School Endowment Fund have given primary support to the Series. Other help has come from less predictable sources. Graham Haynes' visit, for example, is being underwritten by the British Consul. After meetings at SSU, a representative of the British Embassy agreed to pay the scholar's travel expenses.

The need for economy has not been lost on series planners, either. Scholars are making the most of their time on campus. Most are spending time in classrooms, in addition to their series presentations. In his three days at SSU in early

Foundation Faculty Grants

The Salisbury State University Foundation recently awarded $4,635 to 12 faculty and staff members for various development activities. The announcement was made by Anne Showell, chair of the grants committee.

Fusaro, professor of mathematics, received a $235 award to assist in his participation at the annual meeting of the Mathematical Association of America.

An award of $500 went to Gehnrich, assistant professor of biology, to assist with expenses to be incurred as part of a research project on genes.

Hatley, assistant professor of philosophy, was awarded $500 toward support of his presentation of a paper, "What is Historicality," at the conference of the International Association of Philosophy and Literature in Montreal.

Horne, professor of English, was awarded $200 to assist with expenses as he produces a revised copy of a manuscript, "Making a Heaven of Hell," which has been submitted to the University of Georgia Press.

An award of $500 has been presented to Kundell, professor of chemistry and department chair, to help defray expenses for the purchase of revised film, slides and slide cases to change and update a chemistry course.

Pritchard, associate vice president for academic affairs, was awarded $300 to help

Persian Gulf Lecture Series Starts April 8

How has religion contributed to the war in the Persian Gulf? What role have the allies played in the ongoing crisis? How have cultural differences contributed to a lack of understanding between our cultures? What will the region be like in the near future? Who will be the powers?

These are just some of the questions to be discussed during the Persian Gulf Lecture Series this spring which will be held at the University. The lectures are sponsored by the Guerrieri University Center, the Cultural Events Committee and the Persian Gulf Advisory Committee.

Dr. John Ruedy, associate professor of history at Georgetown University, will launch the series on Monday, April 8, with his presentation, "Conflict in the Gulf—Historical Background," in the Holloway Hall Social Room at 7:30 p.m. He will be discussing the historical and geographical considerations which have a bearing on the situation in the Middle East.

Ruedy earned his A.B. in political science from the University of California, Berkeley, his M.A. in history from San Diego State College and his Ph.D. in Middle East and North African history from the University of California at Los Angeles.

Chair of the Advanced Area Studies Seminar on Northern Africa and a lecturer at the Foreign Service Institute, U.S. Department of State in Washington, D.C., since 1984, he served as a consultant on administrative and manpower policies at Kuwait University and as a consultant on Algerian educational issues for Calcusearch, Inc.

In addition to numerous chapters and articles on the Middle East and North Africa, he is the author of two books, "Modern Algeria: The Origins and Development of a Nation" and "Land Policy in Colonial Algeria."

On Monday, April 15, Dr. Mumtaz Ahmad, associate professor of political science at Hampton University, will present "Conflict in the Gulf—Cultural and Religious Background" in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center at 7:30 p.m.

Ahmad will talk about the cultural differences which have contributed to the lack of understanding between our cultures, how they helped bring about the war and how they will work in postwar considerations. He also will discuss

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

English Assistantships

The English Department anticipates five assistantships (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing the M.A. in English (writing or literature option). The writing option is a two-year program of study (33 credit hours) which involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas.

The literature option involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Teaching assistants will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program.

For application packets call the Department of English at 543-6445 [FAX: (301) 543-6068]. Deadlines for applications for GRE are March 15 and April 30; deadline for assistantships is April 5.

Appropriations Board Opening

Are you interested in getting involved with student organizations on campus? The Appropriations Board is currently seeking applications for an opening position next fall. All interested students with at least a 2.3 GPA are encouraged to apply.

Experience with Word Perfect 5.1 and/or Lotus 1-2-3 is helpful, and the ability to work eight flexible hours per week is required. All positions are paid positions.

Submit letters of interest to the Appropriations Board in the Guerrieri University Center, room 202, by April 5.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Library Break Hours

Spring break hours for Blackwell Library follow: Monday-Thursday, March 25-28, 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.; Friday, March 29, closed; Saturday, March 30, closed; and Sunday, March 31, 6 p.m. - midnight.

Tutoring Services For Math Students

The Department of Mathematical Sciences is offering the following services to all SSU students in math courses on all levels.

Tutoring: Tutoring services are available from 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m., Monday - Thursday, and 6-9 p.m. on Sunday. The tutors are students who have been hand picked by the director of the program because of their exceptional abilities in mathematics and excellent tutoring experiences. Students are served on a first-come, first-served basis.

Tutoring backup: A backup system of instructors has been created to aid those students whose questions cannot be fully answered by tutors. These instructors are willing to help with all questions.

Math Lab: The Math Lab located in the Power Building is equipped with some software for all math courses and several tutoring packages for some individual math courses as well. Students will be directed by trained tutors in the lab or by instructors.

'Education in England' Talk April 10

Brian Drury, headmaster of Chatham House School in Ramsgate, England, will speak on Wednesday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. His address, "Home Thoughts From Abroad," will deal with current issues in education in England.

The lecture is part of a series of programs honoring Great Britain during the spring semester at Salisbury State. Dr. Barbara Townsend Schultz, associate professor of education, is coordinator of the event. The SSU Foundation is providing necessary funding.

The Chatham House School is a Kent Council school for boys of above average academic ability which was once attended by former British Prime Minister Edward Heath. It is currently one of 300 public schools cited for inclusion in England's Good School Guide.

This year Drury is involved in an administrative exchange program and is working in Anne Arundel County investigating various aspects of the U.S. educational scene for Kent County in England.

Drury's background includes commissioned service in the Royal Air Force before taking up a national scholarship to study English at Cambridge University. He graduated with honors and went on to postgraduate studies in education at Oxford University, where he gained a "Distinction."

After teaching in a variety of private and public schools and a break to obtain a master's degree in education at the University of Wales, he took up an appointment as deputy head of Wymondham College, Norfolk, the largest coeducational state boarding school in Europe.

Since becoming head of Chatham House in January 1977, Drury has played an active part in the local community. He is a magistrate, past-president of Ramsgate Rotary Club, assistant county commissioner for the Scout Association and an active churchman.

The lecture is free and the public is invited to attend. For more information call Schultz at 543-6281.

Eastern Europe Tour Announced

Salisbury State University's latest study-tour this summer is to one of the less well-known areas of Europe, the countries of Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia and the cities of Budapest, Cracow and Prague. Participants will learn about the history and culture of this area during SSU's summer session, then take off for an exciting visit to view firsthand the cities they are studying.

SSU offers a comprehensive package, combining experienced leadership and expert knowledge of the area, with a program of marvelous sites and top quality hotels and meals. The tour departs on July 29 and returns August 9. Participants have the opportunity to explore the cities and all their attractions and, in addition enjoy special excursions. Trips included in the tour are to the Danube Bend in Hungary, to Auschwitz in Poland and to Karlstejn in Czechoslovakia. Each city features special dinners and time for sightseeing and souvenir shopping.

"All the travel experts agree that Eastern Europe's emerging democracies are the in place to be this year, with their numerous attractions and low cost," said Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department.

For more information attend the interest meeting on Wednesday, April 3, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke C of the Guerrieri University Center. If unable to attend the meeting but in need of more information please call Berry at 543-6245. Early reservations are required.

British Empire Lecture Presented April 4

Dr. Daniel R. Headrick, professor of social sciences and history at Roosevelt University in Chicago, will speak Thursday, April 4, as part of the University's "Britain Semester" program. The presentation, "Decolonization: a Loss or Gain for Great Britain" is at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

Headrick, who received his Ph.D. and a Master of Arts in history from Princeton University, will discuss the impact of the decline of imperialism in Great Britain. Headrick, who holds a second Master of Arts in international relations from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies in Washington, D.C., and the Johns Hopkins Bologna Center in Bologna, Italy, will also share his knowledge on the condition of Britain after the loss of the empire.

In addition to his role as a lecturer, he has published several books on the modernization of Europe. "The Invisible Weapon," "The Tentacles of Progress," "The Tools of Empire" and "Ejercito Y Politica En Espana" are only a few of Headrick's contributions to the literary world. In addition to his books, Headrick has had many articles and book reviews published throughout his career.

For more information about Headrick, his presentation or other programs offered through the Britain series, contact the Salisbury State University Public Relations Office at 543-6030. The public is cordially invited and admission is free.

SCHOLARSHIP MONEY. Ed Nabb, president of the Nathan Foundation, presents Dr. Thomas Bellavance with a check for $40,000 to finance SSU scholarships.

Nathan Foundation Gives $40,000 for Scholarships

The Nathan Foundation of Dorchester County recently presented $40,000 to the Salisbury State University Foundation to finance four-year scholarships. The scholarships, amounting to $8,000 each, are for five Dorchester County students to attend Salisbury State University.

The check was presented to President Thomas E. Bellavance by Ed Nabb, president of the Nathan Foundation. To qualify for the scholarship, Nabb said, one has to secure a guidance counselor's recommendation. The selection process begins in May.

The Nathan Foundation has been making scholarship money available to Salisbury State-bound students since 1962. The Foundation's 29-year investments in SSU now totals nearly $500,000.

The scholarships are always at Salisbury State, because, Nabb said, "we can buy more quality education there for our dollar than we can at any other institution in the state of Maryland." Bellavance said distribution of the scholarship money is closely controlled by the University. "There's been a very good track record for these students," he said.

The Nathan Foundation specifies that the money be used only for the benefit of citizens of Dorchester County and goes to organizations that serve people of every race, color and creed.

The Nathan Foundation was created in 1962 following the instructions in the will of Milford Nathan, who died in 1956. Later the Foundation was supported further from the estate of Bertha Nathan, Milford's sister who passed away in 1981.

SBDC Coordinates April Seminars

The Eastern Shore Region's Maryland Small Business Development Center Network (SBDC) at Chesapeake College in conjunction with the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business is coordinating several seminars in April aimed at business owners and managers in Delmarva.

On Friday, April 5, from 5-8 p.m. the "Family Owned Business" will be the topic at the Centreville County Building. Sponsors for the free seminar are the Perdue School of Business and the Queen Anne's County Economic Development Commission.

"How to Write a Business Plan" will be reviewed on Monday, April 15, from 4-7 p.m. at the Talbot County Chamber of Commerce in Easton. Also free, the seminar is sponsored by the Talbot County Chamber of Commerce and Chesapeake College.

On Thursday, April 18, from 4-7 p.m. "Goal Setting" will be addressed, at the C.W. Amos and Co. office in Cambridge. The registration fee is $10. Sponsors are Chesapeake College and the Dorchester County Economic Development Commission.

"Using Flexible Spending Accounts for Daycare" will be examined on Thursday, April 25, from 4-7 p.m. at the Dorchester County Library in Cambridge. The free seminar is sponsored by Chesapeake College, the Baltimore law firm of Offit & Offit, C.W. Amos, the Dorchester County Economic Development Commission, Caroline County Economic Development Commission, Queen Anne's County Economic Development Commission, Kent County Economic Development Commission and the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development.

For more information on any of these programs call Ellen Barnes, SBDC administrative assistant, at 827-5286.

Conference for Blacks In Higher Education

The University of Maryland's College Park Black Faculty and Staff Association will host the 4th Annual Conference for Blacks in Higher Education, Friday, April 19, at the UMCP's Center of Adult Education. The theme of the day-long conference, which begins at 8 a.m., is "African Americans in Higher Education: Linking Our Past, Present and Future."

It will feature speakers Franklyn G. Jenifer, presidentof Howard University, and Crystal Arlene Kuykendall, president of Kuykendall LTD and author of the book, "Improving Black Student Achievement Through Enhancing Self-Image."

The registration fee is $50 with a deadline of Monday, April 1. For more information, call Sharon Fries-Britt at (301) 314-8431.

HFMA Scholarship

The Healthcare Financial Management Association Scholarship will be awarded to a junior in 1991-92. The amount is $500 per year. The student must have a 3.0 G.P.A; must be majoring in one of the following business programs: accounting, finance, business administration or business management; and must be a full-time student. Deadline for application and other materials is Wednesday, May 1.

There are a few applications in the Financial Aid Office. Applicants may also contact Howard S. Geer at 1-800-258-6275 for more information or an application.

Attention Education Majors

For the Education Job Fair on Tuesday, April 2, students and alumni may bring a resume or the personal information form from their credential file. The Placement Office will provide up to five copies of the personal information form if requested by Monday, April 1. The Placement Office cannot provide complete credential files for the Job Fair, but will mail copies at students' request afterward. See Katrina Grogan or Linda Benson at the information table at the fair.

The Job Fair is conducted through the Center for Personal and Professional Development, Guerrieri University Center, room 263.

Phi Alpha Honor Society

The Social Work Department is currently accepting applications for Phi Alpha, a national honor society for social work. Criteria include a 3.0 overall G.P.A., a 3.25 G.P.A. in the major, and the applicant must be a declared social work major and have earned sophomore status. Initiation and dues are $16. Those interested please call Barbara Younger at 742-8689.

Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Broadcasts

The following is the repertoire and casting for the Texaco-Metropolitan radio broadcast of Wagner's "Parsifal" on Saturday, April 6, at 12:30 p.m. on WSCL-FM. (All performances will be live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.) James Levine is conducting, with Jessye Norman (Kundry), Placido Domingo (Parsifal), Ekkehard Wlaschiha (Amfortas), Aage Haugland (Klingsor), and Robert Lloyd (Gurnemanz).

B.S./M.S. Nursing Program

The application deadline for enrollment in the B.S./M.S. nursing program is May 1. This applies to all students holding a bachelor's degree in another discipline who are interested in enrolling in the accelerated B.S./M.S. nursing program.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing. Questions concerning this program may be directed to Phyllis Banks, chair of the student policies committee in the Department of Nursing.

Habitat for Humanity

During the spring and fall semesters of 1990, SSU's team of volunteers for Habitat for Humanity provided 510 hours of work with 99 different participants. This was the largest contribution made by participating organizations on the lower Eastern Shore.

Habitat for Humanity is a nonprofit organization that works with low-income families to build decent, affordable homes. Habitat teams, which come from churches, schools and workcamps, work on a rotating schedule every four to six weeks.

The SSU team will be working again on April 13 and May 11. For more information, call Greta Trumpower at 546-4168 or Krissy Monks at 548-4198.

Social Work Club

The Social Work Club will hold a junior/senior mixer on Wednesday, April 10, at 6:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall's Social Room. Juniors are welcome to come listen and ask questions about their future placements. Juniors will have the opportunity to talk to seniors who are currently in field placements in various agencies throughout the area.

IGI Results Available

The copy of the results from the Institutional Goals Inventory (IGI), a questionnaire distributed to full-time faculty and administrators last December, has been placed on reserve at the circulation desk of Blackwell Library for members of the University community to review.

The purpose of the inventory is to provide information to be used in University planning, reaccreditation and accountability efforts. For more information about the IGI, contact Linda Cashman, director of institutional research, at 543-6025.

Wellness Day

Last year's Wellness Day was a great success. Many students, faculty and staff members enjoyed the activities, performances, free screenings, Crystal Light samples and delicious fruit-kabobs. The participants included student groups, University departments and off-campus organizations.

This year's Wellness Day, the sixth, promises to be just as much fun. The departments coordinating this year's event (Office of Student Activities and Organizations, Health Center, Drug and Alcohol Prevention Resource Center, and University Dining) would like to make this a campuswide activity. It will take place on Monday, May 6, from 11 a.m - 3:30 p.m., outside and inside the Guerrieri University Center. Everyone is welcome to participate.

For more information contact Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313.

SSU Student in Furnace Town Workshop

Furnace Town Historic Site is be the location for a season-long series of 19th century crafts workshops. Part of Furnace Town Foundation's commitment to education and the arts, these workshops will be taught by skilled and enthusiastic craftspersons familiar with Furnace Town's role in preserving the past. The workshops are made possible in part by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council.

The spring 1991 series offers learning opportunities in broom-making, treadle-loom weaving and blacksmithing. Alice Paterra, a Salisbury State University graduate student who is also Furnace town's Broom-Maker, will share the skills which she has learned from veteran broom-maker Bill Hammond. Paterra, in addition to making brooms, has also been active in planning an interpretive exhibit for the Broom House and in developing new broom-related projects. Her "Cake Tester" proved very popular last year. The Broom-Making workshop will be offered on Saturday, April 20, from 1-4 p.m.

Foundation volunteer Denise Haight Nelson, skilled seamstress and fabric artist, will be providing instruction in rug weaving on the antique treadle-loom. The Treadle-Loom Weaving workshop will be offered on Saturday, May 11, from 1-4 p.m.

The Furnace Town Blacksmith's Guild is made up of a near dozen volunteer blacksmiths. Vocations of this group, each of whom see blacksmithing as a relaxing, rewarding and yet demanding avocation, include a college professor, a service manager, a secondary school teacher, a postal employee, a student, a welder and several men retired from a variety of positions. There will be Elementary Blacksmithing workshops on April 13 and on May 18, from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. Intermediate Blacksmithing will be offered on April 27 and on June 1, from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

The fee for each workshop session is $10 per person. Participants will also pay Furnace Town's site admission fee of $2 per adult. Pre-registration is required, and class size is limited. For more information and to pre-register, call Kathy Fisher at 632-2032.

Phi Mu at Furnace Town

On April 6 and 7, an 18th century American Revolutionary encampment will take place at Furnace Town Historic Site. Featuring British troops, American troops and camp followers, the encampment will be set up on the 12-acre wooded grounds and visitors can enjoy a variety of activities.

During the encampment, Furnace Town will offer its usual activities of weaving, broom-making and blacksmithing. Current archeological projects will be available for viewing. Guided tours of the grounds will be held throughout the encampment. Phi Mu, a Salisbury State University sorority, will be participating in the activities. Food will be available in the summer kitchen.

Furnace Town Historic Site is open for the encampment from 11 a.m. - 5 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday. The encampment will begin to dismantle at 3 p.m. on Sunday. Furnace Town's regular site admission of $2 per adult and $1 per child will include all activities of the encampment.

For more information call Kathy Fisher at 632-2032.

Senior Art Show in April

The 18th annual Salisbury State University Senior Art Show is scheduled for Friday, April 26, through Thursday, May 16, in the University Gallery in Blackwell Library.

An opening reception will be held Saturday, May 4, from 7-9 p.m. Portfolios may be reviewed during the reception. Art work ranging from drawing and painting to sculpture and ceramics by 34 seniors will be on display. Art work on exhibit may be purchased.

The exhibit gives the students an opportunity to show family, friends and the community their artistic styles. For more information call James Burgess, Art Department chair, at 543-6270.

Cleary Exhibit Through April 6

John R. Cleary, associate professor of art, is one of nine Eastern Shore artists selected to display his work at the first biennial Eastern Shore Invitational Exhibition at the Academy of the Arts in Easton.

The exhibition, which runs through April 6, is the culmination of a year of visits to artists' studios. During the year, it became evident that the increasing population of artists working and living on the Eastern Shore exhibit a high level of skill and sophistication. The works chosen represent a broad range of media and artistic approaches, from traditional to contemporary.

Cleary, who has been on the SSU faculty since 1975, holds an M.F.A. from Washington University of Fine Arts in St. Louis and a B.F.A. from Pennsylvania State University. His work has been displayed in more than 75 exhibitions including 41 juried exhibitions in 18 states. He frequently judges exhibitions in Maryland.

"The work in this exhibit may mark both an end and a beginning," said Cleary. "My last work allows me the luxury of a fuller evaluation and description because it is diagram-like, controlled, pensive, structure related, color based and history oriented." Less certain of the newer work, Cleary feels that it seems "more emotional but not without a mixture of conceptual and experimental elements."

According to a reviewer for The Alternative, a Baltimore monthly, "In all of Cleary's work there is a carefully controlled spatial tension in the colors as well as the lines which recalls the color-field painters (Rothko and Hofmann) as well as Motherwell."

Open House April 6

The University invites all prospective students and their families to an Open House on Saturday, April 6, from 9 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.

Originating in Holloway Hall, the Open House includes an informal coffee hour featuring presentations by faculty members and administrators about various aspects of the University and a walking tour of the campus and its facilities hosted by an SSU student.

The University urges all students to visit Salisbury State as part of the college selection process.

For more information on either Salisbury State or the Open House, call the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

Newsletter Deadline

Because the campus, including the Public Relations Office, will be closed Good Friday, March 29, the deadline date for the April 4 newsletter has been moved up to 4 p.m., Thursday, March 28. Best wishes for a safe and happy holiday.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup by Paul Ohanian

The men's lacrosse team continues to soar as the Sea Gulls are ranked second in the nation behind perennial champion Hobart. Salisbury, 5-0 entering Wednesday's game against Hartwick College, drubbed Cortland State 22-7 at Sea Gull Stadium last Sunday. Senior Rusty Pritzlaff enjoyed his most productive game of the season, scoring five goals and adding four assists. Linemate Rick Berkman finished with four goals and four assists, while Eric Ungleich tallied four goals and three assists. Steady defenseman John Russell also netted his first collegiate goal. Geoff Sanders, who started in goal, made four saves, while Scott Bentkowski recorded 12 stops in the second half.

Meanwhile, matching the men's lacrosse team's start is the men's tennis team, which began the week with a 4-0 mark. Sophomore Ken Soliday is unbeaten through four matches in the number one singles spot. Team captain Tre Moore is also undefeated, with three wins at number two singles and one win at number four. Junior Dave Hardesty and freshman Brian Weist are also 4-0 at the number five and six singles spots, respectively. The Gulls' next home match is on Monday, April 1, against Greensboro College. The women's lacrosse team evened its record at 2-2 last Saturday with an 18-10 home victory over St. Mary's (MD) College. Jamie Bentkowski led all scorers with five goals and one assist. Becky Clark added four goals and an assist while Joanne Fotia tallied three goals and two assists. Kris Hart made nine saves in goal to earn the win. The Gulls begin a four-game road trip at Glassboro State on April 3, with their next home game coming on April 16 against Washington.

Despite the baseball team's winless start, several players continue to hit the ball very well. Third baseman John Hershberger leads the squad with a .472 average through nine games. Outfielder Dean Hamburg is hitting .344, and sophomore David Shull has been a pleasant surprise with a .421 start.

The women's softball team was washed out the weekend of March 23 as the Eastern Mennonite Tournament was cancelled due to rain. The Sea Gulls play at Stockton State on April 4.

Coach Terry Rupert's track and field squad opens its season this weekend at the Battleground Invitational, hosted by Mary Washington College.

Ralston, Frampton Published

Dr. Scott Ralston, assistant professor of economics in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, has had two papers accepted for presentation at the Southwestern Economics Association annual meetings in San Antonio, TX, on March 27-30.

The first, coauthored with Edward Frampton of the Perdue School, is titled "A Comparison of Journal Acceptance Rates Between Disciplines, or Are the Publishing Criteria the Same Across Disciplines?" The study uses nonparametric statistics to determine if a significant difference exists between the level of difficulty associated with publishing in one business discipline as compared with another.

The second paper, coauthored with Stephen C. Morse of Texas Tech University, is titled, "Estimation of Functional Form(s) for a Recreational Demand Model." This study applies the Box-Cox transformation to a travel cost data set to determine the most appropriate function form for a travel cost model.

Smithsonian Bus Trip to Washington, D.C., April 12

The Guerrieri University Center is sponsoring a bus trip to Washington, D.C., on Friday, April 12. The bus will leave from the Dogwood entrance of the GUC at 8 a.m. and travel non-stop to the Smithsonian Institution National Museums on the Mall. Museums, including the Hirshorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, the National Air and Space Museum, the Arthur M. Sackler Gallery and the National Gallery of Art, have no admission charge.

Two exhibits currently featured at the National Gallery are "Eva/Ave: Woman in Renaissance and Baroque Prints" and "Twentieth-Century Art." Among the works presented are "Family of Saltimbanques" by Picasso, "Lavender Mist" by Jackson Pollack, and "The Stations of the Cross" by Barnett Newman. The Sackler Gallery presently has photographs of Iranian and Chinese lacquered furniture from the 15th to the 18th Century on view, and the National Museum of American Art is exhibiting "Winslow Homer in the 1890s: Prout's Neck Observed." Everyone is free to visit the sights of their choice. At 4 p.m. the bus will depart from the Mall and return non-stop to Salisbury State.

Full-time SSU students may begin sign-ups at 8 a.m., Wednesday, March 20, at the Information Desk in the GUC. The cost will be $10. Each person must be present for sign-up and cannot reserve more than one seat. Cancellations must be made at the GUC Information Desk and refunds will only be made if the seat is filled.

Part-time students, staff, faculty, alumni and guests may begin sign-ups on Monday, April 1. The cost will be $12. Questions concerning this trip may be answered by calling the GUC Office at 543-6100.

April 6! Campus Variety Show

by Scott M. Howard

The ballots are in, the acts are almost ready, and the anticipation is building as Salisbury State University's first annual variety show is about to hit the Holloway Hall stage.

The event, scheduled for Saturday, April 6, at 7:30 p.m., will consist of two acts, with 12 performances in each act introduced by four pairs of master of ceremonies. Some of the MC's include Student Government President Lynne Maguire, WSUR General Manager Jeremy Sebiri and Flyer Photography Editor David Lasher. As the title indicates, there is a lot of variety.

The goal of the show is to present the variety of people that makes SSU what it is, with a format that makes anything possible.

There are a number of dance acts, one features Vera Powell and Amber Wright. Both are with the SSU Dance Co. The Guild is a campus band that will be performing two original tunes in the vein of Bruce Hornsby. David Cherry, a senior at SSU, said, "We've been waiting for a chance to play. We can't wait." Culture is an SSU-based rap act headed by Jason McNeal. This act features funky rhythms and a dance group. "I'm really excited," said McNeal. "I'm really looking forward to jamming with the other acts." SSU alumni will turning out for a guitar duo; there will be a gospel choir and a classical piano piece.

Advance tickets at $2 go on sale April 1 at the Information Desk in the Guerrieri University Center and door prizes will be given based on the tickets.

Auditoria Answers

The Auditorium Services Department exists to help all departments that use the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center, Holloway Hall Auditorium and Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The Auditorium Services Department is in charge of all technical aspects of these rooms. Users needing lights, sound or assistance with audio-visual equipment need to contact Tony Broadbent at 548-4597. To make it easier to use one of the campus auditoriums he suggests the following:

Users need to reserve a facility by contacting Donna Test, in the Guerrieri University Center Office, at 548-3344. Once Donna confirms the reservation, she will send a confirmation form and an Auditorium Worksheet.

Users need to fill out the worksheet and send it to Tony Broadbent. Tony's office is in the back of WSCL, in Caruthers Hall. The worksheet must be turned in at least three weeks before the event. Time is needed to schedule people and equipment for the events.

One week before the event, Broadbent will send the user a confirmation sheet that lists people working the event and an estimate of charges. Programs directly related to classes (i.e. that have course numbers) will not be charged. The charges will cover labor and special rentals if needed.

The day before the event, it is recommended that the user contact Broadbent to make sure everyone is aware of any changes that might arise.

The Auditorium Services Department in special cases can provide sound equipment for functions outside of the three main rooms. Users need to contact Broadbent directly to see if these services are possible. Please help the department by giving it proper notice and, according to Broadbent, "We will give you a 110 percent effort in making your event run smoothly."

He also asks anyone that has a room scheduled on campus and finds out that they don't need it, to contact Donna Test as soon as they find out. Over 10 percent of the reservations on campus are not used and other departments are forced to cancel events because the schedule says rooms are not available.

Seminar for 'Minority Leadership in the Workplace'

During the weekend of Friday, April 5 - Sunday, April 7, the Office of Alumni Affairs, the Minority Affairs Office and the Minority Leadership Development Program are sponsoring the second annual African-American Alumni Student Summit.

The focus of this year's summit is "Minority Leadership in the Workplace." "One of the goals of the summit is to prepare students to assume leadership roles in work settings after graduation by providing the necessary information to effectively plan entry into the career of their choice," said Terry Clay, SSU career development specialist.

The Summit's planners will address a number of student needs and concerns through workshops providing an overview of various business careers such as marketing and sales, media, engineering and science, law, careers related to political science, health careers, education and entrepreneurship. Students have indicated a desire to learn how best to market themselves toward specific careers, said Clay.

The morning sessions will encourage development in self-marketing skills—for example, resume writing and interviewing, while giving students information about various career paths. Workshop discussions will center on the most appropriate courses to take, as well as the most effective resume content, including experiences and extra-curricular activities, for specific careers. Students will have an opportunity to role play a typical job interview in their desired career field.

The afternoon panels will allow for frank discussions regarding the African-American experience in a variety of careers.

The summit workshops are open to the campus community free of charge. For more general information contact Terry Clay at 543-6070. Students wishing to sign up for particular workshops should contact Vaughn White at 548-4503.

'Goal Setting' Seminar April 3

The Small Business Development Center in conjunction with the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business will sponsor a seminar, aimed at persons working in a profit or not for profit organization or own their own business, on "Goal Setting."

Co-sponsored by the Worcester County Economic Development Commission and the Somerset/Wicomico County Economic Development Commission, the seminar will be held on Wednesday, April 3, from 9 a.m. - noon in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Registration is $10. For more information contact the Small Business Development Center at 546-4325 or (800) 999-7232.

SSU at Bach's Lunch

Morgan State Singers and ABQ Concert April 1

The famed Morgan State University Singers will join the Annapolis Brass Quintet in concert at Salisbury State University on Monday, April 1, at 8 p.m.

The program, which will be held on stage in Holloway Hall Auditorium, will feature the world premiere of "Songs from Terezin" by Washington, D.C. composer, Scott Pender. The work is based on four poems written by Czech children while being held in Terezin—a World War II concentration camp. Also featured will be the Maryland premiere of "Shout For Joy" written by one of America's most prominent black composers, Adolphus Hailstork. The Annapolis Brass Quintet will perform Leonard Bernstein's "Dance Suite," which was composed shortly before his death in 1990, and two American rags by Scott Joplin and Tom Turpin.

The Morgan State Singers will sing selections from "The Peaceable Kingdom," a set of traditional spirituals written in 1936 by Randall Thompson. The Morgan State University Singers is a select group of 16 voices chosen from The Morgan State University Choir. Six members of this group recently completed a month-long tour of East Africa, sponsored by Arts America of the United States Information Services Agency.

With over 100 voices, the Choir is considered one of the nation's most prestigious choral ensembles. It has performed with many of the world's finest orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic, Cleveland Orchestra, Philadelphia Orchestra, Detroit Symphony, Helsinki Philharmonic and the London Symphony Orchestra.

The Annapolis Brass Quintet was founded in 1971 as America's first full-time performing brass ensemble and has been acclaimed as one of the world's truly fine chamber ensembles.

Each season the Quintet performs in the cultural centers and at universities and colleges throughout the United States. These annual tours, their brass symposiums and the encouragement of new works by American composers have been instrumental in fostering the tremendous interest in brass chamber music that is now evident in the U.S.

The Annapolis Brass Quintet has toured the European continent 16 times and has performed in Central America, the Orient and the Middle East. "Christmas With Byrd and Brass" is the most recent of its 14 commerical recordings. Completed in 1989, it was the Quintet's second collaborative recording with Charlie Byrd.

The public is cordially invited to attend. Admission is $12 for adults and $8 for students. For more information about the concert, contact the SSU Department of Music at 543-6385.

support the costs of reproducing the master copy of a textbook she has written for preservice and inservice teachers. The book is to be field tested during the 1991-92 academic year.

An award of $500 was made to Rodgers, assistant professor of nursing, to assist with expenses as she researches and collects data for her dissertation on the success of minority students in predominantly white schools of nursing in Maryland and selected Virginia schools.

Receiving $300 was Schultz, associate professor of education, to assist with expenses for a guest speaker who will speak at the Education Department's spring course on British children's literature.

An award of $500 was given to Singleton, associate professor of communcation arts, in support of his participation in the Southern States Communication Association meeting in Tampa, FL. Singleton will be program planner for the Mass Communciation Division and chair the top three papers panel.

Skeeter, assistant professor of geography, was awarded $400 to help offset expenses when he presents a professional paper, "A Synoptic Climatology of August, September and October Precipitation in the Central United States," at the annual meeting of the Association of American Geographers in Miami, FL.

Tardiff, professor of mathematics, was awarded $500 to attend the 29th International Symposium on Functional Equations in Nova Scotia in June where he will present a paper to the symposium on the results on a new family of triangle functions.

An award of $200 was presented to Whitehead, professor of psychology and department chair, toward his participation at the Chautauqua Short Course for College Teachers at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. The course, "Conservation, Ecology and the Environment: The Emergence of Environmental Attitudes in American Science, Culture and Politics," will be useful in his work on environmental psychology.

According to Robert Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation, some $12,500 was awarded to faculty and staff at the University by the Foundation for deserving activities and projects during 1990.

The SSU Foundation was established in 1973 for the encouragement and enrichment of education and incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for educational, charitable and scientific purposes at Salisbury State.

Semester Showcase Finale April 7

The final Salisbury State University Campus Showcase program of the season is on Sunday, April 7, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The program, based on the old Chautauqua format, offers educational entertainment for all. First on the program is a performance by Dean Defino, professor in the Computer Science Department. His performance, "Dean and Derry on Stage," includes ventriloquism and other light-hearted entertainment.

Another part of the program features Colonel (ret.) George "Buzz" Gering of the History Department presenting excerpts from the farewell address of General Douglas MacArthur.

The Showcase concludes with a varied selection of songs by the concert choir of St. Andrew's School in Middletown, DE. The St. Andrew's Concert Choir has an international reputation. It had been scheduled to perform in Eastern Europe prior to the war in the Gulf. The choir presents a repertoire ranging from Handel to Hammerstein II—from "Hallelujah, Amen" to selections from "The Muppet Movie."

The Showcase is free and the public is invited to attend. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

March, British film director and television producer Stephen Peet managed to speak to nine different classes. His evening programs covered "British Film and Culture" and "British Film and Television." Peet, who has received international acclaim for his work, went on from Salisbury to Washington. There he spoke at the Smithsonian's Wilson Center and at the National Archives.

The influence of the Britain Series is being felt across campus this spring. Series co-chair Tom Erskine says that a British focus has been integrated into many of this semester's course offerings. He is teaching British film, Barbara Schultz is offering education students a close look at children's books by English authors, and many instructors will assign projects that illustrate this country's ties to England in fields such as science and business.

Providing another piece of the "patchwork quilt" is Dickens scholar, Dr. Joss Lutz Marsh, who will speak on the famous 19th century author. Marsh will include clips from the recent BBC series "Little Dorrit" in her presentation. She comes to SSU from the California Institute of Technology, where she is a professor.

Theatre lovers on and off campus can plan ahead for the staging of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat" in late April. The Sophanes players will soon begin work on the musical from British playwrights Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice. The Britain Series began with a classic British comedy. The SSU Theatre presented William Congreve's "Love for Love," a hallmark of the Restoration period, during March.

Anglophiles and die-hard Yankees are sure to find something to suit their interest in the British Series this spring. The University will publicize each event as it arises. A program for the entire Series is available.

Call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030 for details.

'Historic Salisbury' Exhibit Recaptures City's Past

Salisbury history will come to life in a new exhibit on the campus.

The latest offering from the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture opens in the Blackwell Library Gallery on Saturday, April 6. "Historic Salisbury" takes a personal approach to the story of the town's growth. Looking through the eyes of those who lived it, visitors will witness Salisbury's evolution from a market place to the Shore's commercial and industrial center.

Visitors to "Historic Salisbury" can not only see the past, but hear about it. Two special programs, presented as part of the exhibit, will feature local architecture and first-person history. On Wednesday, April 17, Assistant Curator Tara Evans will give a slide lecture on Salisbury's growth, as reflected in its architecture. A panel of African-American citizens who have lived in Salisbury for many years will reminisce about local history from their perspectives in a Wednesday, April 24, program. Also planned are first-person "historical tours" of the collection by Richard Cooper, retired surveyor and expert on Salisbury history.

"Historic Salisbury" recalls some of the critical moments in the town's past: from the great fires of 1860 and 1886 and the 1909 dam breaking that devastated Salisbury's landscape to the Civil War and Great Depression that rocked the nation. Through documents and photographs and even some three-dimensional exhibits the visitor sees history as it changed the life of the common folk who lived here.

An Evening With Mark Twain Comes to Campus April 11-14

"There is a familiar old maxim which assures us that man is the noblest work of God. Who found that out?"—Mark Twain

The writings of this quintessentially American humorist will be explored in a one-man stage production of his stories and writings titled "Lies, Laughs and a Lynchin'—an Evening With Mark Twain" April 11-14 in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Dr. R.J. Wesley, who had directed and acted in several SSU productions over the last 20 years, portrays the celebrated author in the 70th year of his life, during a lecture tour.

"Lies, Laughs and a Lynchin'" started germinating some four years ago, when Wesley gave a solo performance of "Jim Baker's Blue Jay Yarn," as part of a collection of one-acts for the theatre program. Audiences were enthusiastic about this recreation of a Twain short story.

The overwhelming popularity of the PBS series, "The Civil War" and the Oscar-winning movie, "Dances With Wolves," this past season all pointed to a groundswell of interest in 19th century American history and culture. "In many ways Twain is a personification of that period and the timing seems right to bring his works back to the SSU stage," Director of Theatre, Paul Pfeiffer said.

During much of his lifetime (1835-1910) this prolific writer and one-time newspaperman took to the lecture circuit to raise money.

Visiting Chefs Week Offers Dining Diversity Mexican, Chinese and Seafood Fare Featured at SSU

Last November five area chefs donned their white jackets and displayed their culinary crafts, preparing such delectable delights as clams casino, moo goo gai pan, chicken Italiano with angel hair pasta and pesto sauce, and mushroom pate with blueberry sauce.

But instead of expecting patrons of their area restaurants to savor their menu items, they were concocting dishes for 300-500 students in the Ruth Powell Dining Hall as part of an ongoing food festival event entitled "Visiting Chefs Week." For four consecutive days, chefs from dining establishments in Salisbury took turns preparing and serving some of their signature dishes.

"Participation in last year's event was so overwhelming that we decided to do it again this month," said Carmen DiSylvestro, associate director of dining services at the University. "The minimum crowd we had was 378 and the maximum was 576—this blew the chefs right out of the water because they never thought they could feed that many people at one time," he added.

The University's dining services provides alternatives to cafeteria style dining such as this ongoing gala food affair because they want to break the monotony of cafeteria style dining for students in as innovative and creative a manner as possible.

"We also want to go out into the community and find restaurants that students might want to patronize—they can be bringing mom and dad

Persian Gulf Lecture Series Starts April 8

How has religion contributed to the war in the Persian Gulf? What role have the allies played in the ongoing crisis? How have cultural differences contributed to a lack of understanding between our cultures? What will the region be like in the near future? Who will be the powers?

These are just some of the questions to be discussed during the Persian Gulf Lecture Series this spring which will be held at the University. The lectures are sponsored by the Guerrieri University Center, the Cultural Events Committee and the Persian Gulf Advisory Committee.

Dr. John Ruedy, associate professor of history at Georgetown University, will launch the series on Monday, April 8, with his presentation, "Conflict in the Gulf—Historical Background," in the Holloway Hall Social Room at 7:30 p.m. He will be discussing the historical and geographical considerations which have a bearing on the situation in the Middle East.

On Monday, April 15, Dr. Mumtaz Ahmad, associate professor of political science at Hampton University, will present "Conflict in the Gulf—Cultural and Religious Background" in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center at 7:30 p.m.

All lectures are free and open to the public. For more information, please call 543-6006.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

British Empire Lecture Presented April 4

Dr. Daniel R. Headrick, professor of social sciences and history at Roosevelt University in Chicago, will speak Thursday, April 4, as part of the University's "Britain Semester" program. The presentation, "Decolonization: a Loss or Gain for Great Britain" is at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

The Perdue School of Business is seeking applications for an anticipated tenure-track opening in accounting beginning August 15. Qualifications include a Ph.D. in accounting. Rank is open. The Perdue School requires a commitment to high quality teaching as well as an active research agenda. Candidates for a senior rank should have an established research record. Salary is competitive with AACSB institutions. Send vita and letter of application to Douglas Marshall, chair, Department of Accounting and Legal Studies, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Marketing Position

The Perdue School of Business is seeking a committed teacher and scholar for a fall 1991 position. Qualifications include a Ph.D. or D.B.A. Teaching responsibilities include courses in marketing principles, marketing management and/or other marketing specialties. Rank is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Salary is AACSB competitive: Please send a letter of interest and vita to Dr. H. Lee Meadow, chair, marketing search committee, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Applications will be accepted until April 30.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

English Assistantships

The English Department anticipates five assistantships (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing the M.A. in English (writing or literature option). The writing option is a two-year program of study (33 credit hours) which involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas.

The literature option involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Teaching assistants will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program.

For application packets call the Department of English at 543-6445 [FAX: (301) 543-6068]. Deadlines for applications for GRE are March 15 and April 30; deadline for assistantships is April 5.

Appropriations Board Opening

Are you interested in getting involved with student organizations on campus? The Appropriations Board is currently seeking applications for an opening position next fall. All interested students with at least a 2.3 GPA are encouraged to apply.

Experience with Word Perfect 5.1 and/or Lotus 1-2-3 is helpful, and the ability to work eight flexible hours per week is required. All positions are paid positions.

Submit letters of interest to the Appropriations Board in the Guerrieri University Center, room 202, by April 5.

'Education in England' Talk April 10

Brian Drury, headmaster of Chatham House School in Ramsgate, England, will speak on Wednesday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. His address, "Home Thoughts From Abroad," will deal with current issues in education in England.

The lecture is part of a series of programs honoring Great Britain during the spring semester at Salisbury State. Dr. Barbara Townsend Schultz, associate professor of education, is coordinator of the event. The SSU Foundation is providing necessary funding.

The lecture is free and the public is invited to attend. For more information call Schultz at 543-6281.

B.S./M.S. Nursing Program

The application deadline for enrollment in the B.S./M.S. nursing program is May 1. This applies to all students holding a bachelor's degree in another discipline who are interested in enrolling in the accelerated B.S./M.S. nursing program.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing. Questions concerning this program may be directed to Phyllis Banks, chair of the student policies committee in the Department of Nursing.

Social Work Club

The Social Work Club will hold a junior/senior mixer on Wednesday, April 10, at 6:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall's Social Room. Juniors are welcome to come listen and ask questions about their future placements. Juniors will have the opportunity to talk to seniors who are currently in field placements in various agencies throughout the area.

The Choir of St. Andrew's School, Middletown, DE (setting for the film "Dead Poets Society") will sing in the final Campus Showcase of the season.

Semester Showcase Finale April 7

The final Salisbury State University Campus Showcase program of the season is on Sunday, April 7, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The program, based on the old Chautauqua format, offers educational entertainment for all. First on the program is a performance by Dean Defino, professor in the Computer Science Department. His performance, "Dean and Derry on Stage," includes ventriloquism and other light-hearted entertainment.

Another part of the program features Colonel (ret.) George "Buzz" Gering of the History Department presenting excerpts from the farewell address of General Douglas MacArthur.

The Showcase concludes with a varied selection of songs by the concert choir of St. Andrew's School in Middletown, DE. The St. Andrew's Concert Choir has an international reputation. It had been scheduled to perform in Eastern Europe prior to the war in the Gulf. The choir presents a repertoire ranging from Handel to Hammerstein II—from "Hallelujah, Amen" to selections from "The Muppet Movie."

The Showcase is free and the public is invited to attend. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Mixed Media Exhibit at University Gallery

Assemblages and other works in mixed media by Michel Demanche and Joseph Davis will be on display in the University Gallery located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, April 1-4.

Both artists, who are married to each other, address social and political issues in their art. They will discuss their work in a joint gallery talk on Thursday, April 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the SSU Gallery. The talk, which is intended for a general audience, will be followed by a reception, also in the Gallery. The public is invited to both events.

According to Ursula Ehrhardt, director of the Gallery, "assemblage is a contemporary approach to artmaking in which various images and materials, including common objects, are combined to create a new type of art which challenges conventional notions of what art should look like, how it should be made and, most importantly, how it conveys meaning."

Demanche's works, for example, may extend across an entire wall, combining photographs with roughly cut wooden forms, knickknacks, wire, blinking lights and a verbal text. The individual images in these works, according to Demanche, are often based on ironic juxtapositions of cultural stereotypes, thus encouraging the viewer to examine the assumptions underlying these stereotypical situations and ideas from a fresh point of view.

Demanche, who moved to the Eastern Shore last fall, teaches fine arts at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. She previously taught art at St. Mary's (MD) College, Memphis State University and North Texas State University. She has exhibited her works throughout the United States, including the Whitney Museum in New York and the National Museum of Women in the Arts in Washington, D.C., and in many national juried exhibitions.

Davis, who has several degrees in both art and music, including master's degrees in performance and music history, frequently explores the relationship of art and music in his work, actually incorporating sound into some of his assemblages, which he calls "sound-paintings."

His works range from small, intricately detailed construction reminiscent of stage sets to large-scale paintings which may include entire objects, such as a chair. A number of his works deal with key events in recent political and social history, often incorporating images derived from well-known works of art.

Davis is an adjunct professor of music at St. Mary's College. He is also a professional musician, playing keyboard with Brothers Low Down, a local blues band.

The Gallery is open Monday-Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1-5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5-8 p.m. Regularly scheduled Gallery talks on the exhibition, given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place every Wednesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. For more information, call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Environmental Trust Meeting

The Wicomico Environmental Trust will meet on Sunday, April 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

If the continuing environmental degradation worries you to the point of wanting to do something about it, come to the meeting.

For more information, call Ben Fusaro at 543-6470 or Kathy Shannon at 543-6476.

'Computer as Sketchbook' Reflected in Exhibit

"Raku Ceramic Garden Forms and Computer-inspired Drawings and Paintings," a new exhibit in the Atrium Gallery next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center is on display through April 24. Dr. Harold McWhinnie, a professor at the University of Maryland College Park, is the artist. The public is invited to a reception and computer-demonstration by McWhinnie on Wednesday, April 10, from 1-5 p.m.

McWhinnie received his Bachelor of Fine Arts from the Art Institute of Chicago and his Master of Fine Arts from the University of Chicago. He is currently teaching in the Department of Design at UMCP. He spent last fall as an artist in reseach at the Hambidge Center in Rabun Gap, GA. Past shows and exhibitions include the Atlanta Art Museum, a group show of Hambidge Fellows, Bowie State University Art Department and the Faculty Show at the Maryland Institute of Art.

McWhinnie describes his sculpture as "totoms and mushrooms" which are sculptural themes that have evolved over the past five years and are suited to out-of-door gardens. All are hand built out of stoneware clay. They are highly textured and glazed with a variety of Chinese stoneware glazes.

Abstract drawings, paintings and prints are also on display. They are taken from slides of computer images. McWhinnie said, "My initial work is created on an IBM PC computer and then turned into a slide and photo format so that I can use it in the creation of drawings, paintings and prints in more traditional materials. I try to blend the old and the new in these examples of my more recent artistic efforts. I am involved with the creation of artistic images and I conceptualized the computer as a form of an electronic sketchbook."

The Atrium Gallery is open daily, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Admission is free. For more information call the Guerrieri Center Office at 543-6100.

Seminar for 'Minority Leadership in the Workplace'

During the weekend of Friday, April 5 - Sunday, April 7, the Office of Alumni Affairs, the Minority Affairs Office and the Minority Leadership Development Program are sponsoring the second annual African-American Alumni Student Summit.

The focus of this year's summit is "Minority Leadership in the Workplace." "One of the goals of the summit is to prepare students to assume leadership roles in work settings after graduation by providing the necessary information to effectively plan entry into the career of their choice," said Terry Clay, SSU career development specialist.

The summit workshops are open to the campus community free of charge. For more general information contact Terry Clay at 543-6070. Students wishing to sign up for particular workshops should contact Vaughn White at 548-4503.

Singers Needed

Sing in the SSU Concert Choir during the 1991-92 academic year. Contact Dr. Duane R. Karna for further information (Music Department, 543-6385) about pre-registration and voice placement. Register for MUSA 100-001, one credit hour, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 3:30-5 p.m.

Smithsonian Bus Trip to Washington, D.C., April 12

The Guerrieri University Center is sponsoring a bus trip to Washington, D.C., on Friday, April 12. The bus will leave from the Dogwood entrance of the Guerrieri University Center at 8 a.m. and travel non-stop to the Smithsonian Institution National Museums on the Mall. Museums, including the Hirshorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, the National Air and Space Museum, the Arthur M. Sackler Gallery and the National Gallery of Art, have no admission charge.

Two exhibits currently featured at the National Gallery are "Eva/Ave: Woman in Renaissance and Baroque Prints" and "Twentieth-Century Art." Among the works presented are "Family of Saltimbanques" by Picasso, "Lavender Mist" by Jackson Pollack, and "The Stations of the Cross" by Barnett Newman. The Sackler Gallery presently has photographs of Iranian and Chinese lacquered furniture from the 15th to the 18th Century on view, and the National Museum of American Art is exhibiting "Winslow Homer in the 1890s: Prout's Neck Observed." Everyone is free to visit the sights of their choice. At 4 p.m. the bus will depart from the Mall and return non-stop to Salisbury State.

Tickets are $10 for students and $12 for faculty, staff and alumni. Purchase tickets at the Guerrieri Center information desk. Call 543-6100 for more information.

Campus Variety Show April 6!

by Scott M. Howard

The ballots are in, the acts are almost ready, and the anticipation is building as Salisbury State University's first annual variety show is about to hit the Holloway Hall stage.

The event, scheduled for Saturday, April 6, at 7:30 p.m., will consist of two acts, with 12 performances in each act introduced by four pairs of master of ceremonies. Some of the MC's include Student Government President Lynne Maguire, WSUR General Manager Jeremy Sebiri and Flyer Photography Editor David Lasher. As the title indicates, there is a lot of variety.

The goal of the show is to present the variety of people that makes SSU what it is, with a format that makes anything possible.

There are a number of dance acts, one features Vera Powell and Amber Wright. Both are with the SSU Dance Co. The Guild is a campus band that will be performing two original tunes in the vein of Bruce Hornsby. David Cherry, a senior at SSU, said, "We've been waiting for a chance to play. We can't wait." Culture is an SSU-based rap act headed by Jason McNeal. This act features funky rhythms and a dance group. "I'm really excited," said McNeal. "I'm really looking forward to jamming with the other acts." SSU alumni will turning out for a guitar duo; there will be a gospel choir and a classical piano piece.

Tickets are $2 and can be purchased at the Guerrieri Center information desk.

Poster Design Chosen

A distinguished panel of design professionals met recently to select the first annual Salisbury Festival 1991 Poster Design Competition sponsored by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council. They reviewed 102 entries from throughout the mid-Atlantic region.

The three panel members were Steve Makovenyi, visual information specialist and exhibit designer with the Smithsonian Institute, Lew Fifield, chairman of the Visual Communication Department of the Maryland Institute, College of Art, and Carol Bloodsworth, director of publications at Salisbury State.

The winning design chosen is by Bob Helsley, a graphic artist from Baltimore. Using a royal purple and lavender combination with black and grays, Helsley captured the city skyline with a silouette of the courthouse, marina, Newtown houses and downtown. Swooping seagulls and tossed confetti fill the air giving the sense of the Salisbury Festival celebration.

"Helsley's work reflects the community, its values and its spirit," said Davina Grace Hill, executive director of SWAC. "It is a lovely inaugural poster for the Festival."

On May 1 Helsley's winning poster will be unveiled at a Salisbury Festival opening reception and exhibit in The Gallery, located in Court Plaza. The reception begins at 6 p.m. Helsley will also be awarded a $1,000 prize at that time. In addition to the unveiling and award, all of the designs entered in the competition will be on display with some of the original designs for sale.

The poster competition was sponsored by Art Express, Wyatt Wholesale, Inc., Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., Arby's, Benchmark Financial Services, Gray Insurance Agency, Inc., Cooper-Stewart Realtors, Inc. and Dover Radio Page. Limited edition, signed and numbered prints will be on sale to the public for $25 each. Unsigned posters will be sold for $8 each. Posters will be available at gift and card shops throughout the area and at the Arts Council's Salisbury Festival booth.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

With wins against Hartwick and Albany State last week, the Sea Gulls ran their lacrosse record to 7-0 and remain in the second position in the weekly Division III national ranking, as announced on April 1. The Gulls continue to get consistent scoring from the top attack unit of Rick Berkman (27g,21a), Eric Ungleich (27g,20a) and Rusty Pritzlaff (17g,16a). Chris Boyle (13g,7a) and Kevin Hohner (8g,5a) have keyed the play of the midfield, and Geoff Sanders and Scott Bentkowski have shared time in the SSU nets. Through seven games, the team is averaging 18.3 goals per game and has had 18 different players register at least one goal or one assist.

The women's track team opened its season in impressive fashion last Saturday as they set four new school records while competing in the Battleground Relays in Fredericksburg, VA. New marks were established in the 4 x 100 relay (53.7); the 4 x 200 relay (2:05.7); the sprint medley (2:05.0) and the distance medley (14:32). The team of Angela Waters, Cheryl Ish, Kirsten Owings and Amy Spishock claimed both the 4 x 100 and sprint medley records. Kelly Surgent, Kristen DeCrone, Tanya Snydor and Jennifer Foss combined on the 4 x 200 record, and Erin Green, Spishock, Valerie Sontag and Cathy Emerson set the distance medley mark.

Despite a sluggish start for the baseball team, which begins its post-spring break schedule with a 2-10 record, several individuals have posted impressive numbers through 12 games. Senior John Hershberger is batting a cool .500, with 25 hits in 50 at-bats. He also leads the club with eight RBIs and six doubles. Freshman catcher Kevin Schiavone has been a pleasant surprise with a .375 average and three doubles in seven games. Sophomore David Shull is hitting .322 and has drawn a team-high seven walks.

The softball team is off to a 3-1 start despite having lost several games to the weatherman. The Gulls face a busy week with games against Shenandoah and Stockton State before playing in the Mary Washington Tournament this weekend.

The women's lacrosse squad looks to move its 2-3 record over .500 with three games this week. In addition to playing Glassboro State, the Sea Gulls meet Frostburg State on Friday and Sweet Briar on Saturday.

The men's and women's tennis teams continue their spring seasons this week. The men have three road matches while the women play in the Catholic University Tournament this weekend.

According to critical reviews of the era, he was an extremely popular if unorthodox orator, using a distinctly American drawl and lounging about the stage with a variety of gestures and mannerisms, all to maximum comic effect. His tall tales and short stories "communicated in a vernacular which is still accessible a hundred years later," Wesley said.

"An Evening With Mark Twain" includes selections from classic American books such as "Huckleberry Finn," and his celebrated collections of travel stories, "A Tramp Abroad" and "The Innocents Abroad."

In the 1950s and 1960s actor Hal Holbrook introduced his platform humor anew to American audiences. Like that of many of today's successful comediens, "Mark Twain's humor is... a sort of good-natured self-satire, in which...(the audience) may see (its) own absurdities reflected," wrote American editor and Twain friend, William Dean Howells.

The Twain production is directed by Richard W. Culver, with costume and sets by Pfeiffer, and lighting and sound by Tony Broadbent. "Lies, Laughs and a Lynchin'" inaugurates a new "Studio Series" by Salisbury State Theatre which emphasizes performance, said Pfeiffer.

It will be followed in May by a doublebill of one-act comic operas directed by SSU alumna Janice Price. They are "La Serva Padrona" and "The Telephone."

Tickets for "An Evening With Mark Twain" which is approximately an hour long, are $1 for students and senior citizens; $2 general admission, and free for SSU students, faculty and staff. Group discounts are available. Performances are at 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, April 11-13, with a 2 p.m. Sunday matinee, April 14.

Call the theatre box office at (301) 543-6228 for reservations.

For more information call (301) 543-6229 or SSU Public Relations at (301) 543-6030.

SSU's Developing Arboretum

Over the past five years the Salisbury State University Horticulture/Grounds Department has worked to develop the campus into an arboretum and to join the national organization the American Association of Botanic Gardens and Arboreta (AABGA). That involves collecting, documenting and labeling plants.

An arboretum needs a wide collection of trees and shrubs. A wide collection is possible, but not a complete collection. Limitations exist. One of the limitations is the zone in which each plant is hardy. The greatest variety grown here extends to zones which harbor the same climatic conditions. For example, if the temperature in zone four in China equals the temperature ranges in zone seven here then that particular species can survive in here. Therefore, every plan cannot survive in every botanical family.

Seasonal changes bring many surprises at an arboretum. "We learn from the changes that occur," said Linda Langelo, assistant director of horticulture. "Hopefully, we share the changes with others and pass them on through teaching. The real purpose of an arboretum is educational.

"Part of learning, in order to teach is to document all that we have," said Langelo. "We learn where to place these shrubs and trees properly for instruction, but primarily for their survival." A system now in place identifies each plant on campus.

Labeling adds accession numbers to new plants as they are bought. An accession number is marked next to the plant on a grid map which documents all campus plants.

Cowabunga, Dude!

The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles "Coming Out of Their Shells" tour comes to Salisbury Friday, April 12, at 8 p.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Tickets are $14.50 and can be purchased at T's Corner in Oak Hall, VA, Price's Music in Seaford, DE, and the Civic Center box office. To charge by phone call 548-4911.

The concert is an unconventional theatrical stage production which blends music and a finely-crafted story that interacts with the audience. When kids enter the Civic Center they will be greeted by April, ace reporter and special friend of the Turtles, setting the stage for many surprises including the mysterious appearance of the Turtle's dreaded nemesis, Shredder. The program features additional appearances by Splinter and other Turtle favorites.

Items Requested for Desert Storm Troops

Let's not forget those troops who still remain in Saudi Arabia. Items needed are reading material such as: Readers' Digest, Computer magazines, Popular Mechanics, Popular Science, (used magazines are okay), blank cassettes and writing paper. First priority for these items will go to local troops, but if they are relieved of active duty, items will go to other units. Drop off points are at the information desk, Guerrieri University Center and Blackwell Library. Let's show our support!

there during a visit or just going out with friends for a change of pace," said DiSylvestro.

Chef Tony Hilligoss of Legends Restaurant in downtown Salisbury launches the week's festivities on Monday, April 8. He will be serving escargot provencal, rediccho (romaine lettuce with hot vinegar bacon dressing), tomato barley soup, veal marsala and chocolate mousse. Included in his presentation is a tableside preparation of bananas foster.

"As vice president of the Delmarva Chefs Association," said Hilligoss, "one of our goals is to educate people as to what is available in the world of fine dining. I feel that people should be exposed to various foods at as young an age as possible and this is a perfect opportunity for me to share some of my specialty dishes with students who may never have tried them," he said.

This year's Visiting Chefs Week is unique in that it includes a local restauranteer who graduated summa cum laude from SSU two years ago. Pete Engler, owner of Nacho Pete's (a fast food Mexican restaurant in Salisbury), received the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business's highest award—the $5,000 Richard Bernstein Achievement Award for Excellence based on his academic excellence and potential for business success.

"Pete's is a classic story of how he got started," said DiSylvestro. "He proves the point that if your drive is strong enough, you can overcome obstacles and achieve your goals."

"This is a wonderful opportunity for me to give something back to the school," said Engler. "If it hadn't been for my years at SSU and the $5,000 Bernstein Award, I never would have been able to open Nacho Pete's. By seeing that I was able to turn my marketing ideas into a successful business, I hope that students will be encouraged in their own future business endeavors," he said.

On Tuesday, April 9, Engler will be serving chicken fajitas, Rio Grande rice, vegetable refried beans and sopaipillas (a sweet fried bread).

"I want to offer a heart healthy dinner to the students," he said. "We have a lot of college students working with us at Nacho Pete's and they are all health conscious. I want to let students know that you can have exciting food that is good to eat and still have it be good for you," he added.

"Imperial Gallery is back on Wednesday, April 10, by popular demand," said DiSylvestro. "Chinese food is very well accepted here and the students were really impressed with their last menu."

Cheng Sun, owner of Imperial Gallery in the Twilley Shopping Centre, and his son, Lewis, manager, will be preparing beef and broccoli, chicken Hu Nan style, stir fry mix vegetables, vegetable fried rice and shrimp/pork egg rolls with hot mustard and duck sauce.

SSU features its second Visiting Chefs Week in the Salisbury Room of the Ruth Powell Dining Hall. Pictured from left to right are: Tony Hilligoss, chef at Legends Restaurant; Pete Engler, owner of Nacho Pete's; Mike Cajigao, chef at Phillips By The Sea in Ocean City; John DeSormeau, executive chef at Salisbury State University; and Lewis Sun, manager of the Imperial Gallery, and his father, Cheng Sun, owner.

"My father and I think that this is a good opportunity for students who are afraid to try Chinese food to taste it and see whether or not they like it," said Lewis Sun. "A lot of students at the last dinner said that they had never tried it before and found out that it really was good. They told their friends, and as a result, many people were exposed to a wider variety of food," he said.

Chef Mike Cajigao of Phillips By the Sea in Ocean City will round out the program on Thursday, April 11, with Phillips' famous crab balls, vegetable crab soup, seafood bisque, broiled cajun red snapper, red beans and rice and strawberry pie.

"I am always looking for new challenges because there is always something to be learned," said Cajigao. "I was interested in seeing how large the dining services operation was at SSU and I wanted to see firsthand how they handle such a large volume— especially what shortcuts they use.

"The menu I'm presenting represents some of the items I prepare at Phillips. Hopefully, this will show students that seafood can be delicious, and since the current trend is toward a health conscious diet, students should be receptive to these menu items," he added.

"I worked for Phillips Crab House in Ocean City when I was a student at SSU," said DiSylvestro. "I learned so much from them and now a lot of our students work for them as well—they are always calling me and asking if I have any students who are interested in working there. This gives me an opportunity to reciprocate for all they've done."

Working closely with DiSylvestro is Salisbury State's executive chef, John DeSormeau, a graduate of New York's Culinary Institute of America. The participating chefs submit their ingredient lists and DeSormeau determines how many people need to be served. "The biggest problem is being able to convert a recipe for 10-12 into 400-500 servings," said DeSormeau, "but our sophisticated computerized recipe system makes the task manageable."

"We let the chefs set the tempo and we work around it," said DiSylvestro. "We'll build a menu around whatever foods they submit. I'll make sure that there is a well balanced meal, including a vegetarian entree, soup, salad, etc.," he added.

The dinners will be served from 4:30 - 6 p.m. each night. There will be no extra charge for students with meal plans, but the price is $6.50 for University staff, their guests and the general public.

The atmosphere in the Salisbury Room is more formal than regular cafeteria style dining, which basically means no baseball caps, sweats or cutoffs. There will be linen table cloths, candles and either classical music, jazz or blues to help create a pleasant dining atmosphere.

Area restauranteers who are interested in participating in future Visiting Chefs Weeks at SSU, should call DiSylvestro at 543-6107.

ing the exhibit was enlightening. "Putting it together has impressed me with the resilience that the town has shown," she said. "No matter how bad things were, the people always managed to come back."

The historic documents and memorabilia on display are an eclectic mix, drawn from the collections of local individuals and businesses. Bradley says they are fortunate to display pieces from the collection of Arthur Leonard, for example. Leonard "was a collector of anything and everything." At the time he was holding onto photos and calendars and a blacksmith's ledger, Leonard was probably the subject of some curiosity. Today, however, historians are learning about day-to-day living of his era thanks to his efforts.

Center Co-Chair Ray Thompson hopes visitors to "Historic Salisbury" come away with an appreciation for the transformation the town has undergone. Like Bradley, he has been impressed by the dynamic spirit Salisbury has exhibited throughout its history.

Both historians point to the value of individual collections: not only in this exhibit, but for their contribution to a better understanding of our past.

The items on loan from Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butler, for example, shed some light on the history of Salisbury's African-American community. The Butler collection includes photographs from the vocational school, newspaper clippings and materials related to the emancipation of slaves.

Ledgers and photographs preserved by area businesses will also be in the exhibit. Thompson explains that in some cases, a business ledger is the only record of people who lived in one part of the community. Such information is helpful to historians and to people researching family trees.

Bradley admits that one goal of "Historic Salisbury" is to let visitors know "the importance of saving and preserving all of the little bits of history that they might possess." The Center is not quite overflowing with its collection and Bradley says there is always room for more.

One collectible may turn out to be the catalog from the exhibit itself. More than a list of items on display, the catalog is designed to tell the story of the exhibit, and the story of Salisbury.

"Historic Salisbury," tracing the community's history from Salisbury's founding in 1732 through the 1960s, will be on display in the University Art Gallery at Salisbury State from April 6-25. The Gallery is open Mondays and Wednesdays, 10 a.m.- 8 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays, 10 a.m.-5 p.m., and Saturdays and Sundays, 1-5 p.m.

Hit Rap Group De la Soul Comes to SSU

The innovative rap group De la Soul presents a concert featuring songs from its second and just released album, De la Soul Is Dead, on Sunday, April 28, at 8 p.m. in the University's Maggs Center.

"(De La Soul's) celebrated 1989 debut (album), 3 Feet High and Rising—full of goofy humor, poppy melodic hooks and stunningly original samples from the likes of Steely Dan and Johnny Cash—represented the triumphant coming of age of middle-class, black suburban children of the Seventies," writes Alan Light in the April issue of Rolling Stone. "De la Soul Is Dead is a sprawling, ambitious challenge to the immediate gratification of 3 Feet High. Slower and often more serious, it explodes the expectations created by the first album, just as that record destroyed all definitions of rap that preceded it."

Adds Rolling Stone: "Having to stay in character has proved too limiting for these bright, shy rappers. Eager to escape De la Soul's carefully cultivated image, (group member) Posdnuos cites an unlikely star as inspiration: 'If you look at David Bowie, how he changed all through the years, that's how we'd like to come across.'"

Tommy Boy

DE LA SOUL

The concert, sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board, also features the radical rappers, Brand Nubians. Its new album, One for All, reflects the New Rochelle, NY, based group's intent at "raising the consciousness of both blacks and whites through the coinciding of African rhythmic and oral traditions and subversion/mastery of Western high technology," according to its promoters.

Advance tickets for SSU students are $10 and available at the Information Desk in the Guerrieri University Center. Tickets for the general public are $16 if purchased in advance; tickets for everyone are $18 at the door the night of performance. Tickets are available at the University Center, the Mail Room in the Goliath Shopping Center in Salisbury or Sound Waves in the Gold Coast Mall in Ocean City.

Lacrosse No. One Nationally!

by Paul Ohanian

For the first time in University history, the men's lacrosse team moved into the number one spot in the weekly poll, released on April 7. The 9-0 Sea Gulls garnered nine of 11 first place votes as they jumped from the second slot that they had occupied for the previous two weeks.

Britain Lecture Series Continues— Dickens Next Topic

The Maryland Humanities Council has awarded a grant to the University to help fund a public lecture series titled, "The Humanities in Motion," according to Jim Welsh, associate professor of English and chair of the Cultural Affairs Committee on campus.

The first speaker, retired British Broadcasting Corp. filmmaker and television producer Stephen Peet, spoke on campus March 11 and March 13, coming here after having lectured at the University of California at Los Angeles and the University of Southern California. On March 14 he went on to Washington, D.C., to lecture at the National Archives and the Wilson Center before returning to his London home.

On March 11 at SSU Peet showed two films having to do with British education—"The Burston School Strike" and "Was Your Schoolmaster Really Necessary?"—the latter consisting of a wry interview with the colorful actor Robert Morley. On March 13 Peet showed two films from his "Yesterday's Witness" BBC series: "The Shell House Raid" which documented a Royal Air Force strike on Gestapo Headquarters in Copenhagen in 1945 and the "collateral damage" done by mistake when a misdirected bomb hit a Catholic school. This was followed by "The Day the Sun Blowed Up," a documentary about the Trinity project which developed the atom bomb in New Mexico.

The next "Humanities in Motion" lecture, on Monday, April 15, in Devilbiss Auditorium, at 7 p.m., will feature Dr. Joss Lutz Marsh, an expert on Charles Dickens from the California Institute of Technology, speaking on the six-hour television adaptation of the Dickens novel "Little Dorrit" made in England three years ago. Marsh, who will move on to a teaching position at Stanford University next year, was born in Britain. Her father, Terence Marsh, is a respected production designer who won Academy Awards for his work on "Dr. Zhivago" (1965) and "Oliver" (1968). He also served as production designer on two films in 1990—"The Hunt for Red October" and the Robert Redford film "Havana." An accomplished and entertaining speaker in her own right, Marsh is obviously well-connected in the film industry.

The third speaker is also from England, Dr. Michael Pursell (Ph.D., Nottingham), who is a contributing editor of Literature/Film

'Historic Salisbury' Exhibit Recaptures City's Past

Salisbury history will come to life in a new exhibit on the campus.

"Historic Salisbury," tracing the community's history from Salisbury's founding in 1732 through the 1960s, will be on display in the University Art Gallery at Salisbury State through April 25. The Gallery is open Mondays and Wednesdays, 10 a.m.- 8 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays, 10 a.m.-5 p.m., and Saturdays and Sundays, 1-5 p.m.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Persian Gulf Lecture Series Continues

On Monday, April 15, Dr. Mumtaz Ahmad, associate professor of political science at Hampton University, will present "Conflict in the Gulf—Cultural and Religious Background" in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center at 7:30 p.m.

All lectures are free and open to the public. For more information, please call 543-6006.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Singers Needed

Sing in the SSU Concert Choir during the 1991-92 academic year. Contact Dr. Duane R. Karna for further information (Music Department, 543-6385) about pre-registration and voice placement. Register for MUSA 100-001, one credit hour, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 3:30-5 p.m.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Appropriations Board Opening

Are you interested in getting involved with student organizations on campus? The Appropriations Board is currently seeking applications for an opening position next fall. All interested students with at least a 2.3 GPA are encouraged to apply.

Experience with Word Perfect 5.1 and/or Lotus 1-2-3 is helpful, and the ability to work eight flexible hours per week is required. All positions are paid positions.

Submit letters of interest to the Appropriations Board in the Guerrieri University Center, room 202, by April 5.

B.S./M.S. Nursing Program

The application deadline for enrollment in the B.S./M.S. nursing program is May 1. This applies to all students holding a bachelor's degree in another discipline who are interested in enrolling in the accelerated B.S./M.S. nursing program.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing. Questions concerning this program may be directed to Phyllis Banks, chair of the student policies committee in the Department of Nursing.

Social Work Club

The Social Work Club will hold a junior/senior mixer on Wednesday, April 10, at 6:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall's Social Room. Juniors are welcome to come listen and ask questions about their future placements. Juniors will have the opportunity to talk to seniors who are currently in field placements in various agencies throughout the area.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

'Computer as Sketchbook' Reflected in Exhibit

"Raku Ceramic Garden Forms and Computer-inspired Drawings and Paintings," a new exhibit in the Atrium Gallery next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center is on display through April 24. Dr. Harold McWhinnie, a professor at the University of Maryland College. Park, is the artist.

Marson Exhibit

A special exhibition and sale of original graphic art from Marson Galleries Ltd. of Baltimore will be presented in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center on Friday, April 26, from 11 a.m.-8 p.m. and Saturday, April 27, from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Marson Galleries Ltd. of Baltimore specializes in exhibiting for sale a distinguished collection of original etchings, woodcuts, lithographs, serigraphs and watercolors by old and modern masters. The collection consists of some 500 pieces of original graphic art by leading American, European and Oriental artists.

Represented in this unique collection are antique works by Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi, Daumier, Goya, Hogarth and others. Also included is a fine selection of Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts. There is a large group of works by such distinguished contemporary artists as Altman, Amano, Azechi, Baskin, Calder, Chagall, Ebgi, Fink, Gantner, Maki, Miro, Rayburn, Tajima, Saito and others. Additionally, there are numerous contemporary Chinese paintings, watercolors, embroideries, batiks, rubbings and folk art. A comprehensive collection of 20th century impressions of the Ukiyo-E prints are also included.

A representative will be present to discuss the collection and to answer questions about the work, the artists and the various graphic techniques employed. The prints are shown in an informal atmosphere and the public is invited to browse through the fascinating and well described collection.

Marson Galleries Ltd. is the largest firm in the nation specializing in arranging exhibitions and sales of original graphic art at colleges, universities, museums, hospitals and art centers throughout the U.S.

RFD Returns to SSU April 20

Coming up on Saturday, April 20, the peninsula's only live variety program, RFD-Radio Free Delmarva, returns to Caruthers Auditorium for another broadcast. The show went on the road last month to the Avalon Theater in Easton (where it will return in May), but this month returns to home base with another full program of music, comedy and good old-fashioned radio fun. April's show features classical music with "The Classical Players of Delmarva" woodwind trio...original music for computer-controlled synthesizers and piano by Dr. Ray Zeigler...tuba player Time Whittemore...folk singer Suzanne Mallow...episode number three in the original serial "Bif Delmar: Detective at Sea," presented by the RFD Players...and the possible introduction of a new segment, "Sounds at the Supermarket."

The show is produced by public radio station WSCL news director Van Williamson, and will be aired live from 8-10 p.m. RFD is performed before a live audience and admission is free.

The Outdoor Club will hold its weekly meeting on Monday, April 15, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. Final sign-ups for the backpacking trip April 19-21 will begin that night. Unexperienced backpackers are welcome. The cost of the trip will be $10.

Final sign-ups for the hang gliding trip to Nags Head, NC, will also be Monday night. The trip will cost $60 for beginners and $55 for experienced hang gliders. This will be the last time to sign-up for this trip and the final balance will also be due.

If you can not attend the meeting and are interested in either of the trips, contact Dr. Bill Horne at 543-6447 by Thursday, April 18.

Patriotic Rally

The Centre at Salisbury will hold a "Thanks for Peace" Patriotic Rally on Saturday, April 13, at 6 p.m.

A number of standard hymns and the song "America" will be sung by the audience. Local dignitaries have been invited to speak at the rally. An invitation has also been extended to high school bands and pep clubs.

People taking down their yellow ribbons are invited to bring them to The Centre to make a huge display representing all the support given by the people of the Eastern Shore.

Those wishing to speak or perform at the Rally are invited to pick up an application at the Courtesy Counter in The Centre. Each speaker and choir will be given six minutes to perform.

'A Shore Future' for At Risk Students

Every day in America more than 1,375 teenagers drop out of school. On the Eastern Shore alone, of the more than 16,000 high school students in grades nine through 12, nearly 1,000 will have dropped out of school by the end of this year.

Alarmed by these statistics, William J. Cotten, executive director of the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium in Centreville, decided to do something about this growing problem. He wrote a proposal to the Maryland Higher Education Commission (MHEC) outlining a program which would identify middle school children who are at risk of not completing high school.

Cotten wanted to get educators, counselors and parents working together to help at risk students in grades five through 10 apply their potential in the right direction. As a result, he hoped to see these students not only complete high school but become interested in pursuing a post secondary education as well.

MHEC responded with a three-year grant involving the nine Eastern Shore public school systems, all six Eastern Shore colleges and universities and all three Shore Private Industry Councils.

It funds "A Shore Future," a project implemented by the Institute for Community and Educational Development in the School of Education and Professional Studies. A Shore Future is providing two staff members who link the three member school systems of Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties, SSU, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, Wor-Wic Tech Community College, and the Private Industry Council covering the lower Eastern Shore.

Working closely with Dr. Ellen Whitford in SSU's School of Education and Professional Studies are two former teachers. Clary Moore Jackson of Salisbury is a graduate student at SSU working toward her M.Ed. in reading. Judy Kennan, also of Salisbury, is a Salisbury State student teacher supervisor.

According to Kennan, "At risk students are those who are likely to fail in school and eventually in life. When students don't do well in school, they usually drop out. They think they can get jobs, but in reality they aren't trained for anything because they don't have the education. They do, however, have potential but are not applying themselves," she said.

"We want to see a joint effort between the schools and the parents—to show both parents and educators ways of encouraging children to stay in school," said Kennan. "Often times parents have not had the opportunity to go on with their own education so have no idea what is involved. We want to point out to them that it is feasible for their children to not only succeed in high school but to go on to college as well," she added.

"Applying to college can be an overwhelming experience for anyone," said Jackson, "and many parents have no idea where to begin. The Eastern Shore Consortium has developed a pamphlet which breaks down into simple language what steps students and their parents need to take—a recipe for what you need to do," she said.

One of the biggest obstacles facing at risk students is a low self esteem. How educators relate to students both in and out of the classroom plays a crucial role in building positive attitudes. Through workshops, teachers and counselors are trained to confront their own biases so that they will be more aware of the inequities within the classroom.

Calling All Artists!

Professional artists and craftspeople are cordially invited to participate in the English Country Fair to be held at Snow Hill Middle School on October 12 and 13.

For more information and/or an application blank, please contact Cherry S. Gering at 632-1619 or write to English Country Fair, 205 West Federal Street, Snow Hill, Maryland 21863.

Radio Announcer

WSCL-FM seeks a part-time announcer to work 20 to 30 hours a week, chiefly evenings and as a holiday and vacation substitute. Applicants must have previous broadcast experience and be capable of control room operation. Knowledge of classical music and news reporting will be helpful. An audition will be required. Position is available June 1. Salary is negotiable.

Resumes may be sent to the Personnel Office until April 22. WSCL is licensed to the SSU Foundation.

New York City Bus Trip May 3

The Guerrieri University Center will sponsor a bus trip to the Metropolitan Museum in New York City on Friday, May 3. Sign-up for full-time students will begin at 8 a.m., Monday, April 22, at the Information Desk in the University Center and the cost will be $12. (This charge will not include admission to the museum.) Students must be present to sign-up and may reserve only one seat. Cancellations, if necessary, must be made at the Information Desk and money will be refunded only if the seat is filled. Part-time students, staff, faculty, alumni and guests may begin sign-up on Thursday, April 25, and the cost will be $15.

"The Fauve Landscape: Matisse, Derain, Braque, and Their Circle, 1904-1908" will be one of the exhibits on display. This exhibition features approximately 125 paintings by the group of artists dubbed "the Fauves" or "the wild beasts," by contemporary critics in France. As one of the largest international loan exhibitions of Fauve Art ever organized, it is also the first exclusively devoted to Fauve landscape painting. The Fauves' bold response to nature—expressed by violent colors, simplified forms, willful distortion and free brushstrokes—shocked the public and heralded the art of the 20th century.

The bus will leave the University Center, Dogwood entrance, at 6 a.m. on May 3, make a brief stop for breakfast and arrive in New York around noon. Pick up at the Metropolitan Museum will be at 5 p.m. and the bus will make a brief stop for dinner on the way home, returning at approximately 11 p.m. No food or drink will be allowed on the bus.

For more information, call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Art Professionals' Market

A variety of local and regional businesses and individuals involved in the visual arts will be available to discuss their professions on an informal basis at the first annual Art Professionals' Market. The program will be held on Thursday, April 25, from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. in Potomac Hall on campus.

Some of the participating businesses and individuals are: Tom Becker of Becker-Morgan Architects; Ginny Cleary and Tom Elliot of Cleary Design Inc.; Kent English and Lucy Rabine of English Sign Systems; Tom Hayes of George, Miles & Buhr Architects Engineers & Planners; Dale Chandler and Paul Kratzer of Paul Kratzer & Company; Gretchen Altergott of The Printery Inc.; Robin English of Robin English Advertising & Graphic Design; Jerry Watford of Salisbury News & Advertiser; Carol Bloodsworth and Rick Maloof of Salisbury State University Public Relations/Publications; and Jim Rehak of Sheridan Sign Company.

The public is cordially invited to attend. For further information about the Art Professionals' Market, call John Cleary in the Department of Art at 543-6274 or 543-6270.

Circle your calendar for Monday, April 29, for the 10 Annual Faculty Pot Party with guest ceramic artist Tom Supensky of Towson State University. Look in upcoming newsletters for itinerary of clay events from handbuilding to Raku firing.

TIAA-CREF Rep on Campus

A representative from TIAA-CREF will be on campus on Thursday, April 25, to answer any questions faculty and staff may have regarding the basic retirement plan with TIAA-CREF or the Supplemental Retirement Account (SRA). Informal sessions will be held in the Social Room, Holloway Hall, from 10-11 a.m. and noon-1 p.m.

Habitat for Humanity

There are only two more chances to work with Habitat this semester. Those who are interested in meeting new people, learning about construction, and willing to work, are invited to join Habitat on Saturday, April 13. Meet outside of Maggs gym at 8:45 a.m. or 1 p.m. and Habitat will carpool you to the site. Anyone is welcome—students, teachers, staff members or friends. No tools or experience are needed.

Habitat for Humanity is a nonprofit organization that works with low-income families to build decent, affordable homes. Habitat teams, which come from churches, schools and workcamps, work on a rotating schedule every four to six weeks.

If you cannot make it this time, the SSU team will be working again on Saturday, May 11.

For more information, call Greta Trumpower at 546-4168 or Krissy Monks at 548-4198.

SSU Community Supporting Furnace Town

On Saturday, April 13, Furnace Town Historic Site will offer and evening of music, memories and easy-paced entertainment from 7-9 p.m. The familiar sights and activities of Furnace Town will take on a new look as the sun sets and the lanterns are lighted.

The stage for more of the evening's entertainment will be set in the clearing between the Museum and the Blacksmith Shop. A bonfire and lanterns will provide gentle illumination for the performances. At 7:30, the brightly costumed dancers of the University Dance Company will perform Appalachian folk dances, under the direction of Victoria Hutchinson.

Following vocalist Mike Harrington, the romance of history will be brought to life by Sally Long, who will portray a character from Furnace Town's past as she shares personal aspects of life in the 19th century industrial village. More songs will be sung; and another performance by the SSU Dance Company will complete the staged activities. Sound and stage lighting are provided by Tony Broadbent of SSU. The University's Phi Mu sorority will provide child care services so that parents may enjoy the special aspects of the evening. This educational project of Furnace Town Foundation, Inc. is made possible in part by grants from the Worcester County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

Blacksmithing

The Furnace Town Blacksmith's Guild is offering a workshop in Elementary Blacksmithing on Saturday, April 13, at Furnace Town Historic Site. The workshop, taught by members of the Guild, is from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. The workshop is made possible, in part, by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council.

Pre-register by calling the Furnace Town business office at 632-2032 before April 12.

Ference NEH Scholar

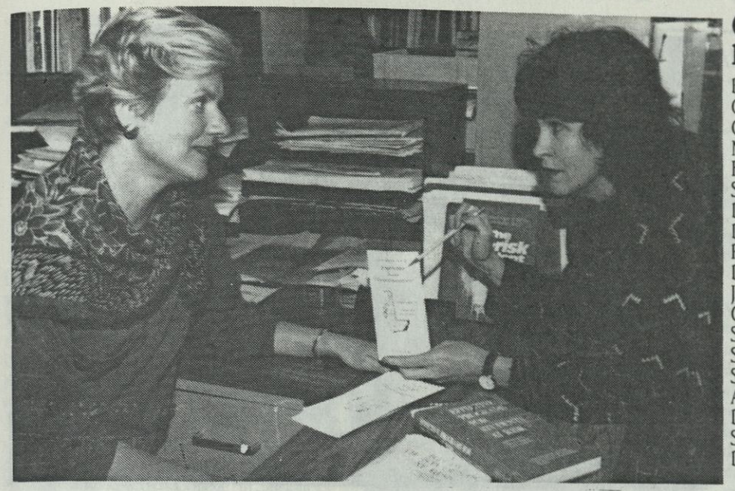
Dr. Greg Ference, assistant professor of history, has been accepted to participate in the National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Institute on Modern Chinese Art and Culture.

The theme of the institute is the development of modern Chinese art and culture, namely the whole process by which China has faced all challenges from the outside to find a place of its own in today's world. The program includes formal lectures, open discussions and individual consultations with experts in the fields of Chinese art, literature and history. The six-week program at the University of Kansas begins June 10.

Ference also recently attended the symposium, "East Asia and America: Prospects for the Future" at the University of Maryland College Park.

Campus Meetings of Student MAA

The SSU student chapter of the Mathematical Association of America will meet on Tuesdays, April 23 and May 14, from 3:45-4:45 p.m. in room 118 of the Power Building. Refreshments will be served. Come and meet fellow math students and professors. All are welcome.



Judy Kennan (left) and Clary Moore Jackson, both of Salisbury, are working to keep Eastern Shore teenagers in school through "A Shore Future," a special project funded by the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium in Centreville. A Shore Future is being implemented by the Institute for Community and Educational Development in SSU's School of Education and Professional Studies.

Providing activities and workshops that help students develop trust, group cohesiveness and positive self-images are crucial to any schools' retention plans. "Beyond the Limits," in Wicomico County, is an adventure-based program that provides students with extra counseling, as well as physical and mental challenges that incorporate problem solving, risk taking and decision making within a group setting. This serves to build self confidence and trust and teaches students how to work as a group.

One counselor noted that the grade-point average of targeted students in his group who had participated in this program had gone up from the first marking period by half a letter grade.

In an effort to capture and sustain the interest of these students in pursuing a college education, Kennan and Jackson work with college and university personnel to plan activities which will give them a taste of college life. The list of planned activities is extensive and includes campus visits, university student mentorships and tutoring, and outings to athletic events.

Last December, for example, over 150 students came to SSU and lined up with the University's students for lunch in the dining hall. They were later treated to a matinee performance by the SSU Dance Company.

"Many of these students had never been to a concert before," said Kennan, "and they were in awe of the presentation. After the concert, dancers came down off the stage and introduced themselves to the students. One student was so excited when one of the dancers shook his hand that he planned on bringing his family back to see the concert that next weekend.

"They loved eating in the dining hall and were so impressed with being allowed to have as much as they wanted to eat that they shut down the ice cream machine," she continued. Another seventh grader wanted to know where she could sign up for classes. "That's exactly the message we're trying to convey to these children," said Jackson. "One experience can make such a lasting impression."

Students are now indicating that they would like to come back to SSU and visit a dorm, see an athletic event and visit the book store. A group of 10th grade students from five upper Shore counties visited UMES and SSU last month. In addition to touring both campuses, they participated in a mini mock philosophy class, had lunch in the dining halls and attended presentations by admissions and career planning administrators.

"A lot of background work has been done—we have just immersed ourselves into the Shore Futures Project," said Kennan. "We've attended and held workshops and training sessions, put together not only a resource file but resource people as well—people who work with at risk students. In short, we're making use of every possible resource available. School officials, teachers, graduate and undergraduate students and parents are all interested in working together to keep students in school—that's what makes this whole program so exciting."

Kennan and Jackson would like to see a support system for at risk students developed in the schools. They are encouraging school staff to serve as mentors providing a day to day connection with the students, letting them know that somebody cares. If this positive attention is happening within the school, then the school becomes a pleasant place for the students. It could be as simple as asking students how they did on a test or if they joined a certain club or team—just something to let them know that someone really cares.

"We're not simply working with drug-related problems," added Jackson. "Let's face it, we don't all start out at the same place in life—for so many children the deck is stacked against them. This is a step in trying to overcome the odds. These kids have potential and we need to develop and nurture areas that are being overlooked. We're helping them to realize that they do have a future—we're replacing the hopelessness and despair with confidence and that feels good," she added.

Meekins, Wolinski Conduct Regional Workshop

University faculty Dr. John T. Wolinski and Dr. Amy S. Meekins recently conducted a three hour microworkshop at the eighth Eastern Regional Conference of the International Reading Association in Atlantic City, NJ. Attended by approximately 1,800 educators representing the northeastern regional states, the conference featured over 100 sessions and 16 microworkshops.

The theme of the conference, which was hosted by the New Jersey Reading Association, was "Building a Language Curriculum for the 21st Century: Adopt, Revise or Design." A number of presentations and microworkshops examining the interactive relationship of the language arts as a winning combination through reading, writing, listening and speaking were offered.

During their microworkshop, Wolinski and Meekins presented a model "theme based" integrated reading-language arts unit as an alternative to typical basal-driven activities. Focusing on a "seashore" theme, they demonstrated narrative and content text related techniques and set up a "model classroom" including related stations in science, art, mathematics and creative writing.

Quarterly, published at SSU. Pursell will speak at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 29, in Devilbiss Auditorium on "Island Culture," focusing on how the United Kingdom's self image as an island nation creates its own symbolic mythology in literature and film. All of these lectures are free and open to the community.

"The Humanities in Motion" series is funded in part by a grant from the Maryland Humanities Council and in part by grants from the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the SSU Foundation, Inc. The speakers will also be available to visit classes. Peet, for example, spoke before nine classes in English, history, sociology, philosophy and communication arts during his three-day stay on campus.

"I am especially pleased and grateful to the funding agencies for helping us to fund a cultural program like this one during a year when budgets have been extraordinarily tight," said Welsh, speaking for the Cultural Affairs Committee.

Salisbury helped its cause with a 31-8 pounding of Guilford on Saturday that saw 15 different players tally at least one goal. Rick Berkman and Rusty Pritzlaff led the assault with six goals each, while Eric Ungleich netted three goals and added seven assists. Three players scored their first collegiate goals, highlighted by sophomore defensemen Matt Perez and Mike Esham. Freshman Chris Murphy, who helped give SSU an overwhelming 29-8 faceoff edge, scored his first two career goals. Salisbury's 9-0 start is also the second best in school history, surpassed only by the 11-0 start for the 1984 team, which finished the season 14-2.

The track team continued its record-setting ways for a second straight week as the Sea Gulls brought home four new school records from last Saturday's Captain's Classic in Newport News. Individually, Erin Green set a new mark in the women's 3,000 meters with a time of 11:01, while Ron Webb shattered the hammer record with a heave of 118'11", bettering the old standard by over nine feet. The women's 4 x 100 relay team broke its one-week old record by lowering the time from 53.70 to 53.11, and the women's 4 x 400 relay team set a new record with a time of 4:35.1. Both teams compete in the Catholic University Invitational this Saturday.

The men's tennis team improved its record to 6-3 on the season with an 8-1 win at Frostburg State over the weekend. Singles winners included Tre Moore, George Wines, Dave Hardesty, Brian Weist and Mike Kaminski.

Lisa Trelease was the top winner on the women's tennis team at the Catholic University Tennis Classic. Trelease captured the number one singles title as she won six of seven sets in three matches. She advanced through the quarterfinal and semifinal matches by winning 24 of 26 games. The duo of Nikki Lee and Beth Hipps took the number three doubles championship.

The women's lacrosse team split a pair of games last weekend, falling to Frostburg State 14-9 before bouncing back with a 17-4 win over Sweet Briar. Joanne Fotia and Mimsy Molter scored seven goals in the two games, while Cheryl Ish netted six scores. The 3-5 Sea Gulls return to action on Thursday at Goucher.

The baseball team won four of seven games last week and have now won six of their last nine contests. John Hershberger continues to swing a hot bat, hitting .436 through 19 games. The senior infielder also leads the club in doubles (8), runs (16) and RBIs (16).

The softball team, which began a four-game homestand on Wednesday, hosts Wesley on Friday and Trenton State on Sunday.

Epilepsy Meetings

Two support groups, one for those with epilepsy and the other for parents of children with epilepsy will be held at the Epilepsy Association Office in the Power Professional Center located on Power Street in Salisbury.

Parents will meet Tuesday, April 16 at 7 p.m. and will continue to meet on the third Tuesday of each month.

Edward Simonoff, A.C.S.W., an EAES social worker, will be this month's guest speaker.

The support group for those with epilepsy will also meet Wednesday, April 17 at 7 p.m. in the Power Professional Center. New views on epilepsy will be shown.

For more information contact Juanita Moore at 546-3469 or the EAES at 543-0665.

1941 Class Holds Second Annual Florida Reunion

by Goldy Tyler

The second annual Florida winter reunion of the graduating class of 1941 became history as a total of 11 including graduates, spouses and friends gathered at the Church Street Station in Orlando, FL, on February 21.

The group assembled at 11:30 a.m. in the famed entertainment spot for a luncheon meeting and exchange of "what has happened to me." Graced with a prayer by Rev. Ed Dougherty, a 1941 class graduate, the reunion proceeded with the business of ordering, consuming and commenting on the excellent repast while at the same time exchanging the many things which had happened over the year.

Attending the get-together besides Dougherty, were 1941 class graduates Ed Bowen, Lucille Parks Sterling, Catharine Appleton Tyler and Goldy Tyler, as well as Grace Dougherty, Monti Bowen, (Ret. Gen.) Eugene Sterling, Betty Carey Price and her husband, Bob (Betty was a 1943 graduate), and a friend of the Tylers from Cambridge, Mary Lee Webster. Word had been received from a number of classmates who were unable to be there but expressed their regards and best wishes.

The unique manner in which the Church Street Station has been constructed made it a very pleasant atmosphere in which to hold such a meeting. The ornate furnishings, mirrors, booths, tables and chandeliers with the European touch gave a feeling of "something different" as the old time classmates renewed friendships from over the years.

Hopefully this winter reunion may lead (in another year or so) to a full-fledged SSU reunion for all SSU graduates and friends in the Orlando area during the winter months. More about this from the Alumni Office as it develops.

The 1941 class coordinator, Chris Christopher, is in the midst of planning the 50th anniversary reunion with Judy Pielemeier and Melinda Khazeh of the Alumni Office with a date of June 7-9 in mind. The Florida reunion acts as a kickoff for this event.

Perdue Center Plans Full Spring

In an effort to build support between the local business community and the academic world, the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business in spring 1988 signed two contracts with Salisbury companies—one with Perdue Farms, Inc. to provide a management development program and one with Bayliner Marine for a supervisory development program. As a result, subsequent follow-up internal programs were offered.

"In the summer of 1989, after having successfully identified the market niche for our programs," said Dr. Richard B. Palmer, professor of entrepreneurship and small business consulting, "in the summer of 1989 we signed a contract with a national firm to conduct public seminars in the local area. During that brief arrangement we determined that the quality of the programs varied and that the prices were too high for our market. Consequently, in the spring of 1990, we opened the Perdue Center for Professional Development (housed in the Perdue School).

"We have established credibility with the business community across the peninsula," said Palmer, the Perdue Center director. "We have identified the specific needs of business owners and managers and have provided University expertise and talent in order to address those needs," he said.

"The long, arduous task of scheduling and administering the seminars has been the critical factor in our success. That responsibility has been brought under the direction of Natalie Palmer, a member of the Perdue School staff. I am extremely excited about the upcoming programs, but it is only with the tremendous support of Natalie that we are able to continue offering quality programs at reasonable prices," said Palmer.

Anyone wanting more information about any of the above seminars is encouraged to call the Perdue Center for Professional Development at 548-4505 or 543-6394.

Learning Disabilities Research Focus of Mays' Endowment

Continuing more than a half-century of public service to the Salisbury area, Dr. Florence Simonds May and Dr. John B. May have given a $100,000 endowment to the Salisbury State University Foundation for research in and the advancement of education in specific learning disabilites.

The Mays, who celebrate their golden wedding anniversary this year, are retired professors who met while teaching at the new Maryland "State Teachers College" in Salisbury in the 1930s.

Dr. Florence Simonds May, the first woman to receive her doctorate in botany from the University of Maryland, taught at Salisbury from 1935 through World War II. She was the first chair of its Biology Department. Dr. John May joined the faculty in 1939 after having earned his Ph.D. in education and psychology from the University of Virginia. Following duty with the U.S. Army in China, Burma and India during World War II, he returned to the Eastern Shore to launch a distinguished career in teaching and public service.

Dr. John May's interest in learning disabilities goes back to his studies as a graduate student when he was "partly trying to learn something about myself...I was dyslexic," he said, and had to endure teasing as a child over a slowness in reading. Dyslexia, which impedes the ability to learn to read, is one of the nation's most prominent learning disabilities.

He believes the pain of his childhood experiences in reading helped make him more empathetic and effective as a counselor and therapist, especially with children.

Dr. Florence Simonds May and Dr. John B. May

According to the Learning Disabilities Association of America, one out of 10 school-age children are known to have some kind of learning disability. The Simonds-May endowment will support faculty research, community outreach, educational experiences for both the University and public, as well as student scholarships. The Mays also have endowed a fellowship in learning disabilities education at the University of Virginia.

Said SSU President, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, "I am most thankful personally and on behalf of the University for this generous contribution. I must say in all honesty, however, it did not surprise me for I have never known either of them to be less than avid and energetic when it comes to the cause of education. They left an impeccable legacy of academic excellence during their tenure here as professors and since then they have never ceased being actively engaged in the betterment of the University."

Both Mays also have worked hard to make Wicomico County a lovelier and more compassionate community. Dr. Florence May has continued her lifelong love of botany through work with the Town and Country Garden Club, of which she is a past president. Each spring the May's yard, overlooking Parker Pond, is ablaze with azaleas, camelias and jonquils; Canada geese are frequent visitors. She also has shown a keen interest in the Wicomico Teen-Adult Center horticulture program. Since the inception of the Wicomico Teen-Adult Residential Service Corp. nearly a decade ago, she has been a strong supporter and an active board member.

Dr. John May has touched the lives of many area families through the Lower Shore Association for Children With Learning Disabilities. He was a founder of the association—established over 25 years ago and the oldest organization of its kind in Maryland. He also has served as a clinical psychologist at the Mental Hygiene Clinic in Salisbury and consultant to the Holly

'Historic Salisbury' Slide Show, Lectures

The lessons of the past can come to us not just from the pages of a book, but from looking at and listening to what is around us.

That's just one of the messages that the history faculty is hoping to convey in the slide lecture and panel discussion it will present as part of its "Historic Salisbury" exhibit.

On Wednesday, April 17, Tara Evans will examine local architecture in a slide-lecture that looks at how it reflects local history.

Evans will focus specifically on the Newtown district. The Victorian houses, says Evans, are evidence of the desire to build bigger, safer houses in the wake of the devastating fires of the late 1800s.

The design of the Victorian house left room for lavish decoration. One example Evans cites

Bebee Newly Named Perdue School Dean

Dr. Richard F. Bebee, an associate business dean at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, VA, and a graduate of Federalsburg High School, has been named dean of the Perdue School of Business. The appointment is effective July 1.

Bebee has written books and numerous articles. His "Cash and Accrual Methods of Accounting," published by the Bureau of National Affairs was revised in 1986. It is used as reference book by tax specialists.

His academic and professional interests have focused on various facets of taxation. Recently he has been ex mining the possibilities of the tax applications of expert systems, and he continues to teach and publish in the area of taxation.

As a strong advocate of partnerships between the university community and both public and private sectors, he has been instrumental in the creation of several organizations. In the Accounting Department at Old Dominion he instituted the Advisory Council as well as the Accounting Alumni group. The Monarch Business Society of ODU's College of Business and Public Administration was also developed by him.

Bebee has been active in many professional and civic organizations. Currently, he is president of the Hampton Roads chapter of the Financial Executives Institute and chairman of the committee of management of the Norfolk YMCA.

Degrees earned by Bebee include a Bachelor of Arts in business at Anderson University in 1965, a Master of Business Administration with an emphasis in accounting at Indiana University in 1967 and a Doctor of Business Administration at the University of Colorado in 1971. He is also a CPA in Virginia.

Bebee was raised in Federalsburg, one of three sons of a clergyman. He married Mary Lynne Zigmont Bebee, a native of Grand Rapids, MI, in 1970. They have two children, Brad, an eighth grader, and Christina, a sixth grader. Mary Bebee holds a B.A. from Michigan State University and a M.A. from the University of Colorado, both in economics. She has taught economics at the university level.

The Perdue School was established in 1986 by a multimillion dollar endowment by Franklin P. Perdue, chairman of Perdue Farms Inc.

Hit Rap Group De la Soul Comes to SSU

The innovative rap group De la Soul presents a concert featuring songs from its second and just released album, De la Soul Is Dead, on Sunday, April 28, at 8 p.m. in the University's Maggs Center.

Advance tickets for SSU students are $10 and available at the Information Desk in the Guerrieri University Center. Tickets for the general public are $16 if purchased in advance; tickets for everyone are $18 at the door the night of performance. Tickets are available at the University Center, the Mail Room in the Goliath Shopping Center in Salisbury or Sound Waves in the Gold Coast Mall in Ocean City.

For more information, call the SSPB at 543-6197.

RFD Returns April 20

Coming up on Saturday, April 20, the peninsula's only live variety program, RFD-Radio Free Delmarva, returns to Caruthers Auditorium for another broadcast. The show went on the road last month to the Avalon Theater in Easton (where it will return in May), but this month returns to home base with another full program of music, comedy and good old-fashioned radio fun.

The show is produced by public radio station WSCL news director Van Williamson, and will be aired live from 8-10 p.m. RFD is performed before a live audience and admission is free.

Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Broadcasts

The following is the repertoire and casting for the Texaco-Metropolitan radio broadcast of Mozart's "La Clemenza di Tito" on Saturday, April 20, at 1:30 p.m. on WSCL-FM. (All performances will be live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.) James Levine is conducting, with Roberta Alexander (Vitellia), Hei-Kyung Hong (Servilia), Tatiana Troyanos (Sesto), David Rendall (Tito), Delores Ziegler (Annio) and Julien Robbins (Publio).

New York City Bus Trip May 3

The Guerrieri University Center will sponsor a bus trip to the Metropolitan Museum in New York City on Friday, May 3. Sign-up for full-time students will begin at 8 a.m., Monday, April 22, at the Information Desk in the University Center and the cost will be $12. (This charge will not include admission to the museum.) Students must be present to sign-up and may reserve only one seat. Cancellations, if necessary, must be made at the Information Desk and money will be refunded only if the seat is filled. Part-time students, staff, faculty, alumni and guests may begin sign-up on Thursday, April 25, and the cost will be $15.

The Fauve Landscape: Matisse, Derain, Braque, and Their Circle, 1904-1908" will be one of the exhibits on display. This exhibition features approximately 125 paintings by the group of artists dubbed "the Fauves" or "the wild beasts," by contemporary critics in France.

The bus will leave the University Center, Dogwood entrance, at 6 a.m. on May 3, make a brief stop for breakfast and arrive in New York around noon. Pick up at the Metropolitan Museum will be at 5 p.m. and the bus will make a brief stop for dinner on the way home, returning at approximately 11 p.m. No food or drink will be allowed on the bus.

For more information, call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Alvin Ailey Ensemble On Campus April 25

The repertory ensemble of the Alvin Ailey Dance Company, considered one of the six major dance companies in America, will give a mini-concert coupled with a master class in dance technique on Thursday, April 25, here.

"The Ailey is ranked with the New York City Ballet and the Martha Graham Company," said Victoria Hutchinson, SSU Dance Company director, "and it is one of the most popular companies internationally. We feel very honored to have them here." Hutchinson said Ailey is one of the top six companies in American dance.

The repertory ensemble, composed of 12 dancers, is a touring arm of the New York company. "Terrific," is how the New York Post describes the ensemble. Young and vital, its dancers, have received critical kudos in their tours across country. Between 18 and 22 years old, they are same ages as most SSU students, Hutchinson pointed out.

From 7-8 p.m. the ensemble will perform two works choreographed by Ailey, the founder of the company who died in 1989. One is "Isba," and the other is "Revelations," the latter considered a masterpiece of 20th century choreography. The performances will be followed by a question and answer period between dancers and the audience. Billed as a lecture/demonstration, it program is expected to be approximately an hour.

Then, at 8 p.m., the public is invited to get on its feet, stretch and participate in a master class with the Ailey ensemble in Dunham modern dance technique. The master class is approximately 90 minutes. Katherine Dunham was an acclaimed black choreographer and major influence on Ailey. She combined African, Haitian and Caribbean techniques with modern dance to create a style distinctively her own, according to SSU's dance program director.

"Show up in dance attire, if you want to participate in the master class," Hutchinson added. The cost of the entire program which will be held in Maggs gymnasium, is only $3 for general admission; $1 for senior citizens, teens and youth under 12. SSU students will be admitted free with a University ID.

This dance residency was made possible, in part, by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council awarded by the Maryland State Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts. Additional support through the University was received from the dance program of the Department of Physical Education, the SSU Dance Company, the Office of Minority Affairs and the School of Education and Professional Studies.

For more information call the dance program office at 543-6353.

Chamber Music Recital April 24

The SSU chamber music ensembles will present a spring recital on Wednesday, April 24, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Performing ensembles include the SSU Saxophone Quartet, Brass Quartet and Brass Quintet. The chamber ensembles will perform works by various composers including Leonard Bernstein, Eubie Blake, William Byrd, Girolamo Cavazzoni, Ronald Lo Presti and Samuel Scheidt.

In addition to the student ensembles, two student soloists are scheduled to perform. Jodi Elliott will perform "Concerto for Alto Saxophone and Piano" by Vincent Persichetti and Stephanie Cyran will perform a horn concerto by Richard Strauss.

All wind instrumental ensembles are under the direction of Dr. Richard L. Johnson, director of wind studies at Salisbury State. This year the chamber ensembles have received additional training by members of the renowned Annapolis Brass Quintet. The ABQ, who have performed throughout the Eastern Shore, are distinguished artists in residence at Salisbury State for the 1990-91 academic year. In addition to its annual concert series, the ABQ has provided workshops, composer lectures and brass clinics through the University.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Special Mozart Concert

Join members of the SSU Concert Choir, instrumentalists from the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, conductors Dr. Thomas G. Elliot and Dr. Duane R. Karna, and guest soprano soloist Katherine Turner Barlow for a special concert commemorating the 200th anniversary of Mozart's death in 1791. The program, to be held in Holloway Hall Auditorium on Monday, May 13, at 8 p.m., is free and open to the public.

The concert repertoire includes four compositions for choir and small chamber orchestra—"Jubilate Deo," "Laudate Dominum," "Ave Verum Corpus" and "Regina Coeli"; and two works for soprano and chamber orchestra—the aria "L'Amero Saro Costante" from Mozart's opera "Il re Pastore" and his "Exultate Jubilate." Harpsichord continuo incorporated into those works will be performed by Dr. Nancy J. Cooper.

The evening concert will conclude with four choral works by American composert: "A Fable" by Norman Dello Joio; "Circus Band" by Charles Ives; "The Devil and the Farmer's Wife" by Vaclav Nelyhbel; and "Shenandoah" arranged by Donal Erb.

Audition Notice

Parker Productions, Inc. of Ocean City will hold auditions for its summer shows on Sunday, April 28, at 1 p.m. at the Carousel Hotel. They will be casting for roles in the musicals of "I Remember Mama" (July production) and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" (August production) requiring men and women of all ages.

Of particular need are several middle-age women for "Mama" and men of all ages for "Forum." All performers in both shows receive a per performance fee.

Those auditioning should prepare one song, not more than three minutes in length. An accompanist will be provided. Anyone who wishes to be considered but cannot make this particular audition should send a resume and picture to Parker Productions, Inc., 223 Trimper Avenue, Ocean City, MD 21842 by April 27.

For more information, call Bill or Sue Wills at 289-3122.

Salisbury Festival Volunteers Needed

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) is looking for volunteers to join "The Proud, The Few...The Festival Crew" on Salisbury Festival weekend, May 3-5.

Volunteers are especially needed in the children's crafts area, this year titled "Under The Big Top," featuring six different craft stations with a circus flair. The children's area will be located in the Plaza Gardens next to the City Center. "Under Th . Big Top" is being created, organized and staffed by the members of the Student National Education Association, a student organization at Salisbury State. However, the Arts Council still needs quite a few volunteers to handle the ticket booth and the face painting booths. Paint a simple balloon or clown nose on a child and get a bright smile as a reward!

During Festival Saturday volunteers are needed for jobs such as managing performance stages, selling SWAC merchandise and helping with SWAC food concession. Most shifts are no longer than two hours, so volunteers will be able to help out and still actively participate and enjoy the Festival.

Both individuals and organizations are welcome to volunteer. For more information call 543-ARTS.

Aquatics Director

SSU seeks an individual for a one-year appointment as interim director of aquatics, a position in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics. The Physical Education Department provides required general education wellness courses and a multi-track physical education major with options in teacher education, health fitness, athletic training and dance.

Responsibilities include managing the pool, coaching the varsity women's swim team and men's swim club, teaching assigned classes and operating a summer swim program. The successful candidate must possess appropriate certifications: lifesaving, WSI, qualify for instructor training, first aid and CPR. Salary range is commensurate with experience.

Please submit letters of application, resumes, and names and phone numbers of three references to Dr. William E. Lide, Chair of P.E./Director of Athletics and Campus Recreation, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. The anticipated starting date is August 15.

Radio Announcer

WSCL-FM seeks a part-time announcer to work 20 to 30 hours a week, chiefly evenings and as a holiday and vacation substitute. Applicants must have previous broadcast experience and be capable of control room operation. Knowledge of classical music and news reporting will be helpful. An audition will be required. Position is available June 1. Salary is negotiable.

Resumes may be sent to the Personnel Office until April 22. WSCL is licensed to the SSU Foundation.

Summer Orientation Workers Are Needed

A limited number of students are being hired to assist with the summer orientation (testing, advising and registration) program for new students and their families. Fall semester sophomores, juniors and seniors will be needed to work June 17-20, June 24-27 and July 9 and 10.

Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular activities, knowledgeable about programs, services/organizations on campus, good role models and articulate about SSU. A brief training program will be required.

Interested students should fill out an application at the Work Experience Office in the Physical Plant Building. Deadline for application is Friday, May 3.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employ . Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Pot Party Update

Fulbright professor Tom Supensky who teaches at Towson State University is this year's featured artist at the the 10th annual Faculty Pot Party on Monday, April 29.

The pot party is from 9 a.m.-noon in the ceramics studio in Potomac Hall. It will include throwing, handbuilding and raku firing.

In the afternoon, from 1:15-3 p.m., there will be a lecture, slides and demonstration of coloring techniques to which the public is invited, and from 5-7 p.m. a critique of clay sculptures made by students.

Look in the next newsletter to find out more about this Maryland artist and his work which has been described as "a kind of visual Haiku poem."

For details on the pot party, contact Marie Cavallaro in the Art Department at 543-6273.

Annapolis artist Purvis Martin's explores in his three-dimensional photo assemblages are on display at the Art Institute and Gallery April 22-May 31.

His pieces range in size, from as small as 10" by 15" to as large as 6' by 8', and are unique in that the frame is part of the work. Inspired by Renaissance art and framing, the artist generates all of the finished piece, frame in and out.

The artist will give a short talk the night of the opening reception, Thursday, April 25, from 5-7 p.m., which is free and open to the public.

Also, the Art Institute and Gallery is accepting entries for its April/May theme exhibit and sale titled "Springtime," on display in AI&G's larger gallery, the Yost Gallery, April 22-May 31.

Two-dimensional works in oil, watercolor, acrylic, mixed media, as well as original prints and drawings will be accepted. First, second and third prizes of $75, $50 and $25, respectively, will be awarded. Entries will be received at the AI&G on Saturday, April 20, from 10 a.m.-noon. Maximum size is 45" by 40"; all work must be dry, properly framed and wired for hanging. Artists, their guests and the general public are invited to a free opening reception Thursday, April 25, from 5-7 p.m.

The Art Institute and Gallery is located at Route 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane in Salisbury and Monday-Saturday, noon-4 p.m. For more information call 546-4748.

Webber Musical Is Sophanes Production

"Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," an early work for children by famed composer Andrew Lloyd Webber, will be performed for five performances April 24-29.

This was the first musical by Webber who went on to compose "Jesus Christ, Superstar," "Evita," "Cats" and the hugely successful "Phantom of the Opera." "Joseph" enjoyed a successful Broadway run and became a staple of many regional and summer theatres.

A retelling of the story of Joseph who was sold into slavery by jealous brothers and later saved the nation of Egypt, and his family, from famine, this parable from the book of Genesis has as its themes "love, humility and forgiveness," said its director, Martha Pfeiffer.

"The production will be appropriate for children of all ages," she continued. It is only 90 minutes long, including an intermission.

Like most Webber scores, "Joseph" is eclectic with something for everyone. Musical numbers range from reggae to country to rock 'n' roll. Dances include a calypso, soft shoe and country hoe-down.

Pfeiffer has selected the 1960s as a visual motif, which was about the time the musical was written. Sixties fashion began to make a comeback earlier this year "and I was thrilled," Pfeiffer said. "We'll be using tie dye, fringes and even strobe lights," all popular with young people during that era. "And what better time than the present with the situation in the (Persian) Gulf to present a show about love and forgiveness?"

"Joseph" is the annual production by Sophanes, SSU's student theatre club. Any profits from the production go toward scholarships.

In the title role is Sean Thomas, an SSU alumnus from Pocomoke City who has appeared in the Shenandoah Summer Music and Trawler Dinner theatres productions. Derek Woodburn of Ellicott City, a senior communication arts major, plays Pharoah. Chris Harris of Salisbury, an SSU alumnus, plays Potiphar, servant of Pharoah.

Pfeiffer, a graduate student in history and teacher at Delmar Elementary School, is also choreographer. Musical director is Scot Hawkins, a senior English major from Salisbury. Set design is by Woodburn. Costume design is by Cheri Steigerwald, a sophomore from Shickshinny, PA. Lighting design is by Sean Todd, a junior communication arts major from Seaford, DE.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, April 24-27, and Monday, April 29, with a 2 p.m. matinee Sunday, April 28.

Tickets are free for SSU students, faculty and staff. Performances are in Holloway Hall on stage. For reservations call 543-6228. For group rates or further information call 543-6229.

Philosophical Symposium To Be Held This Saturday

Should different cultures be bound by the same moral principles? Should gender or race be factors in hiring? These are some of the issues expected to be raised at the Spring Philosophical Symposium on Saturday, April 20, in Caruthers Hall.

The topic of the symposium is, "Should the Rules Be the Same for All? A Discussion of Ethics, Politics and Cultural Diversity."

"The issue is a difficult and controversial one," said Dr. Jerry Miller, SSU professor of philosophy. "This year's topic (already) seems to provoke quite animated argument, not always rational, among students. All of us, I think, will profit from an exploration of the underlying philosophical issues."

"Two visiting philosophers will start the fire and shed some light," Miller continued. Hadley Arkes who teaches at Amherst College, is the author of many books, including "First Things: An Inquiry into the First Principles of Morals and Justice." The second is Dr. William Desmond, professor of philosophy at Loyola College, who has an excellent reputation as a teacher and is the author of "Philosophy and its Other."

As in the past, the visiting philosophers will make their presentations in the morning; the afternoon session will begin with a roundtable discussion, and be quickly followed by what is traditionally an intellectual free-for-all. Dr. Francis Kane, chair of the Philosophy Department, will moderate the panel of Dr. James Hatley, also of the Philosophy Department, and Drs. Elizabeth Curtain and John Kalb of the English Department.

The all-day symposium begins in Caruthers room 118 with coffee and donuts at 9:15 a.m., followed by a complimentary lunch and concluding around 3 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend and participate. Admission is free.

To assist luncheon planning, organizers asks those considering attending to notify the Philosophy Department's office, if possible. For this or other information call 543-6426.

Now in its 12th year, the symposium is sponsored by the student Philosophical Society, the Philosophy Department, the Honors Program and the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Furnace Town Walk

The Furnace Town Historic Site and the Nature Conservancy forest trails near Snow Hill will be the site of the spring guided "Full Moon Nature Walk" Friday, April 19. Walkers should meet at The Company Store at Furnace Town at 9 p.m.

This special Nature Walk will be led by a mother and son team from Princess Anne. Joan and Dave Filmer are avid outdoor enthusiasts and enjoy walking in the forest near their home. They have collected a number of plant and animal specimens for documentation and study. Both have attended most of Furnace Town's nature walks over the past four years. They plan to focus the walk on spring signs and sounds.

Walkers are encouraged to wear long pants and sleeves, enclosed shoes and socks. Admission for the walks is $2 for adults and $1 for children, Furnace Town's regular site admission. For details call 632-2032.

TIAA-CREF Rep on Campus

A representative from TIAA-CREF will be on campus on Thursday, April 25, to answer any questions faculty and staff may have regarding the basic retirement plan with TIAA-CREF or the Supplemental Retirement Account (SRA). Informal sessions will be held in the Social Room, Holloway Hall, from 10-11 a.m. and noon-1 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup by Paul Ohanian

With a 14-10 win over West Chester last Saturday, the men's lacrosse team tied the school-record for best start and most consecutive wins, set by the 1984 squad. The 11-0 Sea Gulls are ranked first in the Division III poll for the second straight week, and host Hampden-Sydney at 1 p.m. this Saturday.

Offensive leaders for the unbeaten Gulls include Rick Berkman, with 42 goals and 33 assists; Eric Ungleich, 35 goals, 38 assists; and Rusty Pritzlaff, 36 goals, 19 assists. Chris Boyle, Kevin Hohner and Jeff Chenowith have keyed the midfield play, and John Russell, Tony Sposato and Mike Esham have led the defense. Senior Scott Bentkowski (101 saves) and junior Geoff Sanders (81 saves) have split time in goal.

Meanwhile, the men's and women's track teams accomplished a first for third-year coach Terry Rupert last Saturday. Both Sea Gull squads captured top honors at the Gallaudet Bison Invitational in Washington, D.C. The SSU men scored 77 points to outclass a field of 15 teams, while the SSU women tallied 234 points to easily outdistance the 12-team women's field. For the third straight week, the women set a new school-record in the 4 x 100 relay, clocking a time of 52.25. Also, for the second straight week, Erin Green set a new team record in the 3,000 meters, winning the race and shaving 15 seconds off her previous mark with a time of 10:46. Green also finished first in the 1,500 meters. Kirsten Owings (32 individual points) and Cheryl Ish (30 points) also enjoyed banner days. Tim Smith was among the top men's performers with a first place finish in the 10,000 meters and a third place in the 5,000 meters. David Atlas collected 19 individual points for the men.

The women's tennis team improved its record to 8-3 with a 6-1 win over UMBC last Saturday. Sherri Sheppard, Nikki Lee, Beth Hipps and Christina DeSanto won singles matches.

The men's tennis team, also 8-3, looks to defend its conference title at the ESAC Tournament in Winchester, VA this Saturday. Top singles records on the season belong to senior Bernie Phidej (9-1), junior Dave Hardesty (8-3) and freshman Brian Weist (8-3).

The women's lacrosse team, 4-5 on the season, has three regular season games remaining before the year-ending Maryland State Tournament. Joanne Fotia leads the team in scoring with 27 goals and 11 assists. Cheryl Ish has 25 goals, four assists; Jamie Bentkowski 16 goals, seven assists; and Mimsy Molter 17 goals, five assists.

John Hershberger continues to sparkle offensively for the baseball team, which stands 7-15 through last Saturday. The senior was 4-for-6 with three doubles, three runs and five RBIs in an 18-17 loss to Allentown.

The softball team improved to 11-4 on the year with a doubleheader sweep of Wesley last Friday. Amy Geppi improved her pitching record to 7-1 by winning game one, and Jane Cleveland's bases loaded triple keyed a 10-0 win in game two.

Eastern Europe Summer Study Program

Time is growing short to take advantage of Salisbury State's summer study program to Eastern Europe. Offered as a part of the regular summer school curriculum, the tour features a look at the countries of Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Participants receive an in-depth look at the history, culture and current situation of these countries which are just emerging from a long period of communist control. Then, after the formal end of summer session, students go to Europe, settling first in Budapest to explore the area at first hand.

In Budapest students can see Buda Castle, Mathias Church, the Fisherman's Bastion, Gellert Hill and enjoy a sidetrip to the Danube Bend. From there the tour goes by overnight train to Krakow, Poland. In this medieval city, some of the sights include Wawel Castle, Old Market Square, the Sukiennice, St. Mary's Church and a side excursion to Auschwitz. Another overnight train goes to Golden Prague for a visit to Charles Bridge, the Old Jewish quarter, Wenceslaus Square, Prague Castle and Golden Lane, then a side trip to Karlstejn.

The trip departs July 29 and returns August 9. Included in the cost are all transportation from New York and return, first class hotels, all breakfasts and dinners, special dinners in each of the three cities featuring native specialties and local transportation and admissions to various sites included in the itinerary. The tota cost is $1,860.

The program is open to all students, faculty and staff, and to the public. Reservations must be make soon to ensure participation. Thursday, April 25, is the registration deadline.

For further information, contact Dr. Robert Berry in the History Department 543-6245.

Henson School Spring Workshop

The Richard A. Henson School of Science Technology will hold a "Critical Thinking in the Sciences" spring workshop on Friday, April 19, from 3:30-6 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. Presenters are: 3:30-4:30 p.m.-Harry Womak, professor of biology, on "Ideas on Critical Thinking," and 4:30-5:30 p.m.-Kathleen Shannon, assistant professor of mathematics, "Using Writing to Encourage Students To Think Critically About Mathematics and Science."

An informal discussion and reception will follow from 5:30-6 p.m.

The workshop is cosponsored by Writing Across the Curriculum.

Outdoor Club News

The Outdoor Club will hold its next meeting on Monday, April 29, at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room of the Guerrieri University Center. The meeting on April 22 is cancelled.

"The Last Great Wilderness," a multimedia slide presentation which offers a close-up look at the fragile and beautiful Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in Alaska, is the subject of the program on Monday, April 22, at 8 p.m. in the Guerrieri Center.

Admission is free and open to the public.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Kohm Presents Alaska Slide-Lecture April 22

Lenny Kohm, a nationally known photojournalist, will present a slide show and lecture titled "The Last Great Wilderness" on Monday, April 22, at 8 p.m. in Nanticoke A and B of the Guerrieri University Center.

His presentation will offer a close-up look at the fragile and beautiful Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in Alaska, and the impending threat of oil exploration and industrial development there. The program is free and open to the public.

"America has only a few remnants of true wilderness left," said Kohm. "In the northeast corner of Alaska there is a place so wild that a visitor can walk for days without seeing signs of another human being. This is the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, a wilderness of vast grandeur, stretching from the cold waters of the Beaufort Sea south across a sweeping plain to the snowcapped peaks of the Brooks Range.

"The Arctic Refuge is America's wildlife equivalent to the Serengeti Plain of Africa," he said. "Polar bears den on the arctic plain, musk-ox and wolves walk the foothills, moose and grizzly bears roam the forests and tundra, and Dall sheep walk the mountain tops. Millions of migratory birds—swans, snow geese, northern pintails and many others—use the Arctic Coastal Plain as a staging area to begin winter migrations to the Pacific Flyway, Asia, Africa, Antarctica and the Chesapeake Bay.

"Most of the Arctic Refuge was designated Wilderness in 1980," said Kohm, "the greatest protection Congress can give. The Arctic Coastal Plain was not given this status even though this area is the center of wildlife activity. Oil companies believe there is recoverable oil under the Coastal Plain and are urging Congress to pass legislation this session that would permit oil development in this now unspoiled area.

"Oil drilling and associated industrial development would threaten the Coastal Plain and compromise the entire Arctic Refuge," he said. "The industrialized Prudhoe Bay region covers over 600 square miles and now experiences the resulting problems of air and water pollution, hazardous waste buildup and oil spills.

"Over 1,100 miles of Arctic coastline are already open to oil and gas development. The 125 miles of the Arctic Coastal Plain is the only parcel left untouched. It is the parcel needed to complete the only undisturbed Arctic ecosystem," said Kohm.

"The last remaining, unspoiled places in this country are part of our national heritage and a resource beyond dollar value," he said. "The Arctic Coastal Plain is unique and irreplaceable, and so begs the highest protection we, through our Congress, can provide."

The 90-minute program is sponsored by the SSU Outdoor Club and the Wilderness Orientation Program. For more information call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6100.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

Students and alumni must have a resume and/or credential file personal information form on file with the Placement Office prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the Placement Office as soon as possible to complete this requirement.

Fri. April 19	Indian River School District—Interviewing all education majors for teaching positions.
Fri. April 26	Carroll County Board of Education—Interviewing all education majors for teaching positions.
Mon. April 29	F.N. Wolf—Interviewing all majors for stock broker trainee positions.

Currently enrolled students and alumni may make appointments immediately. All recruiting requires sign-ups unless noted. Contact Placement Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

SPECIAL NOTE: Those wishing to participate in on-campus interviewing must first attend an interview and placement briefing. The next meeting is: Friday, May 3, from noon-1 p.m. Contact the Placement Office for sign-ups.

SENIOR RESUME BOOK: Employers often ask to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors and then contact selected seniors about job openings. Interested seniors should bring their resumes to the Placement Office.

WORKSHOPS: Resume Writing–A one-session workshop designed to help the student develop one of the job campaign's basic tools, discussion includes such topics as various formats, uses of resume, printing, cover letters and sections of the resume. Earth Day Celebration

In celebration of Earth Day, Monday, April 22, Eco Concern will be planting trees to help the local environment on Saturday, April 20, at 10 a.m. at San Domingo, 11 miles from the campus.

Students and members of the SSU community are encouraged to attend and help contribute to the local environment.

Please call David Lasher at 860-1874 for information. Transportation will be available.

Med Tech Deadlines

Medical technology majors: Please be aware that the deadline for application to the junior year professional component is May 15. For those sophomores who have not already done so during program planning, please obtain an application from your advisor. Likewise, any student who is interested in the medical technology major is encouraged to call the Medical Technology Department for information and counseling.

There is a national shortage of laboratory professionals which makes the career and the employment possibilities very appealing. Please call 543-6365 for more information.

Small Keynote Speaker

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, was the keynote speaker at the eighth annual National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Banquet at Roger, NC, on March 30. The title of her speech was "Don't Believe the Hype."

The NAACP was founded in 1909 for the purpose of establishing a permanent civil rights organization to fight for the equality of black people and the rights of all people. From its inception the organization has had as its goal the end of disfranchisement and Jim Crowism and is committed to integration and biracial action on behalf of equality.

The members of the NAACP insist that the Constitution was intended to guarantee equality and call on America to reassert its egalitarian principles.

"The ultimate goal of the NAACP was and is to encourage the passage of legislation and to influence court decisions that would expand protection for the rights of blacks and all people," said Small.

Berry At AAUW Convention

Dr. Dagmar Berry of the Modern Languages Department in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts spoke before the Maryland Convention of the American Association of University Women in Easton on April 13. The theme for the convention was "Intercultural Dimensions: A Global Perspective."

Berry was invited to give a keynote talk emphasizing the emerging role of women in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. She discussed the idea that as reforms take hold in these areas as the result of the democratic revolutions and the effects of Perestroika, the role of women will take on greater significance in politics, education and other areas of endeavor.

"Despite the professed equality of women in this area, they have, in fact been relegated largely to secondary roles in the life of their countries," said Berry. "Political changes in the recent past will open up new opportunities on a more equal basis."

Berry, who holds a degree in sociology, teaches courses in Russian language, the Soviet peoples and the peoples of Eastern Europe, and has given several talks touching on this theme to women's organizations in the Salisbury area.

SSU Gala preparation continues. The entertainment and ticket steering committee met recently to discuss the 1991 Gala, "Cruise 'Round the World." Members of the committee are (left to right) Marge Shenasky, Carmen DiSylvestro, Billye Sarbanes, Bob Gearhart and Susan Holloway. The Gala will be held on Friday, May 31, in the Guerrieri University Center. Tickets for the event are $150 per couple and may be purchased by calling the Office of Institutional Advancement at 543-6175.

Center. He was on the boards of directors of Wicomico County's Teen-Adult Center and Mental Hygiene Society, and chairman of the board of directors of the Wicomico School for Retarded Children.

Early in his professional career he taught philosophy and English as well as psychology. A popular professor with students and faculty, he chaired the SSU Psychology Department for nearly a decade before retiring in 1972.

Both of the Drs. May went to college and graduate school on scholarships and fellowships, and "If it's given to you, the least you can do is help someone else along," Dr. Florence May said.

is the Fred A. Greer house on the corner of North Division and Isabella Streets. Reportedly the first commission of architect Edwin Wilson Booth, the house has the rounded tower that is the hallmark of a Queen Anne Victorian.

Later homes, such as the Adkins house on Park Avenue, trace the transition toward brick exteriors and spacious interiors that followed as Newtown grew. In both homes, Evans points out the desire for sound construction and even the availability of materials from E.S. Adkins as factors in the creations of local architects. All of this, says Evans, reflects the philosophy of the times.

Reflections of another sort will be the subject of a Wednesday, April 24, panel discussion. Senior members of the black community have been asked to share their memories of growing up in Salisbury. Sylvia Bradley, co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture at SSU, points out that the contributions of people of color are often less well documented in written histories. She hopes that the panel will be enlightening.

Dr. Clara Small, SSU history professor, will moderate the discussion. She says that panel members will try to give a picture of what their lives have been like. They will also discuss solutions to some of the problems of contemporary race relations. "I hope it will open people's eyes, especially young people's eyes," said Small. "I think it will give hope for the future." The panel discussion is designed to give an appreciation of what has been accomplished in the community. Some of the topics to be included are politics and race relations. Education will be a major topic, according to Small.

The slide-lecture and panel discussion are part of a new exhibit at Salisbury State's University Gallery in the Blackwell Library. Other events during the exhibit's run include two guided tours, April 17 and 24, with noted local historian, Richard W. Cooper, and a lecture, "The Salisbury of the Nelms and Lemmon Families" by John E. Jacob, local historian and attorney, on Monday, April 22, at 7 p.m. in the University Gallery.

"Historic Salisbury" is a collection of documents and memorabilia tracing the town's development from its founding to the 1960s. The exhibit will be open until April 25. It is being presented by the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture. For more information on these and related events, call 543-6312 or 543-6030.

Attention May Graduates

Cap and gown distribution takes place April 29 and 30 and May 1 in the Book Rack. Those who placed an order for graduation items should bring their receipt to the store for pick-up. The hours on Monday and Tuesday are 9 a.m.-6 p.m. On Wednesday the hours are 9 a.m.-noon.

Graduates who did not get fitted during the Graduation Center Week must come during this time to get their cap and gown.

Remember to make necessary motel reservations early since Commencement is on Memorial Day weekend.

Annual Salisbury Prayer Breakfast

Patrick M. Morley, author, speaker and Florida entrepreneur will deliver the message for the 16th Annual Salisbury Mayor's Prayer Breakfast to be held Tuesday, May 7, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center here beginning at 7:30 a.m.

Open to the public, the Annual Mayor's Prayer Breakfast provides an opportunity for local Christians to come together to pray for the spiritual enrichment of the local community, a spokesperson said. Typically, more than 1,000 are in attendance.

Tickets for this non-profit event are $10 and must be purchased in advance. Tickets may be purchased at Jack's Religious Gift Shop on Snow Hill Road or The Gospel Shop in Court Plaza. Tickets may also be purchased by writing the Prayer Breakfast Planning Committee at 1 Alderney Mews, Salisbury, MD 21801. Tables may be reserved for groups of eight and early reservations are recommended.

U.S. Poet Laureate Visits SSU April 29

Mark Strand, the Poet Laureate of the United States, will read from his work here on Monday, April 29.

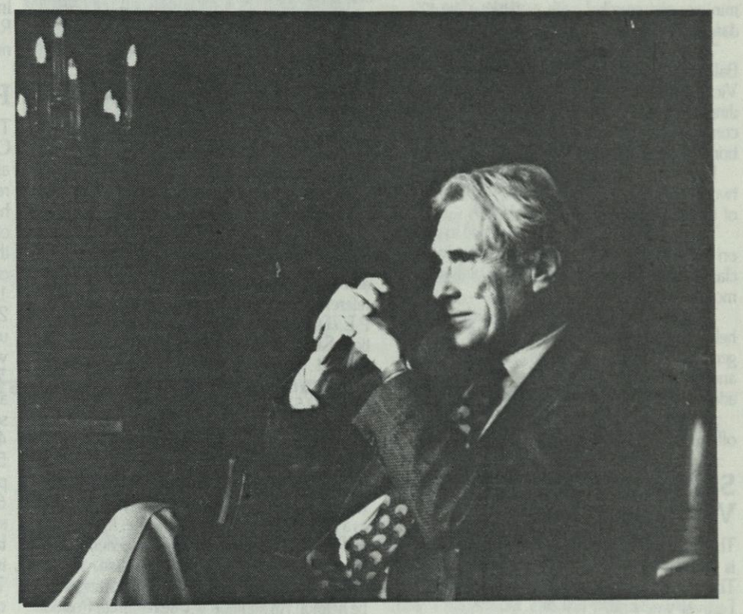
Sponsored by the Writers-on-the-Shore series, the Poet Laureate's reading begins at 8 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited. A reception honoring him follows.

Strand is the fourth to serve as America's Poet Laureate, succeeding the late Robert Penn Warren, Richard Wilbur and Howard Nemerov.

"Mark Strand is one of the most influential poets of his generation," said Dr. Michael Waters, SSU English professor and organizer of the writers series. "He is a particular favorite of younger writers and is one of our most widely read poets."

Strand is also a short story writer, editor, translator and author of children's books as well as a distinguished teacher. He has published in practically every magazine of substance in this country including The New Yorker, The New York Review of Books, Saturday Review, Harper's, Atlantic, The New Republic, The Nation, Paris Review, The Partisan Review and Antaeus. He was also photography critic and feature writer for Vogue for five years.

His first book of poetry, "Sleeping with One Eye Open," was published in 1964 and since then has been followed by seven others. His "Selected Poems" (1980) was reissued this year; his latest volume from which he will read, "The Continuous Life," appeared this past fall.



Mark Strand, Poet Laureate of the United States

A book of short stories, "Mr. and Mrs. Baby," was published in 1985. His translations include "The Owl's Insomnia," a selection of Rafael Alberti's poems, and "Travelling in the Family," a selection of poetry by Carlos Drummond de Andrade, edited in collaboration with Thomas Colchie. He is the author of three children's books: "The Planet of Lost Things," "The Night Book" and "Rembrandt Takes a Walk."

Strand was born of American parents on Prince Edward Island, Canada, and came to the

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

IN REPLY REFER TO

WILLIAM DONALD SCHAEFER
GOVERNOR

April 10, 1991

Dr. Thomas Bellavance
President
Salisbury State University
1101 Camden Avenue
Salisbury MD 21801

Dear Dr. Bellavance:

I have heard about the outstanding recycling efforts undertaken by students at Salisbury State University. I am excited by your students' enthusiasm and dedication to protecting the environment and the Chesapeake Bay.

Individuals are a very important part of our effort to clean up the environment and the Chesapeake Bay. I am impressed that Salisbury State University has already reduced its amount of trash by 20 percent through the campus recycling program. This will greatly cut down the amount of trash in your county landfill. In addition, your composting program provides a natural, inexpensive fertilizer to use on your campus.

Again, I deeply appreciate the recycling efforts at Salisbury State University.

Sincerely,

William Donald Schaefer
Governor

Musical 'Joseph' Continues Through Monday

When Andrew Lloyd Webber wrote "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" some 20 years ago, the famed British composer was not attempting to create a "Biblical" musical.

Taken from the book of Genesis, the story of Joseph who was sold into slavery by jealous brothers, then rose to be second only to Pharoah in Egypt, is considered by scholars to be one of the most moving narratives in the Bible.

Translated by the composer of "Cats" and "Phantom of the Opera" into contemporary musical theatre, Webber's "Joseph" has its actors not so much studying scripture for inspiration as drinking gatorade to keep up with its high-energy production.

During the 90 minute show, music and dance are constantly changing, said Salisbury State Theatre Director, T. Paul Pfeiffer. Actors are singing everything from French soul, and '60s rock 'n' roll, to country western—hardly Biblical fare. And almost all the songs are in

The repertory ensemble of the Alvin Ailey Dance Company, considered one of the six major dance companies in America, will give a mini-concert coupled with a master class in dance technique on Thursday, April 25, here.

"The Ailey is ranked with the New York City Ballet and the Martha Graham Company," said Victoria Hutchinson, SSU Dance Company director, "and it is one of the most popular companies internationally. We feel very honored to have them here."

From 7-8 p.m. the ensemble will perform two works choreographed by Ailey, the founder of the company who died in 1989.

Then, at 8 p.m., the public is invited to get on its feet, stretch and participate in a master class with the Ailey ensemble in Dunham modern dance technique.

The cost of the entire program which will be held in Maggs gymnasium, is only $3 for general admission; $1 for senior citizens, teens and youth under 12. SSU students will be admitted free with a University ID.

For more information call the dance program office at 543-6353.

Salisbury Festival Volunteers Needed

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) is looking for volunteers to join "The Proud, The Few...The Festival Crew" on Salisbury Festival weekend, May 3-5.

Volunteers are especially needed in the children's crafts area, this year titled "Under The Big Top," featuring six different craft stations with a circus flair. The children's area will be located in the Plaza Gardens next to the City Center. "Under The Big Top" is being created, organized and staffed by the members of the Student National Education Association, a student organization at Salisbury State. However, the Arts Council still needs quite a few volunteers to handle the ticket booth and the face painting booths. Paint a simple balloon or clown nose on a child and get a bright smile as a reward!

During Festival Saturday volunteers are needed for jobs such as managing performance stages, selling SWAC merchandise and helping with SWAC food concession. Most shifts are no longer than two hours, so volunteers will be able to help out and still actively participate and enjoy the Festival.

Both individuals and organizations are welcome to volunteer. For more information call 543-ARTS.

Med Tech Deadlines

Medical technology majors: Please be aware that the deadline for application to the junior year professional component is May 15. For those sophomores who have not already done so during program planning, please obtain an application from your advisor. Likewise, any student who is interested in the medical technology major is encouraged to call the Medical Technology Department for information and counseling.

There is a national shortage of laboratory professionals which makes the career and the employment possibilities very appealing. Please call 543-6365 for more information.

Aquatics Director

SSU seeks an individual for a one-year appointment as interim director of aquatics, a position in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics. The Physical Education Department provides required general education wellness courses and a multi-track physical education major with options in teacher education, health fitness, athletic training and dance.

Responsibilities include managing the pool, coaching the varsity women's swim team and men's swim club, teaching assigned classes and operating a summer swim program. The successful candidate must possess appropriate certifications: lifesaving, WSI, qualify for instructor training, first aid and CPR. Salary range is commensurate with experience.

Please submit letters of application, resumes, and names and phone numbers of three references to Dr. William E. Lide, Chair of P.E./Director of Athletics and Campus Recreation, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. The anticipated starting date is August 15.

Radio Announcer

WSCL-FM seeks a part-time announcer to work 20 to 30 hours a week, chiefly evenings and as a holiday and vacation substitute. Applicants must have previous broadcast experience and be capable of control room operation. Knowledge of classical music and news reporting will be helpful. An audition will be required. Position is available June 1. Salary is negotiable.

Resumes may be sent to the Personnel Office until April 22. WSCL is licensed to the SSU Foundation.

Summer Orientation Workers Are Needed

A limited number of students are being hired to assist with the summer orientation (testing, advising and registration) program for new students and their families. Fall semester sophomores, juniors and seniors will be needed to work June 17-20, June 24-27 and July 9 and 10.

Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular activities, knowledgeable about programs, services/organizations on campus, good role models and articulate about SSU. A brief training program will be required.

Interested students should fill out an application at the Work Experience Office in the Physical Plant Building. Deadline for application is Friday, May 3.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduating seniors at a later date.

TIAA-CREF Rep on Campus

A representative from TIAA-CREF will be on campus on Thursday, April 25, to answer any questions faculty and staff may have regarding the basic retirement plan with TIAA-CREF or the Supplemental Retirement Account (SRA). Informal sessions will be held in the Social Room, Holloway Hall, from 10-11 a.m. and noon-1 p.m.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Tom Supensky

Internationally Exhibited Ceramicist Highlights 'Pot Party'

Tom Supensky, a ceramic sculpturer whose work has been commissioned by organizations as diverse as Johns Hopkins Hospital and the B.B.C. in England, and extensively exhibited abroad as well as in New York, visits the campus on Monday, April 29.

Guest artist for the Department of Art, Supensky will give slide/video presentations and demonstrate coloring techniques in clay from 1:15-3 p.m. The public is cordially invited; admission is free. All sessions are in the ceramics studio of Potomac Hall (room 101).

"Tom Supensky has an international reputation as an artist and teacher and I feel most fortunate to have him visit our campus," said Marie Cavallaro, SSU art professor. Most recently featured in the January issue of Ceramics Monthly, he is a three-time Fulbright professor to England where he has lectured at the Royal College of Art. He also has lectured and taught in the Republic of Korea. A faculty member at Towson State University, he has written for Craft Horizons, Glass Art as well as Ceramics Monthly. In this country his works have been exhibited in the Baltimore Museum of Art, the Delaware Museum of Art, the Aaron Gallery in Washington, D.C., as well as several galleries in New York City, and across the country.

Critic Ralph Komives describes Supensky's work as "a kind of visual Haiku poem in which simple but profound ideas are expressed. . . . Not insignificant is the scale of these works; they all seem to be two or more times larger than life size." He also praised Supensky's "absolute mastery of modeling and ceramic color."

The Baltimore artist models a variety of subjects in his sculpture, from animals including birds and grasshoppers to a tea bag, match book or oil can—all rendered with color in a free and painterly way.

"Images represent an idea," Supensky said, and are not meant to be recreations of objects themselves. He also tries to "produce images larger than life. . . . Whatever my intentions, I hope the audience finds something of value."

In the morning he hosts an SSU "faculty pot party," where faculty and staff try their hands at creating ceramic pots and other objects. That evening he will critique student work in clay sculpture. For more information on his day long residency call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Salisbury Festival May 3-6

Once again the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Countil (SWAC) brings to the Salisbury Festival the beauty and variety of talented craftsmakers and artists from the mid-Atlantic region.

On Saturday, May 4, the tree-shaded courthouse lawn will come to life as people display and sell their colorful arts and crafts.

"The arts and craft booths bring to the festival a unique diversity of talent and artwork," said Mary Lou Henry, owner of The Gallery, SWAC board member, and festival chair for arts and crafts booths.

"This year there will be over 40 exhibitors, whose works ranges from beaded jewelry to cabinetry, quilts to herbal plants and printing stamps to watercolors. With such variety, there will be something of interest to everyone in attendance."

This year the festival welcomes craftmakers and artists from Parksley and Onancoke, VA, Silver Spring and Baltimore and Greenwood, DE, as well as extended areas on the Delmarva peninsula. There will be some faces recognizable from previous festival years, and some newcomers to the celebration.

Local artist Grover Cantwell will once again be presenting an arts booth. Cantwell specializes in botanical portraits and watercolors of local wildlife.

One of the booths will feature the Lower Shore Herb Society who will have on hand cookbooks with tantalizing recipes, tour books, and live herb plants. Herb Society members will answer questions and give information on different facets of herbal growth and usage.

Traveling from the Silver Spring area are newcomers MaryAnn Kinsella-Meier and Flo Void, whose talent lies in the area of jewelry. Their style is unique in that they use unusual postage stamps as the face of their pins, tie tacks, and bolo ties. They also hand-craft jewelry using marbleized paper, ceramics, leather, wire and unusual stones.

"These booths are just a sampling of the arts and crafts that will be on display at the festival," said Henry. "Each exhibitor offers their own flair in their artwork."

Salisbury Festival 1991 is co-sponsored by the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce and the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council. The Festival begins with a block party at Riverwalk Park on Friday, May 3, and concludes with "Sunday in the Park" at the City Park on May 6.

For more information concerning the arts and crafts area or other aspects of the festival, call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

Furnace Town Mini-Concert Series Opens Sunday

The popular group, Rekindled, will open Furnace Town Historic Site's Mini-Concert Series on Sunday, April 28.

The one-hour mini-concert will be held in the intimate setting of the Old Nazareth Church from 3-4 p.m. It is made possible, in part, by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council. Admission to the concert is included in Furnace Town's regular site admission of $2 for adults and $1.50 for children. Concert-goers will be able to enjoy self-guided tours of the 25-acre historic site, demonstrations by the broom-maker and blacksmiths, and walks along the Furnace Town/Nature Conservancy trails.

For more information call Furnace Town at 632-2032.

Eastern Europe Summer Study Program

Time is growing short to take advantage of Salisbury State's summer study program to Eastern Europe. Offered as a part of the regular summer school curriculum, the tour features a look at the countries of Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Participants receive an in-depth look at the history, culture and current situation of these countries which are just emerging from a long period of communist control. Then, after the formal end of summer session, students go to Europe, settling first in Budapest to explore the area at first hand.

The trip departs July 29 and returns August 9. Included in the cost are all transportation from New York and return, first class hotels, all breakfasts and dinners, special dinners in each of the three cities featuring native specialties, and local transportation and admissions to various sites included in the itinerary. The total cost is $1,860.

The program is open to all students, faculty and staff, and to the public. Reservations must be make soon to ensure participation. Thursday, April 25, is the registration deadline.

For further information, contact Dr. Robert Berry in the History Department 543-6245.

The Department of Computer Services is accepting applications for the position of student monitor for the fall semester. Any students who has successfully completed either COSC 110 and the corresponding microcomputer lab course (COSC 112, ISMN 111, BUAD 111) and/or COSC 120 may apply. Also, any student who is proficient in Apple WordPerfect 1.1 is encouraged to apply.

The application procedure is as follows:

- All students must complete a job application with Work Experience and receive a referral card.
- All students must complete the Department of Computer Services Student Monitor Job Application. These applications can be obtained at the student monitor's desk in the Main Computer Center, Caruthers Hall, room 125.
- Students should complete the application and attach the Work Experience referral card to the application. All applications must be returned to the Department of Computer Services receptionist to be dated.
- Students will be contacted by the academic programmer for interviews. Students will not be considered if they have not completed the application, do not have a referral card or the application is not dated.

Brand Nubian, above, will be appearing along with De la Soul

De la Soul Sunday!

De la Soul, whose 3 Feet High and Rising earned its members the unwanted mantle as the "hippies of hip-hop rap," performs a concert at the Maggs Center on Sunday, April 28, at 8 p.m.

"One hundred percent of the people listening to De la Soul were really attached to the image and not to what we were trying to say," said group member Posdnuos.

De la Soul's newly released second album is being listened to and the New York Times finds De la Soul Is Dead to contain some of the more innovative rap songs to come along.

"(Its) wildly imaginative sampling, a refreshing departure from the usual, overfamiliar James Brown breaks, has extended De la Soul's appeal far beyond traditional hip-hop fans, most notably to white college kids," said an April Times review. "But will that crowd be able to follow the twists and turns of De la Soul Is Dead?"

(Group member) Dove says: "It's not the same feeling as 3 Feet, where as soon as you put the needle on the record, you jumped to it. But I think people will have faith in us and (listen to it to see what's really happening)."

(Group member) Mase says: "We see this album as directed more to our peers, but it also gives our alternative audience a chance to hear what our peers listen to. Really, instead of being a step ahead, it's a step back to where our roots are."

"Some of the subject matter," continued the Times, "is a decisive step forward. My Brother's a Basehead, a bonus cut on the CD, is the most hard-hitting rap the group has recorded yet. Similarly, Millie Pulled a Pistol on Santa (is) an almost surreal and technically breathtaking rap."

The concert, sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board, also features radical rappers, Brand Nubians.

Tickets, $16 if purchased in advance or $18 at the door the night of the performance, are available at the Guerrieri University Center, the Mail Room in the Goliath Shopping Center in Salisbury or at Sound Waves in the Gold Coast Mall in Ocean City.

For more information, call the Program Board at 543-6197.

'Myths of Englishness' Lecture April 29

Dr. Michael Pursell, the final speaker in the "Humanities in Motion" series, funded in part by a grant from the Maryland Humanities Council, and the Britain Series, funded in part by the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, will lecture on "Myths of Englishness" in Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 29. His talk will attempt to define the dominant cultural myths of a country that sees itself as an island nation, once in control of a vast empire and now in decline, though still active in cultural imperialism.

Dr. Pursell comes to Salisbury from England, where he lives and teaches. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Nottingham and serves as a contributing editor of Literature/Film Quarterly, which has been published by SSU for the past 19 years. The lecture is free and the public is cordially invited.

For more information call the Office of Public Relations at 543-6030.

High School Math Students Compete

Students from 17 public high schools on the lower Eastern Shore recently participated in the Seventh Annual High School Mathematics Contest here.

Allen Burton, a senior from Delmar High School, was the top scorer. Erin Casey, a senior at James M. Bennett Senior High School, placed second. Mike Koenig, a senior from Northampton High School, and Suk Woo and Greg Badros, both seniors from James M. Bennett Senior High School, all tied for third place. James M. Bennett Senior High School won the team award.

All five individual winners received plaques and books. The first-place team received a plaque, and the name of the first-place winner will be engraved on the permanent plaque which remains in the Department of Mathematical Sciences.

Wheelchair Games At Athletic Complex

The 10th annual Maryland Wheelchair Games, which attracts some 200 athletes, will be held May 10-12 at Salisbury State. The event is sponsored by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Salisbury and SSU.

The Games are a series of events sanctioned by the National Wheelchair Athletic Association (NWAA), the governing body for wheelchair sports in the U.S. Competition is held in weightlifting, swimming, slalom, track and field, air guns, table tennis and archery.

Participants in prior years have ranged in from age 6 to "over 65," and both men and women are actively involved. The skill level ranges from absolute beginner to world recordholder. Athletes are grouped according to degree of disability, age and sex and compete only against similarly disabled competitors. The emphasis is on fun, participation and sportsmanship, although many athletes strive to meet qualifying standards for national championships.

Novice athletes are welcome in all events and assistance is given willingly by volunteers and seasoned competitors to the newcomers. Every competitor gets a commemorative T-shirt and medals are awarded to the top three finishers in each event, in each disability category.

Anyone may enter the Maryland Wheelchair Games by completing the entry form, which is available from Elaine Harrington, DNR Office, 201 Baptist Street, Salisbury, MD 21801. NWAA regulations require that all athletes become members of the NWAA and be classified medically. Through the support of Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Salisbury, there is financial assistance available for first-time athletes to join the NWAA at no charge.

Salisbury State is located on Maryland's Eastern Shore, about a 2 1/2 hour drive from Baltimore, Washington, Philadephia and Norfolk. The campus is fully accessible and the Maggs Physical Activity Center and outdoor facilities are outstanding venues for wheelchair competition. Overnight accomodations are available at a number of area motels in Salisbury and Ocean City, MD.

For more information, call Harrington, at 543-6595.

Blacksmithing

The Furnace Town Blacksmith's Guild is offering a workshop in Intermediate Blacksmithing on Saturday, April 27, at Furnace Town Historic Site. This workshop, taught by members of the Guild, goes from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. This workshop is made possible, in part, by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council.

Registration is $10 per person, plus the cost for any materials used by the student. Call the Furnace Town business office, 632-2032 by April 26.

Student Teaching Applications for Fall

Applications for student teaching placements in the fall are due by the end of April. Forms may be obtained and returned, upon completion, to the Education office in Caruthers Hall.

School district options for placement include the lower Shore counties, Howard and Calvert Counties.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanion

The Sea Gulls moved back to the top of the Eastern States Athletic Conference hierarchy this week as they claimed two conference championships in a four-day span. With the titles, SSU has put itself in a position to win the ESAC's All-Sports Trophy for the fourth consecutive year.

The softball team was the first of the spring sports champions as the Gulls clinched the crown with a sweep of Allentown College in last Wednesday's doubleheader. The two wins capped Salisbury's conference season at 9-1. The team with the best regular-season record is declared the champion. Sophomore righthander Sonja Akers pitched a one-hitter in the clinching game.

On Sunday, the men's tennis team captured the tennis championship for the third straight year as they cruised to the title by winning the two-day tournament. SSU's 50 overall points easily outdistanced second place Frostburg (21 points) and third place Wesley (20 points). The Gulls had four of the six individual champions and also won all three doubles titles. Singles champs included Tre Moore at number two, George Wines at number three, Bernie Phidej at number four and Dave Hardesty at number five.

Meanwhile, this weekend, the men's and women's lacrosse teams move to the forefront as they each look for milestones. The number one ranked men's squad hosts rival Washington College in the regular season finale at Sea Gull Stadium on Saturday. The 12-0 Gulls hope to cap a perfect regular season for the first time in school history. A victory would also be the first over Washington since 1981.

The women's team competes in the Maryland State Tournament on Saturday and Sunday and is looking to make a third straight appearance in the championship game. The Gulls won the title in 1989 but lost in last year's title game to Georgetown University, 14-11.

Fans of the track team will get their first chance to see the Gulls run at home this Saturday as they host the Salisbury Invitational. SSU's women finished second at last weekend's Catholic Invitational while the men placed sixth. Tracy Tyler, Cheryl Ish, Kirsten Owings and Tim Smith captured first place finishes last weekend. The women's 4 x 400 relay team also set a new school record for the second time this season.

The baseball team's toughest opponent last week was the weather as the Gulls were rained out on Saturday and Sunday. Despite a 7-16 overall record, SSU's 3-3 ESAC record still gives the club an outside shot at winning the conference title. Important doubleheaders with Shenandoah and Frostburg in the next week should prove telling.

Soroptimist Anne H. Matthews Award

Applications for the Soroptimist Anne H. Matthews Award may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office. This scholarship is for $500 and will be given to a female who is a resident of Wicomico County. This award will be given to a student who is pursuing a career in the field of education. Application deadline is Monday, May 13. Undergraduates and graduate students can apply.

Professional Women Seminar May 10

Being more effective at work is a desire of almost all professionals. Being more effective means being more productive, less stressed and more in control. Investigating women's unique experiences in our society and hence, in our places of work, heightens awareness and understanding, thus enhancing opportunities.

On Friday, May 10, the Perdue Center for Professional Development will offer a seminar titled, "The Professional Woman: Issues Influencing Career Effectiveness." The workshop will be held at Webster's 1801 Restaurant in Salisbury.

Designed to be participatory, stimulating, interactive and fun, the seminar will be led by Dr. Rebecca A. Emery, who teaches management and organizational behavior in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business; Mitzi Perdue, who writes a syndicated food and agriculture column for 200 newspapers and an environmental column for "The Daily Times"; and Dr. Carolyn B. Stegman, author and educator in women's studies.

The purpose of this workshop is to: present historical and psychological perspectives that encourage men and women to understand the unique experiences of women; help both sexes more fully comprehend their differences and their fundamental inter-relatedness; analyze women's ways of conflict resolution; discuss the response of business to the dilemmas of the professional woman; clarify life's priorities and related decisions and sacrifices; reassess goals for the 1990s; examine the barriers to personal and career fulfillment; and network with other professionals.

Emery just returned from three years in New Zealand where she taught business communications at Masey University. Previously, she was manager of training for the largest bank in Oklahoma and then a human resource consultant and manager with Arthur Young (now Ernst & Young).

For two years, Perdue produced and hosted a syndicated weekly television interview show, "Country Comments," on Sacramento's CBS affiliate. She is immediate past president of the 35,000 member American Agri-women. Perdue is the author of five cookbooks, a book on management, a biography of Frank Perdue and a monograph on effective use of the media.

Stegman has taught psychology of women at both the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and SSU. She has conducted hundreds of seminars in assertion, conflict management and women's studies all over the U.S. and in Europe and Africa. Her articles have appeared in major professional journals. Stegman is the author of the forthcoming book, "Exploring Our Lives: Voices of Women in Mid-Life."

The registration fee is $95 per person. The deadline for registration is May 1. Fee includes continental breakfast, refreshment breaks, lunch and course materials. For additional information, call the Perdue Center for Professional Development at 543-6394 or 548-4505.

Noted Scholar on Death, Technological Society And Beckett May 2

A scholar who has achieved a reputation as one of the world's leading critics of English poetry will lecture on "Death, Technological Society and Samuel Beckett" here on Thursday, May 2.

Professor Christopher Ricks who was awarded the Metcalf Cup and Prize for excellence in teaching this past year at Boston University and who is former chair of the English faculty at Cambridge University, will discuss the Irish playwright and novelist and the concept of death in our contemporary technological society at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The talk will be followed by a panel discussion with three distinguished SSU faculty. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend and participate.

According to Ricks, Beckett (1906-1989, best remembered for his play, "Waiting for Godot") "is the great writer of an age which has created new possibilities and impossibilities in the matter of death. Of an age which has dilated longevity until it is as much a nightmare as a blessing; an age of intense geriatric tending, at one with a persistent medico-professional indignity visited upon the dying; an age of transplants and trunks, coma and consciousness suspended . . . an age which now finds one of its most urgent anxieties—for doctors and nurses, theologians and philosophers, friends and relations, and even for the Pope—to be the definition of death."

Responding to Ricks's lecture will be Dr. Elizabeth J. Barfield, dean of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences; she has gerontological nursing as her major research interest and has clinical and teaching experience in gerontological nursing and long term care. Dr. James Hatley, assistant professor of philosophy, has published both articles and a book on responses to catastrophic death. Dr. William Zak, professor of English, published a book on "King Lear" titled Sovereign Shame and is nearing completion of a book-length study on Sophoclean tragedy.

Ricks credentials are impressive. "By his publishing and lecturing," said Dr. William Horne, SSU English professor, "Professor Ricks has achieved a reputation as one of the world's leading critics of English poetry." An Oxford graduate, Ricks taught at both Oxford and Cambridge universities. He was King Edward VII Professor of English Literature at Cambridge, and is an Honorary Fellow at both Balliol and Worcester colleges, Oxford. He has been a Fellow of the British Academy since 1975.

He is general editor of the Penguin Critical Anthologies and the Penguin English Poets series; for the the last 20 years he has been co-editor of the journal, Essays in Criticism. He has published book-length critical studies of Milton, Keats, Tennyson and Elliot, and has edited numerous anthologies, collections of criticism and editions.

He is currently at work on a book on Samuel Beckett and death to be published by Clarendon Press as well as five other major projects: a critical and historical book on allusion, an edition of Eliot's unpublished poems, co-editing The Faber Book of America, editing anew The Oxford Book of English Verse, and a book on Bob Dylan's ways with words.

Ricks lecture is part of SSU's spring series on the culture of the British Isles. His appearance is made possible with funds from the Maryland Humanities Council, through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. "We are pleased that the Maryland Humanities Council made it possible to invite Ricks to Salisbury," Horne said.

Eastern Shore Students Needed

Shore Future is an intervention program developed by the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium and funded by the Maryland Higher Education Commission. Its primary goal is to enhance the likelihood that students targeted within the Shore Future initiative will complete their public school experience and will successfully pursue post-secondary education. Major strategies focus on direct student and parent support activities, specialized staff training, and cooperative linkages between the public schools, postsecondary educational institutions, and Private Industry Councils.

Direct student support activities are designed to improve middle school students' self-esteem, academic performance, and outlook regarding the decision to pursue a college education. One strategy for achieving this objective is to provide tutoring and/or mentoring support to students.

If you are considering a career in education, or if you would just like to help students improve their chances to pursue a college education as you are now doing, contact Dr. Carol Williamson, Dean of Students, at 548-6080.

UM System Regents At SSU April 25

The University of Maryland System (UMS) Board of Regents will meet Thursday, April 25, in the Guerrieri University Center. Among the issues to be discussed are the facilities master plan for SSU and the fund-raising foundations affiliated with the University System.

The Committees on Educational Policy and Finance will meet in joint session at 9 a.m. in the Wicomico Room to discuss the SSU facilities master plan. The proposed plan addresses renovations and additions to existing academic and auxiliary space needed to meet current and projected enrollment.

Committee members also will discuss the relationships between the UMS affiliated fund-raisings foundations and the Board of Regents. C.E. "Ted" Peck, chairman of the University of Maryland Foundation Board of Directors, will make a presentation.

The full Board of Regents is scheduled to convene at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Room. The board will vote on recommendations for adjustments to student charges and fees for the 1991-92 academic year. The typical annual dormitory charge is proposed to increase from: $2,618 to $2,705 (3.3%) at the University of Maryland College Park; $1,730 to $1,808 (4.5%) at Bowie State University, $1,810 to $1,950 (7.7%) at Frostburg State University, $2,100 to $2,200 (4.8%) at Salisbury State University, and $2,004 to $2,104 (5%) at University of Maryland Baltimore County.

There are no recommended increases in room charges for University of Maryland at Baltimore, Towson State University, and University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

The range of increase for annual board charges is from 2.3 percent at Towson to 8.2 percent at Frostburg. No increase in board is recommended for the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

Full agendas and background information will be available at the meetings.

Dance Company Children's Matinee May 9

The University Dance Company is offering a matinee program for area elementary and intermediate school students on Thursday, May 9, from 1-1:40 p.m., in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The concert is offered free-of-charge as an educational and cultural service to the community. In lieu of an admission students may bring a can of food to donate to the Maryland Food Bank.

A special feature is "Bay Watch!," a colorful multi-media event entirely created by the children of the Fruitland Intermediate School fourth grade class. Funded by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, the work explores the life and ecology of the Chesapeake Bay through creative movement and original poetry. The SSU Dance Company will also perform a work based on the rhythms and designs of Kente cloth, an African textile from Ghana.

"We are really excited to have the Fruitland fourth grade class as our guest performers. They might inspire other young students to become interested in creative movement," said Victoria Hutchinson, Dance Company director.

With seating capacity limited to 750, school reservations are required and will be treated on a first come, first serve policy.
For reservation forms or further information call 543-6353.

chorus or other numbers requiring dancing as well as vocals, Pfeiffer said.

Despite the composer's entertaining bag of tricks, however, the spirit of the Bible story with its universal themes of love and forgiveness comes through loud and clear, SSU's theatre director added.

A family musical, "Joseph" is directed, designed and performed by Sophanes, the student theatre club.

Cast members include: Stacy Pushkar, Pam Kinnamon, Alex Ulrich, Jim Waltz, Pete Jacques, Philip Lewis, Derek Woodburn, David Hyland, Chris Harris, Brooks Truitt, John Goslee, Jason Danner, Will Shupe II, Glenn Glazer, Sean Thomas, Gail Guseman, Cherie Steigerwald, Kathy Filson, Amy Black, Christine Hall, Kristin Feeney, Georgia Chipouras, Jennifer Clymer, Margot Pickering and Amy Barnas.

Band members are Scott Hawkins, Todd Gillenardo and Daniel Anthony Coneo.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, April 24-27, and Monday, April 29, with a 2 p.m. matinee Sunday, April 28. Tickets free to SSU students, faculty and staff. Performances are in Holloway Hall on stage. For reservations or more information including group discounts call 543-6228 or 543-6229.

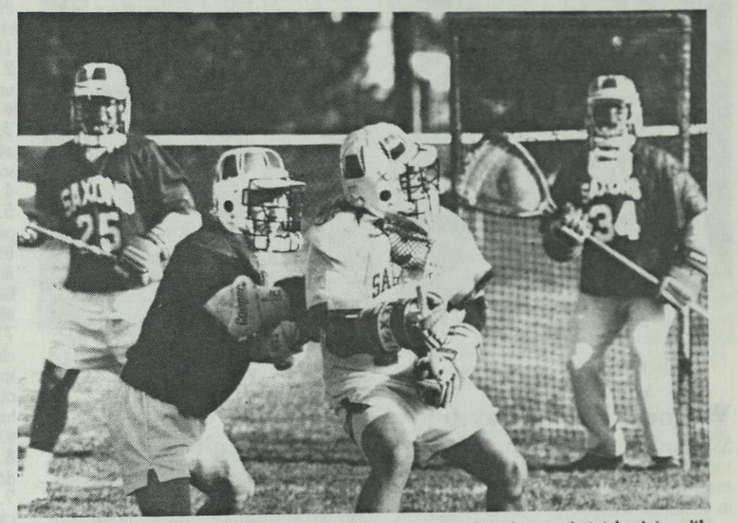
Sea Gulls Remain Perfect



Eric Ungleich, pictured from an earlier game this season, is second on the team in total points, with 42 goals and 47 assists.

For the Sea Gull lacrosse team, it was a perfect ending to a perfect regular season. SSU whipped archrival Washington, 20-4, in front of an enthusiastic home crowd at Sea Gull Stadium last Saturday to run its record to 13-0 for the year. Salisbury, the nation's top-ranked team for the last four weeks, will play next in the NCAA Division III Tournament's quarterfinal round on Wednesday, May 8. SSU will host a yet-to-be-determined opponent from a group of possibilities that includes Ithaca, Alfred, RIT and Wooster.

Rick Berkman paced the scoring attack against the Shoremen, tallying a career-high nine goals. The senior finished two goals shy of the team's single-game record set by Hall of Famer Dave Cottle against Baltimore in 1977. Rusty Pritzlaff added four goals and five assists, while linemate Eric Ungleich registered three goals and four assists. Meanwhile, the stingy Gull defense was keyed by defenders Mike Esham, Chris Andrews and Tim Miller. Goalie Scott Bentkowski, playing the first half, made 14 saves, while Geoff Sanders had nine stops in the second half.

As the nation's top ranked team, the Sea Gulls will likely be the NCAA selection committee's top seed for the eight-team playoff tournament when the pairings are announced on Sunday, May 5. As the top seed, SSU would host all games it plays in through the championship. The semifinal game is scheduled for Sunday, May 12, and the national championship game is Saturday, May 18.

In other Sea Gull sports action, the women's lacrosse team closed out its season with a third-place finish in the annual Maryland State Tournament. The Gulls beat Essex, 13-11, in overtime in the third-place contest. They were eliminated in the championship bracket by Georgetown, 9-5. Joanne Fotia finished as the team's top scorer in the tournament, netting 17 goals in six games.

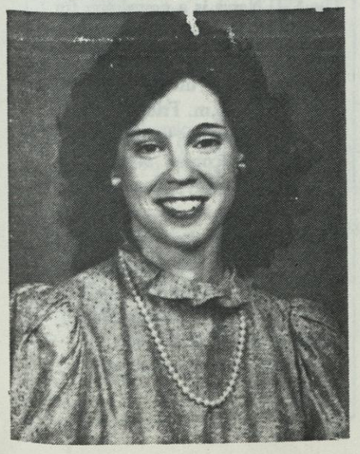
The men's and women's track teams will be competing in the Mason/Dixon Conference Championship Meet this weekend in Newport News, VA. Both Gull squads are coming off first-place finishes in last week's SSU Invitational. Individually, freshman Tracy Tyler highlighted the day with four first-place honors, including a leap of 5' 5 1/2" in the high jump that qualified her for the NCAA Division III Outdoor Championships, May 22-25, in Berea, OH.

The baseball, softball and men's tennis teams all conclude their seasons this week as well. The baseball team is 8-19 overall with three games left on the schedule. The softball team, which won the ESAC title, is 15-6 overall with four games left to play, and the men's tennis squad, also ESAC champs, is 12-3 heading into its final match.

Beth Bosserman Giammettei Honors Convocation Speaker

Salisbury State University will honor some 400 outstanding scholars and student leaders at its 66th annual Honors Convocation on Friday, May 3, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The Honors Convocation, which dates back to the founding of the University in 1925, this year recognizes students in nearly 60 different areas of academic life. These awards reflect organizations as diverse as international honor societies to the "Wall Street Journal" to local patrons and clubs saluting civic leaders such as Sam and Marilyn Seidel and the late Doris Gay Calcott.



According to tradition, each year the Honors Convocation Committee chooses a member of the SSU Alumni to give the address. This year's speaker is Beth Bosserman Giammettei, a city and management planner with a love of local history from Montclair, NJ.

As former church historian for the First United Methodist Church in Arlington Heights, IL, Giammettei established a central repository for church records spanning 130 years, in addition to promoting community-wide understanding and appreciation of the institution's heritage.

She earned her Master of Urban Planning from the University of Michigan and her Bachelor of Arts from SSU, graduating cum laude in 1980.

Giammettei was project manager for the Whelan Group, NY, where she worked as a consultant, providing financial development and management services to nonprofit organizations and institutions.

Her convocation address is titled, "The Double Dare of Distinction."

"Honors Convocation is that time of the year we salute those students who have distinguished themselves in their academic and student leadership pursuits," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs. "Through their efforts they gain individual recognition but

Spring Dance Concert Has International Flavor

The recreation of an historic modern German dance, the premiere of an earthy work inspired by African textiles and a woman's personal exploration of Irish history give an international sheen to the University's Spring Dance Concert.

This year's performance will showcase Dance Company students in two works by guest choreographers from Baltimore, a solo by a third guest artist who has worked in cinema and stage, as well as Dance Company director Victoria Hutchinson in a unique dance reconstruction being taped later this year by international documentarian Tom Sullivan.

The concert, which is about an hour, is Thursday-Friday, May 9-10, at 8 p.m., with a matinee Saturday, May 11, at 2 p.m., in

Paul the Clown

Wellness Day Is May 6

SSU's sixth annual Wellness Day features music, food, drinks, balloons and other festivities to entertain anyone who wishes to participate in the fun-filled event.

Wellness Day will be held in and around the Guerrieri University Center on Monday, May 6, from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Most of the presentations requiring power will be located inside the building; others will be outside.

Performances this year include Paul the Clown, Gene Mater (a caricaturist returning to Salisbury for the third time), step aerobics, folk dances by physical education majors and a Dance Company performance. Annually shown exhibits will involve many off-campus groups, as well as on-campus clubs and organizations. A chiropractor and a masseuse will demonstrate their services; a Crystal Light representative will be giving out drink samples.

Many health related establishments will have information about their services, disease treatment and prevention, and other related information. University Dining Services will sponsor the sales of savory chicken kabobs and Italian ice. Public Safety, together with SSU Cycling Club/Racing Team, will be giving away a bike (courtesy of Schwinn); other organizations will be haridng out yogurt covered raisins (SSPB), and apples, oranges and lemons with peppermint sticks (Alpha Sigma Tau).

Additionally, various groups will provide free health screenings, such as vision, blood pressure, strength, flexibility and body fat. All this will be spiced by music from WSUR the student-run radio station. Wellness Day will be concluded by the "Poker Run" coordinated by the Campus Recreation Office at 4 p.m. and the co-ed softball championship.

Once again, participants will be able to collect points and win prizes donated by the Book Rack, as well as free t-shirts.

The sponsoring organizations, Office of Student Activities and Organizations, Health Center, Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, Program Board, WSUR and University Dining Services, hope everyone will have a wonderful time.

Thanks also go to the SSU Foundation for donating money for t-shirts.

Social Work Club Picnic

The Social Work Club is sponsoring a picnic at City Park on Friday, May 17, at 3 p.m. for students and faculty. It should be a fun event with plenty of food and games. Everyone is welcome to attend and bring a friend.

Spring Star Gazing

Come and learn about the celestial bodies found in the spring sky at Pemberton Historical Park with Tony Goodyear, teacher at Parkside High School and manager of the Wicomico County Planetarium. Bring a flashlight.

Open to adults and children of all ages (accompanied by adults), the registration fee is $2. For more information or for reservations, call 548-4900.

Centre Marketing Director Addresses IABC May 7

The director of marketing for the Centre at Salisbury will be speaking to the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) on Tuesday, May 7, at 7:30 p.m. in room 116 of Holloway Hall. She will be discussing her job and education, and will present a video on marketing. All IABC members and interested students are welcome to attend.

There will be a brief meeting and nominations for the 1991-92 executive board after the speaker. Elections will be held on Tuesday, May 14 at the IABC picnic. Details about the picnic will follow shortly.

Summer Orientation Workers Are Needed

A limited number of students are being hired to assist with the summer orientation (testing, advising and registration) program for new students and their families. Fall semester sophomores, juniors and seniors will be needed to work June 17-20, June 24-27 and July 9 and 10.

Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular activities, knowledgeable about programs, services/organizations on campus, good role models and articulate about SSU. A brief training program will be required.

Interested students should fill out an application at the Work Experience Office in the Physical Plant Building. Deadline for application is Friday, May 3.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Mozart Salute Features Barlow Taking Final Bow

Conductors Dr. Thomas G. Elliot and Dr. Duane R. Karna, instrumentalists from the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, singers from the Salisbury State University Concert Choir, guest soprano soloist Katherine Turner Barlow, and harpsichordist Dr. Nancy J. Cooper present an evening of choral music by Mozart on Monday, May 13.

The special concert commemorates the 200th anniversary of the composer's death in 1791 and includes selected compositions for choir and chamber orchestra, solo soprano and chamber orchestra. Works featured include "Jubilate Deo," "Laudate Dominum," "Ave Verum Corpus," "Regina Coeli," "Exsultate Jubilate" and the soprano aria from Mozart's opera "Il re Pastore," L'Amero Saro Costante. The latter two works feature Barlow.

Harpsichord continuo performed by Cooper and selected string and instrumental musicians from the Salisbury Symphony accompany both Barlow and the Concert Choir. The evening concert concludes with choral works by American composers Norman Dello Joio, Charles Ives and Vaclav Nelyhbel.

In one of her last Salisbury performances prior to relocating to Florida, Barlow performs Mozart's "Exsultate Jubilate." In 1987, Barlow made her New York City debut with the Jefferson Chamber Orchestra performing the same work.

Held in Holloway Hall Auditorium, the program is at 8 p.m. and is free and open to the public. For more information call the SSU Department of Music at 543-6385.

Wordsworth, Romanticism Subject of Exhibit

An exhibit, "William Wordsworth and the Age of English Romanticism," opens in the Atrium Gallery, next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center, on Thursday, May 2.

In conjunction with the exhibit, open daily from 10 a.m.-4 p.m., a video plays weekdays at 1 p.m. and other times upon request. The exhibit, which ends May 30, is free and open to the public.

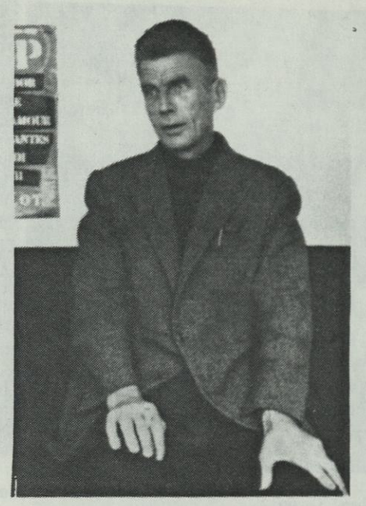
The poster exhibit was developed as a project of the National Humanities Council and has been loaned to the Atrium Gallery by Loyola College. The project was a direct result of an exhibit on English Romanticism that opened in the New York City Library in 1987. Its purpose was to explore and bring to life the major themes of the Romantic period. The exhibit was both a popular and a critical success attracting glowing reviews from the New York Times and others. Attendance records were shattered and an extraordinary amount of activity celebrating the Romantic Era was triggered.

The exhibit combines reproductions of art works and manuscripts with an expository narrative. For more information call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6100.

Capitol Trip

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) is sponsoring a tour of Washington, D.C., on Saturday, June 29. The bus leaves the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center parking lot at 6 a.m. and expected arrival home is 9:30 p.m. Tickets are $35 for SWAC members and $37 for non-members and may be purchased through the Arts Council Office. Ticket deadline is May 28.

For more information call 543-ARTS.



Samuel Beckett at the Royal Court Theatre, London

Beckett Scholar Here May 2

A scholar who has achieved a reputation as one of the world's leading critics of English poetry will lecture on "Death, Technological Society and Samuel Beckett" here on Thursday, May 2.

Professor Christopher Ricks who was awarded the Metcalf Cup and Prize for excellence in teaching this past year at Boston University and who is former chair of the English faculty at Cambridge University, will discuss the Irish playwright and novelist and the concept of death in our contemporary technological society at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The talk will be followed by a panel discussion with three distinguished SSU faculty. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend and participate.

According to Ricks, Beckett (1906-1989, best remembered for his play, "Waiting for Godot") "is the great writer of an age which has created new possibilities and impossibilities in the matter of death. Of an age which has dilated longevity until it is as much a nightmare as a blessing; an age of intense geriatric tending, at one with a persistent medico-professional indignity visited upon the dying; an age of transplants and trunks, coma and consciousness suspended . . . an age which now finds one of its most urgent anxieties—for doctors and nurses, theologians and philosophers, friends and relations, and even for the Pope—to be the definition of death."

Responding to Ricks's lecture will be Dr. Elizabeth J. Barfield, dean of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences; she has gerontological nursing as her major research interest and has clinical and teaching experience in gerontological nursing and long term care. Dr. James Hatley, assistant professor of philosophy, has published both articles and a book on responses to catastrophic death. Dr. William Zak, professor of English, published a book on "King Lear" titled Sovereign Shame and is nearing completion of a book-length study on Sophoclean tragedy.

Ricks credentials are impressive. "By his publishing and lecturing," said Dr. William Horne, SSU English professor, "Professor Ricks has achieved a reputation as one of the world's leading critics of English poetry." An Oxford graduate, Ricks taught at both Oxford and Cambridge universities. He was King Edward VII Professor of English Literature at Cambridge, and is an Honorary Fellow at both Balliol and Worcester colleges, Oxford. He has been a Fellow of the British Academy since 1975.

He is general editor of the Penguin Critical Anthologies and the Penguin English Poets series; for the the last 20 years he has been co-editor of the journal, Essays in Criticism. He has published book-length critical studies of Milton, Keats, Tennyson and Elliot, and has edited numerous anthologies, collections of criticism and editions.

He is currently at work on a book on Samuel Beckett and death to be published by Clarendon Press as well as five other major projects: a critical and historical book on allusion, an edition of Eliot's unpublished poems, co-editing The Faber Book of America, editing anew The Oxford Book of English Verse, and a book on Bob Dylan's ways with words.

Ricks lecture is part of SSU's spring series on the culture of the British Isles. His appearance is made possible with funds from the Maryland Humanities Council, through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. "We are pleased that the Maryland Humanities Council made it possible to invite Ricks to Salisbury," Horne said.

For more information, contact the SSU Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Pianist Mark Clinton To Give Symphony Benefit Concert

Dr. Mark Kennerly Clinton performs a benefit concert on behalf of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra on Sunday, May 12, at 2 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center's Wicomico Room. The special Mother's Day concert includes performances of Beethoven's "Appassionata" and Brahm's "Handel's Variations for Piano."

Clinton began his piano studies at age four and entered the Peabody Conservatory on scholarship at the age of eight. There he studied for eight years with Julian Martin before continuing his studies with the world-renowned pianist Leon Fleisher.

Clinton received both his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music from the Peabody. In May 1989 he received the Doctor of Musical Arts from the Shepherd School of Music at Rice University, where he studied under the direction of master-teacher John Perry.

In 1989, Clinton was appointed distinguished artist-in-residence at SSU. During that year he performed two major recitals, gave two public master classes, was guest artist with the Salisbury Symphony and taught piano.

Presently he is artist-in-residence at the Aspen Institute of Wye Mills, MD, and continues as a member of the piano department at Salisbury State.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $6 for students and are available through all Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council outlets or at the door the afternoon of the performance. For further information, please call 543-6385.

Jamaican steel band, Cassio

Gala in Guerrieri Center May 31

From reggae to standards from rythmn and blues to rock 'n' roll, the University's annual Gala will offer a boatload of musical entertainment.

This year's Gala, the 11th annual, will be held on Friday, May 31, and as always benefits numerous SSU programs. Its theme is "Cruise 'Round the World." The venue, for the first time, will be the Guerrieri University Center, which will be transformed into a luxury cruise ship replete with exotic food stations, games rooms, movies, casinos and an end-of-the night auction.

Throughout the evening there will be an abundant array of music, suitable for dancing or listening.

Those attending the Gala will be greeted outside the Guerrieri Center by the celebratory sounds of the Jamaican steel band, Cassio. After most of the guests have arrived, Cassio will move inside for a 9-11 p.m. performance.

From 8-11 p.m., Special Edition will deliver a versatile set, performing popular songs from the '40s through the '90s. Jane Brody is the vocalist while Jeff Gruber switches from lead guitar to sax, from flute to keyboards.

Big and brassy, the eight-piece Kingpins will perform twice during the evening. From 8-9 p.m. the group will play some slow, easy-listening music as guests enjoy a "standing dinner" and converse. From 10 p.m.-midnight, though, the Kingpins will shift gears and turn on the dancing crowd with a steady stream of top 40 songs.

"In past Galas," said Robert Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation, "we have had some top-flight bands and musical performances. But, there has always been only a single act. This year's diverse musical offerings combined with the new and unique approach we've taken promise to make this Gala our most memorable."

Tickets for the Gala are $150 per couple. They can be purchased by calling the Office of Institutional Advancement at 543-6175.

Building 'Quality' Seminar May 3

The response of business leaders in the United States to the call of increased quality is "team management." For most organizations that presents some major problems because team management is, at best, misunderstood. An understanding is crucial for most employees of organizations because they usually find themselves to be members of at least one, and often more than one, work team.

On Friday, May 3, the Perdue Center for Professional Development will offer a seminar titled "Increasing Productivity Through Teamwork Management." The seminar will be held in the Guerrieri University Center from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Participants will learn about different aspects of team management and will become familiar with the components of a work team. They will discuss how those components can be brought together to increase quality and effectiveness and discover ways to best lead a team.

Dr. Richard B. Palmer, professor of entrepreneurship in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business and director of the Perdue Center housed in the school, leads the discussion. As director of the Eastern Shore Regional Small Business Development Center, he consults daily with companies which have cash flow problems.

Palmer was one of the original consultants with the Managerial Grid in Austin, TX. He has taught teamwork development and conflict management extensively in Japan, Australia, Austria, Germany, South Africa, Canada and the United States. He has served as arbitrator between various management/labor factions in industry and government.

He also is the chairman of Business Venture Analysis, Inc., which assists entity businesses or those who have a business concept in being financially sound.

The registration fee is $95 per person and should be received no later than April 26. Fee includes continental breakfast, refreshment breaks, lunch and course materials. For additional information, call the Perdue Center at 543-6394.

Volunteers Needed For Wheelchair Games

The 10th annual Maryland Wheelchair Games will be held at SSU on May 10, 11 and 12. Volunteer help is needed.

The games start on Friday afternoon and go into the evening. On Saturday the games start at 8 a.m. and run all day. Volunteers can sign up for the event that interests them. It is not necessary to stay the entire time of the event, just the hours one can spare.

Volunteers will be used as timers and to help the officials in judging or setting up events. Knowledge of the event is not necessary.

Sign up in the Campus Recreation Office at Maggs Gym. Individual event times are listed on the sign-up sheet.

Volunteer help is needed to make the games a success, and they are fun for participants and volunteers alike.

For more information call Dave Duitscher at 543-6115.

Senior Ceremony/ Phi Alpha Induction

The Social Work Department will hold its annual Senior Ceremony on Saturday, May 18, at 10 a.m. in Caruthers Auditorium. The induction for Phi Alpha Chi Eta Honor Society will also take place at this time. Friends and and family are welcome to attend. A reception in the Guerrieri University Center will follow at noon.

Creative Selling Seminar May 8

"Creative Selling" is the title of a seminar which will be offered on Wednesday, May 8, in the Guerrieri University Center at SSU. Sponsored by the Perdue Center for Professional Development which is housed in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, the seminar will run from 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

The program will benefit sales professionals; anyone who markets, sells or provides products, services or ideas to end users; owners and managers of small to medium-size businesses; and managers including customer service, sales, marketing and account representatives.

Topics of discussion will include the art of prospecting and preapproaching, approaching prospective customers, presenting the sales message, overcoming selling presentation objections, closing the sale and the follow-up—the key to attaining the marketing concept.

Leading this seminar are Dr. H. Lee Meadow, chair of the Department of Management and Marketing and professor of marketing in the Perdue School, and Dr. Mehmet "Memo" Diriker, assistant professor of marketing at SSU and director of the European American Business (Research and Development) Institute.

Meadow has extensive professional consulting, marketing and selling experience in the retailing, communication and insurance industries, as well as in municipal, state and federal governments. He has over 15 years of experience designing, developing and implementing a wide array of executive development programs.

Diriker served as an international marketing, business-to- business selling and sales management consultant to the Office of the Prime Minister of Turkey, the Boston Export Strategy Team, Holiday Inn, U.S. Steel, Federal Express, United Way of Boston and Salisbury and the Central Salisbury Revitalization Association.

The registration fee is $95 per person. The deadline for full registration is April 30. Fee includes continental breakfast, refreshment breaks, lunch and course materials. For further information about the seminar, contact the Perdue Center at 543-6394.

Frampton, Ralston Present Paper

Edward J. Frampton, lecturer of economics in the Perdue School of Business, presented a paper entitled "Modeling the Factors That Influence the Perceived Quality of Selected Journals in Business and Economics" at the 30th Annual Meetings of the Southern Regional Science Association recently held in Miami, FL.

The paper was co-authored by Dr. Scott Ralston, assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School. Their study used a linear model to explain quality rankings of academic journals as a function of easily quantifiable, objective variables. Four of the variables, the number of citations to a journal, its type of reader, the institutional affiliation of the editor, and the journal's acceptance rate, were found to be statistically significant.

Graham Haynes

British Health Care Topic of May 6 Lecture

A lecture by Graham Haynes, head of the Department of Advanced Nursing Studies of the Nightingale School of Nursing, St. Thomas' Hospital in London, highlights National Nurses Week, May 6-12, at Salisbury State. Haynes will speak on "The British National Health Care System" on Monday, May 6, at 7:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Science Hall, room 149. His visit is sponsored by the British Council which funded his travel and expenses. This is the sixth and final lecture in the SSU British Semester Series.

Haynes has had a distinguished nursing career in Britain, spanning 20 years of specialization in critical care nursing, management and education. He has been at St. Thomas' Hospital since 1985. SSU nursing students who went to London in January met with Haynes when they visited the Nightingale School and Florence Nightingale Museum at St. Thomas.

The students are enthusiastic about his visit to the U.S. "I thought he was so dynamic—the most knowledgeable speaker that I have ever heard explain the system, either here or in Britain," said Fay Rogner, senior nursing student.

According to Dr. Edna Quinn of SSU's Nursing Department Haynes's lecture is timely. The spiraling cost of health care has led many to predict that the U.S. will adopt a national health care system in the 1990s. Some experts are calling for the rationing of medical care.

"We spend more on health care than any other developed country, although almost all except the U.S. and South Africa have national health programs that cover virtually all their citizens," said Quinn. "Haynes's presentation will provide a forum where the pros and cons of a national health service can be aired."

Following the lecture the SSU Student Nurses' Association (SNA) will host a reception celebrating National Nurses Week. Students, nurses and other health care providers will have the opportunity to meet Haynes. Kim Carter, president of the SNA, encourages all nursing students and others interested in health care policy to attend. The program is free and open to the public.

On Wednesday, May 8, Haynes will present a workshop for SSU faculty and staff involved in recruiting and retaining minority students in nursing. The program is funded by the MENTOR Grant, a federally-funded project designed to help disadvantaged students succeed in nursing at SSU. Haynes will be discussing how disadvantaged students gain equal opportunities and access to nursing education in Britain. Haynes will be available throughout the week to meet with classes at SSU and visit health care facilities in the area. For further information, contact Quinn at 543-6420.

Interactive Multimedia Teleconference Is Set

"Interactive Multimedia: Teaching in the 21st Century" is the title of a satellite teleconference in which Salisbury State will participate on Wednesday, May 8, from 1-3 p.m.

The teleconference will originate at George Washington University. The local conference room will be Nanticoke C in Guerrieri University Center. All interested persons are encouraged to attend. Participants will be able to ask questions and share their experiences relevant to the subject.

The program's objectives include demonstrations of interactive multimedia in higher education and discussion of issues concerning their effectiveness and practicability. Panelists include Jacqueline Hess, director, National Demonstration Lab for Interactive Educational Technologies, Smithsonian Institute; William Fletcher, director, Annapolis Interactive Video Project; and other instructional technology specialists.

The University's participation in the teleconference is funded by the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts. Please call 543-6229 for additional information.

Education Scholarship

The Worcester County Teachers Association is providing a $1,000 scholarship for a student majoring in education at Salisbury State.

Interested applicants must meet the following criteria: be a junior enrolled in education; be a graduate of a Worcester County public school; have a cumulative GPA of 2.5 or better; have a desire to student teach in Worcester County; and provide evidence of involvement in extracurricular activities. Applicants must forward that information, attach a current transcript and submit an essay answering the question, "Why have you chosen teaching as a profession?"

Finalists will be interviewed by the Education Awards Scholarship Committee. Applications should be forwarded to Dr. Carolyn Bowden, Education Department. Deadline for applications is May 15.

Dance Company Children's Matinee May 9

The University Dance Company is offering a matinee program for area elementary and intermediate school students on Thursday, May 9, from 1-1:40 p.m., in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The concert is offered free-of-charge as an educational and cultural service to the community. In lieu of an admission students may bring a can of food to donate to the Maryland Food Bank.

A special feature is "Bay Watch!," a colorful multi-media event entirely created by the children of the Fruitland Intermediate School fourth grade class. Funded by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, the work explores the life and ecology of the Chesapeake Bay through creative movement and original poetry. The SSU Dance Company will also perform a work based on the rhythms and designs of Kente cloth, an African textile from Ghana.

"We are really excited to have the Fruitland fourth grade class as our guest performers. They might inspire other young students to become interested in creative movement," said Victoria Hutchinson, Dance Company director.

With seating capacity limited to 750, school reservations are required and will be treated on a first come, first serve policy.

For reservation forms or further information call 543-6353.

Eastern Shore Students Needed

Shore Future is an intervention program developed by the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium and funded by the Maryland Higher Education Commission. Its primary goal is to enhance the likelihood that students targeted within the Shore Future initiative will complete their public school experience and will successfully pursue post-secondary education. Major strategies focus on direct student and parent support activities, specialized staff training, and cooperative linkages between the public schools, postsecondary educational institutions, and Private Industry Councils.

Direct student support activities are designed to improve middle school students' self-esteem, academic performance, and outlook regarding the decision to pursue a college education. One strategy for achieving this objective is to provide tutoring and/or mentoring support to students.

If you are considering a career in education, or if you would just like to help students improve their chances to pursue a college education as you are now doing, contact Dr. Carol Williamson, Dean of Students, at 548-6080.

Small Selected for American Dance Festival Institute

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history, has been selected to participate in the five-week American Dance Festival's Summer Humanities Institute on the campus of Duke University in Durham, NC.

The American Dance Festival is one of America's leading arts and cultural institutions designed for college and university teachers. The title for the 1991 Institute is "Interpreting the African-American Experience Through the Performing Arts: 1890-1900."

The Institute's main goal is to illuminate the African-American experience, from 1890 to the present, through a humanities based examination of African-American contributions to music, theater and dance. The Institute aims at enriching the teaching of the humanities by exploring the interaction of the performing arts with literary, historical and philosophical inquiries.

It is expected that the Institute's work will assist the teaching of the humanities within the domain of African-American studies for those who participate and for those whom they may influence.

The Institute is supported by a major grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Gorrow NIRSA State Director

Wayne Gorrow, assistant director of campus recreation, was appointed state director for Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia at the annual conference of the National Intramural Recreational Sports Association held recently in Cincinnati, OH.

NIRSA is a nonprofit professional organization dedicated to the establishment and development of quality recreational sports programs and services. Founded in 1950, the association's membership is largely composed of recreational sports professionals from colleges and universities throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Working to enhance the quality of services which they provide, the people associated with NIRSA contribute to the development of the field as well as the development of the profession.

South African Jennifer Davis Here May 3

Jennifer Davis, an economist who left her native South Africa under threat of "banning" (a form of self-imprisonment) due to her work against the system of white minority rule, lectures on "Challenge to Apartheid" on Friday, May 3, at Salisbury State.

The 8 p.m. lecture, sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board and the Multicultural and Variety Showcase committees, is in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. It is free and open to the public.

An expert on political and economic developments in southern Africa, U. S. policy and investment, Davis has worked to interpret the liberation struggle to the American people and expose what she sees as the shortcomings of United States policy.

In 1969 she was selected as the first research director of the American committee on Africa and The Africa Fund, creating the extensive research database and publications program which have earned ACOA/AF a reputation for reliable information on critical issues.

In 1981 Davis was appointed chief executive of ACOA/AF.

Davis has travelled widely in the frontline states of southern Africa including Angola, Mozambique, Zimbabwe and Tanzania. She has provided expert testimony before committees of Congress, state and municipal legislatures, and the United Nations. She has presented extensive research documents for international forums in Europe, Africa and Latin America.

Davis has authored articles in a wide range of publications, from editorial columns in The Washington Post and USA Today, to magazine articles in The Progressive and Christianity and Crisis to specialized studies in Law and Policy in International Business and Africa Today.

She has appeared on public television's The Advocates and The McNeill-Lehrer Report, and has given frequent local television and radio interviews. She has lectured at a wide range of colleges and universities from Yale, the University of Michigan and UCLA, to the University of Maine, Colgate University and the University of Texas at Austin.

For more information on her lecture call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Governor Schaefer Announces Conference On Small Businesses

Maryland's entrepreneurial spirit will be in the spotlight May 6 when the first Governor's Conference on Small and Growing Businesses is held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Omni International Hotel in Baltimore. Governor Schaefer said the conference will kick off the state's observance of National Small Business Week, scheduled by President George Bush May 6 through 11.

"Small businesses are the wheels that keep the nation's economy rolling, and Maryland has an obligation to help them succeed," said Governor William Donald Schaefer. "This conference will address issues that concern small business owners as well as those people who are thinking of going into business for themselves."

The conference will be sponsored by the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development's (DEED) Small Business Development Center (SBDC) Network, in partnership with AT&T and with the support of Price Waterhouse and the Maryland Chamber of Commerce.

The conference will offer a day of educational sessions, exhibits, and a luncheon featuring Georgette Mosbacher as the keynote speaker. Mosbacher, a successful entrepreneur who is also the wife of U.S. Secretary of Commerce Robert S. Mosbacher, Sr., has built a skin care company called La Prairie, Inc. into an internationally successful business.

"Financing Your Small and Growing Business" is the theme of the conference's general session. Julius Westheimer of "Wall Street Week" will serve as moderator.

Following the 8:30-10:30 a.m. welcome and general session, conference attendees may select two of the four seminars. Robert Michel of the Government Procurement Assistance Center will moderate a panel on "Doing Business with the Government." William J. Bridges, AT&T vice president for AT&T Capital Corporation, will talk on "Dollars and Sense," suggesting ways in which business owners can maximize their working capital and equipment resources.

Dale Carnegie Systems representative Robert L. Cook will focus on effective sales techniques during a seminar entitled "Selling in the '90s." Tom Hinton, president of the Customer Relations Institute in San Diego, will conduct a seminar called "How to Compete in the New Service Economy." Hinton, an internationally known motivational speaker, has addressed more than 200 corporate and association meetings in the United States, Canada, and Japan.

The conference fee, including lunch, is $95 per person. Tickets for the luncheon only are $45 per person, with tables of ten available for $400. To register by phone, those using VISA and MasterCard may call 1-800-USE-SBDC. Checks or money orders may be sent c/o Small Business Conference to 1101 N. Calvert St., Suite 1400, Baltimore, MD 21202.

May 1991 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 25, in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for the processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The commencement speaker will be The Honorable Shirley B. Jones, former U. S. District Court judge.

3. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning April 29. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours, Monday-Thursday, are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.] The bookstore will be open on Friday, May 24, from 8:30 a.m.-3 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 3 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., The Fulton School of Liberal Arts) and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard and then be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card is then given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage and, at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Dr. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement Exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, May 20. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony gradduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing will hold a pinning ceremony on Friday, May 24, at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

12. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 1:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center on Saturday, May 25. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

13. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through K, Jeffrey King, will report to Drs. Maurice Bozman and Edward Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with K, Maureen Koppenhafer, through the letter Z will report to Drs. Jack Wulff and Geraldine Rossi and will line up alphabetically along the windows, facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

14. Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through David Lybarger, will report to Drs. Gerald St. Martin and Arthur Delpaz at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with M, Daniel Madigan, through the letter Z, will also go the the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Arlene White and Harry Basehart. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

15. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up according to Dr. White's direction and will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

16. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Mary Ellen Elwell and Jerome Miller. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

17. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A. M.Ed., M.S. and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the Park) and report to the faculty marshal in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. John Lewis. You will line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle adjacent to your section.

M.Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Robert Berry and line up at his direction. You will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

18. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional (the Civic Center is air conditioned).
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the president.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South, specialists in graduation and event photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

19. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long, hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Guest Artist Jean Denny

Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Guest artist Jean Denny, for two years international champion in Irish step-dancing, will perform "Aisling" (the vision), a journey into a woman's Irish past. Accompanied by the traditional lilt of harp and tin whistle, Denny's vision moves from Druid ritual to the claustrophobic room of an Irish-American princess. Denny was choreographer for the recent Paramount release, "He Said, She Said," filmed in Baltimore. She also has performed at the Kennedy Center, the National Theatre, the Philadelphia Folk Festival and the Smithsonian Institution, among others.

"Hexentanz" (Witch Dance) was created in 1926 by Mary Wigman, founder of German modern dance. "The work was lost because methods for preserving the dance were not available," said Hutchinson. Then in the 1970s dance historians began investigating remaining clues. "We could finally observe the power and genius of these lost dance relics," Hutchinson continued. Using fragments of the dance found on a 1929 sound film, and a 1933 German text, "Das Mary Wigman Werk," Hutchinson has reconstructed this seminal European dance, which she also performs. Wearing a mask and costume created by Jim Henson Associates ("I was first fitted for it in the Muppet Room (in New York)," she said, Hutchinson's recreation is the subject of a documentary by Sullivan, who has filmed international nature programming for PBS and is the official videographer for the Baltimore Orioles.

Twelve company members perform "Patterns," with music by Zwinule, a musician with the group Weather Report. Hutchinson heard this selection in February and was immediately struck by its strength and earthiness. The abstract work is inspired by African art, particularly its textiles, known for their contrasting patterns.

Two guest choreographers bring their own individual approaches to SSU's student dancers. Linda Lloyd, assistant director for Multi-Dimensional Dance Co. and formerly with Naked Feet, has performed at the famed Spoletto Festival. She has created a modern jazz-dance style quartet, "Regrets," to music by the British group, Eurythmics.

Peter Madden, artistic director of Dance Process, also has seen his work featured at Spoletto. He brings a variety of disciplines to dance: directing programs for the Laban Institute for Movement Studies in New York, and serving as dance movement therapist who teaches at Goucher College, as well as choreographing. Using music by the European composer Vangelis, who wrote the soundtrack for "Chariots of Fire," Madden has created a humorous work called "Gallia," full of positionings and falls.

Computer Monitor Employment

The Department of Computer Services is accepting applications for the position of student monitor for the fall semester. Any students who has successfully completed either COSC 110 and the corresponding microcomputer lab course (COSC 112, ISMN 111, BUAD 111) and/or COSC 120 may apply. Also, any student who is proficient in Apple WordPerfect 1.1 is encouraged to apply.

The application procedure is as follows:

- All students must complete a job application with Work Experience and receive a referral card.
- All students must complete the Department of Computer Services Student Monitor Job Application. These applications can be obtained at the student monitor's desk in the Main Computer Center, Caruthers Hall, room 125.
- Students should complete the application and attach the Work Experience referral card to the application. All applications must be returned to the Department of Computer Services receptionist to be dated.
- Students will be contacted by the academic programmer for interviews. Students will not be considered if they have not completed the application, do not have a referral card or the application is not dated.

PROUD Meeting

A "Stress and Coping" presentation for Progressively Reaching Out toward Understanding Disabilities (PROUD) members is scheduled for Wednesday, May 8, at 5 p.m.

Patty Selig of the Center for Personal and Professional Development will be the guest speaker. In addition to techniques for alleviating stress, Selig will cover communication skills and assertiveness issues.

A meeting for PROUD members follows the presentation.

PROUD members and friends of the organization are encouraged to attend. For more information contact John Fields at 543-6080 or Terry Clay at 543-6070.

Employees Fitness Walk

Salisbury State, in conjunction with Club Maryland, will host an Employee Health and Fitness Walk on Wednesday, May 15, from 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Faculty and staff are encouraged to take a few minutes out of their lunch hour and complete the 1 1/2-mile trek around campus. Plans calls for the walk to begin and end on College Avenue in the vicinity of the entrance to the Perdue School of Business.

A map of the route will be provided. Participants will receive a "participation ribbon" and enjoy a refreshing beverage after completing the walk. The walk is being held as part of the national celebration of Employee Health and Fitness Day. Plan now to participate.

State Employees Recognition Week

The state of Maryland is celebrating Maryland State Employees Recognition Week May 6-10. On Tuesday, May 7, the celebration comes to the Eastern Shore with Salisbury State as the host. The site is the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center from 11:30 a.m.-2 p.m.

Representatives from the Health Department and the various health plans will be on hand to conduct finger stick cholesterol tests, blood pressure screenings and health risk appraisals, as well as answer questions and distribute a variety of literature.

Free heathly snacks and beverages will be available and drawings will be held for exercise passes, gift certificates, dinners and a complete medical guide among others.

Planned events included an aerobics fitness demonstration at noon, followed by a song and dance contest beginning at approximately 12:30 p.m. Interested contestants are urged to contact the Personnel Office at 543-6035 for further information.

Also planned is a salute to the co-workers who were called to military duty during the Persian Gulf crisis. The celebration's focus on health and wellness is part of an expanded Club Maryland program for 1991.

Take a moment to join Club Maryland and register for SSU's Employee Fitness Walk on Wednesday, May 15.

Med Tech Deadlines

Medical technology majors: Please be aware that the deadline for application to the junior year professional component is May 15. For those sophomores who have not already done so during program planning, please obtain an application from your advisor. Likewise, any student who is interested in the medical technology major is encouraged to call the Medical Technology Department for information and counseling.

There is a national shortage of laboratory professionals which makes the career and the employment possibilities very appealing. Please call 543-6365 for more information.

Dr. Elizabeth Curtin and Dr. Wavie Gibson, Jr., standing, co-directors of the University Writing Project's Summer Institute, help this year's teacher-consultants prepare for the 1991 Institute which will run June 24-July 25. This year's teacher-consultants will help other teachers learn new and effective ways to teach writing. Seated from left to right are Elizabeth Caswell, a teacher at the Salisbury School; Phyllis Holmes, an SSU graduate student; Jerry DiCairano, a teaching assistant in the Department of English; and Ruth Ann Phillips, director of writing for the Laurel school district.

Maryland Writing Project Starts Second Summer

Teachers teaching teachers about writing is the focus of the Maryland Writing Project's 1991 Summer Institute.

The Institute, the second to be held at the University, will run from June 24-July 25, Monday-Thursday, from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. "If last summer's Institute for the Maryland Writing Project was an indication of what future Institutes will be like, the upcoming one will be an invaluable educational experience for the participants," said Dr. Wavie Gibson, assistant professor in the English Department and co-director of the Institute.

The Institute attracts educators from all levels, kindergarten through university, and provides a range of activities to help teachers learn new and effective ways to teach writing. Summer Fellows, participants in the program, are given the opportunity to discuss, write and deliver presentations involving the teaching of writing skills. Upon completion of the program, participants will also receive six hours of graduate credit which can be applied to a graduate degree program at Salisbury State.

According to Gibson, each summer fellow will bring different problems, insights and talents to the program. The participants will have numerous opportunities to pool their resources and improve not only their own writing, but also the writing abilities of their students.

"I recommend the Maryland Writing Project as a stimulating, affirming experience for the experienced teacher," said Mara Radis, a writing facilitator and teacher at Easton High School.

Radis, who participated in last year's Institute, says she appreciated "the small group cooperative learning opportunities" because they allowed her to ask questions and discuss innovative teaching ideas with other educators.

One of the goals of the program, according to Dr. Elizabeth Curtin, the other co-director of the Institute and an assistant professor of English, is to build a network of people who are interested in writing. "This program is a unique opportunity to get together with people in all levels of education and share ideas and experiences about teaching writing. We want to keep expanding the network and continue attracting exceptional educators," she added.

Ruth Ann Phillips, a writing facilitator for the Laurel (DE) School District, said that after 20 years of teaching on the high school level, the Maryland Writing Project gave her a new burst of enthusiasm.

"I met talented teachers from other states, learned many practical classroom strategies and became involved with a network of professionals interested in improving writing instruction at all grade levels," Phillips said. "I heartily recommend the Maryland Writing Project to all those teachers who would like to return to the classroom in September with new ideas and renewed confidence in helping to develop better writing abilities in students of all ages."

To apply, applicants should submit a resume, a letter of recommendation from a colleague in the same institution as the applicant, a letter of recommendation from a supervising administrator and a letter of application explaining the reason for applying to the Maryland Writing Project, Holloway Hall, Room 333A, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Applications will be accepted through the middle of May. Tuition is $492 plus fees. Dormitory rooms are available at an additional charge.

For more information contact Curtin at 548-5594 or Gibson at 543-6443.

Women's Issues Discussed on May 14

The Council on Women's Issues will hold its spring meeting on Tuesday, May 14, at 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 102. Come hear updates on the daycare project, the University System Women's Forum, campus-wide focus groups and meeting the needs of students concerned about women's issues.

For further information, call Lisa Seldomridge at 543-6413.

Women's Soccer Interest Meeting

The SSU Women's Soccer Club will hold an interest meeting for the 1991 season on Thursday, May 9, at 7 p.m. in Maggs Gym, room 205.

For more information or if you are unable to attend please contact Wayne Gorrow at the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs or call 543-6349.

Environmental Trust To Hold Meeting

The Wicomico Environmental Trust will hold its next meeting on Sunday, May 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Highlighting the meeting, guest speaker Rick Johnstone from Delmarva Power & Light will address the question "Can a Power Company Be Environmentally-Friendly?"

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MAY 9, 1991 VOL. XII NO. 29

Judge Shirley Jones Commencement Speaker

Seven hundred bachelor's degree and 70 master's degree candidates will be recognized for their academic achievements at the University's 66th year graduation ceremonies Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m., in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

The class of 1991 includes 389 receiving the Bachelor of Science, 272 receiving the Bachelor of Arts, 36 receiving the Bachelor of Arts in Social Work and three receiving the Bachelor of Fine Arts. The graduate degrees are 34 Master of Education, 12 Master of Arts, 21 Master of Business Administration and three Master of Science.

On Friday, May 24, at 7 p.m., a pinning ceremony will honor the University's nursing graduates in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Judge Shirley Brannock Jones, who opened many doors for women in the legal profession, will deliver the Commencement address.

Born and raised in Cambridge, MD, Jones' interest in law began when she accepted a job running errands for a local law firm after school and on weekends. In 1942, after graduating from Cambridge High School, Jones moved to Baltimore and enrolled in the University of Baltimore School of Law.

After graduating with the highest scholastic average in her class and receiving a Juris Doctor, Jones became an attorney with the Maryland Department of Employment Security. She worked in this capacity until 1952 when she was appointed to the position of assistant city solicitor for Baltimore County.

Judge Shirley Brannock Jones

Then, in 1958, Jones changed her vocational direction when she became the first woman to ever be appointed a Maryland assistant attorney general. Sitting behind the bench prepared Jones for her next appointment, made by former Governor Millard Tawes in 1959, as judge of the Orphans' Court of Baltimore City.

In addition to her career advancements, Jones also went on to receive a Doctor of Laws from the University of Baltimore and a Doctor of Laws from Loyola College.

In 1961 Jones again broke new ground for women when she accepted Governor Tawes' appointment and became the first woman to become judge of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City. Later she ran for this position winning two terms, each for 15 years.

Jones' career continued to advance, in October 1979, when she became the first woman in Maryland to fill the seat of judge of the U.S. District Court for the Maryland district. While in this office, Jones also became the first woman to sit on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit. This court is just below the U.S. Supreme Court.

Although retired, Jones is still frequently asked to fill in for judges during vacancies, vacations, conflicts of interest and special reasons. During the Commencement ceremony, Jones will receive an honorary Doctor of Laws from SSU.

O.C. Conference on Women Writers

Four of this country's leading women of color writers, each representing a different culture, highlight the first national program of its kind, titled "Other Voices": American Women Writers of Color, on Tuesday through Thursday, May 28-30, at the Carousel Hotel in Ocean City, MD.

Two evening talks on Tuesday and Wednesday by the writers who represent African-American, Asisan-American, Native American and Latino cultures begin at 7 p.m. Followed by audience discussions, the entire evening programs are expected to conclude by 9 p.m. The public is cordially invited; admission is free.

During the three days some 70 scholars from leading universities across the nation will present papers at a morning and afternoon conference discussing women writers of color. Universities represented include Harvard, Vassar, Princeton, Cornell, Michigan and Duke.

"This is the first national program of its kind," said, Dr. Connie White, chair of the English Department at Salisbury State University which is sponsoring the event. "The teaching of cultural diversity and it effect on the college curriculum is a raging issue on many campuses today; even political writers are entering the fray. We thought it appropriate to hear from those who are often ignored in the shouting—women writers of color."

Funded by the Maryland Humanities Council, the conference grew out of work White and her colleague, Dr. Thomas Erskine, are doing for Rutgers University Press. While editing a series of books of short stories by American women writers, "We discovered that many outstanding stories by women of color had simply not received much critical attention," Erskine said. "We wanted to do something to stimulate some critical commentary and to make people, at least on the Eastern Shore, aware of different literary voices in our culture.

"The response from the academic community has been overwhelming," he added.

On May 28 the speakers will be novelist Kristin Hunter, who teaches at the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Amy Ling, who is visiting professor at Trinity College in Connecticut.

Hunter's novels include "God Bless the Child," "The Landlord," and "The Soul Brothers and Sister Low." She has received several honors, among them the National Council on Interracial Books for Children Award and the Mass Media Brotherhood Award from the National Conference of Christians and Jews. She also has written an impressive number of children's books, an award-winning television script and a collection of short stories.

Ling is the author of two books: "Between Worlds" (1990) and "Chinamerican Reflections" (1984). She has co-edited three books, published approximately 20 articles, given some 50 papers and in 1989 chaired the Modern Language Associations Division on Women's Studies in Languages and Literature. She has

Wind Sinfonia To Give Maryland Premiere

The Salisbury State University Wind Sinfonia, under the direction of conductor Dr. Richard L. Johnson presents its annual spring performance in Holloway Hall Auditorium on Thursday, May 16, at 8 p.m.

The featured soloist for the performance is Robert Drudge, principal trombonist with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra and bass trombonist for the SSU Wind Sinfonia. Drudge will perform the "Concerto for Trombone and Military Band (1876-77)" by the Romantic period Russian composer Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakov. Drudge has performed with a wide array of college, community and professional ensembles including various regional jazz bands and the Eastern Shore Brass Quintet.

While completing his undergraduate degree in psychology at UCLA, Drudge studied trombone with Paul Tanner and George Roberts. He served as principal trombonist with the UCLA Symphony Orchestra and Wind Ensemble. While completing graduate work at Howard University in social work, Drudge performed with the University Jazz Band. In addition, he has studied trombone with Douglas Yeo, bass trombonist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The spring performance includes two other featured performances. The "Moorside Suite (1928)" by Gustav Holst and edited by Dr. Jon C. Mitchell receives its Maryland premiere. The suite, originally composed for brass band, was intended by Holst to comprise the third suite of his famed pieces for military band, but was never completed. This 1983 edition, to be performed by the Wind Sinfonia, was

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Newsletters Conclude May 16

The final newsletter for the spring semester will be published Thursday, May 16. The deadline for submission is Friday, May 10, at 4 p.m.

The Public Relations/Publications staff wishes to thank all who have been so cooperative this year in helping our office reach the campus and other publics through the ewsletter.

Best wishes for a delightful summer!

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Volunteers Needed For Wheelchair Games

The 10th annual Maryland Wheelchair Games will be held at SSU on May 10, 11 and 12. Volunteer help is needed.

The games start on Friday afternoon and go into the evening. On Saturday the games start at 8 a.m. and run all day. Volunteers can sign up for the event that interests them. It is not necessary to stay the entire time of the event, just the hours one can spare.

Volunteers will be used as timers and to help the officials in judging or setting up events. Knowledge of the event is not necessary.

Sign up in the Campus Recreation Office at Maggs Gym. Individual event times are listed on the sign-up sheet.

Volunteer help is needed to make the games a success, and they are fun for participants and volunteers alike.

For more information call Dave Duitscher at 543-6115.

Senior Ceremony/ Phi Alpha Induction

The Social Work Department will hold its annual Senior Ceremony on Saturday, May 18, at 10 a.m. in Caruthers Auditorium. The induction for Phi Alpha Chi Eta Honor Society will also take place at this time. Friends and and family are welcome to attend. A reception in the Guerrieri University Center will follow at noon.

Wanted: Reporters, Editors for Flyer

The Flyer, SSU's student newspaper, is looking for students wishing to fill the positions of sports editor and photography editor for the 1991-92 school year. Also needed are proofreaders, typesetters, distribution managers, photographers and staff writers in the areas of news, entertainment and sports. All are paid positions.

If interested, stop by the Flyer Office (second floor of Guerrieri University Center) or call Allison Maynard or Mitch Rosenwald at 543-6191 for more information.

Office Assistant

The Book Rack at Salisbury State has an immediate opening for a full-time (12 month) office assistant. Good communication skills and experience in dealing with customers and vendors required. Knowledge of word processing systems, typing skills and previous office experience preferred. Salary: $6.62 per hour. This is a contractual position with no paid benefits. Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University until May 15, 1991.

Salisbury State University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. Qualified women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Nursing Faculty

Several part-time temporary positions are available August 15 for the adademic year 1991-92. SSU has NLN accredited baccalaureate and master's degree programs. A master's degree in nursing is required to teach. Clinical teaching experience in maternal/child nursing is desirable. Rank and salary commensurate with qualifications and experience. Send letter of application and vitae by June 1, to Dr. Karen Badros, Chair, Department of Nursing, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Athletic Equipment Sale

There will be a sale of used equipment, uniforms and assorted other athletic gear on Wednesday, May 22, from 1-3 p.m. in Maggs Gymnasium.

Education Scholarship

The Worcester County Teachers Association is providing a $1,000 scholarship for a student majoring in education at Salisbury State.

Interested applicants must meet the following criteria: be a junior enrolled in education; be a graduate of a Worcester County public school; have a cumulative GPA of 2.5 or better; have a desire to student teach in Worcester County; and provide evidence of involvement in extracurricular activities. Applicants must forward that information, attach a current transcript and submit an essay answering the question, "Why have you chosen teaching as a profession?"

Finalists will be interviewed by the Education Awards Scholarship Committee. Applications should be forwarded to Dr. Carolyn Bowden, Education Department. Deadline for applications is May 15.

Eastern Shore Students Needed

Shore Future is an intervention program developed by the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium and funded by the Maryland Higher Education Commission. Its primary goal is to enhance the likelihood that students targeted within the Shore Future initiative will complete their public school experience and will successfully pursue postsecondary education. Major strategies focus on direct student and parent support activities, specialized staff training, and cooperative linkages between the public schools, postsecondary educational institutions, and Private Industry Councils.

Direct student support activities are designed to improve middle school students' self-esteem, academic performance, and outlook regarding the decision to pursue a college education. One strategy for achieving this objective is to provide tutoring and/or mentoring support to students.

If you are considering a career in education, or if you would just like to help students improve their chances to pursue a college education as you are now doing, contact Dr. Carol Williamson, Dean of Students, at 548-6080.

Employees Fitness Walk

Salisbury State, in conjunction with Club Maryland, will host an Employee Health and Fitness Walk on Wednesday, May 15, from 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Faculty and staff are encouraged to take a few minutes out of their lunch hour and complete the 1 1/2-mile trek around campus. Plans calls for the walk to begin and end on College Avenue in the vicinity of the entrance to the Perdue School of Business.

A map of the route will be provided. Participants will receive a "participation ribbon" and enjoy a refreshing beverage after completing the walk. The walk is being held as part of the national celebration of Employee Health and Fitness Day. Plan now to participate.

Med Tech Deadlines

Medical technology majors: Please be aware that the deadline for application to the junior year professional component is May 15. For those sophomores who have not already done so during program planning, please obtain an application from your advisor. Likewise, any student who is interested in the medical technology major is encouraged to call the Medical Technology Department for information and counseling.

There is a national shortage of laboratory professionals which makes the career and the employment possibilities very appealing. Please call 543-6365 for more information.

Pianist Mark Clinton To Give Symphony Benefit Concert

Dr. Mark Kennerly Clinton performs a benefit concert on behalf of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra on Sunday, May 12, at 2 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center's Wicomico Room. The special Mother's Day concert includes performances of Beethoven's "Appassionata" and Brahm's "Handel's Variations for Piano."

Presently he is artist-in-residence at the Aspen Institute of Wye Mills, MD, and continues as a member of the piano department at Salisbury State.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $6 for students and are available through all Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council outlets or at the door the afternoon of the performance. For further information, please call 543-6385.

A Night at the (Comic) Opera

A light-hearted hour of music and theatre titled "A Night at the (Comic) Opera" concludes the University's Spring Studio Series.

The last theatre production until the fall, the one-hour program consists of a short, farcical Italian opera, "The Maid as Mistress," sung in English, along with excerpts of popular arias including Mozart's famous Queen of the Night from "The Magic Flute" and the farewell from Gian Carlo Menotti's "The Telephone."

Performances are Friday-Saturday, May 10-11, at 8 p.m., with a matinee Sunday, May 12, at 2 p.m., in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Tickets are $2 general admission; $1 for senior citizens and teens. Group rates are available.

Four SSU alumni and students are responsible for this musical studio, produced by University Theatre in cooperation with the Department of Music. Guest artist Janice Price-Davis, soprano, is soloist and plays the title role in the one-act opera by Giovanni Battista Pergolesi. G. Scot Hawkins is both piano accompanist and soloist. Sean Thomas, baritone, plays opposite Price as Dr. Pandolfo and Kenny Johnson is the mute servant, Scapin.

"The Maid as Mistress" is an "opera buffa" or very farcial, said T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of the production. Written in 1733, it served as a model for all succeeding Italian composers who chose to use this comic operatic form, Pfeiffer said. Considered Pergolesi's masterwork, it was extremely popular in the 18th century because of its youthfulness and energy. Pergolesi wrote it at age 23, only three years before his death in 1736.

The story is about a housekeeper who falls in love with her master. How she entices him to declare his love for her after he meets her "suitor," an army captain, has a moral underpining: the need to share true feelings.

Price-Davis, a graduate student in education who has appeared as a soloist with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra and Salisbury Choral Society, is principal guest artist. She has a degree in opera performance from the University of West Virginia, and at SSU won the Department of Music's Outstanding Student Award as well as the Hess Award. A student of Norma Heyde, Price-Davis teaches music in Wicomico County.

Hawkins, a senior English major, is accompanist and piano soloist. He was musical director for SSU Theatre's recent "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," played keyboard for "Anything Goes" as well as the 1990 SSU Gala, is an accompanist for the University's Concert Choir, performed on "Radio Free Delmarva," and in recital at the Guerrieri University Center. He has been a piano student of Linda Cockey's for four years. Also a writer, Hawkins won the Hess Award in creative writing both in 1989 and 1990.

Thomas, who teaches at Broadwater Academy in Virginia, is an alumnus who most recently played the title role in "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." He has been active with the Salisbury Community Players, the Shenandoah Music Theatre as well as the Trawler Dinner Theatre where he appeared in "Camelot," "Man of La Mancha," "Snoopy," "Oliver" and "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Johnson, a 1985 graduate and third-grade teacher in Delmar, has been active with the Salisbury Community Players and SSU children's theatre, both on stage and off as a set and lighting designer.

The Studio Series, inaugurated this semester, is a program of shorter works with the emphasis on performance. For more information or reservations for "A Night at the (Comic) Opera," call 543-6228 or 543-6229.

Whack & Hack at Nassawango June 3

The seventh annual Whack & Hack Open, a year-end day of fun and fellowship for faculty, staff, alumni and guests, will be held on Monday, June 3, at Nassawango Country Club near Snow Hill.

Duffers and netters of all levels of abililty are encouraged to participate.

WHO chair this year is Greg Cashman. Jack Spence is the golf tournament director, while Tom Erskine and Andy Dane are co-directors of the tennis competition.

For the first time in WHO history, the golf tournament will have three flights, or divisions for those more comfortable with earth-bound terminology. Flight 1, or the Ringer Division, will be for those foursomes with one or more non-University employees (faculty and staff). Flight 2, or the Collegiate Division, will be for those pure and untainted foursomes which are composed exclusively of University employees. Flight 3, or the Inclusive Division, will be composed of foursomes with one or more women. Foursomes can be entered in only one of the flights. Tee-off for the four ball, best ball scramble format will be at noon. Prizes for the winners of each flight will be identical.

Details on the tennis tournament will be forthcoming. Participants, however, are encouraged to sign up as soon as possible. "Trust us," said Cashman.

A chicken and ribs barbecue for all participants and their guests will begin between 5-5:30 p.m. The awards ceremony will follow dinner.

As an added incentive for spouses who are not WHO participants, a shuttle bus will leave from Maggs Circle at 4:30 p.m. and arrive at Nassawango at 5 p.m. There is no charge for the shuttle.

There is a charge for golf and dinner,

Wordsworth, Romanticism Exhibit

An exhibit, "William Wordsworth and the Age of English Romanticism," continues in the Atrium Gallery, next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center, on Thursday through May 30.

In conjunction with the exhibit, open daily from 10 a.m.-4 p.m., a video plays weekdays at 1 p.m. and other times upon request. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

Gilchrest Speaker At Business Meeting

Do you have any business going international? A breakfast meeting to explore the hidden international potential of Eastern Shore companies will be held on Monday, May 20, from 7:30-10 a.m. at the University.

U.S. Rep. Wayne T. Gilchrest (First District, Maryland) is the keynote speaker for the free event sponsored by the European American Business Institute (EABI) and the Eastern Shore office of the Small Business Development Center. The seminar kicks off International Trade Week activities in Maryland.

"In recent decades, the world has seen an international trade boom unlike any other in history," said Dr. Mehmet (Memo) Diriker, assistant professor of marketing at SSU's Perdue School of Business and president of EABI. "Between 1970 and 1987, the value of the products sold from one country to another rose from $314 billion to $2.3 trillion.

"Today, a large portion of U.S. corporate profits is the result of international business," said Diriker. "As one indication of this dramatic growth, foreign direct investment—the purchase of production facilities outside our own country—grew from $12 billion in 1950 to $300 billion in 1987. In addition, one out of every six manufacturing jobs in the U.S. now depend directly on foreign trade, and 33 percent of farm acreage is devoted to crops for export. For every billion dollars' worth of products we sell abroad, we get about 25,000 new jobs at home.

"Our overall trade relationships with other countries are the result of millions of transactions conducted by thousands of companies and individuals acting independently," said Diriker. "American companies are locating facilities overseas to capitalize on lower production costs, transportation expenses and labor costs, and to take advantage of local raw materials. At last count, some 100,000 American firms were involved in international business in one way or another, including importing and exporting, licensing, franchising, joint ventures and wholly owned facilities.

The seminar takes place in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. Participants should register by calling 543-6315 no later than Friday, May 17, at noon.

Women's Issues Discussed May 14

The Council on Women's Issues will hold its spring meeting on Tuesday, May 14, at 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 102. Come hear updates on the daycare project, the University System Women's Forum, campus-wide focus groups and meeting the needs of students concerned about women's issues.

For further information, call Lisa Seldomridge at 543-6413.

Women's Soccer Interest Meeting

The SSU Women's Soccer Club will hold an interest meeting for the 1991 season on Thursday, May 9, at 7 p.m. in Maggs Gym, room 205. For more information or if you are unable to attend please contact Wayne Gorrow at the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs or call 543-6349.

Social Work Club Picnic

The Social Work Club is sponsoring a picnic at City Park on Friday, May 17, at 3 p.m. for students and faculty. It should be a fun event with plenty of food and games. Everyone is welcome to attend and bring a friend.

Book Rack Display Winner

The Book Rack's success in a holiday display contest enabled $1,500 to be donated in the bookstore's name to the College Stores Research & Educational Foundation (CSREF).

The 1990 Hershey/CSREF Display Contest sponsored by MarketSource Corp. encouraged bookstores nationwide to participate in the competition among Halloween and Christmas displays of Hershey products.

The Book Rack created a haunted castle around the head cashier's work station. Over the entrance to the castle hung a sign splattered with fake blood reading "FREE KISSES." Sometimes the booth was staffed with a horrible looking witch and other times with a beautiful French maid.

"We always try to have interesting displays in the store," said Stanley Shedaker, director of the Book Rack, "and the staff did an excellent job creating our Halloween Shop. We appreciate the opportunity to use our time and talents to help such a worthy cause."

Berrys at Slavic Conference

SSU faculty Dr. Robert Berry, history, and Dr. Dagmar Berry, modern languages, recently participated in a conference held in Savannah, GA. They attended the 29th annual meeting of the Southern Conference on Slavic Studies, March 21-23. The regional conference was sponsored by Armstrong State College.

Both Drs. Berry were invited to participate in a roundtable discussion, "Democratic Revolution in Eastern Eruope." Dagmar Berry discussed the progress of the democratic movement in Czechoslovakia, her native country. She traced the background of the communist takeover in 1948 and the various attempts to change the system, 1968, Charter 77, and finally, the events leading to the downfall of the system in 1989 and the coming to power of Vaclav Havel and Civic Forum.

Robert Berry outlined the Polish movement for change over the past 40 years and the Poles' refusal to accept a communist system. He talked about the success of Solidarity and how the Polish movement paved the way for the liberation movements in the other Eastern European countries. Other speakers discussed the situation in Yugoslavia, Rumania and East Germany.

In addition to being panelists, the Drs. Berry also attended various other panels including ones on "Court and Culture in Late 17th and 18th-Century Russia" and "Contemporary Eastern Europe in Revolutional Upheaval."

Stovall, Terminator Try to Trim Teen Tummies

Dr. Jack C. Stovall, associate professor of health and physical education and president of the Maryland Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (MAPHERD), was a delegate at the recent national Summit on Youth Fitness in Washington, D.C. The summit initiated May as National Physical Fitness and Sports Month.

"Delegates to this historic summit will be challenged to develop strategies to help improve the fitness of this nation's youth," said summit chairman, Arnold Schwarzenegger. "Surveys have indicated that the fitness of American youth has not improved in the last decade and in many cases has deteriorated.

This alarming trend not only affects the health and vigor of the individual, but is likely to have a devastating impact on the nation if allowed to continue," said Schwarzenegger. "Health costs have increased from $230 billion to $606 billion in the last decade and are expected to reach $1.5 trillion in the year 2000.

"I am convinced," he said, "that the fitness of our youth can be improved through quality daily physical education for all students in our nation's schools, through increased parental involvement and through innovative programs on the community level."

Leaders from business, education, government and health-related fields in all 50 states were invited to the summit.

Several part-time temporary positions are available August 15 for the adademic year 1991-92. SSU has NLN accredited baccalaureate and master's degree programs. A master's degree in nursing is required to teach. Clinical teaching experience in maternal/child nursing is desirable. Rank and salary commensurate with qualifications and experience. Send letter of application and vitae by June 1, to Dr. Karen Badros, Chair, Department of Nursing, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Athletic Equipment Sale

There will be a sale of used equipment, uniforms and assorted other athletic gear on Wednesday, May 22, from 1-3 p.m. in Maggs Gymnasium.

Williams Selected For Summer Fellowship

Dr. Mark E. Williams, assistant professor of physics in the Henson School of Science and Technology, has been selected as a Fellow of the 1991 National Aeronautics Space Agency-American Society for Engineering Education Summer Faculty Fellowship Program (SFFP) at the Goddard Space Flight Center/Wallops Flight Facility at Wallops Island, VA.

The awards are for 10 weeks. There are a total of 26 Faculty Fellows most of whom will be working at Goddard.

Williams will be working with Dr. Frank Hoge at the Wallops Flight Facility where they will be doing research in the development and application of advanced satellite ocean color sensors using an airborne oceanographic laser system. They will be examing the carbon cycle through phytoplankton-fixation and ultimate deposition in the ocean sediments. Phytoplankton fix atmospheric carbon dioxide which is of primary importance both in global warming and in the greenhouse effect.

Janet Horne NEH Scholar

Dr. Janet Horne, assistant professor of communication arts, has been selected to participate in an eight-week National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Seminar this summer at the University of California at Irvine.

The seminar will focus on the themes of pragmatism and modernism as they illuminate American intellectual history. Participants will investigate how ideas found expression in periods beginning with Progressivism and continuing with intellectual developments since World War II, including the Greenwich Village Rebellion, the Lost Generation, the Harlem Renaissance and the Old Left of the '30s.

Horne also recently presented a paper, "Nelson Mandela and the Shape of New South Africa," at the Eastern Communication Association meeting in Pittsburgh.

Jeanne Heidler Published

Dr. Jeanne T. Heidler of the history faculty recently had accepted for publication an article titled "Embarrassing Situation: The Surrender of United States Forces in Texas, 1861."

It will appear as the lead article in the fall issue of Military History of the Southwest, a scholarly, refereed journal based at the University of North Texas.

Heidler asserts in the article that the federal government under President James Buchanan failed to take precautions against Confederate symphathizers in Texas, not from negligence but because of an unwillingness to precipitate a crisis in the state that could lead to civil war. This interpretation is expected to cause somewhat of a controversy since for 130 years the surrender in Texas has been blamed on disloyal, southern federal officers.

Heidler also recently moderated a session on nationalism at the annual meeting of the Southeastern Nineteenth Century Studies Association in New Orleans. Because of her recent work on American Colonial and Revolutionary military history, Heidler is contributing a 5,000-word essay on the American Revolution in Southern Carolina for the forthcoming Encyclopedia of the American Revolution.

25+ Student Union

The monthly meeting for the 25+ Student Union will take place on Saturday, May 11, at 10 a.m. in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Everyone is welcome, and refreshments will be provided.

Hutchinson Performs 'Witch Dance' in Concert

In an upcoming performance, Victoria Hutchinson will, quite literally, follow in the footsteps of one of the breakthrough artists of modern dance.

The performance of "Hexentanz," or "Witch Dance," in the Dance Company's Spring Concert represents Hutchinson's four-year labor of love to reconstruct a work that is at the core of the modern dance movement. Hutchinson became director of SSU's Dance Company last fall.

Hutchinson's voice is alive with the excitement of the times as she describes the heady days of the 1920s when the Witch Dance was created by Mary Wigman. The modern art movement that inspired and captivated the audiences of Nijinsky, Igor Stravinsky and Martha Graham was reaching new heights in the work of German Expressionist dance and choreographer Wigman.

"The term 'modern dance' was coined by John Martin when he described a performance by Graham in 1927," Hutchinson explained. The Witch Dance had been created by Wigman in 1926. "Mary Wigman was a household name in Germany in those days," said Hutchinson. "It's amazing. She was like Arthur Murray—there were Mary Wigman schools . . . everyone knew her work: plumbers and painters, everyone!"

Hutchinson first encountered the Witch Dance in 1984. She saw it performed and learned to dance it herself. When people who had known the choreographer saw Hutchinson dance, they said that, although Hutchinson moved like Wigman, the dance itself wasn't authentic. Hutchinson began searching for the original work.

Like many of the pioneers of modern dance, Wigman lacked the technology of film or videotape to adequately preserve the dance.

Hutchinson now confesses she took on the task of reconstructing the Witch Dance without knowing where the search would take her. Today, she looks back on a journey that brought her from theories of movement to the studios where Jim Henson's Muppets are made.

To understand Wigman's choreography, Hutchinson immersed herself in the ideas of the time. She has mastered one theory of movement, for example, that drove the art of that era. Wigman had studied under Rudolph Van Laban in Switzerland. The Laban theory of movement analysis was translated by Wigman and artistically expressed in her dance. Hutchinson has become a Laban Certified Movement Analyst.

"You have to go back to how they moved then," explained Hutchinson, "to be able to reconstruct the early modern dance works. Modern dance has become refined over the years . . . we move differently now."

Hutchinson found bits and pieces of the Witch Dance in a variety of places. She found, for example, a German text about Wigman and a 1929 film that contained fragments of the dance.

"It was like piecing together the Rosetta stone or a piece of ancient pottery," she recalled.

To recreate the mask and costume for the Witch Dance, Hutchinson travelled to the Henson studios in New York. "I found myself standing in a workroom," she said. "I looked up to see Miss Piggy's dress hanging over my head and saw Ernie's shirt sitting on a shelf."

"It's a shame she was cut off by the Nazi regime," said Hutchinson. "She didn't get a chance to continue to grow; unlike Balanchine, for example, who lived in freedom."

If Wigman's fame and the German Expressionist movement were short lived, the ripples are still being felt in contemporary dance, nonetheless.

Hutchinson sees the influence of Wigman's work throughout modern dance. Unlike ballet, which tells a story, modern dance strives to express an idea. Wigman's dances explore the raw power of expression, so that the audience discovers what it is to be a witch through the Witch Dance.

And Mary Wigman has made an indelible impression on Victoria Hutchinson. "Now my own choreography is influenced by the very simple concepts Wigman worked with," Hutchinson said.

Hutchinson is clear about the artists who have shaped her own thinking as a choreographer and the list comes quickly to mind.

"Martha Graham—I studied with her in New York and England and I admire her for her theatricality. Balanchine—for his clairty of line and design. Mark Morris (now working with Mikhail Baryshnikov)—he's right on the edge of what's new, he's really out there. And Paul Taylor for his variety. He's so eclectic. You can't pin down his style."

The program for SSU Dance Company's Spring Concert is also fairly eclectic: a combination of folk and modern dance. Hutchinson has included a dance of her own in the concert. SSU audiences will witness the premiere of "Patterns," danced to the music of an African composer and inspired by the rhythmic patterning in the weaving of Kinte cloth.

She has also incorporated into the program the folk dancing that area audiences have enjoyed in other Dance Company concerts.

As the new director of the Dance Company, Hutchinson has set long- and short-term goals. Plans are shaping up for a lecture demonstration tour this fall that Hutchinson hopes will bring the company and the community closer together.

She also hopes to see her students grow to create their own artistic works — perhaps establishing some history-making footsteps of their own.

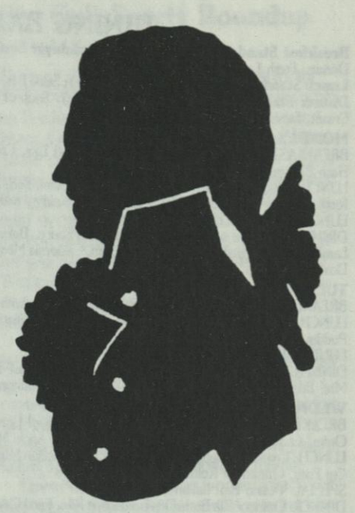
The SSU Dance Concert is Thursday and Friday, May 9 and 10, at 8 p.m., with a matinee Saturday, May 11, at 2 p.m. Tickets are free to SSU students.

Habitat for Humanity

Calling all students, teachers, staff members and friends! If you are interested in meeting new people in the community, learning about construction and willing to work, join SSU's team of volunteers for Habitat on Saturday, May 11. Meet outside of Maggs gym at 8:45 a.m. or 1 p.m. and Habitat will carpool to the site.

Habitat for Humanity is a nonprofit organization that works with low-income families to build decent, affordable homes. Habitat teams, which come from churches, schools and workcamps, work on a rotating schedule every four to six weeks.

For more information, call Greta Trumpower at 546-4168 or Krissy Monks at 548-4198.



Mozart Celebration May 13

Members of the SSU Concert Choir, instrumentalists from the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, conductors Dr. Thomas G. Elliot and Dr. Duane R. Karna, and guest soprano soloist Katherine Turner Barlow perform a special concert commemorating the 200th anniversary of Mozart's death in 1791.

The program, to be held on Monday, May 13, in Holloway Hall Auditorium at 8 p.m., is free and open to the public.

Many musical organizations (symphony, choral, chamber music series) are performing the compositions of Mozart during this bicentennial year. In fact, the Lincoln Center for the Performning Arts in New York City has organized during this year and into early 1992 performances of every work that Mozart composed.

The concert repertoire includes four compositions for choir and small chamber orchestra, "Jubilate Deo," "Laudate Dominum," "Ave Verum Corpus" and "Regina Coeli," and two works for soprano and chamber orchestra, the areia "L'Amero Saro Costante" from Mozart's opera "Il Re Pastore" and his "Exultate Jubilate." Harpsichord continuo incorporated into those works will be performed by Dr. Nancy J. Cooper.

The conducting podium will be shared by Karna and Elliot. Karna, director of choral activities and assistant professor of music, will conduct the Concert Choir and the Salisbury Symphony Chamber Orchestra in four choral works by Mozart, one of which was the final work that Mozart composed during the year of his death, "Ave Verum Corpus." Elliot, chair of the Department of Music, professor of music and music director of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, will conduct the Salisbury Symphony Chamber Orchestra in two compositions by Mozart for soprano and orchestra, featuring Barlow. They are the aria "L'Amero Saro Constante" from his opera "Il Re Pastore" and the famous "Exsultate, Jubilate."

This is the last on-campus performance by adjunct voice instructor Barlow. She will be moving this summer to her native Florida to pursue her singing and performance career.

The concert will conclude with four choral works by American composers: "A Fable" by Norman Dello Joio; "Circus Band" by Charles Ives; "The Devil and the Farmer's Wife" by Vaclav Nelyhbel; and "Shenandoah" arranged by Donald Erb.

Calling Craftspeople

Craftspersons and artisans are encouraged to display and demonstrate at Countryfest '91, held at Furnace Town Historic Site on Sunday, June 9. This annual event, which features the country music of "Almost Country" and "Country Classics," attracts hundreds of visitors to the 25-acre wooded site in the Pocomoke Forest.

For more information, please call the Furnace Town business office at 632-2032. Furnace Town is located 16 miles south of Salisbury and five miles north of Snow Hill off Md. Rt. 12.

Faculty Global Seminar Accepting Applications

Faculty wishing to participate in the Global Seminar on Africa: Tradition and Change in spring 1992 should apply as soon as possible for admission to the program. Faculty accepted for this seminar will receive a one-course reduced teaching load during that semester to study about sub-Saharan Africa's rich culture, geography, economy and so forth. To be directed by Cyril Daddieh, this seminar offers fuculty an opportunity to study with colleagues from all five schools, to enrich current courses with new insights or to create new courses — to experience, that is, the finest fruits of faculty development.

To apply send a brief note indicating your desire to participate to Tony Whall, Honors House; include also a note from the chair of your department agreeing to the one-course release for spring 1992.

Faculty who have already applied neet not apply again. Call Whall at 548-7037 for further information.

Marketing Seminar May 16

The Eastern Shore Region's Maryland Small Business Development Center Network (SBDC) in conjunction with the Perdue School is sponsoring a seminar on "Advertising and Marketing for Small Businesses" on Thursday, May 16, from 4-7 p.m., in Nanticoke C of the Guerrieri University Center.

Paul Jankovic, owner of the Ocean City Advertising Agency, will discuss marketing and advertising as it relates to small businesses. His presentation will include a lecture on current marketing and advertising principles, advertising media, successful new ideas for the small business owner, a videotape and group discussion with the participants. This seminar is co-sponsored by SSU and the Ocean City Advertising Agency. Registration is $15.

For additional information and registration please call the Small Business Development Center at 546-4325.

Fall New Student Orientation

A limited number of upperclass students are being hired to co-teach the five-week Fall New Student Seminar with a member of the faculty or staff. The 10-session course will be offered during the first five weeks of the fall semester. Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extra-curricular activities, knowledgeable about programs and service organizations on campus, and articulate and well-organized in a teaching role. We are looking for good role models for incoming students. A training session will be required prior to the first day of classes. Interested students should fill out an application with Priscilla Nichols in the office of the Vice-President of Academic Affairs, Holloway Hall 239.

Attention Loan Borrowers

All students borrowing under the Stafford (formerly Guaranteed Student Loan)/SLS loan program, on or after July 1, 1987, are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that you attend one of the following sessions: Wednesday, May 8, or Thursday, May 9, Nanticoke Room A, University Center, 3:30 p.m.; Friday, May 10, Pocomoke Room, University Center, 3:30 p.m.; Monday, May 13, Nanticoke Room A, University Center, 3:30 p.m.; or Tuesday, May 14, Nanticoke Room B, Univeristy Center, 3:30 p.m.

Non-resident Tuition Reduction For Nursing Students

The Financial Aid Office has received information on a Health Manpower Shortage Program - Non-resident Tuition Reduction for Nursing Students. The purpose of this program is to attract out-of-state students to nursing programs in Maryland's four-year institutions, and to reduce the shortage of nurses in Maryland by requiring the participants to work in a Maryland hospital or related institution for at least four years on a full time basis upon completion of their nursing degree. The amount of assistance is the difference between the amount of tuition paid by an out-of-state student and the amount paid by an in-state student at this institution.

registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, or graduate nursing students are not eligible.

Applications are in the Financial Aid Office. Deadline is July 1.

written television scripts, published poems, given poetry readings and exhibited her paintings.

On May 29 the speakers will be writers and professors Janet Campbell Hale of the College of Staten Island and Helena Viarmontes of the University of California at Irvine.

Hale, a native American, is the author of two novels and one book of poetry: "The Jailing of Cecelia Capture" (1985); "The Owl's Song" (1974); and "Custer Lives in Humboldt County" (1977). She is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and received her M.A. from the University of California at Davis.

Viramontes has written "The Mother and Other Stories," a collection of short stories, and edited "Chicana Creativity and Criticism," a collection of essays on women writers and filmmakers. She is currently at work on a second collection of short stories and a novel.

Following the lectures, there will be responses by humanities scholars and audience discussion. Copies of books by the authors will be available for sale, and biographical and bibliographical information will be distributed to the audience.

Australia-New Zealand Trip

An interest meeting for Winterim 1992 travel courses in English and/or nursing will be held May 15 at 5:30 p.m. in room 116 Holloway Hall. Interested people unable to attend should contact Tom Erskine (543-6371) or Edna Quinn (543-6414) or call 742-7963 in the evening.

Furnace Town Nature Walk

Furnace Town's third Guilded Nature Walk will focus on spring. Led by area photographer, Mary Gerlach, the walk will take place on Sunday, May 5, from 2-4 p.m.

The nature trail, which winds through the Pocomoke Forest and along the Cypress Swamp, is a joint effort of The Nature Conservancy and Furnace Town.

For details, please call 632-2032.

Finally! Vital Connection

Next week Vital Connection will receive approximately 420 cases of canned food from USA Harvest, and it needs help delivering the food to four missions in the community.

Vital Connection is a student service organization that seeks to deliver food to people in need. Simply, once it is firmly established, it will get excess food from restaurants, hotels, etc. and deliver it to soup kitchens and missions in the local area. Vital Connection is affiliated with USA Harvest, a coalition of many Harvest chapters that carry out this program on a regular basis. As a result of its affiliation, Vital Connection will receive and distribute these cases of food.

To make this program work, it needs assistance from individuals, clubs, fraternities and sororities. If you are able to commit a small portion of your time next week, please contact Pete Jacques (548-2817) or Krissy Monks (548-4198).

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

The men's lacrosse team began its quest for the 1991 NCAA Division III national championship on Wednesday with a first-round game against Ithaca College. SSU, 13-0 entering the Ithaca game, completed its first-ever unbeaten regular season with a 20-4 victory against Washington College on April 27. The Gulls, making their third straight visit to the NCAA Tournament, are one of just three teams who were also in last year's eight-team playoff. Hobart and Ohio Wesleyan, which could be SSU's next opponent, are the two squads which also played in last year's tournament.

Salisbury State, which began playing varsity lacrosse in 1974, is making its 13th tournament appearance. The Gulls entered Wednesday's contest with a 6-12 postseason record, including 1-1 last year. SSU beat Franklin & Marshall in the opening round of the '90 tournament before falling to Hobart in the national semifinal.

Elsewhere, the men's and women's track and field squads closed out successful seasons last Saturday at the Mason/Dixon Conference Championships in Newport News, VA. The women placed fourth with 69 total points while the men totalled 41 points and placed sixth. Highlights for the Gulls included two new team relay records, including the women's 400-meter relay. Angela Waters, Amy Spishock Tracy Tyler and and Kirsten Owings registered a time of 51.59, breaking the record for the fifth time in six attempts this season. Tyler also collected SSU's lone first-place finish by winning the high jump with a leap of 5'4". She was also third in the 100 meter hurdles and fourth in the triple jump. Tim Smith was the top male peformer with a third place finish in the 10,000 meters and a fifth place effort in the 5,000 meters.

The baseball team concluded its season last Saturday with a doubleheader split at York (PA). The Gulls won the opener 9-1 behind a complete game effort from righthander Doug Burig. Dean Hamburg, Frank Szymanski and Kevin Schiavone had two hits apiece. SSU dropped the nightcap 10-7 to finish the year with a 9-21 record.

Students Score High In Math Competition

Three Salisbury State mathematics majors were recently ranked in the top 50 percent of all students who participated in the 51st annual Putnam Competition. Joseph Pepper, a senior from Delmar, DE, was in the top 33 percent; Robert Simms, a senior from Salisbury, was in the top 40 percent; and Robert Henkel, a sophomore from Ocean Pines, was in the top 50 percent.

Nearly 2,500 mathematics students from universities and colleges in the U.S. and Canada took the Putnam examination last December.

According to Dr. Robert M. Tardiff, student advisor and chair of the Department of Math Sciences, "this examination, which is extremely challenging, is designed to identify mathematical talent and creativity. The top students are virtually guaranteed acceptance to first-rate graduate schools."

All three participants are dean's list students double majoring in mathematics and physics. Pepper and Simms are members of the SSU Chapter of the Mathematical Association of America and work in the University's Devilbiss Computer Laboratory.

May 1991 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 25, in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for the processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The commencement speaker will be The Honorable Shirley B. Jones, former U. S. District Court judge.

3. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning April 29. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours, Monday-Thursday, are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.] The bookstore will be open on Friday, May 24, from 8:30 a.m.-3 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 3 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., The Fulton School of Liberal Arts) and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard and then be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card is then given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage and, at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Dr. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement Exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, May 20. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony gradduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing will hold a pinning ceremony on Friday, May 24, at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

12. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 1:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center on Saturday, May 25. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

13. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through K, Jeffrey King, will report to Drs. Maurice Bozman and Edward Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with K, Maureen Koppenhafer, through the letter Z will report to Drs. Jack Wulff and Geraldine Rossi and will line up alphabetically along the windows, facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

14. Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through David Lybarger, will report to Drs. Gerald St. Martin and Arthur Delpaz at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with M, Daniel Madigan, through the letter Z, will also go the the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Arlene White and Harry Basehart. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill the section starting from the side aisle.

15. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up according to Dr. White's direction and will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

16. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Mary Ellen Elwell and Jerome Miller. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

17. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A. M.Ed., M.S. and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the Park) and report to the faculty marshal in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. John Lewis. You will line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle adjacent to your section.

M.Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Robert Berry and line up at his direction. You will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

18. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.
4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional (the Civic Center is air conditioned).
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the president.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South, specialists in graduation and event photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

19. Graduation Decorum–Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long, hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

Students and alumni must have a resume and/or credential file personal information form on file with the Placement Office prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the Placement Office as soon as possible to complete this requirement.

Wed. May 15 — Wicomico County Board of Education–Interviewing education majors for teaching positions. First time interviews only.

Thu. May 16 — Talbot County Board of Education–Interviewing all elementary education majors and only the following secondary education majors; social studies, foreign language for teaching positions.

Currently enrolled students and alumni may make appointments immediately. All recruiting requires sign-ups unless noted. Contact Placement Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

SPECIAL NOTE: Those wishing to participate in on-campus interviewing must first attend an interview and placement briefing. The next meeting is: Friday, May 3, from noon-1 p.m. Contact the Placement Office for sign-ups.

SENIOR RESUME BOOK: Employers often ask to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors and then contact selected seniors about job openings. Interested seniors should bring their resumes to the Placement Office.

AI & G Children's Classes

Starting on May 11, the Art Institute and Gallery (AI & G) of Salisbury will be offering children's creative art classes on Saturday mornings for 5 weeks. The classes will be for elementary and secondary students, and each class is tailored to the developmental stages of the different age groups.

The students who participate in this spring session will learn how to develop and sharpen their drawing skills.

For additional information contact AI & G at 546-4748 between noon and 4 p.m. or instructor Kathy Mumford at 641-3122. AI & G offers children's classes five times a year. If you are interested in receiving brochures write AI & G, Attn: Classes, P.O. Box 193, Salisbury, MD 21803.

AI & G Spring Art Classes

The Art Institute and Gallery (AI & G) of Salisbury spring art classes will begin the middle of May. The adult classes being offered this term are intermediate and advanced oils, beginning and intermediate watercolor, beginning oils, beginning and intermediate hand-built pottery, painting with acrylics, and a life drawing studio. Three of AI & G's painting instructors, Virginia Bradford-Burton, Angela Herbert-Hodges, and Gloria Young Smith, are currently exhibiting their works in this month's "Springtime" exhibit at the AI & G.

For additional information contact AI & G at 546-4748 between noon and 4 p.m. The classes are held on the second floor of the AI & G building on Rt. 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane. These intimate and varied art classes are offered five times a year featuring local artists as instructors. If you are interested in receiving brochures for these classes please write AI & G, Attn: Classes, P.O. Box 193, Salisbury, MD 21803.

commissioned by G. & I. Holst, Ltd. in England. The Mitchell edition, believed to be the most authentic military (symphonic) band version, remains in manuscript and is the sole property of G. & I. Holst, Ltd.

Kurt Weill's "Suite to the Little Threepenny Opera (1928)" receives its first Eastern Shore performance assisted by SSU faculty and Eastern Shore performing artists Dr. Nancy J. Cooper, Ronald Raffealle, Mario Hunter, Ronald C. Reed and Dr. Charles F. Smith, Jr. The six movement composition, for 15 players, is unique to the wind repertoire being based upon material derived from Weill and Bertolt Brecht's opera of the same title. The opera is centered upon a pre-1930s German underground character, "Mack the Knife."

Other works included in the Wind Sinfonia's performance include "Gruss" by Richard Wagner, "Irish Tune from Derry" and "Shepherd's Hey" by Percy Grainger and "Suite of Old American Dances" by American composer Robert Russell Bennett.

The concert is free and the public is cordially invited.

Phi Alpha Theta Inductees Announced

Phi Alpha Theta held its spring initiation in the candlelit Social Room of Holloway Hall on Sunday, April 21. Sixteen students were inducted into the international honor society for history.

The students were: Jennifer Lynn Anderson, Kingsville, MD; Richard O. Billman, Easton, MD; Leanna Elaine Bush, Havre de Grace, MD; Donald J. Cogswell, Queen Anne, MD; Penelope S. Davis and William M. Schrader, Bowie, MD; John Goslee and Stephanie Lois Moore, Seaford, DE; Susan G. Hoeck, Salisbury; Bruce Allyn Lesh, Ellicott City, MD; Christopher J. McCormick, Williamstown, NJ; Whitney Roach, Oxford, MD; Scot Richard, Weston, VT; and Kevin Shannon, Brian J. Starr and Katherine E. Steininger, Delmar, MD.

Membership in Phi Alpha Theta requires the junior, senior or graduate student to have completed at least 12 semester hours in history courses, to have an average of B in at least two-thirds of the remainder of all work, and rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

Pi Gamma Mu Honors Initiates

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in the social sciences, initiated 23 new members on April 7.

Pi Gamma Mu requires the completion of at least 20 hours in five social science areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology and international relations) and in some other social sciences courses such as social psychology, criminal justice and geography, with an average of B (85 percent). In addition, an eligible student should be in the top 35 percent of his/her junior or senior class.

The initiates were: Patricia L. Bell, Marion, MD; Richard O. Billman and Samuel Webster, Easton, MD; Jennifer Lynn Brierly, Wilmington, DE; Leaana Elaine Bush, Havre de Grace, MD; Mark E. Creamer and Michael Ginieczki, Linwood, NJ; James Matthew Hennigan, West Chester, PA; Susan Hoeck, Emelyn Susan Lybarger and Kathleen Mead, Salisbury; Bruce Lesh, Ellicott City, MD; Christopher J. McCormick, Williamston, NJ; William J. Nichols, Baltimore; Whitney Simpson Roach, Oxford, MD; Mitchell A. Rosenwald, Elkton, MD; Joyce Y. Ross, Seaford, DE; Tonya Danielle Saunders, Middleton, DE; William Matthew Schrader, Bowie, MD; Michael Sean Scott, Hebron, MD; Kevin Shannon, Centreville, MD; and Brian Starr, and Katherine E. Steiniger, Delmar, MD.

Terry Clay, a career development specialist, presented a brief talk to the initiates titled "The Social Sciences Toward the Year 2000." The initiates were welcomed into the honor society by its members and the co-advisors, Dr. Greg Ference and Dr. Clara Small.

'Who Has the ARMs?'

Dr. K. Khazeh, assistant professor of finance, Dr. Wayne Decker, associate professor of management, and Dr. Robert Winder, associate professor of economics, all in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, and Martin T. Neat, vice president of marketing and branch administration of First Shore Federal, have written an article titled, "Who Has the ARMs?," which was published in the winter issue of Real Estate Finance. Neat received his M.B.A. from the Perdue School in 1990.

The study reveals that because adjustable rate mortgages will help shape the future of the residential mortgage market for years to come, forward-looking lending institutions must be careful to base their marketing and product development plans on statistical analysis rather than stereotypes.

The evidence found in this study contradicts the common stereotype of the young and struggling family anxious to secure an adjustable rate mortgage to leverage its purchasing power. Specifically, it was found that individuals with ARMs tend to be older and have significantly higher incomes than those with fixed-rate mortgages. They also buy more expensive homes.

Although one might anticipate that the older and more prosperous ARM holders would make a higher percentage down payment on their home, this hypothesis was refuted by the evidence. Perhaps more surprising was the finding that adjustable and fixed-rate mortgagors did not differ with regard to intended length of stay in the new home or in the expectations about future trends in interest rates.

The notion of financially sophisticated ARM holders expecting to sell their homes just as their variable interest rates start to rise was not generally supported. The fact that ARM holders tend to be both wealthier and older may result not from their financial foresight or acumen, but from their ability to withstand the risk of significantly higher mortgage payments in the near future.

Health Sciences Faculty Teach Seminars for Teens

As part of a statewide program sponsored by the Maryland Science Center in Baltimore, three faculty members of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences recently conducted a series of Saturday morning seminars for high school juniors and seniors. Sidney Schneider, assistant professor of respiratory care, and Cindy Cowall and Diane Hayes, both instructors of medical technology, presented an in-depth study of respiratory care and laboratory medicine, integral parts of overall patient care.

"Both students and faculty alike found the sessions enjoyable as well as informative, especially interaction in the laboratories when the students tested themselves," said Cowall. "They were alert, well-informed, polite and inquisitive — a combination for which any teacher is thankful."

Students came from nine area high schools, including James M. Bennett, Wicomico, Cambridge South Dorchester, North Dorchester, North Caroline, Stephen Decatur, Washington, Crisfield, and Worcester Country. They were selected by their guidance counselors based on a strong interest and ability in science. Many students indicated in a post-course survey that they especially appreciated the extensive hands-on experience. This involved laboratory analyses they were able to perform on themselves and actual operation of respiratory diagnostic instruments. Students also said the seminars "gave a look at all different aspects of medicine," and in one specific area that they helped to understand a "relation of brain processes and stimulations to the rest of the human physiology."

One of the actual tests performed by the students in the laboratory science portion was making and staining a microscope slide of their own blood, which they then examined to decide the distribution of each of the different types of white blood cells. During another session they cultured their lab partners' throats to look for streptococcus bacteria which are better known as the causative agents of "strep throat." Students also performed chemical and microscopic urine analyses, saw a demonstration of a drug screen, typed their own blood, measured their own cholesterol, and toured the clinical laboratory at Peninsula General Hospital.

During respiratory care sessions, the emphasis was on both pediatric and adult care. Students saw a film on childbirth and discussed respiratory risk factors to the newborn. They also discussed trauma situations for adults in respiratory care and observed the operation of mechanical ventilators. Diagnostic experiences included "hands-on" pulmonary function testing, pulse oximetry, and ECG (electrocardiogram) and radiographic (X-ray) interpretation. The faculty plan to continue the seminars next spring, again in cooperation with the Maryland Science Center. Students interested in the sessions should contact their high school guidance counselor or the Medical Technology Department at 543-6331.

Handicapped Awareness Seminar

"Handicapped Awareness" is the title of a seminar to be conducted by Jocelyn Williams, director of the Special Learning Center at Pinehurst Elementary School, on Friday, May 10, at 10 a.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. Sponsored by the seminar/workshop committee of the SSU Physical Education Department, the program is approximately 90 minutes long.

Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MAY 16, 1991 VOL. XII NO. 30

Caruthers Acknowledged, Alumni Award Recipient

Dr. J. Wade Caruthers will receive the Alumni Appreciation Award at Commencement ceremonies Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m., in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Caruthers, 700 bachelor's degree and 70 master's degree candidates will be recognized for their achievements at the 66th year graduation ceremonies.

The Honorable Judge Shirley Brannock Jones, who became the first woman in Maryland to fill the seat of judge of the U.S. District Court for the Maryland district, will deliver the Commencement address, "Going From Here to There."

During the Commencement ceremony, Dr. Edgar A. Baker, Jr., a representative of the Alumni Association, will present the Alumni Appreciation Award to Caruthers. He was selected as this year's recipient based on his outstanding achievements in the education field and his dedication and continued service to Salisbury State and the Alumni Association.

After receiving a Bachelor of Science in elementary education from Salisbury State and a Bachelor of Science in secondary education from the University of Missouri, the Salisbury alumnus accepted his first job as a secondary school teacher in Cambridge, MD.

His career in education was temporarily delayed while he served as an ensign and a minesweeping officer, later advancing to the rank of lieutenant and commanding officer, in the Navy during World War II.

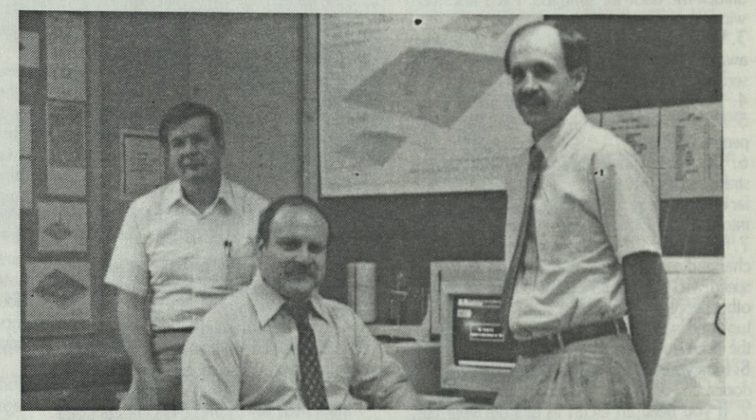
University Faculty Receive First Mini-Grants, All Five Schools Benefit



SSU geography professors (left to right) Robert Rosing, Michael Folkoff and Brent Skeeter recently received a $3,000 grant to begin researching "The Relationship Between Urbanization and Small Town Heat Islands on the Lower Eastern Shore of Maryland." Altogether 11 University faculty members received eight grants totaling $12,000 from the recently established Grants Advisory Committee.

First and foremost a teaching institution, at SSU faculty research and scholarly pursuits are still an important part of the institution's mission. As many faculty members point out, undergraduate students need to be exposed to research and scholarly activity as part of the learning experience.

In an effort to facilitate and encourage more on-going research projects on the campus, the recently created Office of Grants and Sponsored Research in conjunction with the all-faculty Grants Advisory Committee is awarding eight mini-grants totaling $12,000 to 11 faculty members.

"It is our goal to encourage faculty to develop research projects and other scholarly proposals by giving small grants that will assist them in developing full funding from national foundations, both public and private," said Dr. Ron Frank, director of the Office of Grants and Sponsored Research, created in January 1990.

"This represents one more way the University is realizing the goals it set forth in its Long Range Plan," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs.

Gulls Host Hobart, Seek Lax Crown

Salisbury State University plays host to its first-ever NCAA championship game as the Sea Gulls welcome Hobart College in the NCAA Division III lacrosse title game Saturday at 1:30 p.m. SSU is making its first appearance in the lacrosse championship game, while Hobart has won the crown each of the last 11 years. SSU has played in two other national championship games, both in 1986. The women's field hockey team captured the Division III championship while the football team lost in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl, the Division III championship game.

Coach Jim Berkman's lacrosse squad, a perfect 15-0 on the year, advanced to Saturday's game with wins over Ithaca and Ohio Wesleyan in the first two rounds of the tournament. The Gulls downed Ithaca 16-10 at home last Wednesday and topped Ohio Wesleyan 18-12 on the road Sunday. Hobart, 7-6 on the year, enter's the championship contest with playoff wins against Clarkson (19-11) and Nazareth (19-17).

Salisbury has lost all four of its previous meetings with Hobart, including last year's 23-5 decision in Geneva, NY in the national semifinals. Two of the other three losses have also come in postseason play.

Senior Rusty Pritzlaff has been the Sea Gulls' top scorer through the first two games of the playoffs with seven goals and five assists. Eric Ungleich has tallied five goals and four assists while Rick Berkman has four goals and four assists. Berkman also claimed the school's single-season scoring record as he scored his 60th goal of the year in the Ohio Wesleyan victory. Goalie Scott Bentkowski has made 33 saves in the two games, including a season-best 27 stops against OWU.

Tickets for Saturday's Game are $4, includisng children, SSU faculty, students and staff.

Personal Safety Tips Offered

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

O.C. Conference on Women Writers

Four of this country's leading women of color writers, each representing a different culture, highlight the first national program of its kind, titled "Other Voices": American Women Writers of Color, on Tuesday through Thursday, May 28-30, at the Carousel Hotel in Ocean City, MD.

Two evening talks on Tuesday and Wednesday by the writers who represent African-American, Asisan-American, Native American and Latino cultures begin at 7 p.m. Followed by audience discussions, the entire evening programs are expected to conclude by 9 p.m. The public is cordially invited; admission is free.

Wind Sinfonia To Give Maryland Premiere

The Salisbury State University Wind Sinfonia, under the direction of conductor Dr. Richard L. Johnson presents its annual spring performance in Holloway Hall Auditorium on Thursday, May 16, at 8 p.m.

Senior Ceremony/ Phi Alpha Induction

The Social Work Department will hold its annual Senior Ceremony on Saturday, May 18, at 10 a.m. in Caruthers Auditorium. The induction for Phi Alpha Chi Eta Honor Society will also take place at this time. Friends and and family are welcome to attend. A reception in the Guerrieri University Center will follow at noon.

Wanted: Reporters, Editors for Flyer

The Flyer, SSU's student newspaper, is looking for students wishing to fill the positions of sports editor and photography editor for the 1991-92 school year. Also needed are proofreaders, typesetters, distribution managers, photographers and staff writers in the areas of news, entertainment and sports. All are paid positions.

If interested, stop by the Flyer Office (second floor of Guerrieri University Center) or call Allison Maynard or Mitch Rosenwald at 543-6191 for more information.

Nursing Faculty

Several part-time temporary positions are available August 15 for the adademic year 1991-92. SSU has NLN accredited baccalaureate and master's degree programs. A master's degree in nursing is required to teach. Clinical teaching experience in maternal/child nursing is desirable. Rank and salary commensurate with qualifications and experience. Send letter of application and vitae by June 1, to Dr. Karen Badros, Chair, Department of Nursing, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Athletic Equipment Sale

There will be a sale of used equipment, uniforms and assorted other athletic gear on Wednesday, May 22, from 1-3 p.m. in Maggs Gymnasium.

Eastern Shore Students Needed

Shore Future is an intervention program developed by the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium and funded by the Maryland Higher Education Commission. Its primary goal is to enhance the likelihood that students targeted within the Shore Future initiative will complete their public school experience and will successfully pursue post-secondary education. Major strategies focus on direct student and parent support activities, specialized staff training, and cooperative linkages between the public schools, postsecondary educational institutions, and Private Industry Councils.

Direct student support activities are designed to improve middle school students' self-esteem, academic performance, and outlook regarding the decision to pursue a college education. One strategy for achieving this objective is to provide tutoring and/or mentoring support to students.

If you are considering a career in education, or if you would just like to help students improve their chances to pursue a college education as you are now doing, contact Dr. Carol Williamson, Dean of Students, at 548-6080.

Whack & Hack At Nassawango June 3

The seventh annual Whack & Hack Open, a year-end day of fun and fellowship for faculty, staff, alumni and guests, will be held on Monday, June 3, at Nassawango Country Club near Snow Hill.

Duffers and netters of all levels of abililty are encouraged to participate.

WHO chair this year is Greg Cashman. Jack Spence is the golf tournament director, while Tom Erskine and Andy Dane are co-directors of the tennis competition.

For the first time in WHO history, the golf tournament will have three flights, or divisions for those more comfortable with earth-bound terminology. Flight 1, or the Ringer Division, will be for those foursomes with one or more non-University employees (faculty and staff). Flight 2, or the Collegiate Division, will be for those pure and untainted foursomes which are composed exclusively of University employees. Flight 3, or the Inclusive Division, will be composed of foursomes with one or more women. Foursomes can be entered in only one of the flights. Tee-off for the four ball, best ball scramble format will be at noon. Prizes for the winners of each flight will be identical.

Details on the tennis tournament will be forthcoming. Participants, however, are encouraged to sign up as soon as possible. "Trust us," said Cashman.

A chicken and ribs barbecue for all participants and their guests will begin between 5-5:30 p.m. The awards ceremony will follow dinner.

As an added incentive for spouses who are not WHO participants, a shuttle bus will leave from Maggs Circle at 4:30 p.m. and arrive at Nassawango at 5 p.m. There is no charge for the shuttle.

There is a charge for golf and dinner, however. For golfers the cost is $30 for University employees, which includes green fees, cart, dinner, beverages and prizes. The cost for non-University employees is $40.

The cost for tennis players is $15 apiece. The same charge applies for those just coming for dinner.

Registration forms will be sent out to all faculty and staff via campus mail soon. Extra forms will be available at the Public Relations Office (HH 263, 543-6030).

Early registration is encouraged; the first 84 paid registrants will receive the 1991 official WHO hat. Registration deadline is May 24. Those missing the deadline will be out of WHO luck.

Attention Loan Borrowers

All students borrowing under the Stafford (formerly Guaranteed Student Loan)/SLS loan program, on or after July 1, 1987, are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that you attend one of the following sessions: Wednesday, May 8, or Thursday, May 9, Nanticoke Room A, University Center, 3:30 p.m.; Friday, May 10, Pocomoke Room, University Center, 3:30 p.m.; Monday, May 13, Nanticoke Room A, University Center, 3:30 p.m.; or Tuesday, May 14, Nanticoke Room B, Univeristy Center, 3:30 p.m.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Samuel and Hannah Kolodny (left) from Upper Marlboro have established the Lisa Kolodny Memorial Fund in honor of their granddaughter, SSU student Lisa Kolodny (portrait) who was killed in a house fire last spring. Pictured with the Kolodnys is Dr. Doran E. Christensen, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies.

Kolodny Fund Established, Benefits At-risk Students

Lisa Kolodny, a 21-year-old SSU senior from Gaithersburg, died April 21, 1990 in a fire at a house she shared with two other students on Woodcrest Avenue in Salisbury.

A member of the Student National Education Association (SNEA), she was an elementary education major who was scheduled to be initiated into Kappa Delta Pi, the international education honor society, later that month.

While at SSU, Lisa volunteered for several off-campus children's programs including the Pemberton Elementary after school care program and the Wicomico County Department of Parks and Recreation playground program.

She organized a Kappa Psi Kappa visit to Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center's Pediatric Unit to entertain children at Halloween and headed up the sorority's Super City Walkathon to benefit muscular dystrophy research. She was nominated by Kappa Psi Kappa for its Outstanding Female Greek Award.

In order to continue her voluntary commitment to working with children, Lisa's paternal grandparents, Samuel and Hannah Kolodny of Upper Marlboro, have donated $20,000 (added to the $5,000 campus contributions) to establish the Lisa Kolodny Memorial Fund through the SSU Foundation. The interest from the fund, the first of its kind at the University, is being used to initiate volunteer efforts on the part of students.

"Lisa herself was that kind of person—a rare, beautiful human being who really cared for others," said Doran E. Christensen, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies at SSU. "She did a lot of volunteering with disadvantaged kids, so in keeping with her spirit and as a memorial to what she was, this fund was created."

Her grandparents felt that because of her interest in volunteering, a program of volunteer service would have the greatest long-term benefit. Run by the Institute for Community Educational Development (ICED) in the School of Education and Professional Studies, the Kolodny Fund project is designed to identify, nurture and encourage a group of fifth and/or sixth grade students of African-American heritage from Woodson Middle School in Somerset County who are at risk of not completing their education to stay in school. The goal is to help students become better prepared for college, recruiting them as if they might be readied for a teaching career.

"We hope to follow these fifth graders through graduation," said Christensen. "Eventually, we hope to build a whole network through the senior level—having older children become mentors to the younger ones."

Volunteer mentors will be drawn from college students and community leaders as well. The interest from this donation might be used to hire a committed teacher from the Woodson School staff or a graduate assistant to coordinate volunteer efforts. It also might be used in numerous other ways—for example, to buy special books for Woodson's library, to rent a van so that students can visit a college setting or to pay tutors.

"Often students think that they can't go on to college—they might be frightened by the SATs, feel that they can't possibly afford it or realize that they haven't taken the necessary courses," said Dr. Ellen Whitford, project director and co-director of ICED. "They see limits to what they can do and we want to encourage them to look beyond those limits and see that a college education is a possibility.

"If the project does nothing more than extend their tenure in school, good will have been done," said Whitford. "A second equally important factor is the crying need for minority teachers in our schools. Recognizing that many, if not most, of these students may choose other careers, encouraging even one or two to become teachers would be worth the effort."

"Another benefit of this fund is that hopefully it will serve as an antedote to the cynicism of today's college students," said Christensen. "Studies show that 80 percent of the students in college today are there so they can be rich.

"A problem with the educational system, especially at the college level, is that there is no built in program for teaching social responsibility and concern," said Christensen. "A university is, by its nature, elitist—a small minority of our population finishes college and expects advantage. But there is a lot more to life than just making money—in fact, all the menus for happiness never include money and power on their lists. Lisa understood this because she found out that the secret to happiness was in helping others."

Parkside Students Gain Math Awareness

SSU Math instructor Don Jones stood in front of the class and created an acute triangle, then enlarged it, then bisected the angles and drew three intersecting circles with a common point inside the triangle. Then he did the whole thing over again, only bigger.

What Jones was doing was not new or unique, but the way he was doing it was. Instead of laboring over a chalkboard or struggling with pencil and compass, frantically erasing and redrawing, he was doing everything on computer. Using a new software program called a Geometric Supposer—which he used to create geometric problems on a projection screen—he was able to do quickly what would otherwise take minutes.

"If you had to draw this it would take forever; this takes only a few seconds," Jones said. "You can tinker with it, explore problems or sit down and form your own problems. Without this all you have is a textbook, and the students can only do what the textbook says."

The ease of the new program is only a minor part of the appeal of the program for Jones and other teachers. More important is the effect it has on students, in this instance a class of 21 freshmen from Parkside High School spending the afternoon with Jones in the SSU Math Department. Rosemary Heher, a math teacher at Parkside, brought the class of advanced math students to the Math Department for the day to see the new program and to try to stir a greater interest in math.

"They were bowled over," Heher said of the students' reactions. "It allowed them to see math beyond the textbook and come away in awe. It's important to be able to spark that, to let them see that there is something down the road in mathematics."

During the session Jones had the class tell him what to create on the screen and he then gave the students the chance to work on the computer, working their own problems. Like an artist with a blank canvas, each student was able to create a problem solely out of his or her imagination, creating triangles, intersecting circles or creating triangles within triangles. There is hope that someday the software program will be available at Parkside and other area schools, but in the meantime Heher hopes that student trips such as this one become a regular part of high school curriculums. The SSU Math Department has been using the program with students from the past three months, particularly with students who want to teach geometry using the program, and the program can be used at every level from elementary to college.

Although the program can help stimulate interest and make creating geometric problems easier, Jones and Heher point out that it's not meant to take the place of good old-fashioned theorem and proof-solving on paper. The basics of solving problems and equations to prove what you've already drawn will always be the same, and that makes tools like the new software program that much more attractive. It helps turn into vibrant concepts what might otherwise be arcane theorems and proofs.

"It's neat to see how advanced things have become," said Parkside freshman Lori Sleighter. "It makes geometry more fun."

"Anything would help," joked freshman Gretchen Brenner.

Social Work Club Picnic

The Social Work Club is sponsoring a picnic at City Park on Friday, May 17, at 3 p.m. for students and faculty. It should be a fun event with plenty of food and games. Everyone is welcome to attend and bring a friend.

Fall New Student Orientation

A limited number of upperclass students are being hired to co-teach the five-week Fall New Student Seminar with a member of the faculty or staff.

The 10-session course will be offered during the first five weeks of the fall semester. Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular activities, knowledgeable about programs and service organizations on campus, and articulate and well-organized in a teaching role. A training session will be required prior to the first day of classes. Interested students should fill out an application with Priscilla Nichols in the Office of the Vice-President of Academic Affairs, Holloway Hall 239.

Faculty Global Seminar Accepting Applications

Faculty wishing to participate in the Global Seminar on Africa: Tradition and Change in spring 1992 should apply as soon as possible for admission to the program. Faculty accepted for this seminar will receive a one-course reduced teaching load during that semester to study about sub-Saharan Africa's rich culture, geography, economy and so forth. To be directed by Cyril Daddieh, this seminar offers faculty an opportunity to study with colleagues from all five schools, to enrich current courses with new insights or to create new courses — to experience, that is, the finest fruits of faculty development.

To apply send a brief note indicating your desire to participate to Tony Whall, Honors House; include also a note from the chair of your department agreeing to the one-course release for spring 1992.

Faculty who have already applied neet not apply again. Call Whall at 548-7037 for further information.

Non-resident Tuition Reduction For Nursing Students

The Financial Aid Office has received information on a Health Manpower Shortage Program —"Non-resident Tuition Reduction for Nursing Students".

The purpose of this program is to attract out-of-state students to nursing programs in Maryland's four-year institutions and to reduce the shortage of nurses in Maryland by requiring the participants to work in a Maryland hospital or related institution for at least four years on a full time basis upon completion of their nursing degree. The amount of assistance is the difference between the amount of tuition paid by an out-of-state student and the amount paid by an in-state student at this institution.

Licensed registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, or graduate nursing students are not eligible.

Applications are in the Financial Aid Office. Deadline is July 1.

Maintenance Mechanic

SSU is seeking a maintenance mechanic.

Starting salary is $15,704; it is a regular state position with benefits. It features a five day/40 hour flexible work week to include weekends as dictated by student/conference schedule. The employee will be required to perform general maintenance tasks on a wide variety of building components.

Three years of full-time paid employment in any combination of the maintenance trades is required. Experience is desired in carpentry, floor tile and carpet installation, window/door/screen repair/replacement, etc.

Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, through May 22.

Point of Sale Coordinator

SSU has an immediate opening for a point-of-sale coordinator in the University bookstore.

The individual will be responsible for implementing programs for point-of-sale, data entry, bar-coding of merchandise and inventory control. This is a 35 1/2 hour per week contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $6.62 per hour.

Requirements include graduation from high school, one year retailing experience and a working knowledge of IBM, IBM compatibles and Radio Shack computers.

Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, until May 20.

Buyer's Clerk

SSU has an immediate opening for a buyer's clerk in the University bookstore.

The individual will be assisting the buyer in a variety of purchasing and procurement activities to include merchandising, inventorying, advertising and promotions, and general office duties. This is a 35 1/2 hour per week contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $8.40 per hour.

Requirements include a year of clerical work in the area of purchasing. Experience in these areas in a university setting, plus a knowledge of computers and data entry is highly desirable.

Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, until May 20.

Lifeguards Needed

Applications are now being accepted for summer lifeguards at the SSU pool. Applicants must have current Advanced Lifesaving/Lifeguard Training, First Aid and CPR. Additional certifications (WSI, CPO, etc.) are a plus.

For additional information or application, please contact aquatic director, Maggs 183/Pool, 543-5000/6357.

Office Assistant

The Office of Campus Recreation has an opening for a full-time (12 month) office assistant.

Good typing skills and a knowledge of word processing is required. Previous office experience involving extensive phone traffic, filing and some supervision is preferred. Salary is $6.62 per hour. This is a contractual position (no paid benefits).

Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, room 22, Holloway Hall, until May 20.

Welsh Invited To German Conference

Jim Welsh, associate professor of English and editor of Literature/Film Quarterly, published at Salisbury State continuously since 1973, has been invited to read two papers at the Institut für den Wissenschaftlichen Film in Goettingen, Germany, as part of an international conference that begins July 4.

The title of the XIV IAMHIST Conference is "The Cold War in Retrospect." IAMHIST stands for the International Association for Audio-Visual Media in Historical Research and Education and is comprised of film historians and archivists, film directors, and television producers. It sponsors the Historical Journal of Film, Radio and Television, originally founded by Dr. K.R.M. Short at Oxford.

Welsh proposed two papers: "Peter Watkins and the Ultimate Cold War Documentary" (concerning a 14 1/2-hour documentary film titled The Journey) and "From Alien Invasion to Red Nightmare" (focusing on a propaganda film produced by the U.S. Department of Defense, produced in 1962). Both proposals were accepted.

Welsh is included in workshops along with scholars from Bonn, Berlin, Hannover, Rotterdam and Barcelona, and London filmmaker Stephen Peet, who recently lectured at Salisbury State in the "Humanities in Motion" series Welsh organized that was funded by grants from the Maryland Humanities Council and the Fulton School of the Liberal Arts at SSU.

Summer Safely

Summer break is often a time of relaxation, fun and a different pace. It is also peak time for alcohol and drug related accidents, problems and tragedies. Be conscious of how alcohol and drug use can influence whether your summer break is full of good memories or bad ones—Break Safely!

Phi Kappa Phi Inducts 39 Members

Thirty-nine undergraduates were inducted recently into the Salisbury State chapter of the national honor society, Phi Kappa Phi.

Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is the highest academic award granted at Salisbury State. It is reserved for the top five percent of the senior class and the top 2.5 percent of the junior class, selected from all disciplines for excellence in scholarship and integrity of character.

In his address commending the initiates for their pursuit of academic excellence, Dr. Bellavance pointed out that over $42 million a year is expended to maintain Salisbury State and "to engage our faculty in the most noble and most difficult experiment in all higher education—the production of an educated person." He encouraged the students to continue to nurture the critical ability to question positions they would be asked to accept solely on the basis of authority, to be objective and honest in the need to persuade others and never to rely on their future rank, status or authority to coerce others.

"Our society relies too heavily on authority as its sole source of truth while authority itself has become rather cavalier in its responsibility to convey the truth," said Bellavance.

Bellavance concluded his address by asserting that the ability to not take oneself too seriously, the possession of a well-defined set of objectives to guide in decision making and "a thick coat of armor" (to deal with those who question one's every move) will eventually win trust based on one's track record rather than one's rank or title.

New members inducted into Phi Kappa Phi are Tiny P.H. Baassiri, Diane Beach, Michael G. Beardsley, Karen E. Beltz, Melanie A. Biscoe, Karen L. Brown, Melinda E. Butler, Jane M. Cleveland, Donald J. Cogswell, Sherry Cowan, Kathy M. Davidson, Kelli K. Dial, Traci B. Dize, Karen K.C. Eppehimer, Joseph G. Era, Charles R. Fulkerson, Jennifer A. Giannantonio, Kimberly S. Hillmuth, Rebecca L. Hurley, David A. Kelser, Theresa L. R. Kinhart, Ann M. Leef, Michael W. Matthews, Richard E. McCarty, Jr., Elizabeth K. Miller, Sarah E. Moran, Karen E. Orr, Peggy L.O. Prather, Jennifer L. Raley, Kimberly S. Reisinger, Melissa R. Robbins, Marianne B. Scarborough, Stephanie L. Sheppard, Kevin D. Slack, Marie E. Smith, Isabel M. Stevenson, Mindy S. Taylor, Peter M. Tellier and Amy K. Thomas.

A banquet honoring the new members followed the ceremony. Honored guests included Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, Mrs. Lucy Butler and Mrs. Elizabeth Bellavance. Also present was Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, a long-standing member of Phi Kappa Phi. Dr. Ray Thompson, past president of the honor society, received a Meritorious Service Award for his outstanding service to the Salisbury State chapter.

Low Pressure, Loads of Fun In Area Youth Program

Elton "J.R." Harmon, a leisure studies senior, spends his afternoons and weekends doing everything from showing children how to choke up on a baseball bat and making sure that their shoes are tied to setting up equipment and coaching and officiating at their games.

He has been teaching children between the ages of 6 and 13 about basketball and baseball as part of his internship with the Tom Brown Rookie League in Salisbury.

A 1985 graduate of Franklin Senior High School in Reisterstown, Harmon is earning his B.A. in leisure studies with a concentration in physical education from SSU this year. During his four years on the University's football team, he was co-captain, played defensive end and defensive tackle and received the Bobby Richards Memorial Award for his citizenship, leadership and dedication to the team.

"Through my sports experiences I've come to learn what athletics should be really about," said Harmon. "When I was playing football, I forgot that it was just a game and was supposed to be fun because I got so caught up in the competition. The Rookie League emphasizes a positive sports environment rather than high pressure competition and teaches kids at an early age that having fun is the most important part of their participation in any sport.

"It's hard for athletes who work with kids to keep what they do in perspective—to keep things geared down to the appropriate age levels. When I first started this internship, I took for granted that these kids had certain skills which they couldn't possibly have at their ages. I had to learn to back down and let them have fun," he said.

"But the biggest reward for me is the reaction I get from the kids. Even the smallest things that I would take for granted are really important to them and it's great to see those reactions reflected on their faces," said Harmon.

In addition to coaching, instructing and officiating, Harmon is in charge of more than 50 volunteer students from SSU. As part of their prerequisites for a coaching class, these students are required to spend 20 hours a semester working with the Tom Brown Rookie League.

Tom Brown, a former football coach at SSU, played defensive back on two Super Bowl champion Green Bay Packers teams and was a first baseman with the Washington Senators in the '60s. He has been running rookie league programs for the past 19 years.

"I wanted to get University students involved because in a few years they are going to be parents and most will have children involved in sports programs," said Brown. "We want to show them a good approach—that it doesn't have to be a high pressure situation for the kids. I hope that they will learn as parents not to expect too much from their children, that they will just let them have fun," he added.

What does he think of Harmon's role as his assistant intern? "J.R. is doing an outstanding job for us. He grabbed the concept of what we are trying to instill in the kids and he has good instincts with them. Not everybody has the patience and maturity to do what J.R. is doing. And the parents respond well to him also," he added.

In fact, Grady Armstrong, chair of the Department of Leisure Studies at SSU, has received several letters from parents commending Harmon for his patience and his "gentle and unimposing manner."

"I was thrilled with J.R.'s performance as a coach," said one parent. "He was every bit as patient, warm and friendly with the boys as Mr. Brown is. J.R. instructed the boys in a non-intimidating fashion and the boys progressed very well in this environment."

Harmon's plans for the future include an upcoming marriage next January, continued education and eventually a coaching career at the college level.

Tryon Published In Psychology Journal on Boys' Social Interaction Patterns

Dr. Adeline Tryon, assistant professor of psychology in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently had accepted for publication an article titled "Popular and aggressive boys' initial social interaction patterns in cooperative and competitive settings."

Her article will appear in the August 1991 issue of the Journal of Abnormal Child Psychology, a nationally refereed journal published by the American Psychological Association.

Tryon observed the social interactions of young school children who were either well-liked or rejected by their classmates. She found that when children tried to join an on-going game, those who were best liked tended to ask questions (such as "can I play?" or "what are you doing?"). Whereas those children who were less well-liked, or rejected, tended to use demands (such as "let me play," "I'll take your turn," or "just start over so I can play, too").

The differences in strategies tended to be greatest when the games were competitive rather than when they were cooperative. When children who were games hosts were asked which entering child they liked best, they confirmed that the ones who asked questions were better received than those who had made demands.

Tryon suggests that children who are not well received by their peers may benefit from learning more pro-social interaction skills (such as asking questions for information when trying to join an on-going activity) and that these skills may help the children to be better accepted by their classmates at school.

Flying Squirrel Search At Pemberton Park

On Saturday, May 18, at 8 p.m. there is a flying squirrel search at Pemberton Park. Although flying squirrels are common on the Eastern Shore, they are shy and nocturnal and so rarely seen.

Naturalist Bob Kreiter leads the trip to search for and study the flying squirrels. Bring a flashlight.

Limited to adults and children over 10, the registration fee is $2. For more information or reservations, call 548-4900.

Kraft Published

Dr. Evan Kraft, assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School of Business, had an article about the political upheaval in Yugoslavia published recently.

The article, "Yugoslavia: 1986-88: Transition to Crisis," explores the economic dimensions of the Yugoslav crisis and the difficulties of finding a solution even under the best of political circumstances. The article appears in the book "Crisis and Reform in Eastern Europe," edited by Andrew Arato and Ferenc Feher and published by Transactions Press, New Brunswick, NJ.

Jim Brodzinski

MIS Major To Begin in Fall

A new major at SSU aims to take advantage of the demand for people who know computers, but also know how to interact with people.

Final approval was received this past fall to make the management information system core program within the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business a free standing major. Officials at SSU had begun the work needed to get the new major approved in 1986 when the Perdue Business School was first being organized.

Information and Decision Sciences Department Chair Jim Brodzinski said the intent behind the new major is to combine computer literacy with people/management skills. "It's designed for people who really like the idea of working with people, but also are attracted by new technology."

The difference between a traditional computer science degree and the M.I.S. program, Brodzinski said, is in computer science, people are primarily interested in putting a computer network into place. Whereas, a person with M.I.S. training would be interested in establishing a computer network based on the flow of information in an organization.

"So often someone puts a computer into a business and there is not an attempt to manage it," said Brodzinski. "That is what someone with an M.I.S. background does."

SSU Academic Vice President K. Nelson Butler sees the new degree as an integral part of the Perdue School's programs because of the ever increasing demand for college graduates with computer knowledge. "We're trying to incorporate all the technical things with the traditional," said Butler. "I can't think of a modern-day business operation getting along without a computer."

The demand for people with M.I.S. training is made evident by glancing through the weekend employment sections of large circulation newspapers like The Washington Post or The Philadelphia Inquirer. Column after column of advertisements search for people with M.I.S. degrees or backgrounds. "Recruiters are still very interested in people skills," noted Brodzinski. "(This degree) bridges the gap between technical and non-technical."

Because SSU already offered a core program in M.I.S. the majority of the courses necessary to complete the new degree are in place. Brodzinski said some fine tuning of course offerings remains to be done, and no one will officially be allowed to register for the new major until the fall of 1991. The Perdue School plans to target freshmen and sophomores for the M.I.S. degree because juniors will be too far along with their course work to make the change.

Once they are in the program, M.I.S. students will take a basic business core, along with computer science and management courses, in addition to liberal arts requirements.

Salisbury State will be the only public university on the Eastern Shore to offer the new degree, although three schools on the western shore offer similar majors.

Public Safety Presents Crime Prevention Awards

The Office of Public Safety recently awarded three Campus Crime Prevention Awards to members of the University community. The recipients are a December 1990 graduate, Rebecca Kramer; a staff member, Jennifer Berkman; and a faculty member, Dr. Gene White.

Kramer did an analyss of the public safety bicycle safety and theft prevention program and recommend several modifications to the program. The result was that bicycle registrations increased two-fold, and the sale of the U-shape bike lock went from 100 a semester to over 300.

The connection between illegal use or abuse of alcohol and drugs, and crime prevention is well-known. Through the efforts of Berkman, director of the Lower Shore Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, reported incidents of drug and alcohol violations at SSU decreased 66 percent last year.

For the past two years, White, assistant professor of psychology, has coordinated the Freshman Orientation program. Under his leadership, public safety issues have been expanded to include three sessions of the eight session course. White's support for making new students better prepared to protect themselves is being recognized.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

The Center often gets requests from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors so they can contact them about a job opening. To participate, a resume should be brought to the Center office. The resume will be filed and made available to interested employers.

Computer Discounts At the Book Rack

This is graduates' last chance to take advantage of the educational discounts extended by IBM and Apple Computers as well as various software companies. Once a graduate, the educational discount is no longer valid.

Discounts to students are around 48 percent below the suggested retail price. If going on to graduate school, consider making a computer investment before leaving Salisbury State. Remember, not all universities have this computer program.

Stop by the Book Rack's computer/electronics department and check out the prices. Any order must be placed before graduation date in order to qualify for the special discounts.

Credit Union Offers Loan Advice

Ten-month employees who have payroll deductions dispersed to their State Employees Credit Union loan should be aware that all SECU loan contracts are written on a 12-month repayment schedule. It is the employee's responsibility to make the payments to his or her account when the deductions have stopped.

The loan payments can be made directly to the Credit Union during the summer months by either mailing them biweekly to SECU's Towson office, or by making the payments in person at any SECU full-service branch.

For questions about one's 10-month status or any other helpful Credit Union services, please call 296-SECU or 1-800-TRY-SECU.

Rubin Named To Governor's Board

Praising her "tremendous commitment to service," Gov. William Donald Schaefer has appointed Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, to the Governor's Advisory Board on Service and Citizenship.

The goal of the governor's board, which is working through the state Department of Education, is to have youth, from elementary through college age, engaged in learning through community service.

Just recently established, the board is responding to federal legislation created by Sen. Barbara Mikulski titled the National and Community Service Act.

Close to $18 million are expected to be available for various youth service projects nationwide. "Gov. Schaefer's quick steps in responding to the new law should place Maryland in an excellent position to qualify for grant monies," said Rubin. At a recent conference in the midwest she learned that some states aren't even aware of the new legislation.

"Community service, like learning, is multifaceted. Community service involves ethical development. It involves who you are as a human being and a citizen. We can't turn out students who are smart but don't care about the world," said Rubin, "otherwise we end up with Donald Trump and Michael Millken.

"I'm a student of American studies and in our national history there's always been a tremendous tension between individualism and community," the SSU dean continued. After a period of excessive emphasis on individualism, she thinks the pendulum is now swinging in the opposite direction. "In my own school I've seen students show an increasing interest in working for the common good and becoming a part of something bigger than themselves."

(On the Salisbury campus service projects range from building houses for the poor in the city to visiting nursing homes.)

In the last three years Rubin has been an active voice in the national debate over student learning and community service. In lectures, workshops and conferences as well as journals and books, she has advocated programs that support young people's growing through doing for others. She is also president of the National Society for Internships and Experiential Education, which advocates community service and other ways of learning through doing.

Students are realizing "that the best way to reach into yourself, and to do your very best, is by reaching out to others," said a recent issue of the School Youth Services Network. Rubin agrees.

Citizen Cabinet Summer Meeting Here

The Governor's Citizen Cabinet for Wicomico County will hold its first meeting in the Social Room of Holloway Hall on June 15.

Jack Powell, an alumnus of SSU, is this year's cabinet chairman.

May 1991 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 25, in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for the processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The commencement speaker will be The Honorable Shirley B. Jones, former U. S. District Court judge.

3. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning April 29. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours, Monday-Thursday, are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.] The bookstore will be open on Friday, May 24, from 8:30 a.m.-3 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 3 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., The Fulton School of Liberal Arts) and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard and then be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card is then given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage and, at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Dr. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement Exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, May 20. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony gradduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing will hold a pinning ceremony on Friday, May 24, at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

12. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 1:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center on Saturday, May 25. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

13. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through K, Jeffrey King, will report to Drs. Maurice Bozman and Edward Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with K, Maureen Koppenhafer, through the letter Z will report to Drs. Jack Wulff and Geraldine Rossi and will line up alphabetically along the windows, facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

14. Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through David Lybarger, will report to Drs. Gerald St. Martin and Arthur Delpaz at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with M, Daniel Madigan, through the letter Z, will also go the the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Arlene White and Harry Basehart. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

15. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up according to Dr. White's direction and will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

16. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Mary Ellen Elwell and Jerome Miller. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

17. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A. M.Ed., M.S. and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the Park) and report to the faculty marshal in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. John Lewis. You will line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle adjacent to your section.

M.Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Robert Berry and line up at his direction. You will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

18. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional (the Civic Center is air conditioned).
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the president.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South, specialists in graduation and event photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

19. Graduation Decorum–Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long, hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Marketing Association Gets National Award

The Salisbury State chapter of the American Marketing Association (AMA) won the prestigious second tier "Chapter Excellence in Membership" award at the organization's International Collegiate Conference in New Orleans recently.

"This kind of national recognition is extremely rare for a chapter this young," said chapter advisor Dr. Mehmet "Memo" Diriker, assistant professor of marketing in the Perdue School of Business, of the six-month-old organization. "The SSU chapter has every reason to be proud."

The chapter, presently consisting of 99 members, set a recruitment record for universities of Salisbury State's size. The chapter also impressed judges with its diversity of members and overall ranking of 38th in total membership among the 390 chapters nationwide.

Chapter officers Kim Crall of Pasadena, MD; Jill Gamble of Mt. Savage, MD; and Beth Waters of Salisbury attended the three-day conference which included regional meetings, various career and leadership sessions and a speech by the vice president of marketing for Nike, Inc. The conference was attended by 83 schools and over 1,100 college students.

"It (the conference) was a great educational experience," said Gamble. "It gave direction into future careers."

Radio Free Delmarva Opens Easton Festival

Coming up on SSU's public radio station WSCL (89.5 FM) on Friday, May 24: "RFD-Radio Free Delmarva" celebrates the beginning of summer with a special performance at the Avalon Theater in Easton.

The Peninsula's only radio variety show will present a live taping, for broadcast the following night, with some of the area's finest performers. It's also the kickoff event for the 10-day "Festival: A Celebration of the Arts," taking place in Easton and the surrounding area through June 2. The event also marks the fourth anniversary of WSCL, a National Public Radio member station.

This month's show features folk singer Karen Goldberg, the Bellows Babes accordian duet, Jeff Warner, a singer of traditional songs, the RFD House Band featuring Sesame Street guitarist Jim Mitchell, episode four in the original semidrama, "Bif Delmar: Detective at Sea," and special guest NPR special correspondent Susan Stamberg.

The program is produced by WSCL news director Van Williamson. The show is performed before a live audience; tickets are available by calling the box office at (301) 820-5775.

Showtime is 7:30 p.m., or catch the broadcast Saturday, May 23, at 8 p.m.

receiving a doctorate in history from Columbia University, Caruthers became the first director of graduate studies at, what is known today as, Keene State University in Keene, NH. He also organized the institution's first Department of Social Science.

After 10 years of teaching in New Hampshire, Caruthers left to become the first director of graduate studies at Southern Connecticut State University. During his 24 years at this institution, he also became the first chairman of the newly organized History Department.

After dividing his time between teaching and administrative positions, Caruthers retired in 1981 as a professor emeritus of history at Southern Connecticut University.

Although retired Caruthers still remains active in alumni affairs at Salisbury State. During the term he served as chairman of the SSU Alumni Board, Caruthers testified in support of Salisbury State obtaining University status. He has also served as a member of the state higher education system's Alumni Transition Committee.

Inauguration Set for Chancellor Langenberg

All members of the University of Maryland System community are cordially invited to attend the inauguration of Chancellor Donald N. Langenberg. The ceremony, funded by private donations, is scheduled for Wednesday, June 26, at 2:30 p.m. in Baltimore's Lyric Opera House.

Langenberg joined the University System as chancellor July 1, 1990. He is the former chancellor of the University of Illinois at Chicago. A respected national leader, he chairs both the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

Langenberg views the inauguration as an opportunity to foster greater understanding and appreciation of the University of Maryland System among the System community and among external audiences. Marking the first use of the official mace, medallion and academic robe of the University System, the ceremony also will establish traditions for the young higher education family.

In his inaugural address, Langenberg will share his vision for the 15 institutions comprising the University System.

A reception will follow the ceremony. For more information, call the System Administration Office of Public Relations at 853-3740.

Gala Cuisine Has International Flavor

While the locale and the date will change for this year's 11th annual Salisbury State University Gala, one area that won't change will be the sublime cuisine as prepared by the University Dining Services staff.

The Gala, whose theme this year is "Cruise Around the World," moves from the dining hall to the Guerrieri University Center and from a late April date to Friday, May 31.

"The change in venue will provide us with the opportunity to expand the guest list for an event that has become one of the most anticipated social evenings of the year," said Robert Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation. "And, we will be able to showcase surely one of the Eastern Shore's loveliest buildings, the Guerrieri Center.

"The change in date was necessary since student-use of the facility has top priority while the academic year is in session," said Gearhart. Graduation exercises are May 25.

"There will be other changes with this year's Gala," added Gearhart, "in the sense that we'll have more or everthing. More music. More food. More fun, if that's possible!"

Entertaining that evening will be three bands: Caiso, a Jamaican steel band: Special Edition, playing songs from the '40s through the '90s; and the big and brassy Kingpins playing both easy listening and a steady stream of top 40 songs. Plus there will be a casino, movies, games room and more.

In keeping with the evening's theme, all the Guerrieri Center rooms will bear nautical names. And, all of those rooms will be filled with waves of flavorful international delicacies.

As patrons arrive that night they will enjoy cocktails and appetizers outside the north entrance to the Guerrieri Center, an area that will be transformed that evening into "Pier 11." Assorted cold canapes, Jamaican wing dings and chicken sate with dipping sauce will be available as will shucking stations for oysters, clams and sliced fresh fruit.

The Wicomico Room, or "Lido Deck," will feature a carving station with tenderloin au poivre, grilled quail with rosemary and grilled rack of lamb, a seafood station with poached salmon, clams casino, Taylor Bay scallops, shrimp cocktail and king crab legs, and a pasta station with fettucine Alfredo and tortellini with pesto.

Those relaxing on the "Promenade Deck (lobby outside the Wicomico Room) can take advantage of an antipasto station featuring imported cheeses and fresh and marinated vegetables.

The Captain's Deck (main lounge area) will have both carving and seafood stations, plus an Oriental station with dim-sum, sushi, fried egg rolls, fried won-ton and stir-fried vegetables. A dessert station will feature petit-fours, fresh fruit tarts, mini-cream puffs and truffles.

On the Fiesta Deck (outside the Nanticoke Room) guests can feast on poached salmon, clams casino, an antipasto tray, scallops wrapped in bacon and carved tenderloin.

The Aloha Deck Casino (Nanticoke Room) will have chicken sesame, clams casino, egg rolls and condiments, and a vegetable tray, all of those butlered so as not to interfere with the gaming tables.

"The Gala is annually an exciting event, one that rarely fails to provide patrons of the University with a pleasurable evening," said Gearhart. "Altering the format this year and expanding the entertainment and dining opportunities should add to that excitement, hopefully making this our best Gala yet."

Gala tickets are $150 per couple and can be purchased at the SSU Office of Institutional Advancement. Interested parties may call (301) 543-6175 for details.

Funds raised by the Gala go to the SSU Foundation. The Foundation, established for the encouragement and enrichment of education at the University, is incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for education, charitable and scientific purposes.

"We are fortunate to have this new funding source," said Butler, "especially in such tight economic times. It provides the seed money for faculty to pursue their research projects, an exercise which will ultimately bring recognition to faculty and the campus as a whole."

The eight awards will fund research projects spanning disciplines ranging from biology to philosophy.

Dr. Stephen Gehnrich, an assistant professor of biology in the Henson School of Science and Technology, submitted a proposal to the National Science Foundation (NSF) last June requesting a $100,000 grant to fund genetic research. He is investigating how a bait fish, the mummichog or killifish, can survive in either fresh or salt water. "What turns on the genes that make more of the enzymes that account for this natural phenomenon?," said Gehnrich. "And since humans have this same enzyme in their kidneys, what impact might this research portend for us?"

The NSF found the project interesting, but without any preliminary data to validate its worthiness of thorough study, rejected his request. The $1,200 mini-grant which he now has secured from the Grants Advisory Committee, along with some other funding he has obtained, will enable him to attempt to gather supporting evidence so he can resubmit his proposal to the NSF.

"Money like this (the mini-grant) is really great," said Gehnrich. "The amount may be small relative to the cost of the overall project, but it is vital in getting the project off the ground. These grants build enthusiasm and interest throughout the School of Science faculty and among the students who will be working with me on the project." Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology, echoed those sentiments.

"The Henson School received half of the $12,000 in grants awarded at a time when research funds are limited nationwide," said Creighton. The grants also allow faculty to purchase equipment they would otherwise not be able to obtain.

"We will be funding some meaningful environmental research, an area we are emphasizing at the Henson School," said Creighton. "All of the projects will lead to benefits not only to faculty, students, the Henson School and the University, but also to the entire Eastern Shore community."

While much of the funding stimulus is going to scientific research projects, assistance is also being provided for proposals of a more arcane nature.

Dr. James Hatley, assistant professor of philosophy, is interested in the tension between an individual's personal memory of the past and archival histories that give a less "subjective" and more public account of the past. Hatley claims that archival histories, in spite of their pretense of objectivity, tend to develop a picture of the past that serves too narrowly the needs of the societies writing these accounts. Personal memory, on the other hand, mourns unique persons who once lived and is more likely to be ethically sensitive to those victims of a society whose achievements were ignored or whose lives were obliterated.

"The ultimate aim of my research is to develop an appreciation for what I term 'prophetic histories,' that is histories that assume an ethical responsibility not only to the living but also to the dead and to the unborn," said Hatley.

Hatley's mini-grant will cover his living expenses this summer as he does research in New York. That research will one day culminate, he hopes, in a book, "Prophetic Histories."

Displaying the distinctive qualities that separate the philosopher from the biologist, Hatley offered that his book would not be a report on his research efforts but "a reflection. Philosophy is not a science; the answers are always only tentative."

Reflecting the diversity of the grants awarded, each of the University's five schools are represented. Dr. Jean Hanebury and Dr. Rebecca Emery of the Perdue School of Business are receiving $2,400 to study "U.S. Multinationals and Expatriate Failure Rates: County Turnover Statistics and Their Implications for International Human Resource Management."

In the Henson School, in addition to Gehnrich's research, Dr. David Jenkins ($1,176) will be investigating "Does Groundwater Discharge Affect the Spatial Distribution of Bottom-Dwelling Organisms"; Dr. Ellen Lawler ($625) will be studying "Communication in Carolina Wrens"; and Drs. Brent Skeeter, Robert Rosing and Michael Folkoff ($3,000) will be researching "The Relationship Between Urbanization and Small Town Heat Islands on the Lower Eastern Shore of Maryland."

In the School of Education and Professional Studies, Victoria Hutchinson ($1,200) will be studing "Totenmal, a Dance Reconstruction," while Dr. Shielda Rodgers of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences is analyzing "Minority Student Success in Predominantly White Schools of Nursing: Cognitive and Noncognitive Factors." The Fulton School of Liberal Arts is represented by Hatley's award.

The grants begin June 1.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SUMMER 1991 VOL. XII NO. 31

Leading Recyling Efforts on the Eastern Shore

For more than one afternoon during spring 1990, while students were hitting the books, Salisbury State University director of horticulture Les Lutz could be found going through their garbage dumpsters studying the contents.

The purpose: to design a recycling program for the University community—some 6,000 students, faculty and staff—the first official one at any college or university in the University of Maryland System. When it began last fall, it also became the first wide-scale recycling program in Wicomico County, the most populous subdivision on Maryland's lower Eastern Shore.

In a little more than three months, the University recycled 65,000 pounds of trash—about 20 percent of the campus total.

By state law, all Maryland campuses must begin recycling by July 1991. SSU started a year early. "As an education institution, we have responsibilities beyond the academic classroom to build character and leadership," said Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration. "Students grow tremendously between the ages of 18 and 22. If 5,000 or 6,000 people make recycling a part of their lives, they will have carried away from their University experience an important lesson in social responsibility."

Several hundred recycling bins of various sizes and colors are distributed throughout the 26-building campus. "We've started early and are exposing students intensely to what we're doing. We have recycling containers in student lounges, suites, dorm rooms...we put containers within 25 feet of every student," Lutz added.

Although beer and soda bottles and cans are "a very major factor" in the volume of trash discarded by college students, Lutz said, the largest component in the 33 tons of trash recycled from September to January turned out to be cardboard. The school recycled about 40,000 pounds of cardboard, largely from boxes of books, food and other college supplies, along with 13,000 pounds of glass, 4,600 pounds of aluminum and 7,200 pounds of paper," Lutz said.

The University is working with the second largest waste removal company in the world, Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI, Inc.) which is headed by William Ruckelshaus, the first director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. With national headquarters in Houston, TX, BFI does everything from disposing of medical waste to operating its own recycling centers. According to Bob Stover, BFI's Eastern Shore manager, the company has helped initiate successful recycling programs on several college campuses including Rutgers and American universities.

The amount of money saved by recycling is modest so far, about $1,200 a month, with most of that being paid to students to collect and sort the glass, metal and paper from about 1,500 recycling bins on campus. Students have smaller recycling containers in their rooms.

"Participation is excellent," said Lutz, with 75 percent to 80 percent of all student and faculty trash now being recycled.

Ironically, in his research Lutz found much of the solid waste on campus is paper generated by faculty and administration, not students.

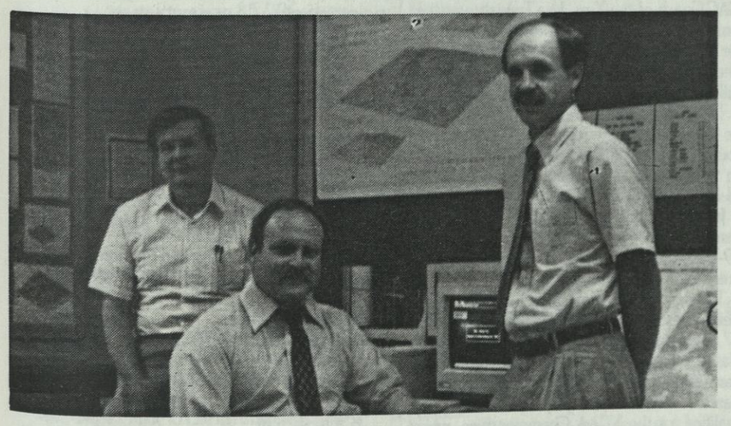
"I just watch our own office and we generate a tremendous amount of paper," Lutz said. All offices have collection bins and two students canvas the buildings weekly, collecting the recyclables. According to Carol Bloodsworth, SSU publications director, the University uses recycled paper, when possible.

Salisbury also has a campus composting program. The composting of leaves and natural debris provides good soil conditioner for the grounds of the 199-acre campus, Lutz said, but the University has so much that it gives away the popular compost to Salisbury residents.

The new campus recycling program already has reduced by 20 percent the amount of trash the University sends to the Wicomico County landfill—elating county officials who must also reduce trash volumes at the dump under other state laws," Lutz said.

"This program," said Stover, "established the University as the leader in recycling on the Eastern Shore."

University Faculty Receive First Mini-Grants, All Five Schools Benefit



SSU geography professors (left to right) Robert Rosing, Michael Folkoff and Brent Skeeter recently received a $3,000 grant to begin researching "The Relationship Between Urbanization and Small Town Heat Islands on the Lower Eastern Shore of Maryland." Altogether 11 University faculty members received eight grants totaling $12,000 from the recently established Grants Advisory Committee.

First and foremost a teaching institution, at SSU faculty research and scholarly pursuits are still an important part of the institution's mission. As many faculty members point out, undergraduate students need to be exposed to research and scholarly activity as part of the learning experience.

In an effort to facilitate and encourage more on-going research projects on the campus, the recently created Office of Grants and Sponsored Research in conjunction with the all-faculty Grants Advisory Committee is awarding eight mini-grants totaling $12,000 to 11 faculty members.

"It is our goal to encourage faculty to develop research projects and other scholarly proposals by giving small grants that will assist them in developing full funding from national foundations, both public and private," said Dr. Ron Frank, director of the Office of Grants and Sponsored Research, created in January 1990.

"This represents one more way the University is realizing the goals it set forth in its Long Range Plan," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs.

"We are fortunate to have this new funding source," said Butler, "especially in such tight economic times. It provides the seed money for faculty to pursue their research projects, an exercise which will ultimately bring recognition to faculty and the campus as a whole."

The eight awards will fund research projects spanning disciplines ranging from biology to philosophy.

Athletic Success Overflowed at SSU During '90-91 Year

To say that the 1990-91 sports year was a good one at Salisbury State University would be like saying that the Atlantic Ocean is a nice little pond or that Mount Everest is a decent sized hill. The statement would be true, but it just doesn't go far enough to give you the full picture.

In fact, the recently completed academic year may have yielded the most successful sports cycle ever at SSU.

Three Sea Gull teams qualified for postseason NCAA championship play. Two other sports had individual qualfiers for the NCAA championships. Four teams won conference titles, and Salisbury State captured the Eastern States Athletic Conference's (ESAC) All-Sports Trophy for the fourth consecutive year.

Individually, 11 Sea Gull student-athletes were recognized as national All-Americans, five others earned regional honors, and 27 were named all-ESAC performers.

The women's field hockey squad highlighted the fall season as the Gulls made their seventh straight trip to the NCAA Tournament. SSU finished 13-4-1 overall while advancing to the tournament's quarterfinal round. Three players earned All-America honors—Cheryl Ish, Vicki Miller and Vicki Conklin—while two others—Kristen Guttilla and Tracy Wolfe—earned all-South Region honors.

The volleyball team netted its fourth consecutive Eastern States Athletic Conference championship en route to a 35-14 season. The team established a new school-record for wins in one season. Three Gulls were named to the all-conference squad: Michelle Hammond, Angela Waters and Shelly Covington.

The soccer team stayed in the hunt for the conference title through the final week of the season before closing with a 7-8-1 overall record and 4-2 ESAC mark. David Kidd, Kevin Jackson and Chris Carroll were named to the all-ESAC team, while Kidd and Jackson were also recognized on the all-South Region team.

Tim Smith and Erin Green highlighted the men's and women's cross country seasons as both earned all-Mason/Dixon Conference accolades. Green also earned all-ESAC honors. The men finished with a final record of 5-1 during an injury- plagued season, while the women closed with a 15-12 record.

The football squad finished 1-8 overall under first-year coach Joe Rotellini, but laid the groundwork for a successful resurgence of the program. Punter Bill Schmidt was named to the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) All-Star squad.

The women's swim team posted a 5-3 mark on the year, finishing with its most wins in one season since 1982. Mary Jo Tantalo, the team MVP, and Lisa Kidd were among the top performers for the Gulls throughout Coach Chris Wagner's first season.

The winter months brought plenty of basketball excitement to SSU as the men's squad had its best campaign ever. Coach Ward Lambert's team earned SSU's second NCAA Tournament bid of the year while finishing with a 22-7 overall record. The Gulls also captured the ESAC Championship and enjoyed a best-ever 12-game winning streak during the season's second half. Forward Andre Foreman, who finished as the nation's leading scorer, received a plethora of honors, including first-team All-America, ECAC Player of the Year and ESAC Player of the Year. David Byer was also named to the all-conference team.

The women's basketball team advanced to the ESAC Tournament's semifinal round while posting a 12-14 record under first-year coach Bridget Benshetler. Vicki Miller and Jeannie Daly were both selected to the all-conference squad.

Despite an overall 5-9 team record, the wrestling team once again had a representativeat the NCAA's national championships in March. Andy Ryan, wrestling at 190 pounds, advanced to the nationals by placing second at the Eastern Regional qualifier.

Even with the noteworthy fall and winter season accomplishments, however, it may have been the spring season that topped the bill in terms of excitement.

For the third time in school history, one of the Sea Gull squads advanced to the NCAA's National Championship Game when the men's lacrosse team hosted Hobart for the Division III title on May 18. SSU came two goals shy of the championship however, losing 12-11 and suffering the only blemish on its 15-1 record. Seven players from Coach Jim Berkman's team earned USILA All-America honors: Rick Berkman, Kevin Hohner and Mike Esham to the first-team, Eric Ungleich to the second team, Chris Boyle to the third team, and Rusty Pritzlaff and Scott Bentkowski as honorable mention.

Two other spring teams won conference titles as the softball and men's tennis squads were both tops in the ESAC. Coach Dawn McCrumb was voted ESAC Coach-of-the Year as she guided the softball team to its second conference crown in three years. Saundra Miller, Amy Geppi and Diane Racine were named to the all-ESAC team, with Miller also honored as the conference's co-MVP.

Coach Dean Burroughs' men's tennis team continued its domination of the ESAC, winning the conference crown for the third straight year. Six Sea Gulls earned all-ESAC honors: Ken Soliday, Tre Moore, George Wines, Bernie Phidej, Dave Hardesty and Brian Weist. The team finished 13-3 on the year, with Phidej posting the best individual record for the season, 16-1.

The women's tennis team also finished with a 13-3 overall record as Ray Still was named ESAC Coach-of-the-Year. Lisa Trelease won the conference's number one singles and doubles title and was named the ESAC's MVP. Three other players—Nikki Lee, Katie Borden and Millie Baer—also earned all-ESAC honors.

The women's lacrosse team placed third at the season-ending Maryland State Colleges Tournament and finished 4-7 overall. Cheryl Ish was chosen as an honorable mention All-America on the all-South Region team.

John Hershberger of the Sea Gull baseball team also earned all-conference honors, despite a 9-21 finish for the team. The third baseman batted .410 for the season.

The men's and women's track squads capped their most successful seasons of recent years with 37 all-conference performers at the year-ending Mason/Dixon Conference Championships. The teams also broke 14 school-records during the season. Additionally, high jumper Tracy Tyler qualified for the NCAA Championships, where she placed ninth in the nation with a leap of 5-6, tying her own SSU record.

Perhaps the most exciting aspect of the 1990-91 sports year at Salisbury State University is the possibility of encore performances next year by many of the same teams and individuals. In fact, with many of the All-American, all-region and all-conference players due back next year, 1990-91 could well have been a harbinger of more good things yet to come.

Wilderness Photographs In Atrium Gallery

Photographs taken during past Salisbury State University Wilderness Orientation programs will be exhibited in the Atrium Gallery from June 10 - July 14. The Atrium Gallery is located in the Guerrieri University Center main concourse, next to the bookstore. The show is open to the public daily from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Most of the photographs feature Algonquin Provincial Park in Ontario, Canada where students canoe through crystal lakes and camp and cook by a wood fire. Other photos how students backpacking and cycling in Maine which is another option provided for students to satisfy the fall orientation requirement for freshmen. All photographs were taken by students or staff.

Algonquin '91 will be the eighth year for the program.

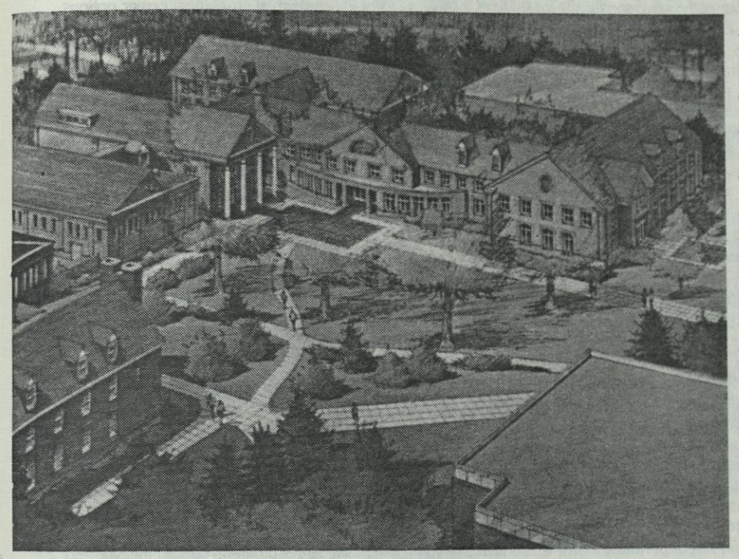
$15.2 Million Fulton Hall, First New Academic Building in More Than a Decade, To Open This Fall



Pictured is a rendering of the new $15.2 million Fulton Hall—the first new academic building in more than a decade at Salisbury State.

Salisbury State University's first new classroom building in more than a decade, the $15.2 million Fulton Hall, opens for use this fall.

This is the first new state-supported structure on campus since Maggs Gymnasium, which opened in 1977. New construction since then, mostly dorms and a University Center, has been paid for with non-tax dollars.

"A positive result of the new University of Maryland System governance structure," said SSU President Thomas E. Bellavance, "is the construction of this new complex. Under the old system the building wouldn't be coming up for funding for another two to three years."

The most expensive construction project in SSU history, the structure is an 85,000 square foot complex which covers approximately the same amount of land as Holloway Hall, the campus administration building, and provides some 12,000 square feet more space than the new University Center which opened in 1988.

The new structure will be on the site of Tawes Hall (a one-time gymnasium that was unfeasible to renovate), an annex building to Holloway and a temporary parking lot.

A sister structure to Holloway whose soaring classical columns and weathered copper cupola have become emblematic of the University, Fulton Hall also will be Georgian in style with Flemish bond brickwork, a high peaked slate roof, a two-story columned entrance, and ornamental bricking and roof dormers. Curving pathways, small brick plazas and a gently arced one-story portico add to its friendliness.

Like Holloway, Fulton Hall appears to be less a massive structure than a series of wings, each with its own personality and function. The new complex will house a variety of academic disciplines, and bring together under one roof for the first time in the history of the University, performing and fine arts programs in the School of Liberal Arts.

Off the main entrance will be a 3,000 square foot art gallery, some three times larger than the current one. The present University Gallery is "basically a corner of Blackwell Library," noted Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration.

Increased Gallery size "will make the University eligible for traveling shows that are much more extensive than what we can now accommodate," said dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Dr. Sharon Rubin.

East of the Gallery will be a raked mini-auditorium for lectures and slide/film presentations. Immediately west off the lobby is a black box theatre with flexible audience seating accommodating up to 200.

"For the first time," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, "we will have a theatre designed as a theatre and an art gallery designed as an art gallery."

Beyond the lecture hall, the complex houses new music facilities. Highlights include an electronic studio and a modern music library.

Neighboring the Music Department will be military science and art. Art will have not only various studios, but an outdoor ceramics and sculpture garden for students working with larger pieces and welding work, and new photographic darkrooms including one for color film.

"Nationally and internationally there is more and more collaboration in the arts today," Dean Rubin added. "For example, 'performance art' may incorporate theatre, music and the visual arts. By having all our fine arts together we can encourage the kind of cutting edge collaboration and exploration which is so exciting particulary in a university setting."

The south wing which faces the main campus plaza is entirely devoted to academic and administrative computer services. It will provide 24-hour access to computer students.

Throughout the structure are classrooms, faculty offices and student spaces.

Designed by Gzesh & Associates in joint venture with Bohlin, Powell, Larkin and Cywinski of Pittsburgh and Baltimore, the two-story building with its extensive southern exposure and many windows appears light and airy. According to Jacob J. Gzesh, principal of the firm, the new complex "reflects the human scale found in Holloway Hall..." It's meant to be a building where students, faculty and visitors can interact and feel comfortable, he added.

The name Fulton Hall was chosen to honor Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton of Snow Hill, who donated $2.5 million to endow the School of Liberal Arts.

The contractor is J. Roland Dashiell and Sons of Salisbury.

University officials agree that by moving programs and departments that are being housed in temporary facililites to Fulton Hall, all will have new opportunities for continued growth in depth and excellence.

Said Dean Rubin, "I anticipate a 'synergy' taking place...with exciting things happening we can't even guess about yet."

Salisbury Among Best Small Cities To Call Home

Salisbury is among the top 25 small communities in the United States to call home, according to a newly published book.

The Rating Guide to Life in America's Small Cities ranks 219 "micropolitan" areas for their desirability as alternatives to living in the nation's large metropolitan centers.

Salisbury tied in the 23rd slot with Ithaca, NY, and Winchester, VA.

San Luis Obispo-Atacadero, CA rated as the best small city to live.

The book's author, G. Scott Thomas, defines micropolitans as cities of between 15,000 and 50,000 people in counties of at least 40,000 population.

The communities cannot be part of regions designated as metropolitan areas by the U.S. government as of June 15, 1989. Most suburban communities are disqualified because they are included in metropolitan areas.

"More than 15 million people live in micropolitan America, nearly 6.5 percent of the nation's population," said Thomas.

The cities were assiged points in 10 categories: climate, economics, education, health care, housing, public safety, transportation, urban proximity, sophistication and diversions.

The latter two categories measured things such as voter turnout, population turnover, newspaper readership, movie theaters, parks, golf courses, restaurants and retail stores.

Nursing Offers Revised Career Choice

For post-war baby-boomers dissatisfied with their lives and thinking of mid-life career changes, Salisbury State University may have an answer. SSU has created a challenging new program which proponents say offers endless career possibilities and guaranteed job security.

The School of Nursing and Health Services has developed an accelerated academic program, the first of its kind in Maryland, that will allow students to receive two degrees, a Bachelor of Science and a Master of Science in nursing, in three years.

"This program offers an exceptional opportunity for college graduates thinking about a change, in a career field that is meaningful," said Dr. Elizabeth Barfield, dean of the School of Nursing and Health Services. "Having both degrees will provide students with opportunities for rapid advancement in nursing and qualify them to provide valuable services to others."

Students interested in pursuing the accelerated dual-degree program must have a bachelor's diploma in any area and meet the University's requirements for admission to graduate study. Nurses who hold degrees in other fields may be awarded advance placement in the undergraduate phase of the program as a result of their previous education and work experience.

The course of study requires 83 semester credit hours. The program is designed so that it can be completed in three academic years of full-time study. During the first year participants enroll in undergraduate-level clinical and theory courses designed specifically for students in this track. The second year, they take undergraduate and graduate courses which enable them to complete the requirements for the B.S. degree in nursing. These courses also serve as the foundation for advanced clinical practice in family health nursing in rural areas. In the final year students select either a clinical specialization or nursing service administration role.

Although this dual-degree program was designed for people desiring major career changes, it also presents new directions for people already working in health care.

George Nepert, for example, is a 47-year-old registered respiratory therapist and pulmonary technologist currently working at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center.

"I guess I'm having my midlife crisis," Nepert said. "I want to establish new career goals."

Nepert says he began thinking about nursing because of the critical shortages in the profession. "I realized there was a great demand for nurses—not just in Salisbury, but everywhere." Guaranteed job opportunities and an increase in salary were powerful incentives, along with earning two degrees in only six semesters.

"A rare opportunity is now being offered right on my doorstep," he said.

Sandra Poole, coordinator of advocacy and area ombudsman at the MAC Inc., Area Agency on Aging, agrees that this new program will provide students with endless career options.

She received her master's degree in psychology from SSU last year after deciding to pursue a profession that made a difference in people's lives.

As part of her work, Poole is in close contact with administrators, staff and nurses at local nursing homes. She wanted to learn more about the nursing profession and is particularly interested in the graduate portion of the accelerated program. "It would enhance my ability to work with medical staff and increase my ability to understand clinical issues," she said.

"...The people in the Nursing Department at SSU have been very accommodating," she added. "They have taken a very personal approach to my situation."

Members of the Nursing Department are available to counsel any individual interested in pursuing the accelerated dual-degree program. Faculty members also provide information about scholarships. According to Barfield, students may be eligible to receive financial aid through the State of Maryland as well as private sources.

For additional information about the accelerated dual-degree program, contact the Salisbury State University Nursing Department at (301) 543-6401.

Salisbury State University—In the News

The Baltimore Sun, October 1, 1990

Here in the land of pleasant living, as Eastern Shore residents like to call their part of the world, local residents have poured millions of dollars in the public university, and smiles abound as the once-endangered school's endowment and reputation soar. ■ The average combined math and verbal scholastic test score was 1,019 of a possible 1,600, up from 848 a decade ago and well above the national average of about 900. Only the University of Maryland College Park and St. Mary's College did better (among the state's public colleges and universities). ■ ...thanks in no small part to Mr. (Franklin P.) Perdue, who set the yardstick for other alumni, beginning with a $2.5 million gift in 1986, the university is about to be listed in an exclusive group of 300 schools with the largest endowments for their size. Three of the university's five schools have been endowed with multimillion-dollar gifts in recent years, and university officials are courting potential donors for the other two. ■ The endowment is providing an edge that officials say the university needs by enabling it to offer scholarships, a key part of its strategy to enroll better students. It also has been used to renovate buildings, buy equipment and fund faculty research projects. ■ Others say the university's new standing is partly a recognition of growth on the Eastern Shore and partly the work of President Thomas E. Bellavance, who helped bring Salisbury's qualities to public attention. ■ Add to academic programs the climate, the nearby beach, a clean campus, freshman orientation organized around bicycle and canoe trips, and a low crime rate, and you have the ingredients that appeal to parents and children alike, officials say. ■ The students themselves said in recent interviews that they were attracted by money, ambience and personal attention. ■ "A whole bunch of deans called me," said Kate Previti, who graduated 10th in her class of 300 at her Absecon, N.J. high school and scored 1,170 on her college entrance tests. Ms. Previti also was attracted by a full, four-year scholarship in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business. She is part of what may be a trend nurtured by schools like Salisbury: a good student who doesn't want the pressures of a Harvard or Penn State and who appreciates the ambience of a small school. ■ David Hooper of Bel Air, whose SAT score of 1,320 made him a Maryland distinguished scholarship winner, said he was impressed when he got to meet the head of the biology and business departments when he showed up for a campus visit. He noted, "They offered me a lot of scholarships." ■ In just a decade, the total value of four-year scholarships awarded has grown to $1 million from zero.

Money Guide, Fall 1990 (a publication of the Time, Inc. Magazine Company)

If assessing academic quality is tough, trying to calculate a school's value—its quality relative to price—is an even more difficult task. But after extensive consultation with experts and statisticians, "Money" developed a system to examine all schools and identify the ones that deliver the best education for the buck. ■ And how did Salisbury State University fare? After gathering comparable data on some 1,000 colleges and universities in the U.S., Salisbury was judged the 31st best buy among public schools of higher education in the nation.

The Salisbury Daily Times, August 26, 1990

"We have open houses three to four times a semester, and when students come by, they get a chance to interact with one-third of our faculty," (Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs) said. "They can talk to a real live chemistry professor, and discuss what he or she will expect in class." ■ Currently, 73 percent (of the faculty) hold doctorates, and that figure is expected to rise this year. ■ Richard Henson, president of Henson Aviation, said he was impressed with the students who have enrolled in the (Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology). (Mr. Henson endowed the school in 1988 with a gift of $2.5 million.) "I have had a number of meetings with the principals of the school and the Henson scholars," he said. "I am deeply impressed with the excellent quality that is so apparent in these students." ■ "We have the best of both worlds—the personal touch of a college and the services of a university," said (President Bellavance). ■ "We are competing for students who are in the top five in their class and have a 1,300 SAT. We aren't going to get them if we don't have ... scholarship packages," said (M.P. Minton, dean of admissions). ■ "We want the community to see our product—our graduates," said (President Bellavance). "We're proud to be an institution whose primary mission is not to produce breakthrough research, but to produce one of the most difficult projects known to man, an educated individual."

Low Pressure, Loads of Fun in Area Youth Program

SSU student Elton "J.R." Harmon shows children how to "perfect their swings" as part of his leisure studies internship with the Tom Brown Rookie League in Salisbury.

Elton "J.R." Harmon, a leisure studies senior at Salisbury State University, spends his afternoons and weekends doing everything from showing children how to choke up on a baseball bat and making sure that their shoes are tied to setting up equipment and coaching and officiating at their games.

He has been teaching children between the ages of 6 and 13 about basketball and baseball as part of his internship with the Tom Brown Rookie League in Salisbury.

A 1985 graduate of Franklin Senior High School in Reisterstown, Harmon is earning his B.A. in leisure studies with a concentration in physical education from SSU this year. During his four years on the University's football team, he was co-captain, played defensive end and defensive tackle and received the Bobby Richards Memorial Award for his citizenship, leadership and dedication to the team.

"Through my sports experiences I've come to learn what athletics should be really about," said Harmon. "When I was playing football, I forgot that it was just a game and was supposed to be fun because I got so caught up in the competition. The Rookie League emphasizes a positive sports environment rather than high pressure competition and teaches kids at an early age that having fun is the most important part of their participation in any sport. "It's hard for athletes who work with kids to keep what they do in perspective—to keep things geared down to the appropriate age levels. When I first started this internship, I took for granted that these kids had certain skills which they couldn't possibly have at their ages. I had to learn to back down and let them have fun," he said.

"But the biggest reward for me is the reaction I get from the kids. Even the smallest things that I would take for granted are really important to them and it's great to see those reactions reflected on their faces," said Harmon.

In addition to coaching, instructing and officiating, Harmon is in charge of more than 50 volunteer students from SSU. As part of their prerequisites for a coaching class, these students are required to spend 20 hours a semester working with the Tom Brown Rookie League.

Tom Brown, a former football coach at SSU, played defensive back on two Super Bowl champion Green Bay Packers teams and was a first baseman with the Washington Senators in the '60s. He has been running rookie league programs for the past 19 years.

"I wanted to get University students involved because in a few years they are going to be parents and most will have children involved in sports programs," said Brown. "We want to show them a good approach—that it doesn't have to be a high pressure situation for the kids. I hope that they will learn as parents not to expect too much from their children, that they will just let them have fun," he added.

What does he think of Harmon's role as his assistant intern? "J.R. is doing an outstanding job for us. He grabbed the concept of what we are trying to instill in the kids and he has good instincts with them. Not everybody has the patience and maturity to do what J.R. is doing. And the parents respond well to him also," he added.

In fact, Grady Armstrong, chair of the Department of Leisure Studies at SSU, has received several letters from parents commending Harmon for his patience and his "gentle and unimposing manner."

"I was thrilled with J.R.'s performance as a coach," said one parent. "He was every bit as patient, warm and friendly with the boys as Mr. Brown is. J.R. instructed the boys in a non-intimidating fashion and the boys progressed very well in this environment."

Harmon's plans for the future include an upcoming marriage next January, continued education and eventually a coaching career at the college level.

Cutting-edge Program Gives Grads Competitive Edge

When Horn Point Labs in Oxford announced there was an opening in physical oceanography, 30 people applied for the job. The tough choice came when they had narrowed that list down to two people best qualified for the job.

Both are new graduates of Salisbury State University's cutting-edge microelectronics program in the Richard A. Heson School of Science and Technology.

In a year when jobs are scarce, the eight young men with microelectronic degrees from SSU's Physics Department are beating the odds with secure plans for their futures.

Brian Black (Camp Springs, MD) snagged the job at Horn Point; most of his classmates are headed for either grad school or jobs in physics or engineering.

Assistant Professor Asif Shakur, who guided the class members through their senior projects, is proud of his students—and not completely surprised to see them do so well. He says the combination of state-of-the-art technology and a background in physics gives the graduates a competitive edge.

"These students understand theory," he said, "more than just the technology."

Class members put that understanding to the test in their senior projects, which they presented at the Henson School's Undergraduate Research Symposium.

Some surprised themselves at how much they had really learned.

Ron Douglas' (Salisbury) project began when he wondered out loud how the guidance systems used on missiles in Operation Desert Storm really worked: how did the computer, which had been fed coordinates to know where it was, know where it was going after the missile had been launched?

The complex project hit a snag when the computer chip used to measure speed, an accelerometer, was not available from the supply company. When he realized he would have to design and build his own accelerometer, Douglas felt his confidence ebb.

"I had a lot of doubts about the project even working at all," he remembered. To detect movement, his accelerometer would need a strain gauge: something no one in the department had ever worked with before.

"We didn't know what to expect until we saw it," Douglas continued. Calling on not only his technical but his industrial arts skills, Douglas built an accelerometer that works. When he moves his small aluminum box, it is attached to a computer that correctly registers the change. "It was so wild," he beamed. "The program actually ran!"

The other members of Shakur's class each had their own projects; and all of them illustrated not only principles of physics and engineering, but the students' own understanding of what they had learned. While the challenge was fun for them, it came at the end of four years that had brought more hard work than excitement.

Gus Comeyne (Bowie, MD) and Glenn Silbert (Salisbury) agree that the first few years of physics classes were "boring."

"It's a lot more fun when you start applying what you've learned," said Comeyne. Silbert found he could "put all the pieces together" while working on his project. Silbert drew on what he had learned about physics to derive an equation which he used to determine the inertia of irregularly shaped objects.

That's not something many people could chat with him about, but the engineers at K&L Microwave in Salisbury will be happy to have him on their team in a new state-of-the art department that company is opening up.

If the microprocessors and analog-to-digital converters these students have more than mastered seem like something from another world, take a closer look at your car. Or your telephone. Or just about anything else you use every day. While the rest of us are learning to use computers, the graduates of the Physics/Microelectronics Department understand the integrated circuits or "chips" that make them work.

And for Brian Black, the "chip-level understanding of a computer" he gained at SSU is a first-class ticket to the future.

First, Possess a Soul

by Dr. Tony Whall

My students and I sometimes have conflicting ideas about why they've come to college.

They're here, they tell me, to prepare for careers in this or that discipline—nursing, business, teaching and so on. If that's so, I ask them, why are they studying Shakespeare or Dylan Thomas' poetry with me?

The more disaffected among them will respond that studying literature will "make me more well-rounded." And when I ask what that means, they tell me that referring to Hamlet someday might impress a jury, or quoting some poetry might perk up a patient. They don't really believe this will ever happen, but they tell me these things to assure me that I'm not wasting my time, or theirs.

Then I tell them that I'm afraid my course won't make them "well-rounded." I tell them that it's probably not going to help them either get a job or keep one. Most are puzzled by this admission; a few are resentful. Well then, they want to know, why are they required to study this stuff if it won't help them with their careers? Because, I say falteringly and with increasing trepidation, it may help you with your lives. Then come the frowns, the rolling eyes, the sighs. Someone looks at a watch as if to say, "Yes, well, let's please get on with it."

For many of my students, you see, education doesn't seem to have much to do with living their lives. For them, education is a tool, an instrument to be employed to attain security and success in the "real world." Education, that is, has very little to do with learning, and almost everything to do with training.

Little wonder, then, that history and philosophy and biology might be perceived by some as hurdles to be gotten over so they can get on with the real business of education—career training. Little wonder, given this attitude, that they get so little out of their time spent in college.

The most depressing aspect of the sophisticated vocationalism which has crept into higher education in recent years is that it is so inhibiting—so demeaning. Learning is liberating; it is directed, or should be directed, toward larger and better understanding, toward more artful living, toward more civil association, toward a fullness of life in affection, exuberance and action.

Assuming that the purpose of education is to prepare one for a career negates this nobler objective. Where learning calls us to the service of ideals, training calls us to labor for nothing greater than our own material needs. Where learning equips us with a historical and ethical perspective with which we may examine the status quo and if necessary, strive to change it, training equips us to maintain it. Where learning imbues us with powers of reflection, discrimination and judgment, training inculcates in us a capacity for and willingness to follow directions and to obey. Where learning prepares us for leadership in the world, training makes us instruments of that world. Training, indeed, can enable us to make a living, but only learning can make living worthwhile.

Many of my students, especially the younger ones, don't buy any of this, of course. Their aim is to use education to secure a responsible and maybe even respectable position in the work place. Then, they insist, they'll have time and inclination for Mozart, for Rembrandt, for civic responsibility, for charity. But as they get older, and as they approach the day when they'll enter what they still perceive to be "real life" (as if college were but a dream), a few of them begin to wonder if perhaps they haven't missed something during the past three or four years.

They'll stop by the office and talk about their hopes and plans, and they'll ask about the poem we read in 102 about the boy and his girl and the owl in the attic. And we'll recall with pleasure Anthony Hecht's wonderful "End of the Weekend" with an eagerness and delight that was not possible four years ago.

At that moment I just might break out my copy of Cardinal Newman's "The Idea of a University," which argues learning is crucially, essentially useful for all who would be intellectually free and flexible, who would be more than well-honed instruments of commerce and industry. And this time, I know, they'll know what he means.

I attended my university's graduation ceremonies. As I watched the graduates file past, I thought of the sacrifices they and their parents had made to prepare them for this day. I whispered to a friend and colleague, "I wonder how many of them have jobs." He looked at them for some moments, then turned to me and said, "I wonder how many of them have souls."

His is the wiser concern. Students must learn to worry about becoming more than laborer-consumers. They must come to us with a desire to think, write and speak truthfully and clearly. They must learn that their primary concern is to possess, above all, a soul. Then learning can take place, and training, as Newman wrote, will readily and easily follow.

has secured from the Grants Advisory Committee, along with some other funding he has obtained, will enable him to attempt to gather supporting evidence so he can resubmit his proposal to the NSF.

"Money like this (the mini-grant) is really great," said Gehnrich. "The amount may be small relative to the cost of the overall project, but it is vital in getting the project off the ground. These grants build enthusiasm and interest throughout the School of Science faculty and among the students who will be working with me on the project." Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology, echoed those sentiments.

"The Henson School received half of the $12,000 in grants awarded at a time when research funds are limited nationwide," said Creighton. The grants also allow faculty to purchase equipment they would otherwise not be able to obtain.

"We will be funding some meaningful environmental research, an area we are emphasizing at the Henson School," said Creighton. "All of the projects will lead to benefits not only to faculty, students, the Henson School and the University, but also to the entire Eastern Shore community."

While much of the funding stimulus is going to scientific research projects, assistance is also being provided for proposals of a more arcane nature.

Dr. James Hatley, assistant professor of philosophy, is interested in the tension between an individual's personal memory of the past and archival histories that give a less "subjective" and more public account of the past. Hatley claims that archival histories, in spite of their pretense of objectivity, tend to develop a picture of the past that serves too narrowly the needs of the societies writing these accounts. Personal memory, on the other hand, mourns unique persons who once lived and is more likely to be ethically sensitive to those victims of a society whose achievements were ignored or whose lives were obliterated.

"The ultimate aim of my research is to develop an appreciation for what I term 'prophetic histories,' that is histories that assume an ethical responsibility not only to the living but also to the dead and to the unborn," said Hatley.

Hatley's mini-grant will cover his living expenses this summer as he does research in New York. That research will one day culminate, he hopes, in a book, "Prophetic Histories."

Displaying the distinctive qualities that separate the philosopher from the biologist, Hatley offered that his book would not be a report on his research efforts but "a reflection. Philosophy is not a science; the answers are always only tentative."

Reflecting the diversity of the grants awarded, each of the University's five schools are represented. Dr. Jean Hanebury and Dr. Rebecca Emery of the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business are receiving $2,400 to study "U.S. Multinationals and Expatriate Failure Rates: County Turnover Statistics and Their Implications for International Human Resource Management."

In the Henson School, in addition to Gehnrich's research, Dr. David Jenkins ($1,176) will be investigating "Does Groundwater Discharge Affect the Spatial Distribution of Bottom-Dwelling Organisms"; Dr. Ellen Lawler ($625) will be studying "Communication in Carolina Wrens"; and Drs. Brent Skeeter, Robert Rosing and Michael Folkoff ($3,000)

The Perdue Scholars: Exploring the Meanings of Excellence

Beau Oglesby (Bowie, MD) will be going to law school before he enters the business world; but he has already made some valuable contacts.

As one of the 11 students who are the first to have had their four years at Salisbury State University supported by Perdue School of Business scholarships, Oglesby has already had a chance to meet some of the business world's success stories—including Frank Perdue himself.

When the new wing that is home to the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business was formally opened, Oglesby presented Perdue with a letter of appreciation from the Perdue Scholars. Oglesby says that the scholars are grateful to their benefactor for more than the money he donated.

"He enabled me to continue my education," said Oglesby. "But it's more important that he gave his name and his money to the school. Thanks to him, SSU has attracted some great people."

According to at least one professor, some of those "great people" have been the Perdue Scholars themselves. Dr. George C. Rubenson, assistant professor of management at the Perdue School, finds "the whole classroom experience...stronger because they're there.

"We as a faculty have to teach to the level of the students," Rubenson added. "More capable students bring (that level) up a notch."

Perdue Scholar Stephanie Belfi (Merrick, NY) was attracted to SSU by the friendly campus and to the Perdue School by the Perdue name and the level of quality for which it stands. She has graduated with even more of an education than she expected.

The hands-on work that students are expected to do in their senior year has given Belfi "something tangible that I can take out into the business world."

A marketing major, Belfi says she learned more than how to sell. She learned how to think. More specifically, she learned "to think outside the box, not just within your major" when approaching a business problem.

Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, SSU president, agrees that the Perdue name has been a valuable asset to the University.

"Everyone knows that Frank Perdue has an obsession about quality. What they don't know is that he is extremely leery of having his name associated with anything that fails to meet his standards.

"You know," said Bellavance, "it took him and his people over a year of extensive study to conclude that our program and its potential for the future was a sound investment. Having his public endorsement is like having a triple A bond rating in the market."

Along with her own hard work, that rating has paid off for Belfi. This fall she'll join a three-year training program as a procurement officer for the Naval Air Systems Command. Her resume put Belfi in a position to skip the usual government entry-level tests. When NASC received Belfi's resume from SSU's Career Placement Office, "they contacted me," she said.

Frank Perdue continues to support the school that bears his name. The Perdue Scholars have been guests at his home and he has attended school functions whenever possible. Although he and his corporation have been available to help the Perdue School, he leaves its administration to the academic professionals.

When asked about the hands-on work that Perdue Scholars say was such an important part of their education, Perdue is in full agreement.

"I am very much in favor of practical experience," he said. "I think the study of 'real life' management problems and solutions, doing fieldwork, internships and cooperative programs help students develop the most useful skills in the business world."

George Burbage (Powellville, MD) is one Perdue Scholar who has gained confidence in the program. An accounting graduate, he will spend the summer preparing to sit for the CPA exam this fall. He is certain that having the Perdue School of Business on his resume will be an asset to his future. Burbage says that as speakers in the school-sponsored Great Leader Lecture Series and the graduates themselves spread the word, the Perdue School will achieve national recognition.

In the meantime, the work he has done as a Perdue Scholar has already given him important business experience.

"In my job placement and in class, I learned how to communicate my ideas and how to work with others," he said. All of this has given him the confidence to take on a competitive job market.

"I learned that I could do the job."

Another lesson the Perdue Scholars take with them is the example that has been set. As the seventh generation of his family to live in Salisbury, Frank Perdue says he became involved with SSU because "I wanted to make a meaningful contribution to my hometown community."

The Perdue Scholars Association was formed to give students a forum to share what they have learned. The Perdue Scholars get together for the occassional picnic; but they also do tutoring and help new students through the maze of registration.

This is one way they have learned a lesson Bellavance hopes they will take with them for life.

"In addition to an excellent training and a broad education," he noted, "I would hope these scholars take with them an appreciation for the need to make a contribution to society."

will be researching "The Relationship Between Urbanization and Small Town Heat Islands on the Lower Eastern Shore of Maryland."

In the School of Education and Professional Studies, Victoria Hutchinson ($1,200) will be studing "Totenmal, a Dance Reconstruction," while Dr. Shielda Rodgers of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences is analyzing "Minority Student Success in Predominantly White Schools of Nursing: Cognitive and Noncognitive Factors." The Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts is represented by Hatley's award.

The grants began June 1.
